B-36s Due Here Next Month

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP) — Giant B-36 bombers will be sent to the Far East in wing strength for the first time in October, the Air Force announced tonight.

A wing of the big intercontinental bombers usually consists of 30 planes.

The air force said the 10-engine B-36s of the Strategic Air Command's 92nd Heavy Bomber Wing at Fairchild Air Force Base, Spokane, Wash., will leave their home station in October and fly nonstop to Guam for 90 days of rotational training.

Several B-36s made a survey flight from the U.S. to the Far East last year.

When the 92nd Heavy Bomber Wing reaches Guam, the 509th Medium Bomber Wing, equipped with B-50s and presently on rotational duty there, will return to its home station at Walker Air Force Base, Roswell, N.M.

After completion of the 90-day training period on Guam, the B-36s will return to Fairchild Air Force Base.

The air force described the sending of the bombers to the Far East as "a routine training exercise" in accordance with its program for maintaining global mobility of all strategic air force command units.

Brig. Gen. Joseph D. Caldara, commander of the Third Air Division, said here yesterday that airlift support for personnel and equipment for movements of both the 92nd and 509th will be furnished by aircraft of the Military Air Transport Service.

Also involved in the return of the 509th are KB-29 aircraft of the 508th Air Refueling Squadron, based at Turner Air Force Base, Ga.

AIR FORCE WILL START PAYING TWICE MONTHLY

Secretary of the Air Force Harold F. Talbott has announced that air force personnel will be paid twice a month on a six months test basis beginning October.

The test will apply to all airmen and will be optional for officers. Individual officers will be given an opportunity every six months to elect to be paid once a month or twice a month.

Prior to adopting the semi-monthly pay plan, an air force survey showed 73 per cent of all airmen were in favor of two pay days a month, 16 per cent opposed and 11 per cent indifferent.

Pay earning periods under the twice a month plan will be from the first to the 15th and from the 16th through the last day of the month. Pay days will be on the 5th and the 20th.

First pay day for officers electing semi-monthly pay will be Oct. 20. First pay day for officers electing monthly pay will be Nov. 5.

Under the new plan, pay days can be advanced if they fall on a Sunday, holiday or non-work day.

Air force officials anticipate that paying twice a month will tend to reduce the necessity for many airmen to seek small personal loans between monthly pay days.

Businessmen near air force bases may find their sales will become more stabilized.

Commissaries, base exchanges and laundry facilities are expected to have peak-load periods leveled off.

The plan will bring the air force in line with the twice a month pay policy used in industry and civil service. So-called "partial" pays are expected to become virtually extinct with the advent of two pay days a month.

Prison Key Found In Possession Of Escapee; Jailbreak Inquiry On

A prison key used to open the cells of inmates in the Agana lockup was found in the possession of one of the escapees nabbed Sunday night. The trio who staged the second jailbreak last weekend were captured by the police after a 10-hour search.

The investigation into the series of jailbreaks headed for another twist as the police officers found a pistol in the tire shop of the police department. Investigators believe it was one of the two pistols stolen from a local store August 23.

After only ten hours of freedom, the three youthful convicts, who walked their way out of the Agana city jail Sunday night, are back again behind bars following their

CHAMBER ASKS NAVY EASE SECURITY CHECK

Negotiations seeking to minimize or eliminate security clearances for travel to and from Guam were opened yesterday between the chamber of commerce and the navy.

Gayle Shelton, chamber president and spokesman for a four-member committee which called at the office of Radm. M. E. Murphy, reported "considerable progress" was made toward clarification and easing of security regulations.

The committee, at the request of members of the local chamber, asked the navy to consider:

"1. The question of expediting or eliminating naval security clearances for permanent residents of the Territory of Guam.

"2. The question of securing naval security clearances on an interim basis for business persons who at the time of transiting Guam find it convenient to remain over a day or two for business reasons.

"3. Expediting security clearances for businessmen who desire to enter the Territory of Guam in connection with established business enterprises in which they have an interest."

Shelton said the admiral asked the committee to submit "a concrete proposal for requirements to establish permanent residency." The chamber president said this would be done Friday afternoon at a meeting of the 14-man chamber board of directors.

Shelton declined to comment on any possible proposals the chamber would draft.

Under existing policy, the navy recognizes only native-born residents of the island as "permanent residents" for purposes of security clearances. Natives of Guam are not required to obtain clearances to leave and return to the island. All other residents, regardless of their length of residency MILITIA QUEEN — Miss Mary M. Quitugua of Sinajana was adjudged winner in the 1954 Guam Militia Queen contest. She won the title with 533,875 votes. Running a close second was Miss Chong D. Santos of Piti with 525,905 votes. Miss Quitugua will reign over the three-day Militia Carnival at the Paseo de Susana on Sept. 4, 5 and 6. She will be crowned on Saturday. The Sinajana beauty was the official candidate of the First Battalion.

H-Bomb Burned Fisherman In Coma, Near Death

TOKYO, August 31 (AP) — A Japanese fisherman who was showered with radioactive ash from an American hydrogen bomb test sank into a deep coma today and doctors said his condition, already listed as critical, was "worsening."

A platoon of top doctors issued the bulletin from the bedside of Aikichi Kuboyama, 39.

The doctors said Kuboyama shows no reaction to visits from his wife and relatives.

The fisherman's wife, Suzu, told a tremendous crowd of newspaper, radio and television reporters clustered in front of the hospital she has "given up hope" for her husband's life.

She said doctors told her they expected the crisis late this afternoon or this evening. She said Kuboyama had been blind since last night.

Hundreds of Japanese mingled with newsmen outside the hospital, waiting for news of Kuboyama's condition.

His pulse beats were stepped up "considerably," doctors said, and oxygen is being fed the stricken fisherman.

Kuboyama is one of 23 Japanese fishermen who were aboard the ship "Lucky Dragon" March 1, when fine white ash from the American hydrogen bomb test at Bikini, 80 miles away, began drifting down.

The men have been hospitalized since their return to port and their condition is of grave concern to nearly all Japanese.

The men are suffering from radiation sickness. The disease is generally characterized by inability of the body to make white blood cells.

Doctors have predicted the fishermen may develop cancer if they

Un-Taxed Liquor Trial Opens Here

A 39-year-old bartender charged with 21 counts of transporting tax-free liquor on Guam appeared in the island court yesterday in the first phase of his trial. Prosecution will be resumed today.

The accused, Stephen Haseing Atkins of Honolulu, was arrested Aug. 17 on a warrant issued by Judge Jose Manibusan. He was released on a $1,500 bond Aug. 26 after pleading not guilty at a preliminary hearing in the chamber of Judge Joaquin C. Perez.

Police charged that upon Atkins' arrest in a Tamuning bar, where he allegedly had been dispensing liquor purchased in large amounts from the Navy, officers found "several" bottles of liquor "presumably full and untampered" but with seals broken. The bottles, police said, were found hidden in cabinets in different corners of the tavern.

Detective Sgts. J. P. Ignacio and F. C. Concepcion, in their report, said the bottles bore "evidences of navy mess stamps" and that some of them were with "odd caps."

Through testimony of witnesses yesterday, the prosecution sought to prove that Atkins purchased liquor from the Employees Service Association store. He was able to make the purchases, witnesses

POLICE REVAMP

So many interesting questions have come to focus with the series of jailbreaks that rocked the calm of the island last weekend. Serious doubts now are entertained by the public over the integrity and efficiency, as well as the discipline, of our police force. Especially so if one considers the high possibility of active connivance between police guards and the inmates in the lockup.

The revelation that prisoners have been free to go in and out at nights—a prison key was found in the possession of one of the latest escapees—speaks glaringly of looseness in the concept of public service by some law agents.

We would not want to vilify those men. Rather than indulge in a further recital of their faults, we would essay on the local police problem and delve into the underlying causes of such a sad police setup. We would also like to present suggestions which we believe would remedy a basic fault in the law enforcement agency.

In viewing this problem we would like to grasp it within the widest scope possible. We know that various influences interplay in the making of a police force. Outside pressure, particularly from politicians should not be discounted. The inside machinery, the caliber of the men actively running the organization should be considered most.

We survey all those factors. The Guam police department has not been free from the encroachment of petty politics. We have seen many occasions where the honest effort of the men behind the organization are thwarted by political designs.

On the other hand there also are some instances wher the police officers themselves are to blame. Like the series of jailbreaks occasioned by the loose administration of the city jail.

We believe those factors could be amply remedied if the police department would be plucked out of the administration of the director of labor and personnel. We would suggest that a 3-man police commission be created to supervise overall police activities.

The island's chief executive could recommend legislation to that effect in the next session of the legislature. A 3-man board, patterned after most mainland cities' police organization, and placed beyond the ready reach of local politics would be one step toward a highly efficient force. At the same time, care should be taken that the men who would be at the helm would be those who command the respect and faith of the whole force.

We believe the police department has gone down to a level where a major operation is called for. A revamp along the lines suggested would be timely and would redound to the benefit of the citizens and taxpayers.

We still have to see a police force which every resident can proudly call "Guam's Finest."

THE VARGAS CASE

HAVING just tried a few months ago to fathom the mysteries of Latin-American politics in Guatemala, we must now endeavor to thread our way through the strange events that led to the suicide of Getulio Vargas, president of Brazil.

The story began with one Carlos Lacerda, an editor and broadcaster who attacked Vargas furiously. An unsuccessful assassination attempt was made against Lacerda. Unfortunately, a bullet meant for him killed a young air force major and a terrific stir followed.

It was disclosed later that Lacerda's assassination had been plotted by Vargas' private bodyguard, which put responsibility for the young officer's death squarely at his door. This was so even though no evidence was brought out that either Vargas or his son, also an object of Lacerda's attacks, had instigated or had knowledge of the plot beforehand.

THE major's death aroused great feeling among his fellow officers and elsewhere in the Brazilian armed forces. Normally the military could have been relied upon as a stabilizing factor in a touchy situation, but its direct involvement altered the matter.

The Communists, more numerous in Brazil than anywhere in Latin America, saw golden opportunities in this disturbed condition. It meant nothing to them that the editor Lacerda was one of their bitterest enemies; they exploited the events to embarrass Vargas.

THUS passed into history the man who has ruled Brazil for all but six of the 24 years from 1930 until now. He was ousted in 1945 but won popular elections in 1951. In 1930 he had led an armed march on Rio de Janeiro to become provisional president.

Vargas was a resourceful politician, as one must be to hold power that long in a Latin-American country. It is regrettable that at 71 his resources were unequal to this last dificult challenge to his regime.

The West, and especially the United States, has lost a firm, tested friend. His successor as President, Joao Cafe-Filho, is said to be no less a friend to this country, but as a statesman and politician he is still to be tried. Clearly, the greatly enhanced prestige of Vargas' enemy, Lacerda, will give him one of his stiffest trials.

The United States sincerely mourns Getulio Vargas, and bravely hopes that somehow his place can be filled.

IN HOLLYWOOD

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — A movie queen of the "Came the Dawn" era went pooh-pooh, pish-tish and fiddle-de-dee to the expanse of blushing pink chest that some TV dolls are showing.

Dad, she winked, got more of an eyeful watching silent movie sirens.

Leatrice Joy rolled the blue-green orbs that paralyzed the boys back in the days of the piano in the pit, the "Ladies Will Please Remove Their Hats" slide and the film that split in the middle.

"We did it better in the movies than they're doing it on TV," Leatrice said in a mink-rich voice. "Did we have plunging necklines? Oh, BROTHER!"

Leatrice drew a finger across her middriff.

"Some of my gowns were cut down to here and the backs were even lower. We just didn't push up the bosom in the old days the way they're doing it now. C. B. DeMille used to dress me in chiffon gowns. You could see right through them. I didn't have to get into one of his bathtubs. Those chiffon gowns showed more than the bathtubs showed."

LEATRICE, whose hair is gray now, threw back her head and laughed.

Just the way she laughed when Rod La Rocque asked her to come up and see the new Toulouse-Lautrec in his bachelor apartment or when Thomas Meighan asked her to give up her wicked ways and live the good, clean life.

Chest colds?

Leatrice couldn't remember getting one or worrying about them in those slit-way-down-duds.

"It was the eyelashes that gave us the flu," she howled. "False ones hadn't been invented. We'd snip off long lengths of our own hair and fasten them to our eyelids with tweezers and spirit gum. You never saw such long eyelashes. I'd bat them, and they'd stir up a breeze. They were pneumonia things, brother.'

Publicity man, I muttered, must have had a picnic dreaming up copy about Leatrice's low-cut gowns with all the white open spaces and those eyelashes.

THE FORMER STAR frowned:

"No; publicity was different in those days. There was more of a secretive feeling about stars when the movie industry was young. Nobody knew or cared what we ate for breakfast. We didn't do ad tie-ups.

"Our big publicity was about the trips we took. We'd go up to Big Bear Lake for a weekend. Wow! The public went wild. Or we'd go to Chicago. Zowie. A star's make-up secrets were hot copy. And people were always naming their babies after me. I used to send out gold medals to all the little Leatrices in the nation. Brother, that was publicity!

"People weren't let in on our romances. John Gilbert and I were the first two big stars to marry. It didn't make headlines. We were together and separated, together and separated. Our marriage was hectic. But nobody dreamed of putting our fights on the front page. Nobody telephoned us for exclusives or broke down our front door for scoops. It was a different kind of Hollywood."

LEATRICE RETIRED from movies to devote her time to her small daughter, Leatrice Joy Gilbert, but returned briefly in 1929 to prove that she could play in talkies with the best of them in "The Bellamy Trial" and "A Most Immoral Lady."

There's No Accounting for Taste

PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—It didn't take the cabinet very long to highball it out of town, once President Eisenhower had left for Denver. Some of them hit the vacation trail even before the head man.

The result is that if the Russians dropped a bomb on Washington now, the most they would hit would be an occasional under or assistant secretary, plus a lot of nonpolitical civil service holdovers from the Democratic administrations, who keep the wheels of government turning.

Vice President Nixon, groggy from almost a month of 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. and midnight Senate sessions, got away at about the same time as the President. But the V. P. headed for Maine, to be with his family for ten days. Then he'll go to Cincinnati for a GOP strategy session, before starting on a campaign tour that will take him into 23 states—every place a Republican is running for senator.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is the Number One official in Washington when Eisenhower and Nixon are gone. The most vacation he can look forward to is maybe a weekend at his Duck Island retreat on the St. Lawrence. But even this isn't "firm" as they say in Bureauland. Secretary Dulles will leave Washington early in September for Manila, where he will try to whip up support for his southeast Asia defense pact. And that ain't play.

THE TRIO IN HIGH COMMAND at the Treasury cleared out as soon as the tax reform and $6-billion national debt increase were in the bag. Secretary George M. Humphrey went to his farm, Holiday Hill, just outside Cleveland, Ohio. His office staff said they had no idea when he'd be back.

Undersecretaries Marion B. Folson, the tax man, and W. Randolph Burgess, the debt man, were likewise missing. That left General Counsel Elbert P. Tuttle in charge of the gray granite Treasury building, but he's leaving soon to become a federal judge in Alabama. Assistant Secretary Andrew N. Overby is the only other little cabinet man around to count the money.

Over at the Pentagon, Defense Secretary C. E. Wilson got out of town before the President. He and Mrs. Wilson went to their home in Bloomfield Hills, Mich., to stay there until after Labor Day. Deputy Secretary Robert B. Anderson is in charge in his absence.

Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens took his vacation right after running the McCarthy gauntlet in the Senate hearings. He was gone a month—July 14 to Aug. 11. While he got in some work inspecting Army installations abroad, he has no plans for any other vacation now.

NAVY SECRETARY CHARLES S. THOMAS is fishing near Great Falls, Ida., and will also spend part of his vacation at his home in Los Angeles. While there, he'll also inspect the Navy's Air Missile Test Center in California.

Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott took a week's vacation at the end of July. He spent the entire time at his home in South Hampton, L. I., visiting with his family and playing golf.

Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr., got in a week's vacation with his family earlier in the summer. Yes, they spent most of the afternoons and evenings going to ball games.

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield is another cabineteer tied to his desk by work, with no vacation plans announced as yet.

Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks is spending a couple of other weeks at his Lancaster, N. H., farm.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE EZRA TAFT BENSON knocked off regular work as soon as the farm bill was passed. He is trying to take a vacation at his Washington home without too many people knowing about it. He wants to build up strength for a major speaking tour through the midwest this fall.

After his business trip to Alaska, Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay stopped off at his Oregon summer home for a vacation with his family.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell beat everyone to the punch by taking an early vacation with his family at their Spring Lake, N. J., home. Secretary Mitchell is back on the job now.

Last but not least, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Oveta Culp Hobby isn't planning any vacation and didn't take one last year. She says her one-day outing with the cabinet at President Eisenhower's Camp David retreat is the only vacation she'll get this year. Which proves, if anything, that women's work is never done.

ATOMIC BILL SIGNED WITH PRAISE BY IKE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower signed the atomic energy bill at a White House ceremony today opening a new era of nuclear power development.

The President expressed confidence that the new law—modernization of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946, will strengthen the nation and "help us progress more rapidly to the time when this new source of energy will be wholly devoted to the constructive purposes of man."

Now private industry can enter the atomic energy field for the first time while the government continues its program of basic research and the building of experimental reactors, or atomic furnaces.

The legislation also gives the government authority to participate in a fuller exchange of nuclear secrets with friendly nations under specified security safeguards.

"This information includes data needed for training in the use of and defense against atomic weapons and for evaluating the atomic capabilities of potential aggressors," the President said.

"Agreements of this type with our allies will greatly strengthen our common defense and security."

Some sections of the bill were debated long and bitterly in congress. The senate spent more than two weeks on it, with opponents charging that it was a "giveaway" and would lead to a private monopoly of the field developed by 12 billion tax dollars. Administration leaders disputed this, declaring the bill was drafted in the traditional spirit of American private enterprise.

The new law, Eisenhower said, reflects "the fervent desire of our people to proceed with a plan for an international atomic energy agency which would advance the peacetime applications of atomic energy."

The President proposed such an atomic energy pool in a speech to the United Nations last December.

"Although progress on this plan has been impeded by Soviet obstruction and delay," he said, "we intend to proceed, with the cooperation and participation of the Soviet Union if possible, without it if necessary."

Eisenhower took note of the congressional fight over the legislation and said the debate disclosed "misunderstandings about the purpose of it."

"I want our people to know that these provisions are designed eventually to relieve the taxpayer of the enormous cost of the commercial aspects of the enterprise, while fully protecting the public interest in atomic energy," he said.

A compromised patent provision requires private firms to share on a fee basis for five years all patents on atomic engines and processes they may develop independently. Afterwards, the regular 17 year patent rights will apply.

Another controversial section authorizes the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) to contract for private power in the Tennessee Valley, long a stronghold of public power. A congressional investigation of the contract negotiations is still to come.

'Real Gone' Showing

Admission will be one dollar with all proceeds going to the Air Force Aid Society fund drive.

British Lift Ban On Egypt Arms; Jews Protest

LONDON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Britain today conditionally lifted a three-year ban on arms sales to Egypt—to cries of bitter protest from a jittery Israel.

The move was expected to herald a new allied effort to modernize Arab armies against possible Communist aggression. The United States has agreed to military aid for Iraq and is working on terms of a military and economic aid program soon to be offered Egypt.

Britain's condition on lifting the Egyptian ban as disclosed by the foreign office:

Egypt must promise not to use the tanks, jet aircraft and other military goods she buys "for aggressive purposes" — against her neighbor state of Israel, for instance.

Seven mid-eastern countries, including Egypt, never formally have ended the war they waged against Israel in 1947-48. The fighting ended in a series of U.N.-sponsored truce agreements.

In Jerusalem, Israeli Premier Moshe Sharett bitterly attacked the British move. Opening debate in the Israeli parliament, Sharett accused the United States and Britain of following "the general trend of one-sided arming of Arab states at the height of a campaign of hatred and plotting of revenge" against Israel.

In Jerusalem, the chairman of the Israeli parliament's foreign affairs committee appealed to world Jewry to send 100,000 young men to "hold and defend Israel against aggression."

The chairman, Meir Argov, told parliament Israel must remain "free to choose those friends who would help her" without entering in "offensive alliances." Argov is a member of Premier Sharett's Mapai party.

Churches Appeal For World Peace

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 31 (AP)—Christian church leaders of 18 nations endorsed the ideal of "oneness in Christ" today and worked on an appeal for world peace as the second assembly of the World Council of Churches neared its close.

The assembly called for international peace through creation of "a new spiritual climate in which a fresh start can be made by all governments and peoples."

The peace resolution recognized that "international agreement seems remote at the moment," but suggested two conditions "of crucial importance" if "catastrophe is to be avoided"

"1. The prohibition of all weapons of mass destruction, including atomic and hydrogen bombs, with provision for international inspection such as would safeguard the security of all nations, together with the drastic reduction of all other armaments.

"2. The certain assurance that no country will engage in or support aggressive or subversive acts of other countries."

It asked that "human rights and liberties" be recognized and recorded "concern and sorrow over the continuing suferings and disabilities of our fellow Christians in many parts of the world."

Hurricane Whips North Carolina Coast

WILMINGTON, N.C., Aug. 31 (AP)—A raging hurricane carrying winds of 100 miles an hour at the center—whipped the North Carolina vacation coast today. Churning waves tore out fishing piers and wind and rain cut power and communication lines.

But the center of hurricane "Carol" moved well at sea from the resort area and peak winds along the coast were estimated at 75-miles an hour. No deaths or serious injuries were reported.

Damage was relatively minor as well-warned residents took all precautions as the blow approached. Thousands of vacationers were evacuated from exposed beaches.

The center of the storm moved across bleak Cape Hatteras, the graveyard of the Atlantic, and was heading for the open sea.

ROK 'Shocked' Over US Pullout Army Chief Says

WASHINGTON, Aug 31 (AP)—Gen. Lee Heuung-Koon, South Korea's top military officer, said today his country was "shocked beyond words" by the planned withdrawal of four United States divisions from South Korea and he is not satisfied with agreements so far reached to fill the gap.

Lee, chairman of the ROK joint chiefs of staff, met newsmen today after military phases of current U.S.-Korean discussions were completed.

He said he had come to the United States to urge that if the withdrawal is considered "absolutely necessary," the divisions leave their equipment in Korea and that the United States provide enough more for a substantial buildup of the ROK army.

"Frankly, I am not satisfied with what we got," he said. While he withheld on security grounds details of the buildup he sought and the amount of equipment the U.S. has agreed to leave, he said American officials agreed that "some of it" would remain.

He indicated agreement still is being sought on Korean-American ideas for general strategy in the area.

Lee said the armistice found the United Nations and Communist forces roughly in balance, but since then North Korea steadily has increased in military strength while "a total of six U.S. divisions have been or are being withdrawn—and one additional U.S. division was withdrawn just prior to the armistice."

He said more ROK divisions could be activated to fill what he called "a dangerous gap in the defense lines of Korea, "but he added: 'One ROK division has only approximately one-third of the fighting capacity of a U.S. division. This is due to inferior strength in firepower, transportation, signal corps facilities and other relevant factors.

"Obviously then, in order to fill the gap, additional Korean divisions are urgently required. And this does not even begin to cover the loss of more than 100,000 men and hundreds of planes involved in the airforce withdrawal."

Man's Rapid Growth Up At Big Meet

ROME, Aug. 31 (AP) — Five hundred expert from 70 nations begin presenting their views today on whether the world should rely on birth control or the progress of science to meet the challenge of its rapidly growing population.

Scientists figure the world's present population as 2½ billion—and increasing at the unprecedented rate of 25 million a year. At that rate the world's population will double in the next century.

The Rome conference is sponsored by the United Nations to chart the tendencies of that increase and consider what may be its effects upon mankind.

The experts come here with 280 technical reports and surveys which point to two basically different solutions:

Birth control or "planned parenthood" systems to regulate and limit the population increase; or

Population redistribution and scientific development, including the uses of atomic and solar energies to enable the world to provide for an unrestricted expansion of population.

There is not expected to be a debate here on the two different ideas. The experts will present their reports. These will be distributed to every nation on earth, without passing resolutions or making recommendation. Each nation may decide what it wishes to do about the problem.

Chile Welcomes Ava

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 31 (AP) — Thousands of admiring Chileans almost mobbed voluptuous Ava Gardner today as she stepped off a plane here from Lima on a goodwill tour of South America.

The throng created quite a scene, trying to touch the dark-haired Hollywood star, asking for her autograph and pushing and shoving to get a better look at her. In the vanguard were some newsmen whose requests for an interview, shouted over the howling of the crowd, got an emphatic "impossible" from Miss Gardner.

Finally whisked off to a hotel in a Limousine, the actress asked for a physician, declaring she felt faint.

A similar affray boiled up around the hotel, but there were six burly carabineros guarding the suite where Miss Gardner rested behind locked doors. She plans to leave for Buenos Aires, Argentina, tomorrow.

Navy Seeks Ways To Make Sailor's Life Happier One

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Adm. Robert B. Carney said today the Navy is considering a number of ways to make a sailor's life a happier one.

For one morale booster, the chief of naval operations reported, the Navy may return to the old custom of permitting enlisted men to wear hat bands carrying the name of their ship or unit.

For another, Carney said, the Navy is "putting on pressure everywhere" to reduce personnel turnover and the unnecessary uprooting of men and their families.

"If a man is happily doing a good job, I say let him go on doing it for a while," he added.

The top admiral's comments were in a letter to retired Vice Adm. A.S. Merrill, member of the Greater New Orleans council of the navy league, an organization devoted to navy men's welfare.

One section of the letter, referring to an expected reduction in naval commitments in the Pacific "as a result of the end of the shooting wars there," at first created something of a stir in the Pentagon.

However, a Navy spokesman explained later that Carney prepared the letter to Merrill sometime ago and had no intention of altering the present policy of maintaining a strong position around Formosa and throughout the western Pacific.

At any rate, Carney had mentioned only the transfer of four destroyers and one battleship from the Pacific to the Atlantic, and it had previously been announced that the battleship, the USS Missouri, would be laid up on the West Coast.

On the point of improving the lot of crewmen, Carney mentioned that arrangements for overhaul programs for aircraft carriers, for example, are now made three months in advance so that crew members could make their personal plans accordingly.

DECLARATION OF ESTIMATED INCOME TAX 1954

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Purpose of Declaration.—The purpose of the declaration is to provide a basis for paying currently any income taxes due in excess of the tax withheld from wages, salaries, and other payments for personal services. Therefore, declarations are required only from individuals whose wages or other income exceed the amounts specified in Instruction 2.

Every taxpayer must file an annual income tax return after the close of the taxable year. At that time he must pay any balance of tax due on the year's income over and above the total of (a) the amount withheld from his wages and (b) the amount paid in installments as estimated tax. If he has overpaid his tax, he will be entitled to a refund upon filing his annual return.

2. Who Must Make a Declaration.—A declaration must be made by every citizen or resident of the United States who expects to receive in 1954: EITHER

(a) Wages subject to withholding in excess of $4,500 plus $600 for each exemption—for example, $5,100 in case of a single person with no dependents; $5,700 in case of a married man, with no dependents, whose wife has no income; OR

(b) Income from all other sources in excess of $100, provided his total income is expected to amount to $600 or more.

Thus, if your 1954 wages subject to withholding are expected to exceed the amounts specified in paragraph (a), you are required to file a declaration. If you expect to receive in 1954 any wages not subject to withholding—for example, pay for agricultural labor or domestic service—or any income from dividends, interest, rents, or gains from property transactions or from a business or profession, you must file a declaration if your 1954 income is expected to exceed the amounts specified in paragraph (b).

In deciding whether you must file a declaration, you should exclude from your income any items which are exempt from tax, such as mustering-out pay, Government contributions to monthly family allowances, social security benefits, and benefits under the Railroad Retirement Act.

These rules apply also to aliens who are residents of Canada, Mexico, or Puerto Rico and whose wages are subject to withholding of U. S. tax, and to aliens who expect to be bona fide residents of Puerto Rico during the entire taxable year. Other nonresident aliens are not required to file declarations.

3. When and Where To File Declaration.—Your declaration must be filed on or before March 15, 1954, or on such later dates as specified in Instruction 6. It should be delivered, or mailed, to the District Director of Internal Revenue for the district in which you expect to file your 1954 income tax return.

4. Payment of Estimated Tax.—Your estimated tax may be paid in full with the declaration, or in equal installments on or before March 15, 1954, June 15, 1954, September 15, 1954, and January 15, 1955. The first installment must accompany the declaration.

Any credit for overpayment (item 4 of the declaration) may be applied against the first installment. If the credit is larger than the installment, the balance may be applied against the next installment.

If you file an amended declaration after March 15, 1954, the balance shown as item 6 may be paid in full or spread evenly over the remaining installments.

5. Joint Declaration.—A joint declaration may be filed by husband and wife provided they are both citizens or residents of the United States. An amended declaration may be filed jointly by husband and wife even though separate declarations have been filed.

Even though a joint declaration is filed, separate income tax returns may be filed for the taxable year 1954 if desired, in which case the payments of estimated tax may be treated as payments by either the husband or the wife or may be divided between them in any proportion.

6. Changes in Income or Exemptions.—Even though your situation on March 15 is such that you are not required to file a declaration at that time, your expected income or exemptions may change so that you will be required to file a declaration later. In such case the time for filing is as follows: June 15, if the change occurs after March 1 and before June 2; September 15, if the change occurs after June 1 and before September 2; January 15, 1955, if the change occurs after September 1. The estimated tax may be paid in equal installments on the remaining payment dates.

If, after you have filed a declaration, you find that your estimated tax is substantially increased or decreased as a result of a change in your income or exemptions, you should file an amended declaration on or before the next filing date—June 15, 1954, September 15, 1954, or January 15, 1955. An amended declaration should be marked "Amended" and must be filed with the District Director of Internal Revenue with whom the original declaration was filed.

A declaration or amended declaration which would otherwise be due on January 15, 1955, need not be filed if on or before such date (or, in the case of farmers, January 31, 1955) you file your 1954 income tax return and pay in full the balance of tax due.

7. Farmers.—If at least two-thirds of your gross income is derived from farming, you may file the declaration on or before January 15, 1955, instead of March 15, 1954. If you wait until January 15, 1955, you must then pay the entire balance of the estimated tax (item 6 of the declaration). However, if farmers file their final tax returns on or before January 31, 1955, and pay the total tax at that time, they need not file a declaration.

8. Fiscal Year.—If you file your income tax return on a fiscal year basis, your dates for filing the declaration and paying the estimated tax will be the 15th day of the last month of the first, second, and third quarters of your fiscal year, and the 15th day of the first month of your next fiscal year.

9. Penalties.—The following penalties are imposed by law: For failing to file declaration or failing to pay estimated tax.—Five percent of the unpaid amount of each installment due, plus 1 percent for each month or part of a month (except the first) during which such amount remains unpaid, up to a maximum of 10 percent of the unpaid amount of such installment. For underestimating tax by more than 20 percent (33⅓ percent for farmers).—Six percent of the entire shortage in estimate, but not more than the amount by which the estimate falls short of 80 percent of the tax (or, in the case of farmers, 66⅔ percent of the tax). This penalty will not apply if the estimated tax for 1954 is computed on the basis of your 1953 income and your 1954 exemptions, and is paid on time in equal installments or is paid ahead of time (or, in the case of farmers, is paid in full on or before January 15, 1955).

Penalties provided for willful failure to make a return or for willfully making a false return are likewise applicable to declarations.

10. How To Estimate Your Tax for 1954.—The table and computation on pages 2 and 3 are presented to assist you in estimating your tax for 1954. Form 1040 and related instructions for 1953 may be used as a guide.

If your income (item 4, page 1, Form 1040) is expected to be less than $5,000, use the table below to find your estimated tax; it will not be necessary to use the tax computation schedule on page 3. If your income is expected to be $5,000 or more, use the tax computation and tax rate schedules on page 3.

Generally, the amount to be withheld from your wages in 1954 may be estimated by multiplying the amount withheld in your usual payroll period by the number of payroll periods you expect to work during the year.

A special tax rate is provided for any individual who qualifies as a "Head of a Household."

If you are unmarried (or legally separated) at the end of your taxable year, you qualify as a "Head of a Household" provided you furnish over half the cost of maintaining a home which during the entire taxable year, except for temporary absences, was occupied as a principal residence both by yourself and by:

(a) Any person for whom you are entitled to an exemption, or

(b) Your unmarried child, grandchild, or stepchild, even though such child is not a dependent.

If you are married to a nonresident alien at any time during your taxable year but otherwise meet the tests above, you are considered a "Head of a Household" since you are not permitted to file a joint return.

If your wife or husband (not a nonresident alien) dies during the taxable year, you do not qualify as a "Head of a Household" since in such case you are generally entitled to file a joint return.

Ike Urges Strong Military Reserve

SCREENED WITNESS TELLS OF OUTRAGE — A woman known only as "Madame X," testifies from behind screen hiding upper part of her body before House Committee on Communist aggression in Washington. She tells chief counsel James J. McTigue, seated next to screen, that seven Russian soldiers ravished her in Hungary. In background are committee members E. J. Bonin (R-Pa.), left, and Alvin M. Bentley (R-Mich.) The woman described herself as Austrian-born. She testified for about 35 minutes before collapsing. (AP Photo)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower told a cheering American Legion convention today the United States must start building a big, ready-for-action military reserve within a year to meet the threat of a communist dictatorship "determined to establish its sway over all the world."

Pledging this will be a "No. 1 item" in his recommendations to the next congress, the President declared: "Wishful thinking and political timidity must no longer bar a program so absolutely essential to our defense."

Nearly 8,000 war veterans and guests at the opening session of the Legion's 36th annual convention gave a cheering, whistling ovation to Legionnaire Eisenhower, who flew here from Denver to address them and appeared on the platform in his blue overseas cap.

PLUGS RESERVES

Fifteen times the conventioners, packed into the steaming hot national guard auditorium, applauded the President's speech, in which he also appealed for foreign policy unity and—in effect—threw cold water on the efforts of some Republicans to link past Democratic administrations with alleged treason against the United States. Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.), in particular, has labeled the Roosevelt and Truman regimes "20 years of treason."

No responsible element in the country wants to damage America, Eisenhower said. Then, departing from his text, he added: "The only treasonable party we have is the Communist conspiracy—happily very small."

Eisenhower's main point was a plug for something along the lines of Universal Military Training (UMT) though he didn't mention UMT by name. He did say—to the loudest applause of all—the system he has in mind "will not unfairly burden men who have already served" in the armed forces.

The President's meaning plainly was that his proposed reserve force would draw its manpower largely from young men without previous military service. Three separate manpower programs now are under study by the national security council.

"NO. 1 ITEM"

"For a century and a half," Eisenhower said, "the republic has prided itself on its refusal to maintain large standing military forces. We have relied, instead, upon the civilian soldier. But we have done so without being fair either to the private citizen or to the security of the nation.

"We have failed miserably to maintain that strong, ready military reserve in which we have believed—or professed belief—for 150 years.

"Now at long last we must build such a reserve. And we must maintain it. Wishful thinking and political timidity must no longer bar a program so absolutely essential to our defense. x x x

"Establishment of an adequate reserve—an objective for which the American Legion and other patriotic organizations have mainly fought for a generation—will be a No. 1 item submitted to the congress next year."

Russia Enslaving China Mainland, Mme. Chiang Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek said today that Soviet Russia has enslaved the China mainland—but "we Chinese will not be slaves long."

"We shall break the chains that cut and wound us," she declared in an address prepared for an American Legion convention banquet.

"For there are countless living and determined heroes on the mainland as well as on Formosa."

The wife of Nationalist China's leader said Soviet Russia managed to "enslave the Chinese mainland—something no other country in modern times had been able to do—by working from the inside to corrupt the minds and souls of Chinese Communists who became its puppets."

"The mainland was lost by infiltration," she said. "The mainland was lost by a campaign of smears and lies...

"The mainland was lost by skilfully creating a schism between China and her natural allies."

Mme. Chiang said the techniques now used by the Kremlin in all the free countries of the world were first tried out in China in 1925 and 1926.

She said Russia gave the impression of helping the Chinese to free themselves from feudalism and colonialism, while actually organizing a subversive movement to seize the country.

She said "we discovered this ruse late in 1926" when her husband was leading the expeditionary forces which were preparing to take Peiping and end feudalism in China.

"We discovered that our Russian pseudo-friends were traitors, that those who pretended to be friends of China in reality were its enemies," she said.

"We discovered that no aid was being given to China but that instead Russia was corrupting young intellectuals and young military officers to betray their country.

"My husband and his fellow patriots broke with the Communists and under unbelievable hardships founded the national government at Nanking.

"The Kremlin has never forgiven him for their failure in China in those days.

"They have consistently for 27 years fought him, lied about him, defamed him, conducted a worldwide conspiracy against him and against our country."

3 ROK Generals Leave US For Home

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31 (AP)—Three top generals of the Korean army left for home today after a month in the United States devoted to military discussions.

The three are Gen. Il Kwon Chung, chief of staff; Lt. Gen. Kim Chung Yul, special assistant to the minister of national defense; and Maj. Gen. B. S. Choi, chief of staff, plans and operations.

They came to the United States early this month with President Syngman Rhee and remained in Washington for military discussions.

Iwo Flag Statue Goes To Arlington

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—A massive bronze statue of the raising of the flag on Iwo Jima began its journey today to Arlington national cemetery, where it will honor U. S. Marines who have given their lives for their country.

It is the largest statue ever cast in bronze. It weighs more than 100 tons and will stand 78 feet high.

It is an exact reproduction of the famous photograph by then Associated Press Photographer Joe Rosenthal. His picture of the six men straining to raise the flag on Mt. Suribachi the morning of Feb. 13, 1945, seemed to catch the spirit of the U. S. Marine Corps.

The statue was executed by Felix de Weldon and cast in bronze by the Bedi-Rassy Art Foundry in Brooklyn.

Dulles Comment On French EDC Action Awaited

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP) — The state department said today Secretary Dulles "may have something to say" tomorrow about the French assembly vote which served to kill the European Defense Community plan, a cornerstone of American policy in Europe.

While most top officials had about given up hope that EDC would be ratified by the French, the news still came as a keen disappointment. French ratification of—and participation in—EDC is considered necessary for its success.

President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles were together at the White House when word came that the assembly had voted against the plan on a procedural maneuver.

At the state department, the secretary, just back from a weekend on Lake Ontario, was reported busy catching up with all information dealing with the defense picture.

Until further information is available, top officials were chary of forecasting what the next U.S. move might be. One key authority said, however, he knows of no reason to change the plan for restoring German sovereignty. The decks have already been cleared for such action, he said.

France would be invited to join in this move but the United States would go ahead with only Britain if the French balk, it was said.

Shortly after the news from Paris, Dulles met with Italian Ambassador Alberto Tarchiani to discuss the EDC outlook.

Tarchiani said afterward the EDC arrangement was of "paramount importance" to Italy. His government, he added, would "continue to direct its activities" toward the idea of linking Italy and western European nations closely with the United States.

Japan, Russia Sign Contract For Coal Purchase

TOKYO, Aug. 31 (AP) — Russian and Japanese trade representatives in Tokyo yesterday signed contracts for the purchase of 60,000 tons of Russian coal, the newspaper Asahi reported today.

The purchase was part of an 80-million-dollar barter trade provisionally agreed upon earlier between the Russians and five Japanese trading firms.

Asahi said the coal deal was signed by L. I. Krupin, senior member of a three-man Russian trade mission now in Japan and by Shigenori Ishimuro, president of the Shinten Industrial Co.

The deal calls for the purchase of 15,000 tons of general purpose coal and 45,000 tons of coking coal from Sakhalin at 10 dollars a ton fob (price inlucding all costs until ship is loaded in Russian port). Shipment will be completed within this year.

Asahi said the deal went through after the Russians agreed to indemnify Japanese importers for losses incurred from the poor quality Sakhalin coal the Russians previously shipped.

The Russians will get in return Japanese ships and have their vessels repaired in Japanese drydocks. Asahi said this phase of the barter deal has not been finalized yet.

Trade observers here foresee little prospects for any substantial increase in actual Soviet-Japan trade in view of the hard bargaining attitude of the Russians.

Japan's trade with Russia barely toppel the million dollar mark last year.

Nam Il Says Japs Persecuting North Koreans

TOKYO, Aug. 31 (AP)—Pyongyang Radio Monday night said North Korean Foreign Minister Nam Il accused the Japanese government of "persecuting" Korean nationals residing in Japan and demanded that Japan put an immediate stop to it.

The broadcast, heard by radio press agency here, said the accusation was made in a statement issued by Nam Monday.

The Japanese government, said Nam, "is moreover disregarding the just interests of the (North) Korean peoples Republic in Japan and has forced Korean residents to register as South Korean."

H-Bomb Burned-Man Near Death

live through the initial months of the disease.

All 23 of the men are suffering from yellow jaundice, from repeated blood transfusions, doctors say.

The doctors said Kuboyama suddenly took a turn for the worse early yesterday. Liver secretions entered his blood stream and caused brain fever, doctors said. His pulse speeded up and his breathing became labored.

Kuboyama mumbled hysterically through the night as he lay in a near-coma, then sank into a deep coma today.

Dr. R. H. Holmes, of the American-operated atomic bomb casualty commission, examined the stricken fisherman. The Asahi Evening News said Holmes confirmed the diagnosis that the fisherman is in "critical" condition.

Holmes could not be reached for comment today.

Kuboyama was chief wireless operator on the "Lucky Dragon." He was admitted to Tokyo First National Hospital March 28 and has never left. For a time he was able to take short walks, but has been bed-ridden for several weeks.

Kuboyama has three daughters.

He wrote an article for Kyodo News Service criticizing the United States for not apologizing for the hydrogen bomb incident.

Leading Japanese here said should Kuboyama die, it is almost certain a new flood of anti-American sentiment will be released.

These Japanese said most persons here believe the United States treats the case of the fishermen "too lightly."

An intense campaign against hydrogen bomb tests is underway here.

Meanwhile, 41,000 pounds of tuna from six boats brought to port the last four days have been thrown into the sea because they showed signs of radioactivity.

The Lucky Dragon's catch and those of several other ships similarly were thrown overboard.

on the island, are required to obtain security clearances each time they leave and return to the island.

At one time the navy recognized as permanent residents all persons who carried passports stamped "permanent resident" by the government of Guam. This designation was given those persons who had been residents of the island for two or more years. About 18 months ago, however, the navy instituted new security regulations under which only a native-born were recognized as permanent residents.

Shelton said the discussions with Adm. Murphy yesterday were carried on in an "extremely cooperative atmosphere and considerable progress was made."

Other members of the chamber committee were Russell Stevens, attorney; Ross Fulford, manager of the local RCA offices, and Joseph Flores, publisher of the DAILY NEWS.

EDC Rejection Termed Free World 'Setback'

DES MOINES, Aug. 31 (AP) — President Eisenhower tonight described the rejection by the French parliament of the European Defense Community (EDC) as a "major setback" in the fight against international Communism.

The President made the reference after telling an Iowa State Fair crowd of "the absolute, utter necessity of every American taking thought about our relations with the world."

Eisenhower asserted he regarded the EDC as a "necessary device" whereby the free world could check the spread of Communism.

"We know that today the central core of great world problems is the aggressive intent of international communism," he declared.

He said the "first effort of Communism is to establish a beachhead on this continent" had been repelled by the people of Guatemala. He then referred to the "setback" from the French parliament.

Prison Key Found With Escapees

dramatic capture Monday night on Route 2-A, between Base 18 and Orchid No. 1.

The prisoners, Jose I. Fejeran, 23, of Tamuning, Juan Crisostomo Meno, 23, of Inarajan and Francisco Lujan Borja, 22, of Radio Barrigada, were marched into their cells at 9:45 p.m., after they were nabbed by a police patrol trying to hitch a ride on Marine Drive.

Meanwhile Director A. R. Frock said yesterday that "any of the guards responsible for the jailbreak will be cited for disciplinary action for there has been a failure in the performance of their duties." The director declined to identify them.

He added an investigation now is being conducted and that proper action will be taken soon. Frock emphasized that "negligence" has no place in the police department.

First to be spotted standing on the highway was Meno, who, police said, jumped into the boondocks when he saw the police behicle. In it were Sgt. V. A. Garrida and two armed forces policemen. Seeing the trio were escaping into the brushes, the policemen radioed for help.

Sgts. Garrido, J. P. Pangelinan and G. M. Concepcion, who were the first to reach the scene, found Meno and Fejeran standing on the roadside. The cops clambered out of their vehicle and nabbed the two prisoners by surprise. The law agents combed the area where Meno and Fejeran were corraled.

Capt. Jose Quintanilla, patrol bureau commander, called on Borja, who by that time was about 200 yards away, to surrender. Borja came out from the brushes and gave himself up.

They were taken to Agana police headquarters, where they were frisked. With Fejeran, police found a key similar to the one used in opening up the prison cells, a wallet, belt, cigarette lighter, comb, small scissors, a five dollar bill, 2 two-dollar bills, a small key and keyholder. A prayer book was found with Borja together with a pair of sunglasses, a comb, raincoat, 36 quarters, 21 dimes, 2 nickels, 4 gold rings and 1 bracelet.

Al Nobriga, of the detective bureau, yesterday said most likely they used the key in getting out of their cells. The detective said he did not know yet how they got their hands on the key. Late yesterday, Nobriga said the prisoners had not been questioned yet. He added the trio were not armed when captured.

The detective admitted he did not know how Fejeran got his hands on the key. It was feared that somebody from the "inside" might have "passed it on" to the escapees.

It also was learned that police recovered a pistol in the tire shop of the police department yesterday. How the weapon got there still has not been established. But police believed it was one of the two pistols stolen from a local store August 23.

The chase which ended in the capture of the trio was led by Major Candido San Agustin of the service bureau. With him were Capt. Quintanilla, Lt. Frank Borja and Det. Sgt. Eddie Camacho of the investigation section. With about 40 men deployed in strategic places on the island, the police officers set up roadblocks at every intersection.

Pravda On EDC

MOSCOW, Aug. 31 (AP)—Pravda today jubilantly reported the French national assembly's vote to postpone debate on the European army treaty.

The Communist party newspaper claimed the action had the effect of turning down both the Paris agreement to set up the six-nation army and the companion Bonn agreement to return to West Germany almost complete sovereignty.

(With the death of the Paris pact, Washington sources said the Western allies would go ahead immediately with plans already drawn to give West Germany her sovereignty but without the right to rearm.)

Pravda's dispatch from Paris said the "majority of the national assembly passed a decision that corresponds to the desire and aspirations of the French people and the vital interests of France."

said, because he presented to the store an ESA membership card in the name of James D. Keesee, a civil service employee.

Keesee, taking the witness stand, said he gave his card to Atkins six months ago but denied any knowledge of Atkins' purchases. Shown ESA sales receipts presented by the prosecution as evidence, Keesee said the signatures appearing on the receipts were "facsimiles of my signature."

Investigator John G. Powell of the ONI declared an unidentified person tipped the navy intelligence office that a certain "individual was buying liquor" in large quantities at the ESA store. This, he said, touched off the investigation.

Some of the bottles were found empty, Powell said, in the bar's trash can which was found dumped in the refuse pile at the Paseo de Susana. The intelligence inspector said Atkins stated the empty bottles belonged to him.

Powell, under questioning by Atty. Richard Rosenberry of the attorney general's office, said Atkins admitted the wine was purchased for his personal consumption and for the use of his friend in Barrigada. Atkins' friend was identified as Ben Aguon.

The accused, according to Powell's testimony, also admitted he is a "heavy" drinker. The total amount of the liquor bought from the ESA and allegedly dispensed at the bar by Atkins was estimated at $294.05 by Powell.

In the report made by Sgt. Concepcion, Atkins reportedly admitted further that he used to break the seals or stamps of the ESA liquor bottles "to speed up" the mixing of drinks "when business is fast."

Congressman Paul Palting and Atty. Joaquin Arriola are defending the bartender.

5th AF Takes Over Japan's Air Defense

SEOUL, Aug. 31 (AP)—The U.S. 5th Air Force today moves its headquarters from Korea to Nagoya, Japan, and takes over America's Japan air defense force.

The step is the first phase in a pullout from Korea and redeployment of many of the 5th Air Force units which hammered North Korea and outfought Communist MIGs during the war.

Four U.S. army divisions also are being withdrawn.

In welcoming the units to Japan, Lt. Gen. Roger M. Ramey, 5th Air Force commander, said: "Operating under the direction of a single command, our fighter-bomber, fighter-interceptor and light bomber units can be employed with greater speed and flexibility to meet any attacking force in Japan or Korea."

Ramey praised the Japan air defense force for "developing a combat-ready system of interceptor bases and radar warning sites."

Within the next few weeks, crack units of the 5th are expected to start moving out of Korea.

Airman Now Feels He's The Luckiest Guy In The World

When good fortune comes around most people feel that it always happens to the other guy.

A/2c Gordon E. Madru, 852nd AC & W Sq., used to feel that way but that was before he entered the United States Air Force.

Now he feels he is the luckiest guy in the world.

Last Aug. 18, started out like an ordinary day for Airman Madru but "Lady Luck" had a surprise in store for him that day.

While going about his duties of operating and maintaining diesel electric generators he received a call from his orderly room ordering him to report to his commanding officer, Capt. Howard G. Tukey.

Capt. Tukey asked him, "How would you like a three-day TDY to Los Angeles?"

A native of Los Angeles, Airman Madru was more than willing.

Capt. Tukey then told him that Headquarters, FEAF, had selected him to represent the Air Force on "Truth or Consequences," a nationwide television program originating in Los Angeles, on Aug. 24.

His wife, the former Marilyn Joyce Ayres, and son, Stephen Lynn, were on the show but were not informed that he would be there.

In addition to the three days Airman Madru was granted a 10-day delay en route to allow him a brief stay with his family.

Prior to entering service in September, 1952, Airman Madru was graduated from Los Angeles Trade-Technical Junior College as an automotive mechanic.

After completing basic training at Parks AFB, Cal., he was sent to the Air Force vehicle maintenance technical school at Francis E. Warren AFB, Cheyenne, Wyo., where he furthered his knowledge of auto mechanics.

He arrived at Andersen AFB in September, 1953. While here he and a fellow worker, A/2c Francis X. Beauregard, purchased an automobile that had been nearly demolished in an accident.

By working spare time on the car at the automotive hobby shop on base the airmen have increased the value of the car to three times the amount they paid for it.

Airman Madru sums up his service career in this statement, "It's been the luckiest period of my life."

Jap Mission To Russia

TOKYO, Aug. 31 (AP)—Japan's first official mission to Russia since World War II left this morning for Moscow via Hongkong and Peking to inspect Russian agricultural methods.

The nine-man delegation headed by Nobuhiko Ushida, foreign office counsellor, is making the trip at the invitation of the Soviet government, which extended it to member countries of the United Nations economic commission for Asia and the Far East at its meeting in Tokyo this year. The group is made up of trade and treaty experts.

The Japanese government heretofore had steadfastly refused to permit any Japanese to go to the Iron Curtain countries, but reversed its policy for the first time to authorize diplomatic passports to the group. Lately, members of the Diet and businessmen have visited Moscow but only as "private citizens."

The Japanese delegates are scheduled to arrive in Hongkong today. From there they will travel by train to Peking via Canton and will fly from Peking to Moscow arriving in the Russian capital September 10. The group will spend 20 days in Russia.

JAP GUERRILLAS WITH HO

TOKYO, Aug. 31 (AP)—A Vietnamese said yesterday in Saigon that some 300 former Japanese soldiers were guerrillas from Viet Minh forces during the Indo-China war, according to Kyodo news service.

The man claimed to have worked at one time as a courier between the Red forces of Ho Chi Minh and the Japanese guerrilla corps. He said a former Japanese army major, named Saito was leader of the irregulars.

54 Passengers Missing As Motorboat Capsizes

MANILA, Aug. 31 (AP)—Philippine News Service Monday night said 54 passengers previously reported missing in a ship mishap off the Mindanao coast still were unaccounted for.

The inter-island motor launch Tawi-Tawi of the Juliano Shipping Co., sank early Saturday in a bay between Zamboanga del Sur and Cotabato provinces in the southern Philippines. Heavy seas capsized the vessel, PNS said.

Six survivors were picked up Sunday. Fifty-four were brought ashore near Pagadian, Zamboanga del Sur, Monday.

The news services revised the number of passengers the launch was carrying from 60 to possibly 72 or more.

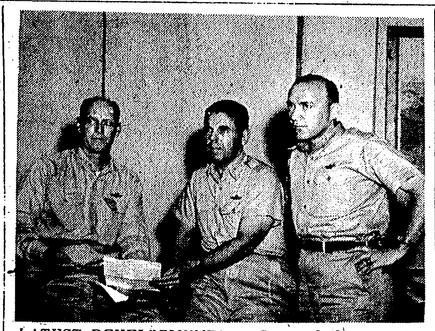
Slow Recruit Response

TOKYO, Aug. 31 (AP)—Recruiting for Japan's newly-organized self-defense forces has fallen far short of expectations, according to Kyodo news service.

In the first two weeks of the recruiting program, only 1,197 persons have applied for SDF membership, a government source reported. Initial goal for all land, sea and air units is 23,100.

So far, only applications for cadet officer positions have exceeded the quota. A total of 403 persons have applied, against 250 openings. By comparison, only 980 applications have been received for regular officer positions: 1,650 are needed.

Women volunteers have totaled 24, against a recruiting goal of 210.



LATEST DEVELOPMENTS — Latest dvelopments in AF aircraft and equipment were the topics in a briefing at Andersen Air Force Base last weekend by Brig. Gen. Daniel S. Magsaysay Observes Birthday Quietly

MANILA, Aug. 31 (AP)—Philippine President Ramon Magsaysay today observed his forty-seventh birthday quietly, in the field with his troops.

The husky blacksmith's son from Zambales province, who became president eight months ago, reminded well-wishers he would appreciate gifts donated to his pet Liberty Wells project—an artesian well in every barrio (village).

Magsaysay started the day by attending mass at the presidential palace chapel with his wife and children. He then took off for an undisclosed destination. A government spokesman said he would be with army troops all day.

Officer Inhibits Self From Court

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 31 (AP)—The trial of Cpl. Claude Batchelor opened today with a court-martial member—a Congressional Medal of Honor winner—excusing himself from service because he already believed Batchelor was a traitor.

Batchelor, 22, from Kermit, Tex., is charged with collaborating with the enemy and informing on his buddies during his 31 months as a prisoner of war in North Korea. He at first chose to stay with the Reds and then changed his mind.

As the army's general court-martial assembled today, First Lt. Edward R. Schowalter, Jr., 26, arose from his place on the panel and said:

"I challenge myself on the grounds that I am hostile to the accused, and prior to the convening of this court, I formulated the opinion and expressed the opinion that the accused is a traitor."

Anti-EDC Ousted

PARIS, Aug. 31 (AP) — The French Socialist party early today expelled three leading members who were prominent in the national assembly fight against the European Defense Community (EDC) treaty.

Jule Moch, Danield Mayer and Max Lejouen, all former cabinet ministers, were kicked out of the party by the organization's directing committee. A special socialist congress last May voted to back EDC and authorized the directing committee to take disciplinary action against members who defied instructions.

SNIDER HOLDS NATIONAL LOOP SLUGGING LEAD

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP) — Stan Musial's bid for a seventh National League batting championship is running into two stiff obstacles — the consistent hitting of Brooklyn's Duke Snider and the fast wading schedule.

Musial, only a point behind the race-setter Snider last Monday, lost three more point to .344 in games last week while the Dodgers' outfielder held his ground at .348. After Sunday's games both the St. Louis Cardinals and Dodgers had 26 games left to play.

Musial's designs on the title also are jeopardized by Willie Mays and Don Mueller of the league-leading New York Giants.

Mays hit at a .500 pace last week with 14 hits in 28 times at bat resulting in an 11 point increase to a third-place .338. Mueller gained a point to .336 good for the No. 4 position.

In the American League, Irv Noren of the New York Yankees solidified his front-running spot. He climbed six points to .341 on nine safeties in 21 times at bat.

Bobby Avila of the Cleveland Indians jumped a notch to second place with .333 mark. The aggressive second baseman also zoomed six points on a 12-for-28 performance.

Minnie Minoso of the Chicago White Sox fell to third at .329. He lost five points with only seven hits in 29 trips. Nellie Fox, also of the White Sox, is fourth at .321.

Time appears to be running out on Boston's Ted William's. The Red Sox slugger is hitting .351, but he's batted only 288 times officially. He does not figure to reach 400 at bats, the total needed for consideration for the batting crown.

Smoky Burgess of the Philadelphia Phillies is in much the same category as Williams. He's compiled a .362 average with 290 at bats.

After trailing Willie Mays by 12 homers on July 28, Cincinnati's Ted Kluszewski finnally has caught the Giants star in the National League home run race. Each has hit 39.

Larry Doby of Cleveland paces the American League in homers with 28 and in runs batted in with 108.

Johnny Antonelli of the Giants has the highest winning percentage among National League pitchers, .864 with 19 victories against three defeats. Sandy Consuegra of the White Sox tops the American with a 16-3 record for .842.

In the strikeouts department, Harvey Haddix of the Cards leads the National League with 159, one more than the Phillies Robin Roberts. Baltimore's Bob Turley is the American League leader with 139.

New York, Cleveland Increase Leads Over Dodgers, Yankees In Flag Race

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP) — Johnny Antonelli scattered four singles last night as he pitched the New York Giants to a 4-1 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals and became the first National League hurler to win 20 games this season.

Milwaukee snapped a six-game Brooklyn winning streak with a 7-5 decision and the Giants moved 2½ games in front of the Dodgers in the National League pennant chase.

The Giants got Antonelli the run he needed when they broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh on a single by Daley Williams, an error by Waly Moon and a single by Al Dark. Two more scampered home in the ninth on Whitey Lockman's two-out triple, two walks and a single by Dusty Rhodes, hitting star of yesterday's doubleheader.

Bobby Thomson, traded by the Giants to Milwaukee during the off season, hit a three-run homer in the seventh as the Braves came from behind to whip the Dodgers. Earlier in the contest Jack Dittmer of the Braves homered also with two aboard.

Going all out for the victory, manager Charlie Grimm waved in Warren Spahn in relief with two on and one out in the eight. The Dodgers, who hadn't looked at Spahn this season, managed only one hit the rest of the way. Jackie Robinson doubled as a pinch hitter in the ninth.

12th LOSS

The loss was charged to Carl Erskine, his 12th setback against 16 victories. Ernie Johnson, one of four Milwaukee pitchers, registered his fourth triumph. Jim Wilson started and Dave Jolly worked briefly.

Duke Snider put Brooklyn ahead briefly with his 34th home run in the first. It came with the bases empty.

Cleveland pulled 4½ games ahead of the idle New York Yankees in the American League flag chase with a 5-4 victory over their favorite victims, the Boston Red Sox.

CLEVELAND TRAILS

Heinie Majeski's three-run homer capped a five-run spree in the seventh inning. Cleveland had trailed 4-0 going into the lucky seventh. Manager Al Rosen threw all of his 10-man pitching staff into the fray, leading with rookie Ray Narleski and finishing with big Mike Garcia, one of his "big three" starters. Hal Newhouser, fourth of the five, picked up his sixth victory.

The victory gave the Indians a clean sweep for the season in Fenway Park — 11 games, 11 victories. Boston has beaten Cleveland only twice in 20 starts.

Baltimore defeated Washington 7-1 before a gathering of 1,007 in Washington, smallest crowd to see a game in Griffith Stadium in years. Bob Turley gained his 11th victory after fasning pinch-hitter Maury McDermott with the bases loaded in the ninth. Turley held the Senators hitless until Jim Busby beat out a bunt with one out in the sixth.

The Cincinnati Redlegs strengthened their hold on fourth place in the National League with a 5-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies. Jim Greengrass slammed a three-run homer as the Redlegs scored four times in the sixth inning. The victory was the fifth in a row for the Reds.

Mickey Teems was the selection this year to coach the Mid-Islanders. Teems graduated from Texas Christian University in 1953 and gained his football knowledge by playing guard for the TCU eleven.

Ned Naff, of the Flyers, holds the most coaching experience of this year's mentors, although, he has never acted as a head coach. He played balls at Pitt, Penn and Bucknell nad has acted as assistant coach for Navy teams at NAS Whiting Field and NAS Corpus Christi.

A graduate from North Texas State, Alvin Jones, was selected to coach the Army and Air Force aggregation at Andersen AFB. He has a physical education degree from college and was as assistant high school football coach before.

Asan Evens Play In HNS Tourney With 10-3 Victory

By DANIEL L. TYDINGCO

Asan avenged an earlier loss Sunday in the Holy Name Society Softball League championship tourney as they trounced the Sinajana nine 10-3 at Agana Heights Field for the second game in a best two-out-of-three series.

Ben Taijeron walloping a homer to left field drove home Danny Santos to give Asan a 2-0 lead in the first frame while David Jesus made another grand slam homer to left center in the second inning to increase the lead for Asan.

Sinajana came to life in the fifth inning as they garnered three runs to even the score. But Asan made a do-or-die comeback in the sixth inning as they rallied for seven runs while Sinajana failed to score in the sixth and seventh inning.

Winning pitcher Tommy Shimizu struck out four, walked five and allowed four hits while losing pitcher Ignacio Pereda issued nine hits, yielded five walks and struck out three. Shimizu arrived recently from a vacation trip to Saipan.

This coming Sunday at the Agana Heights field the final game of the two-out-three championship playoffs will be held with the winners being awarded the championship trophy donated by Frank D. Perez and Bros.

Lions Five Wins

Tony Orbeta dropped in two free throws with only 10 seconds remaining in the game to give the Marianas Lions basketball team a 31-30 victory over the Marbo Bums Sunday afternoon on the Bums' home court.

The win for the Lions was their second consecutive victory since they started play in the pre-season warm-up games. In their first game they edged the Koster and Wythe five by the same one point margin.

In addition to scoring the winning points for the Lions the manager-player led his team as he sank 11 points. Nicanor Apis, of the losers, however, took the scoring honors for both teams as he bucketed 12 points.

36 Dead In East Coast Storm

MANY OTHERS FEARED KILLED; HEAVY DAMAGE

BOSTON, Sept. 1 (AP) — Vicious hurricane Carol battered, slashed and tore the northeastern states today, taking at least 36 lives in wind furies unknown here since the terrible, multi-million dollar hurricane of 1938.

The death toll mounted in New England as the storm moved into Canada, hitting Montreal and Quebec City.

The Caribbean-born hurricane whipped across middle Atlantic seacoasts and burst into New England with winds up to 105 mph and raging high tides.

Damage estimates ran into millions of dollars as summer homes were smashed to kindlings, hundreds of yachts were splintered on rocks and shore and power service was severed completely in at least 33 communities. Serious crop damage also resulted.

Most of the storm-stricken communities were declared disaster areas and the Red Cross dispatched all-out aid — food, shelter, and relief experts — to centers in battered Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

16 DEAD IN R. I.

The reported death toll included: two killed in Pennsylvania, 16 in Rhode Island, seven in Massachusetts, three each in New Hampshire and Maine, two in New Jersey and one each in Vermont, New York and Connecticut.

In the disastrous Sept. 21, 1938 hurricane, 317 persons perished — 262 in Rhode Island alone. Damage in that storm—which struck New England without warning — was estimated at one hundred million dollars.

Famed landmarks fell today with homes and tiny cottages. The New-

TAMUNING FLOOD — About $1,500 worth of merchandise was damaged in this warehouse when flood waters, fed by several hours of drenching rains, poured over Tamuning yesterday morning. The warehouse, owned by the Marianas Sales, was inundated with water flowing from streams on the hillside. The depth of the water when the picture was taken was ankle deep, as shown by a Marianas Sales employee stacking up paper bags, straws and cups. Earlier, the water measured 24 inches. (News Photo)

HOUSES, BUSINESSES IN TAMUNING FLOODED

Flood waters fed by several hours of torrential rains threatened residents of Tamuning yesterday morning. About 20 buildings, including several business establishments, were inundated. The water measured 24 inches in some areas.

Homeowners stacked their belongings and fled to higher ground as the water continued to rise. Even after the rain had halted water still poured over the cliff from NAS, Agana.

Drainage ditches in the area could not siphon off the water during the deluge.

The onrushing waters from the cliff built up a lake in the center of the town that was up to two feet deep and covered about 16 homes. The water washed down heavy boulders and deposited them within few feet of dwellings at the foot of the cliff.

Some residents sought shelter in nearby homes to wait for the flood to subside before continuing with their interrupted household chores. Clothes stored in bottom drawers of cabinets and hot lockers were caught by the rising tide.

At the Guam Dry Cleaners, Manager Francis McGowan had to cease operation and give workers a "holiday." There were no damage to clothes, the manager said. But water seeped into motors of the washing equipment. The machines must be dried out before they can be put back into operation.

The Squire Shop also was inundated, with 10 inches of water in the shoe department. Mike Gutherts, store manager, said, "it was a good thing we were wide awake."

Approximately $1,500 worth of merchandise was damaged at the Marianas Sales' warehouse when the water rose knee-deep at about 10.30 yesterday morning. Septic tanks in residential homes overflowed posing a serious health problem.

Ray Underwood, Marianas Sales manager, said yesterday "no wonder NAS, Agana is so clean. All their rubbish is carried down into Tamuning by the flood waters.

Government workers were busy clearing receptacles which clogged up the drainage ditch near Tommy's Soda Fountain.

More rains were forecast for today.

Prisoner Admits Store Burglary

Adolpho Zamora, 21-year-old prisoner who staged a dramatic escape from the Agana lockup Aug. 28 with two juvenile inmates, yesterday admitted to Al Nobriga, acting public safety director, that he burglarized the Marianas Sales Co. on Aug. 26 "during my confinement."

Articles allegedly taken by Zamora from the store were not revealed. But the escape artist confessed to Nobriga he "walked out" of the jail Aug. 26 with the help of an accomplice.

The accomplice was not identified.

Zamora did it "the hard way." August 28 he and two juvenile inmates broke out of the lockup by climbing through a hole in the ceiling then sliding down a drain pipe to freedom.

But their liberty was short-lived. The juveniles were recaptured Sunday afternoon. Aug. 29 on a cliff overlooking the Tastee Freeze in the safety commissioner's residence.

Nobriga yesterday said investigation of the series of breaks at 8,380 Voters Registered Here

A total of 8,380 registered voters are eligible to troop to polling places in November to elect the island's Third Legislature.

This was announced yesterday by Election Commissioner V. U. Zafra following the completion of the 14-day registration period.

With only two villages unreported yet, the tally of new voters was 3,878. Only Inarajan and Yona had not turned in their precinct reports at press time yesterday.

Zafra said the office expects 400 "more" from late reports.

The commissioner said 4,502 voters went to the polls in 1952. With an aditional 3,878 this year, the voting potential of the island in the coming election is 8,380.

Earlier, the commissioner said he expected about 13,955 voters for November.

SHEPHERD SAYS ISLE TO REMAIN KEY U.S. BASE

By JOSE C. ABCEDE

The possibility that the Marines may return to Guam in view of the critical situation in the Far East was voiced yesterday by Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, United States Marine Corps commandant. The four-star general arrived yesterday on a one-day tour of Marine installations here. He is on his way back to Washington from a survey of Far East Marine forces.

"Guam will always remain a strategic military center and will always be one of the largest United States bases in the Far East," the general declared.

While reminiscing on the battle for the liberation of the island in 1944, Gen. Shepherd said he was "amazed" at the rapid strides of the island's rehabilitation.

The general stated:

"Guam's progress is magnificent. I am very happy and pleased to know that the people here are rapidly building the island into a model American community. I am very glad to have visited the island once more."

"I also understand Guam's Governor Elvidge is doing an excellent job here," the general added as he continued his praise of the island's political and economic progress.

CRITICAL SITUATION

Viewing the Far Eastern situation which he termed "critical," Gen. Shepherd said Marine forces in Japan and elsewhere are ready to go any place to plug the advances of communism.

Asked what role the Marines will play in the event that Red Chinese forces decide to cross the blockade of the Seventh Fleet in the Formosa Strait, Gen. Shepherd said the Marines are not part of the Seventh Fleet.

However, the Third Marine Division in Japan is poised to go any-

Dulles Off For Manila Parley

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)— Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said tonight as he left for Manila that he hopes to negotiate an eight-nation alliance to halt Communist expansion in southeast Asia.

He made this statement at the Washington airport shortly before leaving in a U.S. Air Force plane with Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ.) and half a dozen advisers. They will fly to Manila by way of Honolulu, Wake and Guam.

"I also hope ways and means can be found to enable Cambodia, Laos and Viet Nam to become free, vigorous and liberty-loving nations and that the whole area can be strengthened by a sense of solidarity," Dulles said.

Dulles earlier had called for an emergency meeting of the North Atlantic pact council to determine what must be done to bolster defenses against Communism now that France has killed the European army plan.

In a major policy statement deploring the French action as a tragedy, Dulles also:

1. Announced the United States will begin "to reappraise its foreign policies, particularly those in relation to Europe," to take into account the "new situation now created."

2. Pledged the Eisenhower administration "will act" to restore sovereignty to West Germany and consult with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to help his government rearm to defend European security.

3. Reassured jittery European allies the "agonizing reappraisal" of foreign policy will not lead the

Popular Party Has 23 November Candidates

Twenty-three Popular Party candidates filed their declaration of candidacies yesterday with the office of the election commissioner. Fourteen of them are incumbent congressmen.

The deadline for filing certificates of candidacy is until midnight tonight. The island election code states that candidates must file 60 days before the election. The congressional election is set for November 2.

Incumbent Speaker A. B. Won Pat heads the party nomination list with several outstanding legislators topping the slate. A significant development was the dropping of the name of Cong. James T. Sablan from Agana Heights from the party's official list.

Sablan had registered his candidacy ahead of the party nomination. He had figured in frequent clashes with leading party members during the last regular and special sessions of the lawmaking body.

The official standard bearers are: Fred L. G. Aflague, Atty. Joaquin C. Arriola, Vicente B. Bamba (In-

83RD CONGRESS

THOUGH the air is filled with partisan boasts and criticisms of the performance of the 83rd Congress, most impartial observers are concluding that its record was on the whole a creditable one.

Certainly the 83rd was one of the hardest working assemblies since the marathon sessions of World War II. For the first time in a good while, Congress made a greater impact with legislation passed than with things and people investigated.

That is no small achievement when the Army-McCarthy hearings, the Reece inquiry into foundations and countless other investigations are taken into account.

Being a Republican Congress under a Republican President, this one must be gauged partly by what it did with President Eisenhower's legislative proposals. The White House claim of an .830 batting average may be somewhat extravagant, but it is clear the President did get a good share of his program enacted.

ON the domestic side, Congress enacted the first flexible farm price support plan that seems to have a chance of being enforced. It approved broader and better social security coverage, a relatively limited health program, and measures for hospital construction, vocational rehabilitation and unemployment insurance on an improved scale.

It put through a general tax revision measure long overdue, for the nation's tax structure had grown up hodgepodge style and needed revamping to wipe out inequities and discouragements to incentive.

Less satisfactory was the new housing law, which fell well short of Mr. Eisenhower's requests in the public housing field. And, of course, Congress made no changes in the Taft-Hartley Act, even though the late Senator Taft himself had earlier proposed nearly 30 modifications in that basic labor law.

Other impressive work was the passage after long years of bitter controversy of the St. Lawrence Seaway project, and the adoption of a modernized atomic energy law giving private enterprise some role in future development and our allies more access to necessary atomic information.

CONGRESS maintained the continuity of foreign aid, though it chopped the President's requests considerably. It extended the Reciprocal Trade Act for another year, after Mr. Eisenhower gave up trying for a three-year renewal this time, coupled with other liberalizing trade features. These he will seek in 1955.

Perhaps the greatest single disappointment from the Administration's view was the failure to enact statehood for Hawaii. This was killed when the Senate insisted on linking it with Alaskan statehood.

But on balance the showing was good. This Congress had a sharp eye for economy, voting $5.5 billion less in 1954 than it did in 1953, and about $26 billion less than the Democratic 82nd Congress. Its coloring was conservative in most areas of effort. Yet the significant thing is that there was effort.

Critics will have many things to say of the 83rd. But they will be laughed off the platform if they call it a "do-nothing" Congress. It did plenty.

Jesus S.N. Tenorio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francisco Tenorio of Lalo Barrigada, recently was promoted to the rank of sergeant. Tenorio earned his promotion by displaying a thorough knowledge of his job as a chief of section of a 155 millimeter howitzer crew.

Sgt. Tenorio entered the service in Sept. 1950 and he has served a 35 month tour of duty in the European theater of operations. He was assigned to "A" Battery, 544th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion of the 11th Airborne Division stationed at Fort Campbell, Ky. in June 1954. Shepherd Praises Island Progress where, even Formosa, if ordered to repel the tide of Communist advances, the general declared. He revealed a small force of Marines are in Formosa training the Nationalist Chinese troops.

The 20th commandant of the Marine Corps, commander of the Sixth Marine Division which liberated Guam in 1944, has been on a sweeping visit to the various Marine garrisons in the Far East. In Korea, he scotched rumors that the Leathernecks will pull out of the war-divided peninsula. Gen. Shepherd said the 1st Marine Division and the 1st Marine Air Wing will stay right in the Korea frontlines.

Asked whether he foresees an immediate return of the Marines in full force to Guam, the general said, offhand, the answer is no. However, he added there always is the possibility that the Leathernecks will be based on the island.

ISLE FACILITIES

"It is quite possible that a Marine unit may be stationed here," he further said.

Queried if he thinks present facilities and installations here could adequately accommodate bigger Marine units, Gen. Shepherd said he "doubts if it could."

He said, however, he believes the southern end of the island could amply provide the required land area for housing, field for troop training and necessary base facilities. He said the present installations could be expanded if a large unit will be stationed here.

Recalling his landing here, the four-star general, a holder of the Distinguished Service Medal for his leadership in the Guam invasion operations, remembered the destruction that the island suffered in 1944. He particularly was impressed by the rapid buildup of commercial establishments in Agana and the growth of the city as the island's business center.

The general said he did not have the chance to visit Camp Witek, former Marine base on the southern part of the island, but he said he "knows the island pretty well."

As he surveyed the Far Eastern situation, the general reiterated the determined policy of the Eisenhower administration to repel fresh Communist attempts to crack at the U.S. defense line in Asia.

"The United States is dedicated to assist other free nations of the world in their efforts to contain Communism," he emphasized.

Asked about his opinions on the Philippines proposal to seek, in the SEATO talks, ironclad guarantees of immediate U. S. armed intervention in the event of a Red attack on the Philippines, the Marine commandant warded off the query, saying it is policy-determining in nature. He remarked:

"I don't want to get involved in policy-determining statements. You know what happened to military men who stepped on that ground. I don't want to get fired from my job."

CONSTANT READINESS

Pursuing the topic, the general said Marine units throughout the Far East are in "constant readiness" and are poised to "go anywhere" to repulse aggression against any of the free nations in that area. He named the 3rd Marine Division presently stationed in Japan.

Gen. Shepherd made it clear the Korea pullout of U.S. troops would not involve the Leathernecks. "I was in Washington when the redeployment announcement was made and as far as I see it, the Marines are staying right where they are in Korea."

All other Marine stations will continue to perform their security duties for naval installations in various parts of the globe, the veteran Leatherneck declared. As part of the Navy, Marine units deployed in far-flung posts will continue to do their missions, he said.

Gen. Shepherd arrived here yesterday morning in company with Lt. Gen. W. O. Brice, commandant of Far East Marine forces. They were met at the NAS airfield by Radm. M. E. Murphy, ComNavMarianas and Col. J. S. Cook, Marine Barracks commander here.

GENERAL'S PARTY

Other members of the general's party were Capt. E. R. Hering, USN, Col. R. A. McGill, Lt. Col. D. M. Schmuck, Lt. Col. B. W. Giebler, Lt. Col. V. W. Banning, and Lt. Col. J. C. Short.

The party is scheduled to leave early this morning. The general conducted an inspection of Marine Barracks personnel, the facilities in the base. Last night he was honored at a reception given by Col. Cook at his residence at Nimitz Hill.

Gen. Shepherd commanded the First Provisional Marine Brigade that spearheaded the invasion of the island in 1944. He organized the Sixth Marine Division from the Brigade and led it in the Okinawa operation. He was named Marine Commandant in January 1952.

PROBERS SPLIT ON MCCARTHY 'VERDICT'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—The four Republican senators who investigated the army-McCarthy row said tonight Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) exercised no improper influence personally on behalf of Pvt. G. David Schine, but the three Democrats said McCarthy deserved "severe criticism."

The quartet of GOP members, while clearing McCarthy of taking a personal hand in pressurizing the army, said he should have wielded more vigorous control over his staff. They said Roy M. Cohn, resigned chief counsel to the McCarthy investigating subcommittee, was "unduly aggressive and persistent" in seeking preferential army treatment for Schine.

The four Republicans making the report were Sens. Karl Mundt (S.D.), Charles Potter (Mich.), Everett Dirksen (Ill.) and Henry Dworshak (Idaho). Potter and Dirksen also filed supplementary statements on their individual views.

The minority report was filed by Sens. John McClellan (Ark.), Stuart Symington (Mo.) and Henry Jackson (Wash.). Highlights from both documents were read to newsmen before the full documents themselves became available.

Besides hitting at McCarthy, the trio of Democrats said Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens and Cohn also merited "severe criticism."

Sen. McClellan, senior Democrat on the investigating subcommittee, quoted the minority report as saying that McCarthy "fully acquiesced in and condoned" what it described as Cohn's "improper actions" on behalf of Schine, a former unpaid subcommittee consultant.

The Democratic report held that both McCarthy and Cohn merited severe criticism for their "inexcusable actions."

As for Stevens, the Democrats said that he "pursued a course of appeasement" in the Schine affair in an effort "to placate" McCarthy.

Concerning Cohn the Democrats asserted:

It is clear to us that Mr. Cohn persistently sought, with Mr. Schine's acquiescence, and without restraint from Sen. McCarthy, some means by which Mr. Schine could avoid basic training and the routine assignments of an inductee in the United States army."

The Democrats also said McCarthy "may have violated the law in receiving and making use" of a 2¾ page summary of a secret FBI report on dangers of Red espionage at Ft. Monmouth, N.J., McCarthy has said he got the document from an army intelligence source, but the army declared it doesn't believe that the source.

The report described Cohn as "unduly aggressive and persistent" in seeking favors for Schine, a close friend of his.

Potter earlier in the day released a statement of his own individual findings as well. Another who also issued an individual statement after signing the Republican report was Dirksen.

Potter, in his statement, rendered a guilty verdict against both sides, while Dirksen said the fight might never have developed if McCarthy had not insisted on subpoenaing members of the army loyalty board.

the jail "is being pursued without let-up."

Director Frock Tuesday issued a statement that any of the guards responsible for the jailbreak will be cited for disciplinary action as there has been a failure in the performance of their duties." He declined, however, to identify the prison guards.

Frock's statement reportedly was prompted by the discovery of a prison key in the possession of Jose I. Fejeran Tuesday. Fejeran and two other inmates broke out of the jail the same night (Aug. 30) Zamora was being hauled off to his cell.

Fejeran and his companions were recaptured 10 hours after their escape. They were taken to the police station and frisked. A key "identical" with the one kept by the prison guard in opening the cells was found with Fejeran.

The man who gave the key to Fejeran had not been identified.

Reds Deliver 193 US Dead In First Historic Body Exchange

PANMUNJOM, Sept. 1 (AP) — The Communists delivered the bodies of 193 Americans and seven unidentified men at 9:15 a.m. today on a somber, overcast morning to begin the exchange of thousands of war dead in a grim aftermath of the war in Korea.

Eight Russian-built Communist trucks rolled across the truce line separating the armies to return the bodies of the fallen soldiers from enemy soil.

The convoy was led by a white-painted American escort jeep.

The historic body exchange — first of its kind in military history — is called "Operation Glory" by the army.

Dismal clouds blotted the sun from the peaceful, green valley near Panmunjom where the exchange was made. The exchange area is on the site of the former Korean town of Chagdan. The entire town was obliterated during the fighting which cost the lives of the men whose remains were delivered today.

Americans who received the bodies wore white gloves.

Some of the North Korean and Chinese officers and Chinese jeep drivers wore white gauze masks.

The U.N. reception site lies 500 yards south of the truce line. The Communist reception area is about half a mile north of the line.

A crowd of curious Chinese soldiers gathered on a hillside just beyond the demarcation line to watch the turnover.

The bodies delivered today were the first of 4,011 Allied dead to be returned during the daily exchange.

The Allies return 500 Korean and 100 Chinese dead today.

In all, the Communist have said they will return 4,011 allied dead and the U.N. command will hand over 14,061 Communist dead.

American war dead, when identified, will be returned to the United States for burial if their families so desire. Otherwise, they will be taken to Hawaii for burial in the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific at Honolulu.

The transfer site is south of Panmunjom where the truce was signed in July, 1953, ending three years of war. Allied officers described the exchange agreed to in the armistice, as the first of its kind in military history.

ROKs Threaten Force Against Jap 'Invasion'

SEOUL, Sept. 1 (AP)—South Korea has decided to station "hundreds of policemen" on controversial Takeshima (Tokyo) Island in the Strait of Japan to "protect it from Japanese invaders at any cost."

The decision came at a cabinet meeting yesterday and followed a protest from the Korean mission in Tokyo against the "repeated intrusion into Korean territorial waters by Japanese officials."

The cabinet coupled its move to bolster a civilian youth corps already stationed on the once-inhabited island by warning that "any Japanese ship which invades the island will be repelled by force."

The Koreans said they would also employ ROK coast guard vessels and aircraft if necessary to keep Japanese off the tiny island.

Both Japan and Korea claim sovereignty over the small strip of land in a continuing controversy over fishing and territorial rights in the waters separating the two countries.

Another 13 Japanese fishermen went to trial yesterday in Pusan district court on charges of violating South Korean fishing grounds. The prosecutor has asked for sentences ranging from eight months to one year.

The Japanese got some moral support for their position Monday when Dr. Guenter Decker, an international law authority, said in Tokyo that Japan had a legal right to challenge the so-called "Rhee Line" as an off-limits fishing area.

The Rhee line averages 60 miles off the coast of South Korea and bars Japanese fishermen from working those areas for their catches.

Becker said the line was based on "extra claims and not upon recognized international law."

port, R.I., casino was wrecked. The steeple of Boston old North Church toppled. Exclusive seacoast summer communities in Rhode Island were demolished.

Many more persons were feared dead in the wake of the storm. Eight auto loads of people were unreported since they fled cottages in South Kingston, R. I.

The storm, much of its fury spent, moved north into New Hampshire and Maine and on to the Mexican border where it diminished in force to such an extent that the weather bureau no longer classified it a hurricane.

Wareham, Mass., police said that "possibly seven or eight" persons were reported drowned in south shore beach areas.

A total of 1,500 vacationists were evacuated from beaches in that summer resort town, and were being cared for by the Red Cross and volunteers at the town hall.

The Wareham police said that detachment of national guards and air force MPs from Otis Field on Cape Code were posted through the towns to prevent looting.

As the late summer storm moved into northern New England several cities were declared emergency areas, two ships were in trouble in Massachusetts waters and a loaded ammunition barge drifted and went aground in Rhode Island's Narragansett Bay.

The New Haven railroad reported more than 2,000 persons stranded on six through trains by a flood at New London, Conn.

New York City suffered mostly from snarled transportation and felled power lines. Coastal areas of Long Island, Rhode Island and Massachusetts were evacuated.

A historic shrine that felt the fury of winds reaching gusts of 125 miles an hour accompanied by sheets of torrential rain was the famed old north church in Boston's north end. The ancient steeple from which Paul Revere received the signal to alert "every Middlesex village and farm" toppled at the storm's height. A score of old elms on historic Boston Common also fell.

The Coast Guard, its communication lines crippled, sought the 6,000-ton Liberian freighter Rosario, out of Bremen, Germany, which reported she was in trouble off the shoals of Nantucket. Later the ship radioed it had ridden out the storm and didn't need help. A fishing boat identified only as the Friendship radioed she was in distress and trying to reach shore at No Man's Land, an island at the tip of Martha's Vineyard.

Swirling waters rose to four feet in Providence and five feet in Westerly, R. I. In Westerly's main street several automobiles were covered completely as they stood parked on the street. At Atlantic Beach, Westerly, 200 summer homes were reported swept away.

Declared emergency areas were Cape Cod, Mass., New London, Conn., and Providence and Westerly.

A group of 1,000 vacationists quartered in a "tent city" at Brewster, Mass., on Cape Cod, had to seek shelter elsewhere when their tents blew down.

Scores of yachts were dashed in splinters at City Point, South Boston, which house three yacht clubs.

Several radio and television towers were blown over in the greater Boston area.

The cities of New Bedford and Fall River, each with a population of more than 100,000, had no electric power.

The center of the storm, which made up off Florida, moved across Long Island Sound early today and hit the Connecticut and Rhode Island coastline with increased intensity. In early afternoon the weather bureau placed the center between Boston and Worcester with its course northeastward to New Hampshire and Maine.

Correction

The word "ESA" inadvertently was used in yesterday's NEWS report on the trial of Stephen H. Atkins to qualify "liquor bottles," the seals and stamps of which allegedly "were broken" by the accused "to speed up the mixing of drinks when business was fast." The initial "ESA" should have been omitted.

The second phase of the Atkins trial, according to the Attorney General's office yesterday, was postponed "until further notice" due to a "sudden illness of the defense counsel." The date of resumption will be announced later.

Taruc Sentence May Be Reviewed; Hit By Magsaysay

MANILA, Sept. 1 (AP) — A motion for reconsideration of the controversial Manila court decision sentencing Communist Huk leader Luis Taruc to a 12-year prison term will be filed today, government prosecutors said last night.

The move came in the wake of bitter public reaction to the decision of Judge Gregorio Narvasa who sentenced Taruc to the jail term and a $10,000 fine for rebellion.

The prosecution had asked for life imprisonment.

President Ramon Magsaysay yesterday denounced the decision as an "incredible penalty" and a "mockery of justice." He said he would have "this injustice redressed."

Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason, meanwhile, instructed the Pampanga provincial court to calendar for trial a long-pending charge of murder against Taruc. A member of the prosecution panel said it is preparing to file 60 new charges of murder, rape, arson, kidnap and other crimes against the dissident chief.

On the other hand, the defense counsel, led by Rep. Emilio Cortez, said they would appeal the "too oppressive" verdict. Cortez said he would ask for Taruc's release on bail pending the appeal.

EDC Defeat Shows U.S. Received Wrong Impression Of French Premier

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP) — One reappraisal which the U.S. State Department might well undertake, now that France has destroyed EDC, is a reappraisal of the difference between hard facts and wishful thinking.

The American record of all-out support for the European Defense Community contains two examples of how hopes for the best may harden, sometimes with startling speed into dead certain convictions that the best will happen.

One example is drawn from the whole period of U.S. promotion of the European project. During the previous Truman-Acheson administration and the Eisenhower-Dulles regime the official line of the United States has been that France would approve EDC. It was just a question of getting the plan to a vote in the national assembly.

Premier Mendes-France complained recently that American officials claimed to know more about the French political situation than he.

Maybe he could have changed that situation if he had really tried but it is a fact that until the last few days before the assembly debate there were many here who believed that EDC would succeed when the chips were down. They began to lose heart only when it became apparent Mendes-France would not give the project his support and active backing, that his prestige would work against rather than for it.

The other example of apparently letting the wish father the "fact" developed after Mendes-France took over the French premiership June 17. He had long been feared by American diplomats as a man whose policies would take France in the direction that the United States disapproved.

France To Propose New Defense Plan Including Britain

PARIS, Sept. 1 (AP) — Premier Pierre Mendes-France told the French national assembly today he hopes to move quickly toward setting a new European organization including Britain. This would be a substitute for the unified army plan which the assembly scuttled last night.

The premier addressed an obstreperous assembly in which one group of deputies was rejoicing over the defeat of the European Defense Community (EDC) plan yesterday, while pro-EDC deputies were deeply resentful. Cries of "resign, resign!" were hurled at the premier when he asked postponement of foreign policy debate until the assembly returns Nov. 3 from its vacation.

But the deputies voted 418 to 162 for postponement.

Then after disposing of routine business at a night session, the assembly broke up for its vacation. The premier warned he may call the assembly back soon to approve granting limited sovereignty to West Germany.

The proposal for bringing Britain directly into a European organization has been made several times before but always has met with polite rejection in London. Citing its commonwealth and other overseas ties, Britain agreed to cooperate heartily with EDC, for instance, but held aloof from actual membership.

London sources said tonight Prime Minister Churchill's government favors rearming West Germany within the North Atlantic treaty, now that the EDC program for putting 12 German divisions in a unified army is dead. Britain's diplomacy soon is expected to be thrown behind the new plan, recommending safeguards against unlimited German rearmament but resisting any prolonged delay in reaching a solution.

Today the premier insisted France's policy remains based on the North Atlantic alliance. He said "any pact in which Britain is missing is incomplete" and that he would try to learn what form of European organization could win British participation.

"It would be imprudent for me to enter into details now," he added.

Several pro-EDC deputies led by former Premier Paul Reynaud sharply criticized Mendes-France for letting EDC die without having an alternative ready.

"What are you going to do now?" Reynaud asked. "It's a waste of time to say you're for the Atlantic pact. The pact wanted to use German strength through the EDC. You have rejected that solution. By giving Germany its sovereignty without asking anything in return, you revive the Wehrmacht that paraded down the Champs Elysees and through every city in France."

Reynaud accused Mendes-France of having killed a "great French idea" in EDC. The plan was first proposed in France in 1950 when Rene Pleven was premier.

The assembly majority that killed EDC seemed oblivious to criticism from abroad.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP) — The Maritime Administration reported that the 12 million dollars appropriated by Congress for repair of ships in the mothball merchant fleet will be allocated to the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf Coast on the basis of current employment figures.

Mouse Knows How To Live

WILLOUGHBY, Ohio, Sept. 1 (AP) — Nothing mousy about the house of this mouse:

Workmen, remodelling Hellriegel's Inn, found the rodent residence behind a wall board. It was composed of $10 and $20 bills, torn into small pieces to make things comfy.

Mrs. Mary Kochevar, part owner of the inn, estimated the cash redeemabe value of the plush abode at $75 ,and observed:

Trial Judge Denies Batchelor Motion To Drop Charges

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 1 (AP) — The trial judge ruled today that Cpl. Batchelor was not promised immunity by the U.S. Army if he would return to the Allied side.

On the basis of this ruling, Lt. Col. Donald L. Manes, Jr., law officer, or judge in the court martial of Batchelor, denied a defense motion that all charges against Batchelor be dropped.

Batchelor is charged with collaboration with the enemy and betraying his buddies while he was a prisoner of war in Korea. He at first chose to stay with the Reds but later changed his mind.

His attorneys claimed the Army promised immunity from prosecution to the corporal while he was in Indian custody in the Panmunjom neutral zone if he would return to the Allied side.

The attorneys said the promise was broadcast.

Manes said he found in the broadcast "at most, a promise that the prisoners of war would not be punished because they had not elected to return sooner."

Batchelor was returned home from Indian custody on Jan. 1. His trial opened at Fort Sam Houston here yesterday.

The defense made three more motions which, if granted, would have resulted in dropping of charges against Batchelor. The motions were based on the defense contention that the Geneva convention requires a prisoner of war to communicate with his captors in many ways and that the prisoner of war under the Geneva convention falls under the authority of jurisdiction of the capturing power. The motions were denied.

Too Many Distractions

TROIS-RIVIERES, Quebec, Sept. 1 (AP) — Students of St. George College who live at home will have to do their homework at school.

College officials said a plan whereby students will remain at school for a couple of hours after the end of regular classes is being enforced because "the distractions of modern life, particularly television" make home study impossible.

US, UK Panels In PI; SEATO Teams Meet For Work

MANILA, Sept. 1 (AP) — Committees met today to work on the draft of the proposed southeast Asia treaty, which in its present form stresses economic more than military cooperation.

Now in its third re-writing, it is expected to be further changed before final presentation to the conference which opens here Sept. 6.

The American and British delegations of experts arrived last night and this morning. The American group was led by Douglas MacArthur II, who arrived aboard a Military Air Transport Service plane from Washington. William J. Sebald, U.S. ambassador to Burma, headed another eight-man group, which arrived via Tokyo. The third batch — a two-man British party — came from Singapore and was headed by Col. Mander, staff officer of the British land force headquarters there.

MacArthur, counsellor of the department of state and a nephew of the famous general, said on arrival, "I am looking forward to a very constructive, useful and successful conference. I and my family regard the Philippines as our second country."

MacArthur's group included Herman Phleger, State Department legal adviser; Charles A. Sullivan, chief Far East and western hemisphere division, office of international security; Lt. Col. John E. Dwan II, defense department; Charles C. Steele, policy planning staff, State Department.

Sebald was accompanied by Chester L. Cooper, Office of Chinese affairs, State Department; Outerbridge Horsey, in charge of commonwealth affairs, state department and others.

Third Quake Jolts Nevada

RENO, Nev., Sept. 1 (AP) — The third sharp earth tremor in seven weeks rocked western Nevada this afternoon, but there were no reports of additional damage to quake-stricken irrigation networks now under repair.

Prof. D. B. Slemmons, University of Nevada geologist, said the tremor was the strongest of 25 shocks recorded on his seismograph during the day.

"In all there have been about 400 aftershocks since July," Slemmons said. He said most were small.

Today's shock jarred a wide desert area.

Koo Sees Victory

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—Chinese Ambassador Wellington Koo told newsmen today that the people of Formosa will make a "splendid showing and teach the Communists a lesson" if the Nationalist stronghold is invaded.

He said it is not unlikely that the Chinese may try such an invasion.

The ambassador spoke after a conference with U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. Koo invited Dulles to visit Formosa after the Manila conference. He told newsmen that Dulles' decision would depend on world developments.

Koo said he did not discuss with Dulles the Communist threats to invade Formosa. His comment was in response to a newsman's question.

Gen. Dean's Betrayers Given 5-Year Sentence

SEOUL, Sept. 1 (AP) — Two South Koreans accused of betraying Maj. Gen. William F. Dean were sentenced to five years of imprisonment today by the Seoul higher court.

The two Korean farmers, Choi Chong Bong nad Han Doo Kyoo, earlier were sentenced to death and life imprisonment, respectively, by the Seoul district court.

They were convicted of "illegal arrest of Gen. Dean enabling the Communists to capture him" in August, 1950 at Chinan, south of Taejon.

Both men admitted they received five dollars each from the Reds after Gen. Dean, then commander of the 24th Division with headquarters at Taejon, became a captive of the North Korean army.

Puller Recovering

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C., Sept. 1 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Lewis B. (Chesty) Puller, 56, Marine Corps hero of Guadalcanal and Korea, was taken off the critical list today at the U. S. Naval Hospital here. Puller, acting commandant of Camp Lejeune and commanding general of the 2nd Marine Division, suffered a brain clot Saturday.

The hospital said he was responding to treatment and was alert.

Puller, one of the most decorated Marines, has five times won the Navy Cross, the nation's second highest military decoration.

Sinajana School Mentor Leaves For Mainland

Miss Consolacion San Nicolas, elementary school teacher at Sinajana, departed yesterday morning by Pan American Airways to attend Northern State Teachers College in South Dakota. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vicente San Nicolas of Sinajana.

Miss San Nicolas graduated from George Washington High School in 1940. The same year she was appointed a teacher. She first taught at the Leary School in Agana, a departmental intermediate school then.

After the war, Miss San Nicolas returned to her school profession. In 1947, she was sent to Honolulu by the naval government for an advance course in education.

In the summer of 1948 she returned to Guam and that fall resumed teaching again at the high school.

When the Territorial College opened here two years ago, Miss San Nicolas enrolled as a night student and last July completed two years of college work in education. Her high scholastic attainment in the local school won her a scholarship to finish her college work in the mainland.

Before she boarded her plane stateside bound, Miss San Nicolas said: "I am very happy to have been given the opportunity to complete my education and I hope to return soon to help my people."

WELTER TITLE GO CANCELLED; CHAMPION SICK

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1 (AP) —Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan was stricken with a virus infection Tuesday and his scheduled title defense against Johnny Saxton of Brooklyn was postponed from tonight until sometime in October.

The 28-year-old title-holder became ill Tuesday morning but went through eight rounds of exercising despite the ailment.

However, manager Angel Lopez became worried over a lump that the Kid had on the left side of his face. Late in the afternoon, he called Gavilan's personal physician, Dr. Samuel Swetnick, who found the champion was suffering with a virus infection, had a temperature of 101 degrees and an inflamation of the left parotid gland (near the ear).

Immediately, the three Pennsylvania boxing commissioners, chairman Frank Weiner, George Jones, and John Holahan, as well as promoter Herman Taylor and Frank Palermo, Saxton's manager, were summoned.

Weiner heard the report from Dr. Swetnick and summoned two other physicians who made separate examinations of the champion. All three came up with similar findings.

The bout had been scheduled to telecast coast-to-coast. Gavilan's illness came so suddenly that matchmaker Pete Moran said that it was too late to put on a substitute bout on television.

Weiner said he had ordered the three independent medical examinations to make certain the public was protected.

"The commission is satisfied that it would not be fair to the public and to Gavilan to let the fight go on," he said.

Promoter Taylor said that the fight will definitely take place in the middle of October.

Weiner said that Gavilan would be placed on the unavailable list until he goes through with his defense against Saxton.

At the same time, the commissioner praised Gavilan. He said that Gavilan had told him he wanted very much to go through with the fight since he had never had a fight postponed in over eight years. He said that Gavilan told him he definitely will go through with the fight for Taylor.

Weiner incidentally had Gavilan weighed and the champion weighed 148, one over the welterweight limit.

He said that Gavilan's handler said the kid weighed 146¾ after his workout Tuesday morning.

Saddler, Young Clinch Ring Victories By KOs

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—Two important bouts were fought this week in the national boxing scene.

Paddy Young of New York City knocked out Binghamton's Joey Taylor last night in the last round of a scheduled ten rounder, pounding Taylor unmercifully to put him down for the third time at 1:27 of the 10th for the automatic stopping of the fight.

Young weighed 165, Taylor 160.

In Caravas, Venezuela, world featherweight champion Sandy Saddler knocked out Jackie Blair in 2 minutes of the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

The champion weighed 129 pounds, Blair, 131.

After a few changes of rights and lefts, Saddler smashed two hard jabs to Blair's face and followed with a terrific uppercut. Blair fell to the canvas and didn't move while counted out.

Saddler is from New York and Blair from Dallas, Tex.

Johnny Antonelli Holds Best ERA In Major Loops

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—The New York Giants, well-represented among the National League earned run pace-setters during the past five seasons, are likely to produce another leader this year in Johnny Antonelli.

Figures compiled by the Associated Press disclose that the 24-year-old southpaw tops the National League in earned run effectiveness with a 2.41 average. If he maintains his supremacy, he will become the fourth Giant pitcher since 1949 to capture ERA honors.

Dave Koslo was the earned run leader in 1949 with 2.50. The following season Jim Hearn, who started the campaign with the St. Louis Cardinals and finished with the Giants, led with 2.49. In 1952 relief pitcher Hoyt Wilhelm had the league's best ERA, 2.43.

Antonelli, in posting a 20-3 won-lost record, has allowed 54 earned runs in 202 innings. The former Bonus player has hurled 15 complete games, including five shutouts. He was fifth in the ERA ratings last season.

Cleveland's Mike Garcia heads the American League earned run listings with 2.45, followed by Ned Garver of the Tigers at 2.52. Figures include Monday's games.

A pair of Milwaukee pitchers, Lew Burdette and Gene Conley, trail Antonelli in the National League. Burdette, in second place, has given up 57 earned runs in 182 innings for a 2.82 average. Conley, a lanky rookie, is third at 2.91, having been solved for 54 earned runs in 170 frames.

Another Giant moundsman, Ruben Gomez, is fourth with a 2.98 average. Following close behind are Philadelphia hurlers Curt Simmons, 3.02 and Robin Roberts, 3.07, and Warren Spahn of the Braves, last season's leader, 3.09.

Garcia, in his sixth season with the Indians, has permitted 53 earned runs in 195 innings. The 30-year-old righthander, who finished eighth in the ERA listings in 1953, has won 15 games and lost six. His 12 complete games include five shutouts.

Runnerup Garver, displaying fine pitching form after undergoing a knee operation last winter, has yielded 54 earned runs in 193 innings. Virgil Trucks of the White Sox ranks third at 2.57, having issued 61 earned runs in 214 innings. Trucks has won the most games in the league, 18.

Washington's Bob Porterfield holds down fourth place with 2.72, followed by Steve Gromek of the Tigers, 2.77 and Sandy Consuegra of the White Sox, 2.83.

Cleveland Trounces New York, 6-1 To Move 5½ Games Ahead Of Yanks

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians whipped the New York Yankees 6-1 last night on the brilliant two-hit pitching of Early Wynn and moved 5½ games in front of the world champions in the American League pennant race.

In the National League the New York Giants picked up a full game on the second place Brooklyn Dodgers by beating St. Louis 5-3 in a night game after the Milwaukee Braves had pinned a 2-0 setback on the Dodgers. Gene Conley whitewashed the Dodgers on three hits.

The Giants now lead Brooklyn by 3½ games and Milwaukee by 7½.

Wynn had a no-hitter going until Irv Noren slammed a home run into the right field stands with two out in the seventh. Enos Slaughter's pinch single with two out in the eighth was the only other hit off Wynn.

The Indians rapped Bob Grim for two runs in the fourth and four in the eighth after wasting a tremendous opportunity in the opening inning when they loaded the bases with none out and failed to score.

ROSEN HITS

A double by Al Rosen followed by singles by Vic Wertz and Dave Pope and a sacrifice fly by Sam Dente accounted for the first two Cleveland runs. In the eighth Al Smith singled and Larry Doby walked. Rosen drove in one with a single and Dave Philley drove in three more with a home run.

The victory was No. 19 for the 34-year-old Wynn and snapped a six-game New York winning streak.

Willie Mays and Dusty Rhodes drove in two runs each in the Giants' triumph at St. Louis. Fine relief pitching by Windy McCall checked the Cardinals after they drove out Don Liddle with three runs in the fourth.

Mays singled, tripled and hit a sacrifice fly. Rhodes drove in one run with a double and another with a single as he continued his fine hitting against the Cardinals.

OUT OF CELLAR

The Philadelphia Athletics moved out of the American League cellar with a pair of victories over Baltimore, 8-6 and 6-3. The A's scored five runs in the eighth inning of the opener and won the nightcap with a three-run eighth inning rally.

The Detroit Tigers fell into a fourth place tie with Boston by losing a 5-3 decision in Washington. Maury McDermott pitched an eight-hitter for his seventh victory.

The Braves' victory over the Dodgers was their second straight after losing a doubleheader Sunday.

5TH OVER BUMS

The triumph was Conley's fifth this season over Brooklyn and his second shutout. He beat Brooklyn 2-0 on eight hits on May 11.

He gave up two singles and Junior Gilliam led off the ninth with a double. Bobby Thomson drove in the first Milwaukee run with a single in the first inning and Del Crandall hit a homer off loser Don Newcombe in the second.

In the other day action one winning streak was extended and one broken. The Chicago Cubs won their fifth and sixth games in succession, beating Pittsburgh 14-2 and 7-3.

Cincinnati, which had won five straight, bowed to Philadelphia 9-3 as the Phils broke an eight — game losing streak. Herm Wehmeier tamed his old teammates on eight hits — two of them homers by Ted Kluszewski who ran his total for the season to 41, tops in the National League and the most he's ever hit.

Howie Pollet and Walker Cooper, a star battery for the St. Louis Cardinals a dozen seasons ago, combined their talents in the first Chicago victory. Pollet posted his eighth triumph and drove in three runs. Cooper also drove in three runs. Pitcher Bob Rush and Hank Sauer homered in the second game victory.

Rain washed out Chicago's scheduled game in Boston.

SWIMS LAKE TAHOE

TAHOE CITY, Calif., Sept. 1 (AP)—Bert Capps, 38-year-old father from San Francisco, swam 12 frigid miles across 6,240-foot-high Lake Tahoe in record time today and collected at least $500 for his exhausting efforts.

The powerful 220-pound swimmer plunged into the waters of the big lake in the Sierra-Nevada range at 4 a.m. at Meeks Bay, Calif., and climbed ashore 7 hours, 27 minutes later at Cave Rock Beach in Nevada.

BAD WEATHER CANCELS SPORT PLAY IN EAST

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP) — The Atlantic coast hurricane, bringing torrential rains and winds of gale force, wiped out a heavy sports schedule throughout the eastern U.S. today—including major league, tennis, golf and racing.

Not a victim of the violent storm, however, was the crucial New York Yankees-Cleveland Indians series at Yankee Stadium, where the opening game was scheduled at 7:30 p.m.

The New York area got only the whip-lash of "hurricane Carol" and with it an inch and a half of rain. However, the clouds drifted away shortly after noon, the sun broke through and the stadium grass was whipped by a strong northwest breeze.

The full fourth day program of the National Tennis championships at Forest Hills, N. Y., was washed out, forcing officials to cram extra matches into the schedule before next Monday's final.

Play will be resumed tomorrow, with defending champion Tony Trabert meeting Canada's Lorne Main in a feature match.

At Boston, center of the New England area which bore the brunt of the damaging storm, the major league game between the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox was postponed.

At Scotch Plains, N.J., rain postponed the opening of the New Jersey PGA championship. Tournament officials reset the opening for Thursday.

Editor To Officiate In Bantam Title Go

MANILA, Sept. 1 (AP) — Nat Fleishcher, edior of Ring Magazine, arrived by air early today from Tokyo en route to Bangkok to officiate in a world bantamweight championship fight.

Fleischer said initial steps for formation of an oriental boxing commission have been taken in Tokyo by representatives from Japan, Thailand and the Philippines. He said the group will meet again in October to draw up rules and regulations for the organization.

The commission, eventually to include other Asian countries, will be affiliated with the World Boxing Commission, Fleischer said. Its purpose will be to standardize boxing rules in the Far East, raise its standard and encourage competition.

US BUSINESSMAN GETS LIFE TERM AS SPY IN CHINA

TOKYO, Sept. 13 (AP) — Peiping radio announced today that Hugh Francis Redmond, "of New York, U.S.A.," has been sentenced in Shanghai to life imprisonment as a spy.

The broadcast listed five other men and two women, all with Chinese names, as sentenced at the same time for "spying for the United States" and said two got death sentences.

Last December, U.S. Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.), the senate majority leader, listed Redmond among 32 Americans held by the Chinese Reds. He said that Redmond, a businessman, had been arrested April 26, 1951, in Shanghai.

Redmond's mother, Mrs. Ruth Redmond, said at her Yonkers home that she was "terribly shocked" by the news. She has not seen her son since 1946 and the last letter received from him was in 1950.

EX-PARATROOPER

She said he went to China for the Henningsen Bros. import-export firm of New York as a young man of 26. Redmond attended Manhattan College for a year, and won a silver star, bronze star and presidential citation in the paratroopers.

Peiping's broadcast said:

"Most of the eight U.S. agents entered U.S. espionage service as professional spies before the liberation of China (defeat of the Chinese Nationalists by the Reds). After the liberation, they used Shanghai as a center to collect state secrets, set up radio transmitters, illegally store weapons, send information to U.S. intelligence in Hong Kong and carry out activities aimed at undermining the peoples democratic (Communist) rule.

"Redmond, who was dispatched to China in August, 1946, was engaged in espionage in Mukden, Peking (Peiping) and Shanghai. After the liberation of Shanghai in 1949, he was ordered by the external survey detachment 44 to stay in Shanghai to maintain contact with United States intelligence organization in Hong Kong and conduct espionage work. Under cover as an employee of the Henningsen Produce Co., a U.S. business establishment, Redmond directed Wang Ko Yi and other espionage teams to collect the Chinese state secrets and illegally store armaments."

The broadcast said "evidence" included five radio sets and 16 secret code books.

OTHERS SENTENCED

Peiping named as the others sentenced by the judge advocate generals department of the Shanghai military control committee:

Wang Ko Yi, Lo Shih Hsiang, Chi Yu Kun, Ni Ching Chung, Wu Wei Fan, Hsu Pin and Huang Huang.

Peiping said that Wang Ko Yi, "a professional spy in the service of Chiang Kai-Shek," leader of the Nationalists, was sentenced to be executed immediately. Lo Shih Hsiang also got the death sentence but it was ordered suspended for two years. The others got from seven years to life.

Peiping said Wang Ko Yi "conveyed information directly to and received instruction from U.S. consul in Hong Kong," Ralph Nelson Clough, and U.S. government intelligence there.

ADENAUER REBUFFED IN STATE ELECTION

KIEL, Germany, Sept. 13 (AP) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his pro-American, pro-European unity program suffered a stinging reverse today when the opposition Socialist Party won a plurality in state elections in Schleswig Holstein.

The small rural state on the border of the Soviet zone rebuffed the 78-year-old chancellor's plea for a vote of confidence in electing its new Landtag (state parliament).

The Socialists outscored Adenauer's Christian Democratic Union (CDU) by almost 12,000 votes. But under the state's proportional representation system, the two factions each won 25 seats in the 69-seat parliament.

The other seats went to small parties which state officials of the CDU said they would try to bring into a coalition to form a continuing pro-Adenauer government.

It was the first election test since the French two weeks ago scuttled Adenauer's pet project, the European Defense Community (EDC), which would have put German troops into the west's anti-Communist bastion.

This state had given Adenauer a 2-1 margin over the Socialists — advocates of negotiation with Russia for German reunification — in his national election triumph a year ago.

Final election returns showed 1,217,497 persons out of the 1,546,902 eligible voted, 78.7 per cent.

The tally gave the Socialists 396,067 to 384,870 for the CDU.

There are 69 seats in the landtag. By leading in the popular vote, the Socialists also were assured of a big share of the 27 seats alloted on a proportional representation basis.

The party held only 20 seats in the previous state parliament.

Political observers here described the results as almost as sharp a slap for the United States as for Adenauer.

The chancellor is regarded as America's most faithful friend in Germany, and during his five years in office has supported Washington's diplomatic objectives.

Storm Roars On Japan; 6 Killed

TOKYO, Sept. 13 (AP) — Gigantic typhoon June, one of the most powerful storms in history, bore down on teeming Kyushu today, while advance gales and rain claimed six lives on the southernmost main island.

Kyodo News Service reported six persons also were injured and two missing in the 65 mile-an-hour winds and lashing rain pushed ahead by June.

Property damage began to pile up. All planes were grounded. Schools were closed and 15,000 persons moved from coastal villages to higher grounds to escape raging waves churned up by the storm.

The storm — with winds of 125 miles an hour at its giant center — was expected to slam into Kyushu with its main force tonight, the air force said.

The air force said the storm is expected to move across Kyushu by dawn Tuesday and hurl itself at the western tip of Honshu, Japan's main island, before moving into the Sea of Japan.

Tokyo is not expected to be hit with anything but rain and gusts.

The Japan weather bureau says the typhoon June is bigger than the 1934 Muroto typhoon, most devastating in Japan's history. The Muroto storm took more than 2,000 lives and blew more than 40,000 houses away.

June is an enormous typhoon, with an "eye" or center of 100 miles and an overall diamete of 300 miles.

Peiping Radio Reports 3 Americans Captured Off Hong Kong Released

LONDON, Sept. 14 (AP)—Two American newsmen and a former sea captain, held in Communist China for more than a year, have been deported, Peiping radio said today.

They are Richard Applegate, Hong Kong correspondent of the National Broadcasting Company; Donald Dixon, International News Service correspondent, and Benjamin Krasner, the former sea captain.

The Communist broadcast said the Chinese ministry of public security recently ordered their deportation and confiscation of their American yacht "Kert," instructing local public security authorities in the province of Kwangtung to carry out the order. There was no indication when or where the three were released.

The broadcast said Applegate, Dixon and Krasner were aboard the yacht March 21, 1953, when it "intruded into China's territorial waters off Kwangtung." They were taken into custody by a coastal defense unit.

"All three offenders admitted to the crime of intrusion into China's territorial waters," it said.

Applegate, 37, of Medford, Ore., is a former United Press war correspondent.

Dixon, 25, of New York City, was a Far Eastern correspondent for the International News Service.

Krasner, the ship captain, comes from Brooklyn.

Applegate, a lifelong boating enthusiast, owned the 42-foot yawl in which the Americans were seized near Hong Kong when an armed Red Chinese junk ran down and seized the small sailing boat which was flying the American flag. Britain's royal navy observatory at Lantao island, six miles west of Hong Kong, reported it saw the small craft intercepted and towed toward Communist-held Lapsamal Island, 10 miles farther west of the British crown colony.

For more than a year the Communists did not admit holding the three, but at the start of the Geneva conference they acknowledged the capture.

Knowland Wants U.S. 7th Fleet To Defend Quemoy

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP)—Senate Majority Leader William F. Knowland said today the U.S. Navy's 7th Fleet "should be used if necessary to defend Quemoy island" near the Chinese mainland.

The California Republican's statement was made as President Eisenhower, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and the national security council met in Denver to discuss U.S. policy on Quemoy island and other problems.

Quemoy has been shelled during the last week from the nearby Communist-held mainland.

Knowland, speaking on Eric Sevareid's "The American Week," television program over the Columbia Broadcasting System, said:

"I believe that the Seventh Fleet should be used, if necessary, to defend Quemoy island—just as it would be used in the defense of Formosa.

"I do not believe its in our national interest to permit international communism to move out into the Pacific."

Knowland said if the Chinese Communists feel there is any weakness in our position, I think they are apt to attack first Quemoy island and then use that as a stepping stone to Formosa. If they realize that we are determined in our efforts not to permit this aggression, I believe they are less likely to try it."

A more cautious approach to the Quemoy problem was voiced by Sen. Theodore F. Green (D-R.I.) on the Sevareid program.

"The disadvantage of coming into the fray is this," he said. "We can't tell where this will stop if we once begin defending islands along the coast."

Commies Seize American Couple

BERLIN, Sept. 13 (AP) — Two Americans — believed to be a doctor and his wife — today were reported by Communist police on the outskirts of Berlin at the same place where two American brothers were arrested last Tesuday.

U.S. authorities said two persons were arrested late Saturday afternoon by East German people's police near the Drellinden checkpoint outside the U.S. sector

According to reports received by American officials, the couple drove out to the area from Berlin in a rented German car and parked it about 100 yards from the checkpoint. There they talked to West German customs guards and started to take picures. The guards cautioned them against taking pictures and the couple got in their car to return to Berlin. The West German guards said the couple was arrested by pepoles' police while driving back to the city.

The only information on their identities came from the customs guards who described them as an American doctor and his wife. U.S. authorities said they were investigating the incident but said they did not know the names of the missing pair.

Last Tuesday, Communist police near Drellinden arrested William Henry Starr, 30, and his brother, 31, both of Westville, N.J. No word has been heard of them since. Their automobile, also rented from a West Berlin dealer, was recovered by the car firm Thursday night, parked on a West Berlin street.

GLOBAL ISSUES TAKEN UP AT SECURITY MEET

DENVER, Sept. 13 (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, reporting to President Eisenhower on the tense Far Eastern situation, expressed confidence today any Chinese Communist assault on Nationalist Formosa would be turned back by American military might.

Dulles report to the President and the national security council at an extraordinary session at the summer White House dealt with the global aspects of the Communist threat.

Just ahead of that meeting the chief executive conferred with FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover and Atty. Gen. Brownell, and was pictured as "in vigorous agreement", with them that the administration's goal is to "utterly destroy the Communist party" and its activities in the United States.

Dulles met with Eisenhower, and then with fellow members of the national security council, shortly after flying in from the Orient, where he represented the U.S. in the signing of an eight-nation pact against Communist aggression in southeast Asia and also conferred with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, leader of the Chinese Nationalist forces on Formosa.

QUEMOY ISSUE

After the meeting privately with Eisenhower, Dulles held a news conference where most of the questions dealt with whether the United States Seventh Fleet under instructions to protect Formosa—would go to the aid of the Nationalist island of Quemoy, near the Red China mainland, if the Communists continue

Army Workers' Strike

TOKYO, Sept. 13 (AP) — Striking employees of the U.S. military forces in Japan this morning broke two windows in a loaded school bus as the vehicle was held up by pickets at the gate of an army installation, the army said.

The strikers represents 87,000 members of the security forces workers union and their 48-hour Japan-wide strike is to demand increased severance pay.

Except for the incident of the broken windows, the army said picketing was orderly. The strike began at 6 this morning and is scheduled to last for 48 hours.

Demands for increased severance pay have been rejected by the services. They said they are already paying larger allowances than are given by the Japanese government or private Japanese concerns.

Storm Passes Guam

A tropical storm was discovered 550 miles east-northeast of Guam Sunday. Ens. Cressman of the Fleet Weather Central reported last night. Air Force reconnaissance aircraft have flown missions through the storm, locating it 430 miles east northeast of Guam at 9:45 a.m. yesterday.

Cressman said the storm has been found to be moving westerly at 9 mph and is expected to pass about 225 miles north of Guam at 7 a.m. tomorrow. Naval and Air Force weather reconnaissance aircraft have been instructed to track it, reporting its movement and development.

THE CASE OF MR. CASE

POLITICIANS are supposed to do almost anything to win elections. But that isn't quite so. Now and then a group comes forth which seems less interested in winning than in holding fast to its own particular set of ideas.

The current political situation in New Jersey affords an example.

The Republican candidate for the Senate is Clifford Case. Until he resigned last year, Case had been an able and successful congressman. His re-election several times was proof of his ability to get votes. When he quit, the seat he held was lost to the Democrats.

With his good reputation in the state and in the GOP, he was a logical choice for the 1954 Senate race. His views place him in the liberal wing of his party, but there also reside most successful Senate Republicans from eastern states.

CASE has the endorsement of President Eisenhower and GOP National Chairman Leonard Hall. Even conservative Senator Dirksen of Illinois plans to campaign for him.

But all this is not enough for some Republicans in New Jersey. Extreme right-wingers, they speak of Case's liberalism as if it were something akin to polio.

What they are most angered about, however, is the fact that a few months ago Case forthrightly declared that Senator McCarthy is a "deeply divisive force" in the nation. At the same time he said he would vote to remove McCarthy from his committee chairmanships.

Touched off by this declaration, this small group has since worked avidly to try to sidetrack Case as the GOP nominee, although he already has been formally nominated. The right-wingers want him replaced by a "less liberal" candidate. They predict Case will lose.

IT is impossible not to be puzzled by these tactics. These men are suggesting that the party discard its chosen nominee, a man of proven record and proven vote-getting power, because he audaciously challenged one of their "champions."

These right-wingers have a right to their views. But unless a majority of New Jersey Republicans shares them, the group can hardly expect to control the choice of a senatorial nominee.

Case was selected by the GOP voters in a primary held according to accepted rules. Those who now propose that he be tossed overboard are party irregulars advocating a "rule or ruin" philosophy frowned on by national party leaders. It is these irregulars, not Case, who ought to be asked this time to step aside.

PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—What's left of the old Reconstruction Finance Corporation hopes to file a somewhat final report on its liquidation by the end of August. When that's in, Laurence B. Robbins, the former Chicago banker who is now RFC administrator, can be sworn in as a new assistant secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Robbins has been confirmed for this job by the Senate, but he can't legally take it over till the liquidation report goes to Congress.

It will be several years before RFC will be completely liquidated. It continues in existence as a government corporation. Big government agencies die hard. They can't be washed out clean by a stroke of the pen or even by an act of Congress.

Some of the continuing RFC functions go with Mr. Robbins over to the Treasury. He will be in charge of some $266 million in loans made under the Defense Production act, and of eight loans for a total of $5.6 million, made to local institutions for civil defense.

He will also be administrator of the new Federal Facilities Corp., FFC, organized in the Treasury to handle RFC's tin and rubber properties.

SALE OF THE 27 GOVERNMENT-OWNED synthetic rubber plants is now being negotiated by a special commission appointed by the President. A report on these negotiations must be made to Congress in January and it is expected they will be sold before next June 30.

Authority to operate the government's Texas City, Tex., tin smelter runs to June 30, 1956. Congress is studying the question of whether to sell it or keep it going under government ownership.

Authority to continue operation of the government's abaca plantations in Central America runs until March, 1960. But they will be managed by General Services Administration in the future, instead of by RFC.

Mr. Roberts, as assistant secretary of the Treasury, will continue to liquidate what are left of the old RFC loans to business. A whale of a lot of them have been disposed of since RFC stopped making new loans last September. They then numbered 4648 for a value of $398 million. As of June 30 they numbered 780 valued at $190 million.

THESE ARE THE LOANS at the bottom of the barrel. They are naturally a little harder to get rid of. It may be several years before the government gets its last dollar out of them. But Mr. Robbins believes a lot of them can be sold within a year.

In addition to these business loans, RFC still has about $10 million worth of railroad securities, $31 million worth of preferred stocks and debentures of 10 banks and $32 million worth of public agency bond issues and securities.

So the total of loans and securities not yet disposed of is $263 million. Four other portfolios of former RFC activities have been transferred to other government financial agencies which are still in business and going strong, making new loans under congressional authorizations.

THESE OLD RFC LOANS will be continued by the government until paid off or foreclosed in cases of default and failure:

1. Some 3000 disaster loans valued at $15 million, transferred to the Small Business Administration which has continuing power to make loans in this field.

2. Some 15,000 real estate mortgage loans valued at $60 million, transferred to Housing and Home Finance Agency. Ninety-nine per cent of these loans are Veterans Administration guaranteed.

3. Defense Homes Corp. mortgages, also transferred to HHFA. They cover the government emergency housing projects sold at the end of the war, though the government took back $40 million of the purchase money in the form of the mortgages which it still holds.

IN HOLLYWOOD

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Behind the Screens: "The Moon Is Blue" is still blue to the movie censors and so are the faces of some industry people who have been campaigning for a complete "modernization" of the film censorship code.

The code is slated for some revisions next month but the changes are far from those expected after "The Moon Is Blue" became a box-office hit without an industry seal of approval.

The Motion Picture Association of America board, sticking to its claim that the code is not "antiquated," insists there will be no wholesale easing of the film industry's long-standing set of moral standards.

Only revisions to be approved next month, it is said, will be easing of restrictions on miscegenation, smuggling and narcotics and use, in "good taste," of words like hell and damn.

"The Moon Is Blue" remains on the banned list.

The Hand of Fate

DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, the well-remembered military aide of President Truman, came in for quite a bit of public ribbing by this newsman and others for pulling political wires which were none of his business. He now has a rival in the Eisenhower administration.

In fact, it begins to look as if Vaughan was a piker compared to Ike's chief military man in the White House, Gen. Wilton "Slick" Persons.

Persons recently pulled wires to get his cousin promoted to the rank of rear admiral over 355 other navy captains who were ahead of him. To do this he exerted terrific pressure on Secretary of the Navy Charles Thomas, who was a little reluctant but finally came through.

General Persons' cousin, Capt. Henry S. Persons, graduated from Annapolis in the class of 1929. All other captains promoted this time, except one, were from the class of 1927.

Promotion to the rank of rear admiral is one of the highest honors that comes in the navy. Only 27 men made it this year, and for a lower classman to be jumped over higher-ranking captains, thanks to a powerful friend in the cousin, has really made the navy boiling mad.

Dutifully, however, the navy tried to cover up. At first it issued an official statement that Captain Persons was promoted under section 423 A, which specifies that the secretary of the navy can promote officers who have "special qualifications." But having made this explanation, the navy then took it back by virtually admitting that Capt. Persons had no special qualifications. The secretary of the navy, it was stated, was simply giving incentive to younger officers to work harder.

Note 1—Gen. Persons won the nickname "Slick" in wartime days when he acted as the army's lobbyist with congress. It was his first job to push army legislation through congress, and he did an A-1 job.

Note 2—On the other side of the ledger, Gen. Persons was largely responsible for getting martial law invoked in Phenix City, Ala. The general's brother is governor of Alabama, and it was Gen. Persons who applied so much pressure about crime and vice affecting adjacent military troops that Governor Persons started his cleanup of Phenix City.

18 Killed In East Coast Hurricane

10 Persons Killed As C-124 Crashes Near North Pole

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass., Sept. 13 (AP) — A four-engine U.S. air force transport plane crashed and burned today at Thule in Greenland — 800 miles south of the North Pole —killing 10 of 15 persons aboard, the Atlantic division of the Military Air Transport Service reported.

Maj. Huly Bray, the division's public information officer at this base in Chicopee, said the C-124 Globemaster crashed and burned about a half mile from the Thule base runway while making an emergency landing.

The plane left Thule at 11:36 a.m. (EDT), Bray said, and was aloft 12 minutes when the commander "declared a state of emergency." The plane was returning to Thule when it crashed.

Bray said the plane was on a regularly scheduled flight. It left Westover a few days ago. He did not know immediately what caused the commander to "declare a state of emergency" shortly after it got into the air.

He said it was the first fatal accident in more than 4,000 flights made by Atlantic division of MATS to Thule since the north country airlift started in 1951.

During this period more than 35,000 passengers and 55 million pounds of supplies and mail have been transported, Bray said.

Plane Falls Into Bay; 7 Missing, 19 Saved

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Sept. 12 (AP) — A Brazilian airliner crashed into Rio's scenic Guanabara Bay while it was attempting to return to Santos airport with a crippled engine shortly after takeoff. Airline officials said 19 of the 22 passengers and crew of four aboard were rescued by a launch.

The other seven, all passengers, still were missing.

The plane was headed for Sao Paulo when the crash occurred shortly after noon, Rio time. Fireboats and other rescue vessels went to the scene immediately.

The airline said it believed all aboard were Brizilians.

Sailor Drowns In Rescue Attempt

A Navy shore patrolman lost his life Friday afternoon while attempting to save a fellow serviceman from drowning at Nimitz Beach.

The shore patrolman, Ross W. Yagel, construction driver, third class, USN, was drowned while attempting to rescue Sam R. Zelms, a storekeeper, seaman, USN, a lifeguard on duty at the beach.

Credited with rescuing Zelms was Marine Sgt. J. R. McNair of the Marine Barracks and a member of the Marine Overland Rescue Team.

The tragedy occurred when Zelms and Yagel spotted some floating debris at Nimitz Beach. Zelms, attempting to determine the nature of the debris, swam out in the water and was caught in an undercurrent.

Yagel, hearing Zelm's cry for assistance, rushed out to the floundering lifeguard. Yagel also was caught in the undercurrent.

A third party on the beach called Naval Security, and the Rescue Coordination Center, notified by security, called out the Navy's helicopter and a squad of Marine Overland Rescue Team.

Sgt. MaNair swam out with a buoy to the lifeguard, who was approximately 500 yards from the shore. McNair reached Zelms several minutes before the helicopter arrived on the scene.

The Navy searched the area for Yagel's body Friday night and Saturday without success. Yagel, assigned to the Public Works Center, was the son of Frank J. Yagel, 15 Walnut Ave., Highland Falls, N.Y., and husband of Mrs. Antonia R Yagel of Riviera, Tex.

Zelm is assigned to the Naval Supply Depot.

PORTLAND, Me. Sept. 13 (AP) — Wind-battered, sodden New England counted a death toll of 12 — out of a total of 18 — and millions of dollars damage today in the screaming wake of hurricane Edna, the second such storm to strike in 12 days.

Eight lives were lost in Maine, all drownings in hurricane-churned and swollen rivers and streams.

Four persons perished in Massachusetts, and six highway deaths in metropolitan New York were attributed to the storm.

Coastal areas of southern New England received only a grazing blow with far less apparent property damage than in hurricane Carol which took 68 lives Aug. 31.

Hundreds of New Englanders were left temporarily homeless after being forced to evacuate their dwellings in low-lying areas.

The Canadian provinces also were hit hard as the storm roared out of Maine.

After an aerial survey of Maine's 16 counties, Gov. Burton M. Cross set a damage figure of "well over 7 million dollars.' This was on top of the three dead and 10 million dollar loss from hurricane Carol.

The hurricane wasn't through spreading destruction when it moved out of New England. Slicing across Canada's maritime provinces, Edna ruined more than two-thirds of Nova Scotia's bumper four million dollar apple crop before blowing itself out in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

No fatalities were reported but the gale ripped apart barns, fishing shacks and battered fishing boats. It pounded southern New Brunswick with 90-mile gusts and licked Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

Nova Scotia took the hurricane's worst punch as it stream rollered frist against fishing villages on the southwestern shore and later through the Annapolis Valley's rich orchards in its wild rampage up the province's backbone.

Air Force Can Defend Formosa, Talbott Declares

WASHINGTOI., Sept. 13 (AP) — U.S. Air Force Secretary Harold Talbott said tonight that the U.S. Air Force in the Far East has the power to defend Formosa with the air strength available on "our bastion on Okinawa"

Talbott added, however. that if the Chinese Communist use ad the air power they have, it is unlikely that the Natonalist Chinese will have the power to defend Quemoy. That s the tiny island just off the Chinese coast, which the Red Chinese have been shelling from the mainland

Talbott, interviewed on a television program, said that while "we will defend Formosa," he knows of no air force order, similar to that for the Navy. to protect Formosa.

Nixon Says World Heart Specialists Set Example For Saving Human Lives

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—U.S. Vice President Richard Nixon told an international conference of heart specialists today that their life saving efforts can give statesmen "an example we can follow so we can work better to remove another cause from which men prematurely die—war."

He addressed the opening general session of the second world congress on cariology a short time before leaving by plane for a special meeting of the national security council with President Eisenhower in Denver.

Dr. Paul D. White of Boston, President of the congress, urged in another address that the doctor's study, teach and practice "from the heart as well as on the heart" as an air toward promoting world peace.

Advances already made in the international exchange of information about heart ailments, Dr. White said, put the specialists in a strong position to help promote world cooperation in "every walk of life."

The six-day congress is expecced to attract more than 2,000 exper's on diseases of the heart and vessels from the United States and 47 foriegn countrics. including Russia, before the session closes Friday.

Nixon said heart disease has accounted for six of the eight deaths that have occurred in the U.S. Senate in the past 18 months, including three senators "in their fifties."

But Nixon declared a "dramatic" example of the progress that has been made "in dealing with the No. 1 killer of all mankind" in the past 20 years lies in the fact that one of the men to accompany him to Denver is a member of President Eisenhower's staff who was stricken with a heart attack last January and now "is as good as new as far as any of us can tell."

Nixon said that if the President were at the heart congress meeting in person "he would in his inimitable, personal way thank you for the work you are doing."

Soviet Naval Strength Growing But Has Big Obstacles Yet To Overcome

BY TOM WHITNEY
Associated Press Foreign Staff Writer

A number of distinguished American naval leaders have warned in recent months against rapidly mounting Soviet naval strength.

They have described Soviet fleet power as second only to that of the United States and a potenial menace to the security of vital supply lines.

Among those who have spoken out are such distinguished figures as Navy Secretary Robert B. Anderson, Adm. Arthur W. Radford, head of he joint chiefs of staff and Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations.

But of all the recent declarations on this subject perhaps the strongest war made by Adm. Jerauld Wright, commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organizaion's naval forces. Adm. Wright declared that:

Soviet shipyards are "working around the clock" in a drive to challenge western control of the seas.

NONE IN MOTHBALLS

Soviet submarine strength already exceeds the strength of any three NATO countries.

The Soviet fleet of high speed cruisers on active duty is larger than that of any western country, including the United States.

The Soviet Navy is manned to strength and ready to go.

"None of their ships are in mothballs." declared Adm. Wright.

In Tokyo the commander of U.S. naval forces in the Far East, Vice Adm. William Callaghan, declared recently that the nearly 100 Soviet submarines estimated to be in the Far East would be a menace to American lines of communication.

Britain, whose world naval supremacy was surpassed by the United States during World War II, recently stressed the rapidly growing might of the Russian navy.

Within the next two or three years, the admiralty forecast, the Soviet Union will have a force of 30 cruisers, 150 destroyers, 500 submarines and at least 4,000 naval aircraft.

These appraisals leave no doubt that the U.S. naval leadership and the British admiralty are concerned over steady expansion of Soviet naval power.

The Soviet Navy has been shrouded in mystery for years. During 1953 and 1954, however, the Kremlin lifted a corner of the veil. In 1953 a Soviet cruiser, the Sverdlov, visited England in connection with coronation ceremonies. In 1954 Soviet naval squadrons (including fast cruisers and destroyers) visited Finland and Sweden. In Stockholm interestingly enough, the public was even allowed aboard. Foreign observers who saw these Soviet fleet units were impressed.

THE BIG QUESTION

The big question still unanswered in Soviet naval strength, however, is submarines. It is thought the Soviet submarine fleet is the most powerful in the world — more powerful even than Hitler's with which the Nazis did so much damage in World War II.

It is known the Russians succeeded in capturing or getting from the allies a fair number of the most advanced German submarines or their hulls, including some high speed craft which had tremendous potentials. It is thought the Russians have developed these designs further.

This suggests potent offensive power for the Soviet fleet in the event of war.

However, awareness of the Red naval effort should not be permitted to obscure some of the hard facts which the Kremlin has to face in its efforts to become a big sea power.

What the Soviet Union needs is a "four-ocean navy" in order to express fully its might and even then, its range and activities are restricted by hard geographical facts.

There are four Soviet fleets for as many different seas: the Black Sea fleet, the Baltic Sea fleet, the Northern fleet and the Pacific fleet.

Each of these fleets is separated from each other. The transfer in wartime of vessels from one to another would be very difficult. Some smaller craft can move through river and canal systems in European Russia between the Black, Baltic and northern fleets. Even large vessels can theoretically be transferred from the northern fleet to the Pacific and back via the long arduous, ice-infested northern sea route over the roof of Asia, but the journey takes several months and there is always danger that a ship will have to winter in polar ice.

Two of the four Soviet fleets are in waters from which access to the open sea is through narrow straits. The Black Sea fleet can get into the Mediterranean only through the Dardanelles and Bosporus Straits controlled by Turkey. The Baltic fleet cannot pass into the North Sea and the Atlantic except through the Kattegat and Skagerak Straits between Denmark, Sweden and Norway. Turkey, Norway and Denmark are all NATO members.

The two Soviet fleets which do have access to open seas — the Northern and the Pacific — are not ideally situated. Both are too far from the major shipping lanes.

SEVERE LIMITATIONS

Study of the Soviet naval vessels indicates severe limitations in long-distance hitting power. In the first place, the Russians apparently have no aircraft carriers. None at any rate are listed in service by the authoritative naval manual, "Jane's All the World's Ships."

The three Russian battleships in service are very ancient — dating from before the Red revolution. Of other Red ships there are a considerable number from the Italian, German and Japanese navies (given to the Russians by the allies for the most part). The varied nature of the structure of these ships must make for difficulty in repair and maintenance. In addition, some are obsolete.

Many units in the Soviet destroyer and frigate fleet (which is rather large) are quite small vessels.

Of the Soviet submarine fleet, nearly one-half were designed only for coast defense.

HOTEL LAUNCHING—What appears to be the launching of an old-time river boat is actually the christening of the Showboat Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev. Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Squires, oldest residents of the resort, are shown preparing to smash a bottle of champagne at the opening. The facade of the hotel, which is a replica of a Mississippi River steamboat, juts out into a large swimming pool.

Magsaysay Calms War Fears In PI

MANILA, SEPT. 13 (AP) — President Ramon Magsaysay yesterdy hit out at Communist war mongers and declared "there is less danger of war today than there has been for many months."

The president issued a statement following reports from the provinces that war rumors were causing panic and confusion among the people.

Magsaysay assured the nation the danger of war was diminishing as a result of the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty and Pacific Charter signed by eight nations earlier this week.

Magsaysay said "wild rumors of war being circulated are causing fear and confusion among our people. These rumors, obviously, are false and malicious. They must be stopped.

"Thanks to our new defense pact, there is less danger of war today than there has been for many months," Magsaysay said.

"World communism did not like the conference which took place here last week. They knew the results would make their aggression more difficult, in an effort to turn us from our purpose they tried different ways to frighten the free world.

"Near Japan, Russian planes attacked an American plane. Near Formosa, Red China's artillery shelled a Nationalist island. In our own provinces, Communists agents started rumors designed to frighten our people and disrupt our daily lives. All of these incidents were part of a big pattern of Communist coercion."

Ticonderoga, Fit For Atomic Age, Out Of Mothballs

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP) — The Essex-class carrier Ticonderoga was recommissioned today after 2½ years of preparing her for the atomic age.

The United States is "in peril" now, even as in wartime, Rear Adm. Apollo Soucek, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, told some 5,000 guests, officers and crew members packed into the ship's flag-decorated 800-foot hangar deck in the New York shipyard in Brooklyn.

Rear Adm. Roscoe H. Hillenkoetter, commandant of the Third U.S. Naval District, in turning the ship over to her new commanding officer, Capt. William A. Schoech of Blakessburg, Iowa, referred to the enormous task of modernziation begun in April, 1952.

Adm. Hillenkoetter said war lessons and new developments have been incorporated in the modernized hull and equipment.

Now displacing 40,000 tons fully loaded, compared to the 33,000 tons when she was first commissioned in 1944, the Ticonderoga has a new look in flight decks — an angling runway jutting out from her side — plus heavier catapults, new elevators and extensive changes to her hull.

The angled runway allows take-offs and landings at the same time, and avoids crashes against the central island by planes out of control.

Every new wrinkle and device the navy could think of, except an atomic power plant, went into the modernization, a navy spokesman said.

Her strengthened flight decks will handle the latest jet fighters, some of which can carry the atomic bomb with ease.

The Ticonderoga, named after the revolutionary-days fort in upper New York state, is the fourth naval vessel to bear that name. She was commissioned in 1944, and shot down 300 planes and sank 15 Japanese naval vessels during Pacific engagements.

In the three-day battle of the Philippine Sea, where she was a part of famous Task Force 58, eight of her fighter planes shot down 20 of 28 enemy planes.

She was ordered into mothballs as part of the Pacific Reserve Fleet in March, 1946.

Prayers For Christians Behind Iron Curtain

VIENNA, Austria, Sept. 13 (AP)—Thousands of Austrians, among them Chancellor Julius Raab, tonight knelt on Vienna's huge Helden-Platz Square in prayer for Christians persecuted behind the Communist Iron Curtain.

After the open-air mass, torchlight bearing young Catholics marched through downtown Vienna in a procession sponsored by the Vienna Archdiocese as a crusade for peace and freedom.

In front of the city's Gothic votive church, Austrian Cardinal Theodor Innitzer called on the Catholics to "unite in prayer and in action to defeat the invasion by the enemies of God."

First Relief Shipment For Austria Underway

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—U.S. state department officials said today the first relief shipment for Austria under President Eisenhower's flood relief program for eastern Europe will leave Philadelphia today aboard the USS Neptune.

State department informants said there was no cargo aboard the vessel for east Germany. The shipment for Austria was described as feed corn.

The Foreign Operations Administration is handling the shipment.

The Austrian embassy said 25,000 tons of corn had been allotted to Austria in the relief program.

U.S. Unemployment Decrease Predicted . . .

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 13 (AP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said today unemployment should decrease soon.

The Eisenhower cabinet member, in an interview, said employment in the U.S. now stands at 62 million with 3,300,000 unemployed. He added:

"We have gone through the mildest contraction of the economy that we ever had in a post war period. Economists have told me that unemployment should decrease this fall. I see a levelling off, then an upturn."

One of the most hopeful signs in the nation's economy, Mitchell said, is that 36 billion dollars, two billion more than in 1953, is expected to be spent this year in the construction industry.

SEATO Violates Geneva Agreement, Pravda Charges

LONDON, Sept. 13 (AP)—Pravda, official paper of the Russian communist party, charged today that the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty "flagrantly violates" the Geneva agreement which ended the Indo-China war.

The editorial broadcast by Moscow Radio denounced the protocol to the treaty signed in Manila Thursday that extended a "mantle of protection" to Laos, Cambodia and southern Viet Nam.

Under the Geneva agreement Pravda said, "the government of Cambodia and Laos pledged not to adhere to any agreement with any other country if this involved joining a military alliance or commitments to allow the setting up of military bases on their territory."

The paper said the protocol to the treaty "reveals that the pacts sponsors wish to incorporate Laos, Cambodia and south Viet Nam in their aggressive orbit."

Commenting on the line taken by Pravda, British officials said the protocol guaranteeing the three pro-western Indo-Chinese states does not violate the Geneva agreement.

These officials said the members of the Southeast Asian security pact may extend their protection to the three states.

Leading Americans Write On Vital Issues In Guide To Politics Book

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—In a book designed to guide the independent voter in the November elections, Prof. Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., said today the "frenzy for absolute security" against internal subversion has weakened the U. S. government at home and abroad.

Schlesinger, co-chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) and Pulitzer prize-winning professor of history at Harvard University, said a "basic fallacy" in the U. S. security system was disclosed in the majority decision in the Oppenheimer case: that there is such a thing as "absolute or total security."

"The frenzy for absolute security," he wrote, "has already weakend our government by driving out independent-minded and inquiring public servants and placing a premium on yes-men, eunuchs and dimwits.

"It has imposed an atmosphere of caution and concern in our intellectual life. It has conjured into existence a rabble of snoopers and busy-bodies, determined to inspect and censor the activities and even the thoughts of their neighbors.

"It has invited Americans to spy on fellow Americans. It has shaken the faith of other free nations in our common sense and maturity. It has gone far to create, both among ourselves and in the free world, an atmosphere of mutual fear and distrust which, in the end, can benefit no one more than it does the Communists themselves."

Schlesinger said the coming congressional elections may well determine whether this country "succumbs further to this kind of frenzy, or whether there will be an opportunity in a saner atmosphere to work out policies placing both national security and individual freedom on a "strong and stable basis."

OPPENHEIMER CASE

The Harvard professor said the case of J. Robert Oppenheimer, atomic scientist whose security clearance for secret government data was suspended and his reinstatement later refused by a 4-1 Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) decision, suggests the need for a basic overhauling of the existing system in the "true interests of national security."

The AEC, while upholding a special panel ruling against Oppenheimer, expressed confidence in the scientist's loyalty.

The "Guide To Politics 1954," as the book out today is called, was edited by Schlesinger and Quincy Howe, author and commentator. It was prepared under the auspices of the ADA, an organization founded in 1947 to espouse the cause of "new deal" principles.

The book contains chapters on 14 subjects by 14 "prominent American Liberals," including Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

One writer calls for a tax cut of four to five billion dollars for middle and low income families; another claims the administration tax program benefits corporations and higher income individuals almost exclusively.

The book has an introduction by Democratic Mayor Joseph S. Clark of Philadelphia who says a "Liberal rally" is under way. He adds that if independent voters consider objectively the problems discussed by the books authors, there is reason to believe the rally will "recapture the citadels of national power lost to the Conservatives in November of 1952."

It ends with a scorecard of voting records of senators and representatives on a list of measures involving what the ADA calls "liberal policies." And there is exhaustive advice on how to conduct a campaign.

McCARTHYISM

Both Mayor Clark and James E. Doyle, Wisconsin Democrat and ADA co-chairman, slap at Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), with Doyle devoting a whole chapter to "McCarthyism." Doyle, a former Democratic national committeeman, is a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Wisconsin in next Tuesday's primary.

Clark, discussing the recent Army-McCarthy hearings, said: "Regardless of the report from the senate subcommittee on government operations, there can be little doubt that McCarthyism is seriously discredited."

Doyle said "McCarthyism, both the ism and the man, will be an issue in the 1954 congressional campaigns, "even though, Doyle added, he personally believes the senator is "headed for the skid row of politics."

He predicted McCarthy, the ism, would be an issue "because some candidates, who have no legitimate issues of their own, will not resist the temptation to use Sen. McCarthy's political techniques against their opponents."

FOREIGN POLICY

W. Averell Harriman, former mutual security director and ambassador to Russia, devoted a chapter in the book to "the U. S. and her Allies." He said the Eisenhower administration must decide "whether it wants to unite the Republican party or to unite the free world. The experience of the last year and a half has shown that it cannot do both."

Chester Bowles, former ambassador to India, discussing "the U.S. and Asia," said the real issue for 1954 "is not how China was lost, but how the other two-thirds of Asia can be kept free and made strong." Not as charity but as an act of simple justice, he said, the U.S. should provide non-military grants and loans now to help free Asians build a better future.

"Learning our lesson from China," Bowles continued, "we should throw our full weight on the side of land reform—Asia's most pressing need. If Chiang had carried out the kind of reforms on the mainland of China that he is now doing on Formosa he might never have lost the support of the Chinese people."

Mrs. Roosevelt answered a series of criticisms of the United Nations, where she once served in the general assembly. She said the most important criticism—and the one most difficult to answer—is that the U. N. has "failed because it hasn't kept the peace."

She said in a sense this criticism is justified—look at the 140,000 American casualties in Korea. But she added people must understand the U. N. is only a "mechanism" which its members can use, if they wish, to iron out differences without resorting to war.

"One of the most painful lessons we have to learn," she wrote, "is to adapt ourselves to the kind of war which ends without total victory for either side but for a principle—that of collective action against aggression."

Other chapters in the book, published by the Dial Press of New York, were written by Sens. Morse (Ind.-Ore.), Murray (D-Mont.) Lehman (D-N.Y.), and Humphrey (D-Minn.); economists Leon H. Keyserling and Robert R. Nathan; and Rep. Holifield (D-Calif.).

MOSCOW, Sept. 13 (AP) — Izvestia said today Asians regard the new southeast Asia defense treaty as "a design against peace." Scientists Submit Study On Emotional Response Of Dogs

ROME, Sept. 13 (AP) —Five hundred scientists from 70 nations were told what almost every dog owner knew all along:

Most dogs will mind — but some mind better than others,"

Here are the results of some tests:

The owner of trainer holds out his hand and speaks gently to five different breeds of puppies up to four months old. There is almost no measure change in heartbeat rate, taken as a measure of emotion. Let him do it with the same five breeds over a year old and the reaction changes up to 20 degrees.

That is supposed to mean the dog over a year old has learned emotional response to his master.

Now take five breeds of dog and three kinds of tests:

Learning to answer a signal for a reward of food (highest grade 1, lowest grade 5): African Basenji, 4; Beagle, 1; Spaniel, 31; Terrier, 2.

Learning to walk on a leash: African Basenji, 4; Beagle, 3; Spaniel, 2; Terrier, 1.

Finding his way to food on an elevated structure: African Basenji, 3; Beagle, 2; Spaniel, 1; Terrier, 4.

The scientists were warned not to draw too great conclusion from all that. J. P. Scott and J. L. Fuller of the Jackson memorial laboratary of Bar Harbor, Me., presented the report at the United Nations population conference only to show that other mammals, like man, may have a relation between training environment and intelligence capacity.

The papers said that if this step is taken Washington will have a chance to negotiate with the Arab states for a stable settlement of the Palestine question and the establishment of a Middle East defense program.

Air Force Is Setting Record Safe-Flying Rate Despite Headline-Making Crashes of Giant B-36

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA)— The U. S. Air Force is setting an all-time record for safe flying this year.

This is despite an apparent rash of recent accidents, climaxed by the crashes of two giant B-36 bombers which killed 28 men.

Detailed figures on crashes are one of the Air Force's most closely guarded secrets because they give a revealing insight into the number of its operations and the state of efficiency.

Thus, the Air Force only reveals a rate figure. It is based on the number of major accidents per 100,000 hours of flying.

The new, all-Air Force record rate is 21 for this year.

In 1922, flying in the old Army Air Corps reached its most hazardous point with an average of 506 major accidents for every 100,000 hours flown.

In 1941 the rate was 63. There are no figures from the war years, but in 1946 it was 61. And it has been going down steadily ever since. Combat accidents are not included in this safety rate.

An accident is considered "major" if the plane is demolished or if more than a certain number of hours are required to repair it. In the case of a B-36, for instance, an accident is "major" if more than 750 man-hours are required to fix it for flying.

The controversial B-36 has been called a flying turkey by critics. But it has been developed into at least a safe airplane. Its accident rate was 16 in 1952, 10 last year, and is running the same now. The total number of announced crashes has been 15, with 158 men killed.

Its rate is only slightly above that of the B-50—eight in 1952 and 11 last year. The B-29 Superforts set a safety record for all bombers last year with a rate of six, which is being maintained as the planes are being phased out of use.

Much of the credit for the improving safety of Air Force flying goes to the extensive program carried on under Maj. Gen. Victor E. Bertrandias, deputy inspector general, with headquarters at Norton Air Force Base, Calif.

AIR FORCE CAMPAIGN FOR SAFETY starts on the field, where elaborate precautions are set up to prevent fire during refueling of this B-45 or accidents from getting too close to air intake.

The safety program under him touches everything from telling pilots how to breathe through their oxygen masks to showing mechanics how to tighten nuts with the proper amount of pressure. It even goes into aircraft design.

As a result everyone in the Air Force working on problems of design, training and operations have become acutely safety-conscious.

Introduction of a new type plane into operational use always means a high accident rate for it until the bugs are removed. For instance, the B-47 jet bomber had an accident rate of 76 in 1952 as it was being turned over to AF groups. But last year the rate was down to 26 and this year it is running 14.

Contrary to popular belief, the jets with their tremendous speeds have not increased the AF's accident rate. But many AF safety experts are concerned lest the new line of supersonic fighters coming up could begin straining the capabilities of the pilots.

Last year the accident rate of the jet fighters was 56. That is lower than it ever was for the old prop fighter planes.

Training operations have always produced a high accident rate, but the current jet training program has a rate of only 33 major accidents per 100,000 hours of flying. This is a record low.

CONTROVERSIAL B-36 made headlines with crashes that left wreckage like this, but all-Air Force safety record is best ever.

There is no basis for comparing the safety record of the Air Force with that of the commercial lines. Civil Aeronautics Board keeps safety statistics on the basis of miles, not hours. And safety is actually a secondary consideration of the Air Force. The need to fulfill specific missions comes first.

Pentagon safety experts believe that because of varied missions which must be performed by the Air Force, somewhere between 12 and 16 is just about the irreducible minimum safety rate that can be established.

She's Tall, Tanned And Almond-Eyed, New Miss America

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Sept. 13 (AP) — She's tall, she's tanned, and she was the new Dior "flat" look "came just in time to save me."

Lee Ann Meriwether, 19-year-old almond-eyed beauty from California, had breakfast with newsmen today on the first morning of her reign as Miss America 1955.

The San Francisco College coed was crowned the nation's new beauty at the climax of the Miss America pageant here yesterday night.

A warm, friendly brunette with sparkling blue-green eyes, Lee admitted she was not the chesty Marilyn Monroe type. Lee's bust measures 34½ inches.

Her own wardrobe isn't up to date as yet. Sunday she wore a low-cut off the shoulder dress with a red and green floral print. Her shoes were pink.

Lee was modest about her figure. But the Miss America judges thought she was a knockout in a swim suit. Her waist measures 22 inches and her hips 35. She is 5 feet 8½ tall and weighs 124.

Her acting ability also won the judges favor. And acting—on the stage or in television — is her life's ambition.

Lee said she first decided to be an actress when she was nine years old.

"I played the role of Pricilla Alden in a school play when I was nine," she said.

Born in Los Angeles, Lee later lived in Arizona for several years. Her family moved back to California and she has lived in San Francisco for the past seven years.

There was an element of sadness in her triumph last night. Her father, Greg Meriwether, died last July 15. Only her mother, Mrs. Ethel Meriwether, was with her last night to share the exciting moment when Lee became Miss America.

"I hope he knows," Lee said tearfully when she heard she had won.

"He wanted me to go to Stanford and be an actress," she said.

But her father, an office employee for a chemical firm ,didn't have enough money for Stanford.

So Lee went to the City College of San Francisco because "it was the cheapest."

Lee doesn't have to worry about money now. As Miss America, she'll receive about $40,000 in public appearance fees in addition to a new car, furs, jewelry, a wardrobe and other prizes.

The total value of everything she won is close to $60,000.

The suntanned beauty from the sunshine state said she hopes to return to college when her year as Miss America ends next September. Then she wants to attend the Pasadena Playhouse, a California drama school.

As for boyfriends, Lee said, "There's no one special."

Late yesterday the new Miss America was to leave by auto for a two-week visit in New York. She'll stay in a suite at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

After that comes a 15-day trip to South America.

But her only worry at the moment had to do with orange juice. Part of her contract calls for television commercials plugging Florida citrus products.

"Can you imagine me selling Florida orange juice?" the California beauty asked.

Russians Have Civil Defense, Too!

BY TOM WHITNEY
AP Foreign Staff

The leading Soviet paper has announced the USSR is carrying out a nationwide program for training the entire population of the country in air raid precautions.

Pravda, in a front-page editorial, discussed the activities of the mass-membership Soviet civil defense organization known as DOSAAF — from the initials of the Russian words for "voluntary society for assistance to the army, aviation and navy."

Declared the editorial: "The preparation of the entire population for up-to-date air raid and chemical-warfare defense . . . must be given priority."

This is the first indication that the Soviet government is undertaking a public nationwide campaign for air raid training. Up till a year ago inside Russia, certain air raid precautions were being undertaken — but only on a secret and semi-secret basis. For instance, in Moscow certain apartment houses — though the tenants did not know it — had shelter areas designated.

But apparently the Soviet government was afraid to undertake open and public air raid training. It seems likely it was considered it would frighten the population unduly and perhaps also interfere with the Soviet "peace" campaign abroad.

Now, presumably the Soviet government has decided the problem is sufficiently urgent that these concentrations have to be thrown to the winds.

DOSSAF, the organization in charge of the preparations, is being given a buildup this autumn to enable it to do this job better.

Though it maintains the facade of being a "voluntary organization," DOSAAF is as much a branch of the Soviet government as the air force or the army. It is headed by generals of the army and air force and admirals of the navy who retain their rank and are on active service while they hold these jobs.

Membership in it is nominally voluntary, but there is a good deal of pressure on workers to join, the chief appeal being to patriotism. It has many, many million members. The exact figure is a secret. DOSAFF's finances are also a secret but it is obvious the government subsidizes it.

Dulles Reports On Far East Issues; Global Issues Up At Top Level Meet

to attack it.

"The defense of Quemoy is primarily related to the defense of Formosa and it is being considered and studied in that light," the secretary replied.

He refused several times, however, to say specifically whether the Seventh Fleet has been given orders to defend Quemoy as part of the general plan to protect Formosa.

Dulles declared that to disclose the fleet's orders with respect to Quemoy would not be in the national interest.

He added that it is primarily up to America's military chiefs to decide and recommend whether effective protection of Formosa requires U.S. defense of Quemoy.

He added, in response to a question, that very issue could come up for discussion and decision at the national security council meeting later in the day.

That meeting brought from Washington such top U.S. officials as Vice President Nixon, Secretary of Defense Wilson, and Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

At his news conference, Dulles was asked whether the United States has any plan to try to retake Formosa if that island bastion should fall to the Communists.

He replied he would be "very much surprised" if such a plan exists, because he feels there is no danger Formosa will fall.

Then he went on to say he is convinced "it is not possible for the Chinese Communists to take Formosa because of such opposition as we would interpose."

Eisenhower said recently that any Red assault against Formosa would have to run over the U.S. 7th Fleet.

HOME FRONT

Shortly before conferring with Dulles, the President met with FBI Chief Hoover and Brownell on how best to use the new home front anti-communist legal weapons provided by the 83rd congress.

After the session, Brownell and Hoover told a news conference that the aim of the Eisenhower administration is to "utterly destroy the Communist party" and its activities in the United States.

At that news conference, Brownell and Hoover also:

1. Announced there already has been a "substantial step-up" in the drive to root out communists and subversives generally at home.

2. Reported there already has been specific progress in that direction under a new law which grants immunity from prosecution to witnesses under certain circumstances. Hoover said the FBI already has been approached by communists willing to testify about the activities of former fellow conspirators.

3. Said that at present there are only about 25,000 Communist party members in the U.S. the FBI director called that the lowest number "in years," but cautioned that the Communists have adopted "vigorous security measure" to screen out from their ranks any undercover FBI agents, as well as disloyal party members.

Most of the questioning of Dulles at his news conference dealt with the tense situation with respect to the Chinese Communists' shell-fire attacks on Quemoy, and what U.S. policy will be on defense of Nationalist islands generally — in addition to Formosa.

Repeatedly, Dulles said American policy on Quemoy will be based on what he called "in the first instance" the recommendations of U.S. military chiefs.

Asked whether those recommendations would come before the security council at its meeting later in the day, and be acted upon at that session, Dulles said it certainly was a possibility that the matter would come up for a decision.

7TH FLEET ORDER

Noting that the U.S. 7th Fleet has orders to defend Formosa, a newsman asked Dulles whether those orders were broad enough to require the fleet to come to the aid of Quemoy.

"I cannot say," the secretary replied. "I cannot give here details of the order to 7th Fleet. That obviously would not be in the national interest."

At another point, Dulles was asked specifically whether he believes the United States should help defend Quemoy against Red assault.

Dulles replied that he wanted to repeat what he had said at a recent news conference in Washington—that U.S. basic policy under both the Truman and Eisenhower administrations—is to defend Formosa.

Then he went on to say that what needs to be done for effective defense of Formosa "is a matter primarily for the military to recommend in the first instance."

A bit later, in response to another question, Dulles said it did not necessarily follow that the advance and recommendations of the military men would be adhered to.

With respect to his talk with Nationalist Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek on Formosa last week, Dulles described the conference "as very significant" but said it did not go into any great detail.

"No commitments were sought (by Chiang) and none were given," Dulles declared.

Asked what information he had about the build-up of Communist forces on the mainland opposite Quemoy, Dulles replied that there apparently are "considerable forces" around Amoy but he added the best information available to him indicated that the force was "not very spectacular."

Dulles said he had "no opinion" as to whether a Red invasion of Quemoy might be imminent. He called that a matter for the military men to determine.

The secretary also was asked whether the military has any plan to recapture Formosa if it should fall to the Communists. He replied he would be "very much surprised" if such a plan exists because he feels Formosa is not going to fall to the Communists.

Then he said he is convinced it is "not possible for the Chinese Communists" to conquer Formosa because of "such opposition as we would interpose."

At another point Dulles was asked whether he personally saw any special diplomatic reasons — apart from military considerations —as to why the United States should help defend Quemoy.

He replied the defense of Quemoy "is primarily related to the defense of Formosa," and that the whole matter is being considered in that light.

SINAJANA WINS 4-1 TO TAKE HNS TITLE

By DANIEL L. TYDINGCO

Sinajana captured the 1954 Holy Name Society Softball League championship trophy by downing the Asan nine 4-1 Sunday at Agana Heights Field before approximately 1,000 fans.

Managed by Joaquin Manibusan, the Sinajana team garnered a run in the first frame when Cecilio Sablan singled and scored on Angel Tuncap's three bagger to right field.

In the second inning, Sinajana increased their lead when Sablan smashed a triple to left field to drive in two runs. Another run came in on an error by Asan left fielder, Dave Jesus.

Asan was held scoreless for five innings but Sinajana failed to shut them out as Ben Taijeron slammed a homer into center field in the sixth inning for Asan's lone run.

Outhitting the Asan nine, Sinajana scattered 11 hits while the losers only had two. Asan's other hit was a single by Tommy Shimizu.

Winning pitcher Ignacio (Red Hot) Pereda allowed two hits, walked three, and struck one. Losing pitcher Tommy Shimizu issued 11 hits, walked five and struck two.

Sinajana took the first game play off, 3-2, then Asan evened it with a 10-3 victory in the second game.

Highlighting the event was the presentation of the championship trophy to the winning team by Holy Name Sports Director Joaquin Santos immediately after the game. Asan received a Good Sportmanship trophy. The trophies were donated by Frank D. Perez and Bros.

POLICE NOTES

BURGLARS ADD ANOTHER NOTCH — Joe's gas station in Anigua was burglarized early Sunday morning and about $69 in cash stolen from a cash register.

The burglary, timed at between 5:30 and 6, reportedly was committed while two station attendants were fast asleep in a pick-up truck 10 feet away.

One of the attendants told police he was awakened by the cash register when it rang in the office. They youth said he jumped up and ran into the office only to find the till already emptied of its contents. The thieves were nowhere in sight, he stated.

Police said the burglars gained entry by forcing a rear door with a tire wrench.

ASSAULTED — Mrs. Elenita C. Spence, a waitress at a Barrigada cafe, filed battery charges Sunday against Dick Hoggat of Andersen Air Force base.

The charges were filed a few minutes after the airman allegedly struck the woman on the face.

The waitress said Hoggat tried to force her out of a car she was going to ride home after securing for the night. She said that during the scuffle her dress was torn open.

She was treated for bruises on the face at Guam Memorial hospital.

Andersen authorities have been notified.

Making Friends is Our Business

Recently we announced that Anheuser-Busch had set a new world record in 1953 . . . with sales of Ludweiser and Michelob substantially greater than the sales ever made in any year . . . by any other brewer . . . anywhere in the world.

We've thought a lot about that record. We're proud of it, of course. But, even more than the sales leadership itself, we value what it means. It means we can have even stronger faith in producing Budweiser and Michelob by the costliest brewing process on Earth. It means that America's good taste continues to demand the very highest quality. It means this record belongs to you as much as it does to us.

And it belongs to the retailers who serve you. Throughout our more-than-100-year history, we have valued the friendship of these businessmen who are partners on the Budweiser team. Now, more than ever, we appreciate their confidence.

Although sales leadership is nothing new to Anheuser-Busch, we promise to continue to merit your good will on the basis of the unmatched quality of Budweiser and Michelob, and by always remembering that "MAKING FRIENDS IS OUR BUSINESS".

STRUTTING—Rocky Marciano puts the lie on claims he isn't a Fancy Dan via some smart mambo steps at his Grossinger, N.Y., training base. Trainer Charley Goldman holds phonograph. (NEA)

Rocky Puts Him to Work

GROSSINGER, N.Y.—(NEA)—A fellow by the name of Robert Beauregard Brumby insists that he is the hardest worker in the training camp set up for Rocky Marciano's title defense against Ezzard Charles, Sept. 15.

Brumby's job is to ballyhoo the Marciano training, with an eye on getting enough newspaper space to bring in a full house at the Yankee Stadium on fight night.

So, the day Rocky opened training, Brumby rubbed his hands together and sat down with Rocky. He fired a few leading questions at the champ, hoping to draw some words of anger from Rocky—the kind of statements which the papers would use.

"Aren't you mad at Al Weill, your manager?" Brumby asked. "And I guess you're all out of shape and need a lot of work or you'll lose your title for sure."

As Brumby fired away, Marciano delicately attacked a steak.

"Not a thing wrong, anyplace," Rocky replied. "I'm in fine shape right now. I'm not mad at anybody. Even my wind is great. I just don't see what I can say except that I'm feeling great all-around."

"Well, then," Brumby replied, "I guess that eye of yours is the big worry. The one Charles cut last time—I guess you're worried it will open up again."

Marciano felt the skin above his left eye and shook his head again. "Doctor says you couldn't open this up again with a baseball bat.

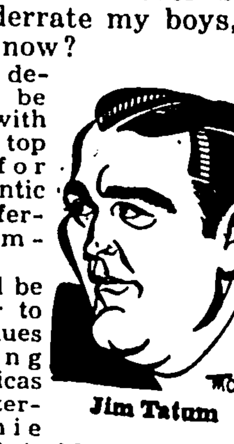
"You know," Rocky continued, "it looks as if you are going to have to really go to work this time."

Brumby, who has made a name for himself in boxing circles as a man who has gone through life without ever working a day, was left shaken.

When he's asked how many rounds Rocky worked on a particular day, the press agent replies with a snort: "Never mind him. I'm the guy who has to work up here. Why don't you ask me what I've done?"

By JIM TATUM
Head Coach, Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — (NEA)—I've never been one to underrate my boys, so why start now?



Jim Tatum

Maryland deserves to be bracketed with Duke as a top contender for the Atlantic Coast Conference championship.

This could be a good year to sing the blues after losing All - Americas like quarterback Bernie Faloney and tackles Stan Jones and Blubber Morgan and ace backs Chet Hanulak and Ralph Felton. But our returning fullback, Dick Bielski, could be the best in the country.

We should have one of the finest middles of any line in center John Irvine and guards George Palahunik and Jack Bowersox. End Bill Walker, a soph phenomenon, looks even better. Ronnie Waller and Joe Horning can do the job at halfback, behind Charley Boxold at quarterback.

Duke's prospects are ultra-bright. Jerry Barger comes back to pilot the split-T, leaving Worth Lutz free to move to fullback. Tackles Jesse James Birchfield and Doug Knotts are rugged. The Blue Devils have sophs coming up from what they say is the school's greatest freshman squad.

Despite the loss of its great aerial combination, Johnny Gramling to Clyde Bennett, South Carolina has the stuff to be the great surprise in our area.

Guard Frank Mincevich and center Leon Cunningham are the sparkplugs of a tough, bulky line. Bill Wohrman at full and halfbacks Mike Caskey and Carl Brazell can run behind it. With Harold Lewis not quite the passer Gramling was, the Gamecocks will stick more to the ground.

North Carolina could develop with a host of veteran returnees, including three quarterbacks and a raft of fleet halfbacks. At Clemson, down for a couple of seasons, the story seems to be Don King, an amazingly accomplished split-T quarterback. A good crop of newcomers is expected to provide depth.

Virginia, after its worst season, will try to come back with a line two-deep in lettermen expect at guard. Wake Forest's big boy is tackle Bob Bartholomew. The Deacons have a pass-minded quarterback in Joe White.

North Carolina State, with a new coach and system, is a big mystery, but the Wolfpack has talented kids in quarterback Eddie West and guard Al D'Angelo.

Indians Sweep Pair

Stop Yanks Twice, 4-1, 3-2; Games Set Major League Attendance Mark

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP)—Cleveland's rampaging Indians all but ended the New York Yankees' dynasty Sunday.

Al Lopez' inspired warriors overwhelmed the Yankees in both ends of a crucial doubleheader 4-1 and 3-2 to stretch their American League lead to 8½ games over the weary defending champions. A crowd of 86,563, largest ever to see a baseball game, saw the Yankee humiliation. Of these, 84,587 paid to set record for a regular season game.

An Oct 10, 1948 world series game in Cleveland drew 86,288, all paid That was more than the paid gate Sunday but less than the total attendance.

Only by a major miracle can the Yankees gain their sixth straight flag. Even if the Yankees win all their remaining 11 games, all Cleveland has to do is win only three of its 10 and the Indians will have their first flag in six years.

The National League pennant race, however, remained very much in doubt as the league leading New York Giants had their margin trimmed to only three games over Brooklyn. The Dodgers picked up a game and a half on the slow moving Giants, sweeping a doubleheader from Chicago 4-2 and 4-3 while the St. Louis Cardinals were vanquishing the Giants 4-3.

Milwaukee's third place Braves advanced to within 4½ of the top, splitting a doubleheader with Philadelphia. The Braves came back as Lew Burdette nipped Robin Roberts in a 2-1 pitching duel after the Phillies had ended Warren Spahn's 11-game winning streak 5-2.

Cincinnati walloped hapless Pittsburgh twice 11-5 and 13-2 as Ted Kluszewski rapped homers Nos. 47 and 48 and knocked in nine runs to boost his leading runs batted in total to 132.

The Chicago White Sox whipped the Boston Red Sox twice 5-3 and 7-5 as they passed the 90 victory mark for the first time since 1920. Nellie Fox produced three hits, including a two-run double, and stole three bases. Minnie Minoso, ejected from the first game by Umpire Larry Napp, drove in four runs in the nightcap with a home run and double.

Detroit took two from Washington 5-0 and 8-3 as Steve Gromek pitched a six-hit shutout and sore-armed Ted Gray won his first game since May 12. Baltimore and Philadelphia split to remain tied for last place. The Orioles won the opener 4-3, scoring all their runs in the seventh. Howie Fox walked in the ninth as Philadelphia took the second game 5-4.

Al Rosen's two-run double off Allie Reynolds in the seventh inning broke up a 1-1 tie and the Indians went on to win the opener. Bob Lemon registered his 22nd victory. Early Wynn fanned 12 Yankees in the nightcap for his 21st victory. Wally Westlake's double drove in two of the three Cleveland runs off Tommy Byrne in the fifth.

Stan Musial batted in three Cardinal runs with a single and his 35th homer as Harvey Haddix posted in his 17th victory. Carl Furillo drove in the winning runs in both Brooklyn victories. He doubled home two runs in the first game to provide the margin of victory and singled with the bases loaded in the 14th inning to bring home the winning run in the nightcap.

Major League Magic Numbers

When the Cleveland Indians stopped the New York Yankees in both ends of their crucial twin bill it brought the magic number down to three. Any combination of three Indian wins or Yank losses will give the Tribe their first flag since 1948.

Prior to yesterday's double header the combination was seven. The sum of the two Cleveland wins and the two Yank losses left the combination at three.

Over in the National League the league leading Giants failed to reduce the combination. It remains at 10. With the Giants having 13 games to play and Brooklyn 11, the number is not significant yet.

LOUIS PICKS EZ; SAYS ROCKY FIGHTS FOUL

MONTICELLO, N.Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—Former heavyweight champion Joe Louis said Sunday that the present champion, Rocky Marciano, "fights foul under instructions from his corner," and predicted that Ezzard Charles would regain his title in the 15-round bout at Yankee Stadium Wednesday night.

Louis, asked if he thought Marciano was a rough fighter or a foul fighter, said:

"I don't call it rough, I call it foul. A fighter can be rough without being foul. I think he fights foul under instructions from his corner. In the last fight with Charles he hit after the bell in four successive rounds and the referee never once walked to his corner to warn him. It was so bad that the crowd booed his actions."

"In spite of the fact that I picked Rocky to win the last fight, I thought Charles won it 7 to 6 rounds, with two even. I now think Charles will win this one."

Louis said he thought Charles would win because he has trained properly for this fight, he has sparred with the right sort of sparring partners. In the coming fight he should use his left jab more. Rocky has no defense for a good left or a right cross. He buckled Rocky's knees in the fourth round of the last fight and then did not follow it up.

M'CARTHY LOSES FINAL BID AS HEARING ENDS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 (AP)—The McCarthy censure hearings ended today with Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) apparently defeated in a last-minute move to have the six investigating senators bring in a new staff of lawyers to guide them in writing their report.

The end of the nine-day-old inquiry came after the last principal witness, Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, testified he was "very much opposed" to the army's promoting and honorably discharging Maj. Irving Peress, whom McCarthy has called a "Fifth Amendment Communist."

Zwicker declined to express an opinion on that subject last Feb. 18—the day McCarthy is accused of abusing the general while questioning him about Peress, a dental officer who had refused to answer McCarthy's questions about alleged Communist activity.

Today, however, with a Pentagon lawyer sitting beside him, Zwicker gave his opinion in vigorous tones, and just as firmly declared he was "very much opposed to any officer in the United States army invoking the Fifth Amendment."

McCarthy's lawyer, Edward Bennet Williams, called on Zwicker to say why he didn't answer these questions when McCarthy first put them to him—and thus prevent, the lawyer intimated, much of the McCarthy-Zwicker unpleasantness.

Zwicker replied: "I am much, much more familiar with proceedings and hearings—and what I could say and what I couldn't say—now than I was on Feb. 18."

Zwicker testified he did not lie to McCarthy, and had no intention of being arrogant or evasive, in the hearing at which McCarthy is accused of abusing the much-decorated general.

Zwicker also denied any recollections of muttering "you S. O. B." in reference to McCarthy a few hours before the Feb. 18 hearing at which he and the Wisconsin senator drew sparks. An earlier witness swore he heard Zwicker mutter those words.

Smiling grimly, Zwicker hustled from the hearing room as he completed his testimony. He told reporters he was going home to finish packing to comply with his orders to proceed to Japan for

'Lorna' 190 Miles North Of Guam

A tropical storm which was 180 miles north-northeast of Guam yesterday morning reached typhoon intensity at noon and was officially named typhoon "Lorna."

The navy weather bureau said the center of the typhoon was fixed by an air force weather plane 190 miles north of Guam at 2:45 p.m. A navy weather plane was to track the typhoon throughout the night.

The typhoon has been forecast to continue its westerly movement and is not expected to approach any nearer to Guam.

The Marianas area, the weather bureau said, will continue to have shower activity, moderately high winds and low cloudiness today.

New FHA Chief Takes Over Here

Lemuel V. Nelson, formerly with the Federal Housing Administration in San Diego, Calif., yesterday took over as chief of the FHA office here, "hoping to see a lot of activity" in new home construction in the island.

Nelson, who succeeds Paul Mattox as island FHA administrator, brought with him part of the means of boosting the island's housing program when he arirved Monday evening from Honolulu, where he had spent some time becoming indoctrinated in Guam's housing problems. The local FHA office is under the regional offices in Honolulu.

The new FHA chief said that while he was in Hawaii he had helped expedite the processing of applications for federally-insured loans for new home construction here. The applications from Guam had been delayed several months pending study and interpretation of new regulations contained in the housing act passed recently by Congress.

Nelson said that of about 32 such aplications, he brought with him 19 completed and ready for final processing. He said the others have been delayed further because of minor technicalities which he "hoped to get cleared up in the next couple of weeks."

Nelson, who has been with the Federal Housing Administration for nine years in San Diego, said the new housing act should boom home building in Guam. The new legislation, he explained, sets up Guam as an emergency area where regulations governing federally-insured loans are less stringent and more flexible than in normal areas.

Nelson's wife and three children are expected to join him here Sunday.

Laurel Arrives At DC

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 (AP)—A Philippine mission which will negotiate future U.S.-Philippine trade policies arrived today for sessions starting officially next Monday.

Heading the Philippine group was Sen. Jose P. Laurel, who was president of the puppet island republic during the Japanese occupation of World War II. James M. Langley, Concord, N.H., published, headed a corresponding United States group.

IKE RESTATES U.S. FAR EAST POLICIES

DENVER, Sept. 14 (AP)—President Eisenhower declared today that American policy in the Communist-troubled Far East continues to be defense of "the vital interests of the United States wherever they may arise."

The President told newsmen at the summer White House that policy was reaffirmed at yesterday's top secret meeting of the national security council here.

Also reaffirmed, he added, was America's determination "where our vital interests demand it" to support its friends in the Far East "in their security and in their own interests."

Eisenhower said that at the security council meeting "no specific decisions were advanced for action on such matters as whether the United States will help defend the Chinese nationalist island of Quemoy, which has been under shellfire from the Red China mainland.

Along with the shelling, which has killed two American army of-

400 Pupils Strike For Segregation

By the Associated Press

Strikes by about 400 white students yesterday marked attempts by West Virginia school officials to follow the U.S. Supreme Court's decision voiding racial segregation in public school.

In the District of Columbia, however, schools opened without incident with Negro and white pupils in the same classrooms. New pupils totaled 16,000 in the nation's capital and all were enrolled according to new non-racial boundary maps.

Segregation ended quietly and almost unnoticed in a small town in Arkansas, one of the confederate states, three weeks ago. Newsmen learned today that eleven Negro children were integrated into the white classes at Charleston, a town of 968 east of Fort Smith, in West Arkansas.

In Richmond, Gov. Thomas B. Stanley of Virginia told a 32-member legislative commission on public education he still planned to use every legal means at his command to preserve segregation in the schools. He said he was confident the general assembly would come up with the right answer.

Pool Ball Hurled From Jeep Hits GI

Some people have a wrong notion of the use of pool balls.

Monday night at 11:35, Pfc. John E. Dullford, US Army, and a companion, Wallace J. Lee, were waiting for a bus in front of the Town House in Agana when a jeep with five occupants passed by. Someone shouted "hey!" and as Dullford turned, he was struck on the chest by a pool ball thrown by one of the boys in the jeep.

The ball, colored red, is numbered 3. The two servicemen later gave a description of the jeep to police.

Almost simultaneously, Manuel C. Concepcion, owner of the Concepcion Store Pool Hall in Tamuning, reported the loss of five billiard balls Monday night.

REPUBLICAN GOVERNOR LOSES TO DEMOCRAT

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 14 (AP) — Traditionally Republican Maine elected a Democratic governor for the first time in two decades in today's election.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me.) was re-elected to a second term, and two of three GOP congressmen appeared to have been returned to office in the state election—the nation's first of 1954.

Democratic National Committeeman Edmund S. Muskie, did something that had not been done before in modern times. He defeated Republican governor — Burton M. Cross — running for a second term.

In 528 of the states' 626 precincts, the 59-year-old Muskie had 95,557 votes and Cross 84,320.

Sen. Smith, in the same precincts, polled 106,393 to 70,692 for Democrat Paul A. Fullam, a Colby College history professor.

Vice President Nixon, saying the Maine voting had "great significance nationally," called for "an even greater majority than ever before" as a standard for the 47 states voting in November. He campaigned briefly while vacationing in Maine last month.

Indicative of Muskie's surprising strength was the fact that the first three wards in Portland were in his column. Portland, Maine's metropolis, normally is heavily Republican.

Sen. Smith, bidding like Cross for the second term, was more than 2-1 up on her democratic foe.

This year's vote was running behind that of 1950—probably because of Hurricane Edna, which raked the state's most populous areas over the weekend.

All major highways were open and most rural roads were passable as Maine voted in an election watched for possible signposts about control of the next congress. Polls closed at 7 p.m.

Ruptured communications may delay ballot results in some places.

Republican keyed their appeal to the need of a Republican majority in congress to aid President Eisenhower's program.

Democrats contended the issue was need for a change in state administration and a halt to "one-party government" in Maine.

Rep. Robert Hale wants a seventh term. His Democratic foe is James C. Oliver, a former Republican congressman from whom Hale wrestled the post.

Reps. Charles P. Nelson, a fourth-term candidate, and Clifford C. McIntire, second term aspirant, are opposed by Thomas E. Delahanty and Kenneth B. Colbath, respectively.

U.S. Political Cauldron Brews As Nine Primaries Complete November Lineup

By the Associated Press

Primaries in nine states today, featuring nominations to five senate and 92 house seats and to six governorships, will just about complete the lineup for the Nov. 2 general election.

After today only Rhode Island and New York will choose candidates.

With most incumbents who are seeking renomination unopposed, national interest in today's primaries centered on the Democratic Senate races in Colorado and Massachusetts and a three-way Republican senatorial battle for a new Hampshire two-year term. Also on the ballot are full-term Senate nominations in New Hampshire and Minnesota.

Governors will be nominated in Colorado, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Vermont and Wisconsin. House candidates only will be picked in New York, Utah and Washington.

Of the 92 House seats at stake in the nine states, 46 Republican and 24 Democratic incumbents are unopposed for renomination.

In the five Senate races, Sens. Styles Bridges (R-N.H.) and Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.) are unopposed for renomination and Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) is regarded as an easy winner.

The big Senate contest is for the Democratic nomination to the post being vacated voluntarily by Sen. Edwin Johnson of Colorado. Johnson is unopposed for the Democratic nomination for governor, a job he held for two terms before becoming a senator 18 years ago.

The two candidates in the Democratic race for Johnson's seat are John A. Carroll of Denver, for-

A VITAL WORK

TO a world accustomed to long drawn out international conferences, the speed with which the Manila meeting proceeded to fashion a Southeast Asia defense pact is little short of amazing.

The explanation appears to be that groundwork for the session was carefully laid, a proposed draft was prepared with scrupulous attention to the views of all participating nations, and the meeting itself was marked by a determination to reach a quick accord.

For this combination of favorable circumstances, much credit must go to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. The approved agreement is essentially the American draft.

So, after a brief three days, it is a reality that the United States, Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Thailand and Pakistan are joined in defensive alliance against the threat of spreading communism in Asia.

THE achievement is of the utmost importance, even though the new pact does not contain the NATO-type automatic guarantee that any pact member attacked shall immediately have the benefit of military aid from all its treaty partners.

Some nations, those which had learned most to fear aggression in the era of marauding Japanese militarism, wanted the automatic feature. But they bowed before the broader feeling that such a pact would be impractical in Asia at this time.

In Europe, the Western powers have worked together in two wars. They have a long tradition of cooperation in the face of peril.

In Asia, this tradition does not exist. This is the first real welding of Asian nations that has ever been accomplished. It is understandable that Dulles and other diplomats chose a course which would allow Asiatics to approach this new association somewhat gingerly. To have tried to drive them into a system calling for ironclad guarantees might only have alienated them.

CONSEQUENTLY, the SEATO treaty says each party will meet the "common danger" of armed attack in the treaty area in accord with its own constitutional processes. and that in the event of aggression the members will "consult" immediately to determine upon measures for the common defense. Aid will be sent only on request of an attacked nation.

This country made a concession which may ultimately widen the treaty's appeal, when it agreed that the pact should not specify only Communist aggression as the threat to Asia. India and its followers, Burma and Indonesia, refuse to have anything to do with a pact they believe directed "against" particular powers. In time, it is felt, they might be induced to see the wisdom of this alliance, provided the provocative language is missing.

The statesmen who put together this treaty made a substantial contribution to the future safety and freedom of Asia. What they have done is mere foundation, but it was vital work.

POLICE NOTES

GUILTY CONSCIENCE—A boy's guilty conscience tipped off a patrolman early yesterday morning at 5:15 into recovering a stolen vehicle.

Pol. F. Gr. Castro was cruising on Marine Drive in a police car and as he passed by Coontz Junction he noticed a car parked near the bus station. When he made a U-turn to investigate, he saw a boy jump out of the vehicle and scramble into the boondocks. The policeman found the engine of the car still running. The boy managed to get lost.

A checkup at the headquarters showed the car is owned by Gregorio de Leon of Sinajana. Several articles were found inside the vehicle.

BURGLARS AGAIN — John J. Underwood reported the office of Sears Roebuck Co., in Tamuning had been burglarized of an undisclosed amount in cash Monday night.

INJURED — C. D. Thompson, USN, assigned to the Naval Magazine, sustained scalp wounds, multiple lacerations and strained right thigh muscles when the jeep he was riding swerved into a ditch and bounced back to the highway near the Santa Rita church Monday night.

The driver, Juan S. Ulloa of Santa Rita, was reported "somewhat under the influence of liquor" after a sobriety test at the Guam Memorial Hospital.

Police inquiry revealed Ulloa was traveling downgrade past the village when the vehicle skidded to the ditch and veered back to the road after turning to the side.

TOO CLOSE —, Wilfredo B. Somis was cited for "following too close" after his vehicle struck the car driven by Ewald E. Struck, on Route 1 near the former Naval cemetery in Agana Monday evening.

Police said Struck's car was at stop position near the traffic light signals when Somis' vehicle hit the rear bumper causing an estimated $200 damage.

TWO CITATIONS — Two drivers involved in a hookup in front of the Peredo's Barber Shop in Agana were given traffic tickets.

Robert E. Moore, NAS Agana, was driving from the direction of Tamuning and as he was passing in front of the barber shop, a car driven by Juanito S. Jose of Toto village, cut in from the side. Jose's car hooked the front right fender of Moore's vehicle with the left bumper guide. There was slight damage.

Jose was ticketed for failing to yield right of way. Moore also was cited.

SMASH-UP — Cristobal Benavente Monday afternoon applied his brakes and swerved but it was too late. His car skidded and struck the rear trunk of a car at stop position on Marine Drive. Result: $600 damage to his car and $300 to the second vehicle.

Police investigation disclosed the second vehicle driven by J. U. Torres, was at stop position waiting for a Navy bus unload when Benavente, coming from behind failed to notice the vehicle and bumped Torres' car.

ficers, the Reds have been talking about "liberating" the island of Formosa, the Nationalists' main stronghold.

Secretary of State Dulles, on arrival in Washington this morning from the council meeting in Denver, said American policy is to keep the Chinese Communist guessing whether the U.S. will fight for Quemoy.

UP TO MILITARY

Dulles told a news conference here yesterday it is up to the military "in the first instance" to say what Nationalist islands to defend in carrying out America's basic decision to defend Formosa against any Red assault.

Dulles also said U.S. military might will block any Communist move to take Formosa.

Eisenhower made his off-the-cuff statement on Sunday's council meeting before a battery of newsreel and television cameras and microphones in a conference room in the Lowry Air Force Base administration building. His vacation headquarters is located there.

The President said the council meeting, the first outside of Washington, "was unprecedented, but it was natural."

Dulles, he noted, had just returned from the Orient and "we met in order that all of us together could have the benefit of his observations and the details of his report." Then the chief executive said:

"No specific decisions were advanced for action. It was merely a consulting together as to the place of the United States in the world today in the particular area — in that troubled area of the western Pacific — and reaffirming our devotion to certain policies

DEFEND INTERESTS

"These are, of course, to defend the vital interests of the United States wherever they may arise, to make better partners of old friends, and to get new friends wherever we can."

Dulles hinted before the security council meeting that it might arrive at a decision regarding defense of Quemoy.

Against that background there was (1) Eisenhower's assertion today that "no specific decisions were advanced for action" and (2) Dulles' statement in Washington that American policy with respect to that area is to keep the Reds guessing.

mer U.S. House member, and Mayor Quigg Newton of Denver. The Republicans have named unopposed candidates — Lt. Gov. Gordon Allot for the Senate and 32-year-old state Sen. Donald G Brotzman for governor.

THREE-WAY FIGHT

In New Hampshire, Sen. Robert W. Upton is in a three-way fight with Rep. Morris Cotton and Wesley Powell for Republican nomination to fill out the remaining two years of the term of the late Sen. Charles W. Toby. Upton is now serving by appointment and political writers tagged the election a tossup.

State Rep. Stanley G. Betley and Mayor Laurence M. Pickett of Keene are seeking the Democratic nomination to the short term in New Hampshire and four candidates are seeking the nomination to oppose bridges in November.

In Masachusetts, Foster Furcolo, state treasurer and former U.S. House member, is favored to win over two opponents, the Democratic senatorial nomination and the right to face Saltonstall in November. Furcolo's opponents are John I. Fitzgerald, whom Saltonstall defeated in 1948, and Joseph L. Murphy, former state senator.

In Minnesota, three Republicans are seeking the senatorial nomination State treasurer Val B. Johnson is considered to have an edge over his two rivals, Richard S. Wilcox and Arthur D. Russell.

MORE CONTESTS

Humphrey was expected to defeat A B. Gilbert and Harold Strom for the Democratic nomination.

The six governor's races lined up this way:

Colorado — Johnson, a Democrat, and Brotzman, a Republican, are without opposition.

New Hampshire — Elmer E. Bussey and Lane Dwinell for the Republican nomination and Charles R. Eastman and John Shaw for the Democratic nomination.

Masachusetts — State Rep. Robert L. Murphy and Francis E. Kelly seek the Democratic nomination. Gov. Christian A. Herter won the Republican nomination in a state convention last June.

Minnesota — Gov. C. Anderson, Republican, is unopposed for renomination. The Democratic candidates are Orville Freeman and Paul Rasmussen.

Wisconsin — Republican Gov. Walter Kohler is unopposed for renomination to a third term.

McCarthy Rebuffed In Last Minute Attempt As Senate Hearing Ends

a tour of duty in the Far East.

The charge of abusing Zwicker is one of five groups of accusations filed against McCarthy by Sen. Ralph Flanders (R-Vt.) and two other senators — accusations that have brought upwards of 250,000 words of testimony from 10 witnesses.

Chairman Arthur Watkins (R-Utah) brought the public hearings to an end after the McCarthy side proposed "independent" counsel be brought in to help draft the committee's report, contending the present committee lawyers inevitably have assumed the role of prosecutors.

Watkins said, however, that the committee and its staff have been dedicated from the first to a let-the-chips-fall-where-they-may gathering of the facts.

The next step is for the three Republicans and three Democrats on the committee to draft their report on a motion that the senate condemn the official acts of its junior member from Wisconsin.

The senate is supposed to meet before the November election to consider the committee's report and decide whether to vote on the question whether McCarthy has been guilty of conduct unbecoming a senator.

Red Spy Ring In UN?

SEOUL, Sept. 14 (AP)—The Republic of Korea today charged that high ranking Russian officers have infiltrated into the Neutral Nations' supervisory commission "to pull strings behind the Czech and Polish members."

The government statement said the Czechs and Poles, controlled by a Soviet major general and two colonels, seized an opportunity as truce inspectors to spy on the United Nations and Republic of Korea to obtain military secrets.

"They took photographs of military establishments, port facilities and other important areas."

Nursery Closed

The nursery and kindergarten at the Andersen Air Force Base and the Marbo Third Air Division area will be closed all day today on account of bad weather conditions.

Typhoon Kills 25 In Japan; Thousands Homeless

TOKYO, Sept. 14 (AP)—Japan's typhoon-battered islands are out of danger and the fear of the gigantic "great wind" which struck southern Japan Monday afternoon also faded with the disappearance of the typhoon No. 12 into the Japan sea early this morning.

The Tokyo weather central said the typhoon is no longer the typhoon that left trails of dead and havoc, but a tropical storm.

The center of "June" was located 25 miles northwest off Hamada, Shimane prefecture in the Japan Sea, and is moving in the direction of Hokkaido at a very slow pace. It is expected, if it doesn't change its course, to reach the southwestern tip of the northmost of the Japanese main island Wednesday.

The weather central said the maximum wind velocity of the typhoon has dropped to 60 miles per hour at the center and will further diminish as it moves along.

Latest casualties checkup disclosed 25 dead, 68 injured and 16 missing.

The typhoon struck the southern mainland yesterday, forcing evacuation of three cities and leaving 25 dead and thousands homeless.

The storm bore on northward with weakening intensity toward the populous main island of Honshu, leaving behind untold havoc on the southern island of Kyushu. Communications were out with the stricken area.

Winds of 110 miles an hour along a storm front 300 miles wide hit Kyushu, bringing cloudbursts and tidal waves. Winds fell to 90 miles an hour as the storm moved inland.

Kyodo said authorities ordered all citizens to flee three southern cities with a combined population of nearly 300,000. All three were threatened with destruction from pounding seas or floods or both.

They were Miyazaki, 130,000 and Mobeoka, 88,000 on Kyushu's exposed eastern coast and Miyakonojo, 75,000, several miles inland.

The newspaper Yomiuri said a flash flood hit Miyakonojo and may have all but wipe it out.

After dealing eight hours of death and destruction by night on Kyushu, the great storm moved sluggishly northward today.

Three small ships were reported sunk, 31 bridges washed out and 15,000 acres of farmlands washed out.

By the time it had hit the inland sea, its maximum winds had slackened to 80 miles an hour and its 300-mile diameter was shrinking rapidly.

Kyushu had been amply warned and it was believed casualties would be at a minmium. Schools were closed. Citizens in low areas were ordered to higher ground. Among these were women and children at Camp Bofu, a U.S. Army installation.

At its peak, with winds of 125 miles an hour, the typhoon was more powerful than the 1934 typhoon — worst in Japan's history — which killed more than 2,000 Japanese.

China Reds Claim Imprisened Yank 'Chief U.S. Spy'

TOKYO, Sept. 14 (AP)—Peiping radio asserted today that Hugh Francis Redmond of New York City, given a life sentence by the Communists, was "the chief American spy" in Red China.

The state department in Washington said Redmond was engaged in legitimate business when he was arrested.

Peiping followed up yesterday's announcement that Redmond, 34, had been given a life sentence with a call for "intensified vigilance against espionage and sabotage by agents sent by the United States" and Nationalist China:

"This case has once again exposed to the world the sinister intentions of the American aggressors against the Chinese people," said a broadcast which quoted from People's Daily, official Communist newspaper.

TWO DOOMED

Five Chinese men and two Chinese women were sentenced with Redmond, two of them to die.

Another broadcast described "crimes of U.S. spies." It brought up all the old charges made when Redmond was arrested in Shanghai April 26, 1951.

The charges were that Redmond belonged to "external survey detachment 44," which Peiping described as "a U.S. government espionage services."

Actually, Redmond was a businessman who remained behind when the Communists took over. Mrs. Ruth Redmond, his mother, said at Yonkers, N.Y., that he went to China for the New York import-export firm of Henningsen Bros.

The state department in Washington noted that espionage is a favorite charge of the Communists. They said this charge was made against Redmond by Chinese Communists at Geneva during the recent negotiations over Americans in China.

Peiping accused Redmond of "espionage" in Mukden, Peiping and Shanghai. It asserted he was ordered to stay behind "to maintain contact with the United States intelligence organization in Hong Kong and conduct espionage work" after the Reds seized Shanghai in 1949.

URGES VIGILANCE

Peoples Daily asserted that "for several years the American espionage organizations tried every means to send large numbers of special agents, spies, subversive elements and assassins" to Red China. It called on the Chinese to "sharpen their vigilance."

Peiping said that Redmond in 1950 received money from three American Catholic priests in Shanghai, all three of whom were arrested, presumably at the time Redmond was picked up in 1951.

They were listed as John Houle, Glendale, Calif.; Joseph McCormack, New York City, and Thomas Phillips, Butte, Mont. All three are among the Americans for whose release the state department has been negotiating. A fellow priest who reached Hong Kong last April said the three were in a Shanghai jail and were in "fair health" the last he saw them.

Russians Woo Asian Businessmen

LONDON, Sept. 14 (AP) — The Soviet Union appears to have launched an all-out campaign for the economic penetration of Asia.

Trade delegations from four Asian nations are now in Moscow enjoying the lavish hospitality the Russians can hand out when they have got something to sell, whether it's grain or Communism.

One of the delegations includes a group of Japanese industrialists, businessmen and diplomats. Another is composed of representatives of Indian business and industry. The third is a Burmese group, headed by the agriculture minister, in Moscow to talk about economic matters. The fourth is an official trade delegation from Indonesia.

The delegations from India, Burma and Indonesia flew into Moscow last week, just after the U.S.-backed southeast Asian defense pact was signed in Manila. All three nations refused to join the pact or even attend the recent conference in the Philippines.

The Japanese were the last to get to Moscow, arriving on Saturday.

The Indian, Burmese and Indonesian delegations were entertained in truly Russian style last Friday, with a representative show of Soviet officials turning out for the event.

Two ministers and 17 deputy ministers, representing just about every branch of Soviet industry, attend a reception given jointly by minister of foreign trade Ivan G. Kabov and deputy minister of foreign affairs Andrei Gromyko.

The arrival of the Japanese delegation was marked by a statement by Soviet foreign minister V. M. Molotov that the Soviets were willing to resume diplomatic relations with Japan and develop trade.

Observers of Soviet affairs speculate that a trade agreement will be worked out very shortly between the Japanese and the Russians. If this is done, the next step may be a resumption of large scale trade between Japan and Red China.

New Aid For Korea

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 (AP)—The Foreign Operations Administration (FOA) today announced a new allotment of 45 million dollars to the Republic of Korea to maintain civilian relief and a steady flow of essential commodities to that country.

The FOA said in a statement "the action was taken to continue the flow of relief supplies and to combat inflation by providing funds to finance the import of raw materials and consumer-type goods."

The 45 million, the FOA said, will be used to finance imports of fertilizer, raw cotton, petroleum, oil and lubricants and miscellaneous raw materials.

Canada Will Pull Troops From Korea

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 (AP)—Canada will withdraw two-thirds of her infantry brigade in Korea before Christmas, it was learned today.

The announcement will be made in a joint statement by Canada, Britain, Australia and New Zealand. The four commonwealth countries have maintained a division in Korea—one brigade each—and plan to cut its strength by two-thirds.

The announcement for Canada, to be made by defense minister Campney, will list which units will be withdrawn and in what order.

The 2nd battalion, the Black Watch, will not go to Korea next month as originally scheduled.

20 Die In Train Wreck

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 14 (AP)—News dispatches reaching here said a Lisbon-bound passenger train hurtled off the tracks at full speed today in the south of Portugal carrying at least 20 returning vacationers to their deaths. The reports said some 40 others were injured.

Railroad officials said later that 15 bodies had been removed from the wreckage. Rescue teams continued to search the debris for other victims.

The officials said the train jumped the track while traveling at high speed.

Red China To Reinforce Manpower, Peiping Says

TOKYO, Sept. 14 (AP)—Peiping radio reported today Red China will institute a conscription system to fill its armed forces manpower needs and the first call will begin Nov. 1 for 450,000 recruits.

The Chinese language broadcast, monitored by Radiopress Agency, said the government administration council issued the order Monday.

Youths between the ages of 18 and 22 will begin going into the military service from Nov. 1 until Feb. 28, 1955. The order set the following terms of service beginning from March 1, 1955: army—two years; air force—four years, and navy—five years.

The radio said a recruit may obtain deferment if he is the sole worker in the family or the family's only child. Persons who have lost political rights cannot be conscripted, the broadcast added.

China hitherto filled its armies by forcible requisitioning of needed manpower.

Yoshida Called To Testify On Shipping Scandal

TOKYO, Sept. 14 (AP) — The speaker of the powerful lower house of the Japanese Diet late last night issued an unprecedented summons to Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida to testify tomorrow before a house committee on a million dollar shipbuilding kickback scandal.

The crusty little Prime Minister indicated he would ignore the summons.

A refusal could plunge the nation into another political crisis on the eve of Yoshida's scheduled departure for the United States and Europe late this month.

The Socialists stalled a planned Yoshida trip in June by sparking a fist-swinging brawl on the Diet floor, forcing Yoshida to postpone the trip to mend his political fences.

Yoshida himself is untouched by the scandal, but many of his top party leaders have been questioned.

The speaker of the house had refused for a week to issue the summons to Yoshida, after the house audit committee had voted to call the Prime Minister.

Never before in Japan's history has a Prime Minister been called to testify as an ordinary witness before a standing house committee. Two prime ministers have testified before special groups.

The audit committee, controlled by opponents of Yoshida, passed the summons call with the aid of a renegade from Yoshida's liberal party. The party expelled the renegade.

Kyodo News Service reported Yoshida has told the secretary-general of the party he has no intention of answering the summons.

Kyodo said the summons contains the usual official caution that refusal to heed the summons is punishable by up to a year in prison or a fine up to 10,000 yen ($26).

Dulles, Back From Far East, Holds Guessing Game Policy Toward Reds

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles came back from the Far East today with a keep-them-guessing policy toward the Red Chinese as to whether the United States would defend Quemoy.

Dulles flew into Washington with the dawn, after returning from Manila, Taipeh, Tokyo and Denver.

He told newsmen he had nothing to add to his statement, made Monday at President Eisenhower's work-vacation headquarters in Denver, that "it is not posible" for the Chinese Communist to prevail American power in any assault on the Nationalist island of Formosa.

He was then asked whether the national security council, to which he reported at Denver, had reached a decision on whether the U.S. Seventh Fleet would defend Quemoy, under Red Chinese gunfire as a possible stepping stone to Formosa.

GUESSING GAME

That was a secret, Dulles said. He was aked if he wanted to keep Red China guessing. Dulles nodded and laughed, telling reporters, "And you, too."

This silence about whether Quemoy would be defended by U.S. forces arises with Peiping talk about "liberating" Formosa. Dulles and President Eisenhower have said the fleet stands ready to crush any aggression aimed at Formosa. But, aside from linking Quemoy to the general defense, Dulles declined to spell out how it fits into these plans.

Dulles' Far East problems were pinpointed in the cities he visited. At Taipeh, he paid his first call on the Nationalist regime. At Manila he worked with representatives of seven other nations with a stake in southeast Asia to put together the mutual defense pact he has been plugging for that area since last spring. At Tokyo, he undoubtedly heard again from Japanese officials the story of their diminished for more trade.

At Denver, he reported to Eisenhower and the security council on these questions as well as others, such as what happens to European defenses now that France has killed the European Defense Community (EDC) treaty.

The Manila treaty set up a council. But when it will meet is not yet known, although officials look forward to it as an arena in which to wrestle with southeast Asia's defense, economic and social problems.

No ambitious military machinery was set up for the southeast Asia council, such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) arrangement. The reason primarily was that, while the NATO nations are close together, vast areas separate the Manila pact countries — the United States, Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Philippines, Pakistan and Thailand. But all pledged to "act to meet the common danger" in event of aggression on anywhere in the treaty area.

PRESS MEET UNLIKELY

The state department said it was unlikely that Dulles would hold a news conference this week. He has a great deal of work ahead of him.

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) who helped to sign the Manila treaty for the United States, said meanwhile the U.S. has given no commitments concerning the defense of Quemoy.

Smith, a member of the Senate foreign relations committee, said:

"I, personally, think we should help defend it, but only with our navy and air force — not with ground troops."

Smith, together with Secretary of State Dulles and Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) represented the United States at the Manila meeting. After that meeting, Smith said he and Dulles went to Formosa where they had a long talk with Chiang Kai-Shek, the Chinese nationalist president.

Chiang is still anxious to attack the Communist-dominated mainland, Smith said, adding: "He wouldn't attack unless we agreed. He thinks he is ready provided he has the logistic support of the United States. He doesn't want our troops."

Miss America '55 Likes Stage Career Before Marriage

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (AP)—Lee Ann Meriwether, Miss America of 1955, said today she would like a stage career before she settles down and marries "just someone who would take me as I am."

As she is, the brown-haired, blue-eyed, 19-year-old girl won $60,000 in prizes and a year's travel after being crowned U. S. beauty queen Sunday night in Atlantic City, N.J.

Wearing a white strapless gown, the same she wore when she captured the title, Miss Meriwether told newsmen in her Waldorf-Astoria Hotel suite that all the acclaim and prizes wouldn't spoil her, and added:

"I've seen a lot of people go high-hat with a lot of success thrown at them, and they turn my stomach. I'll try and just be myself."

Lee Ann, who lives in San Francisco is a junior at City College of San Francisco. She has an A-minus average.

On the subject of romance, she expressed a preference for blonds and said, "the stage is my first love, but I believe that career and marriage can work together."

The 5-foot-8 young lady said she has no steady boy friend and that Pvt. John R. Riverroll of San Jose, Calif., now stationed in Japan, was only a childhood sweetheart.

Riverroll, when he heard the news of her becoming Miss America, exclaimed "hot dog" and added: "I'm the only guy she went steady with. I guess that means something."

Lee Ann said her year-long trip will take her through the U. S. and South America.

Lee Ann also said she would use one of her prizes, a scholarship, to attend the Pasadena Playhouse in California. She said she has been interested in dramatics ever since she was a child.

He Proved His Love For America - - In His Will

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (AP) — German-born Julius Lemann loved America, and he proved it in his last will and testament.

Lemann came to this country 50 years ago, and became a prosperous importer. In 1951 his wife died. Last June 30, Lemann died at the age of 92.

In his will, probated yesterday, he left all but $1,000 on his $70,000 estate "to the government of the United States of America to which my wife and I are much indebted for the blessings we have enjoyed as citizens of this country."

Philippine Army Recalls Officer In Tokyo To Testify In Smuggling Case

MANILA, Sept. 14 (AP)—The Philippine Army is recalling its chief procurement officer in Tokyo as investigation into the reported half-million-dollar army-navy smuggling racket in luxury goods from Japan moves into high gear.

Lt. Gen. Jesus Vargas, armed forces chief of staff, Monday night issued orders for the immediate recall of Commander Santiago Nuval, chief of the Philippine procurement mission and the liaison group to the United Nations command in Tokyo, to testify on what army sources described as "irregular shipments from Japan."

In another move, Vargas directed Col. Diosdado Rodriguez, armed forces inspector general, to proceed to Tokyo "without delay" to investigate on-the-spot shipments aboard Philippine Navy vessels from Japanese ports to the Philippines.

The investigation was prompted by an earlier Philippine customs announcement that its inspectors were holding a shipment of 212 crates of goods which arrived Sept. 4 from Sasebo, Japan, aboard a Philippine Navy LST.

The crated goods, the customs said, were partly manifested and partly unmanifested but did not have any supporting documents or exchange release from the Philippine Central Bank. Customs authorities opened some of the crates and found refrigerators, radios, hundreds of strands of cultured and imitation pearls, nylon articles, steel roof sheeting, cigarette lighters and rayon textiles.

The total shipment weighed about 20 tons.

Customs authorities said the goods had been consigned to individual army officers as well as the post exchange. Col. Carmelo Barbero, reserve officer training command superintendent, explained he had ordered 180 crates of goods last year when he was post exchange council chairman. Army investigators said this still left unexplained why there were 212 crates.

Philippine President Ramon Magsaysay ordered an investigation and declared the case would not be "white-washed."

Defense department sources said Philippine Navy vessels previous have been found to carry unmanifested cargo, such as cars and household goods, which enter the country without payment of duty.

Eden, Adenauer Announce Accord On European Unity; Murphy In Berlin

BONN, Germany, Sept. 14 (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said today they have reached complete agreement to push for a European unity plan "in which the United Kingdom can play a full part."

Eden and Adenauer issued a confident joint communique on their two-day talks here on the European situation. Then the Briton flew on to Rome to seek Italian views on achieving unity now that France has spiked the European Defense Community (EDC) plan.

Shortly after Eden left to continue his swing through the leading west European capitals, Robert D. Murphy, U.S. deputy Undersecretary of State who is Washington's chief diplomatic troubleshooter, arrived here from London on an emergency mission almost certainly dealing with west German rearmament.

Murphy and U.S. High Commissioner James B. Conant conferred promptly with Adenauer. The serious nature of their talks was emphasized by a surprise disclosure the chancellor will postpone a foreign policy speech he originally scheduled for delivery today when the Bundestag, the lower house of parliament, reconvenes.

Murphy had told newsmen on his arrival his trip had nothing to do with Adenauer's speech. However, it appeared events pertaining to European defense were happening too swiftly for the chancellor to make his address. Adenauer was reported to have told Socialist leader Erich Ollenhauer, who heads the main opposition in parliament, that the visits of Eden and Murphy made it impractical to go ahead with the statement of policy. No new date was announced for the speech.

The Belgrade radio said in a broadcast Murphy will visit Yugoslavia during his tour.

The broadcast quoted Tanjug, the semi-official Yugoslav news agency, as saying the American diplomat will confer with Yugoslav leaders on economic relations and "other current problems."

So far, Murphy is roughly following Eden's trail. Some British newspapers carried Washington dispatches suggesting the state department had sent Murphy posthaste on Eden's heels, perhaps to assess what the Briton's talks may mean. Eden and U.S. Secretary of State Dulles have not always seen eye to eye on details for the western alliance against the Communist threat.

The Eden-Adenauer communique said the two statesmen had held a thorough discussion of the European situation and "found themselves in complete agreement."

"In particular," the communique continued, "they will pursue with the utmost vigor their efforts to achieve European unity in which the United Kingdom can play a full part. They are convinced that it is only through unity of the free nations of Europe that the necessary conditions can be created to ensure a stable peace."

Britain's refusal to join the EDC directly was one of the factors which influenced the French national assembly to kill the treaty.

Serious Threat Looms In Struggle For Power Over Vietnam Gov't

SAIGON, Indo-China, Sept. 14 (AP)—Viet Nam's premier and the general he is trying vainly to oust as chief of staff opposed each other today across bristling guns. A serious threat loomed that either side might attempt a coup to resolve the battle for power.

The crisis stirred up in this land still nursing its wounds from the Indo-Chinese war caused increasing unrest among army officers and men.

The trouble started when Premier Ngo Dinh Diem ordered the chief of staff, Gen. Nguyen Van Ninh to depart last Friday for "six months leave" in France on a study mission. The general declared his loyalty to the government, but refused to go.

Sunday night he turned down another order that he leave by plane today, saying he was too involved now in the transfer of military authorities from the French to the Viet Namese army.

Forces of the two sides clashed Sunday around the Saigon radio in a skirmish over censorship. Diem ordered all dispatches by foreign corespondents on the crisis censored and threw militia around the radio station to enforce the order. Hinh countermanded the order and posted a larger body of his troops to the scene, they clashed with the troops in a fight that did not end until Diem's defense secretary Le Negov Chan, intervened.

A mixed guard of troops and police surrounded the radio station.

About 50 soldiers with grenades and machineguns have been guarding the general's home for two days, and he has not gone outside without an armed escort.

There were signs of strong support for Ninh in the army. Several army groups met Monday in self-appointed committees to discuss the situation. An officer emerging from one such meeting said the government could dismiss Ninh but "but had no right to impose exile in France on him as if he were a criminal." The army is ready to respond to any new provocation," he said.

If it comes to an armed showdown, Ninh appeared likely to win. He controls several battalions here which could take over Saigon quickly. Diem's police would be outnumbered and outgunned.

The French have made clear their determination to remain neutral.

The only chance for a peaceful solution of the crisis appeared to be direct intervention on by Bao Dai, Viet Nam's chief of state who is still in France. Bao Dai has beeo informed of the situation. but he has disclosed no plan for arbitrating the quarrel.

Britain Proposes EDC Substitute

LONDON, Sept. 14 (AP) — Official sources disclosed tonight a British-proposed substitute for the now dead European Defense Community (EDC) that would allow west Germany to rearm within the Atlantic Pact.

The informants said Prime Minister Winston Churchill has suggested an extension of the present five-nation Brussels alliance to include Germany and Italy. The alliance members now are Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Under the British plan, Britain and all the signatories of the EDC pact would be linked together in a long-term alliance calling for military, political, economic and social cooperation. The inclusion of Britain in a west European defense arrangement would remove one of the chief French objections to the old EDC plan.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, meeting in Bonn, Germany, announced earlier today "they had reached complete agreement to push for European unity in which the United Kingdom can play a full part."

Eden, on a swing through European capitals, already has been promised informal Belgian, Dutch, Luxembourg and west German support, the informants said.

One of the key provisions of the Brussels treaty binds each member nation to go automatically to the aid of its partners in case of an attack.

This comitment, plus Britain's written pledges of support to the EDC six, may well become the basis of the proposed new partnership, the informants said.

UN Body Votes To Aid Vietnamese Evacuees

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 14 (AP) — The executive board of the United Nations children's fund unanimously approved today a request by the Viet Namese government to aid a million evacuees going from north to south Viet Nam in Indo-China.

The assistance, the first of its kind to Viet Nam, would be in the form of skimmed milk, cloth and soap to provide basic necessities and prevent disease before the refugees can be absorbed into agrarian or industrial life.

According to the Geneva agreement signed in July, which ended the Indo-China war, all persons who did not wish to remain in north Viet Nam — which is to be controlled by the Communist-led Viet Minh rebels — must be moved to the south within 10 months.

(NOTICE)

All members of the Y.M.L.G. are urged to attend the meeting to be held Wednesday.

GIANTS STOP CARDS 1-0; BRAVES DOWN PHILS 7-4

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP)—The New York Giants stretched their National League lead to 3½ games over the idle Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday on Johnny Antonelli's five-hit shutout of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Giants, themselves, managed only one run against the pitching of rookie Gordon Jones and veteran Al Brazle, but it was enought for the 1-0 triumph as Antonelli registered his 21st success.

Milwaukee kept alive its faint pennant hopes with a 7-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. The Braves trail the Giants by 4½ lengths and open a three-game series with the league leaders here today.

In the only other major league action the Pittsburgh Pirates rebounded from two Sunday thumpings at the hands of the Cincinnati Redlegs and beat the Reds 6-5.

New York's run against the Cardinals came with two out in the first inning. Willie Mays doubled and scampered home on a single by Dusty Rhodes. May's two-bagger was his 82nd extra base hit, breaking a Giant club record set by Mel Ott in 1929.

All five St. Louis hits were singles, two of them by Alex Grammas, the lighthitting shortstop, and two by leftfielder Rip Repulski. Antonelli retired 14 batters in succession until Stan Musial, who went hitless, walked in the ninth.

The Braves sewed up their game with a four run outburst against Curt Simmons in the eighth. Simmons hit Jack Dittmer with the bases loaded for the first run of the inning and then walked Roy Smalley, forcing him a second run. Bill Bruton's single over second scored two more.

Dave Jolly picked up the victory with a fine relief performance after taking over from Jim Wilson at the start of the fourth.

Pitcher Dick Littlefield singled home the winning run for the Pirates in the eighth inning. The game drew only 1,148 fans, the smallest night crowd in the history of Pittsburgh's Forbes Field.

Before a capacity crowd, the Marianas Lions Club basketball team defeated the Koster and Wythe quintet at the latter's court Sunday afternoon 34-31.

Led by Tony Dimalanta, sharpshooting Lion forward, the Lions grabbed the lead at the start of the second quarter and never relinquished it. The win gave the Lions the series.

Lion guards Dulay and Sian held high scoring Junior Arellano to two points. Tony LeRoy Arellano chalked up his first victory as coach of the Lions.

International Stars Survive 1st Round Of Pacific Southwest Tennis Tourney

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 14 (AP)—The international stars survived opening day matches yesterday in the Pacific Southwest tennis championships without upset but all got strenuous workouts.

Lewis Hoad, the Australian Davis cupper, needed his best cannonball drives to handle young Franklin Johnson of San Diego, 6-3, 6-4.

Johnson, about to become a UCLA freshman, broke through the hard-hitting Hoad's service to square the second set at 4-all but the Australian barreled his potent forehand down the sidelines to win.

Roy Emerson, 17-year-old Aussie hopeful, got an even tougher workout against Jack Kerr, local tournament veteran. Emerson won 10-8, 2-6 and 6-1.

Andres Hammersly of Chile took Bob Willner, ex-UCLA star, 6-3, 4-6 and 6-4 and Atushi Miyaga, Japan's Davis Cup star, came back to best John Fleitz of Long Beach, 2-6, 7-5 and 6-4.

Only foreign entrant to fall was Alejandro Olmedo of Peru. He lost to favored Hugh Stewart, former USC intercollegiate champion, by scores of 3-6, 6-4 and 7-5.

Ken Rosewall of Australia, last year's finalist, advanced in easy fashion by whipping Al Driscole, young local player, 6-0, 6-3. Vic Seixas of Philadelphia defeated Alan Call of USC 6-3, 6-2.

Tony Trabert of Cincinnati had to extend himself to subdue UCLA's Joe Blatchford, 7-5, 8-6.

Marciano Seeded 4-1 To Stop Ez; KO Odds 12-5

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (AP) — Plenty of backing for heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano has sent the odds soaring to 4-1 and better his return title bout with Ezzard Charles at Yankee Stadium Thursday night.

For a long time the odds favoring Marciano held at 18-5. With the approach of the return bout the support for the 30-year-old, all-conquering champion has increased considerably. Most of the wagering is on whether the 33-year-old Charles will be able to go the full 15 rounds as he did on June 17th. Rocky is a 12-5 choice to stop Ezzy this time.

The broadshouldered, lean hipped Charles will be the first ex-champion to get three cracks at regaining the heavyweight crown. Jim Corbett got two tries and failed both times. Charles, too, lost twice—to Jersey Joe Walcott and Marciano.

Charles, however, is intent on making ring history in a more sensational fashion by becoming the first former ruler ever to grab back the heavyweight throne.

Charles, who has stopped 53 of 58 opponents, may try for a knockout himself. And the champ, who has won 40 of his 46 fights by kayos, wants badly to knock his man out this time.

DEAD MAN FEELING PRETTY GOOD — Harry A. Jones, 67, who was pronounced dead and then began to breathe again while enroute to a mortuary, poses eight days later at the Long Beach, Calif., Veterans Hospital where his condition is described as "pretty good." LORNA'S WIND CAUSES MINOR DAMAGE HERE

Typhoon "Lorna" skirted Guam yesterday sending heavy rains, fairly strong winds and rough waves buffeting the island's eastern coast. Minor property damages were reported. Three families living near the shoreline in Piti were evacuated to the village schoolhouse by Civil Defense officials.

At 10 a.m. yesterday "Lorna" was plotted continuing her westerly churning at 10 knots approximately 190 miles east northeast of Guam with winds at 60 knots near the center.

Fallen trees strewn on the travel portion of Route 4 by the Chalan Pago area and on Route 1 in Piti were reported by Sgt. C. G. Perez of the patrol bureau at 5 a.m. Several inmates under the supervision of Pol. J. T. Quinata and J. Q. Ungcangco were dispatched to clear the roadway.

Typhoon "Lorna" which has soaked the island for the past two days was charted 360 miles northwest of Guam at 2:30 p.m. yesterday, Lt. (jg) R. E. Limoli of Fleet Weather Central announced. Maximum winds near the "eye" was estimated at 115 miles per hour. "Lorna" was forecast to move northwest at 14 miles per hour. The Fleet Weather predicted "improved weather conditions for the Marianas Area."

Naval and Air Force reconnaissance aircraft have flown missions into the typhoon area to report its movement and development, Lt. Limoli said.

Maximum rainfall for the past two days was recorded at 4.14 inches. The maximum gusts Tuesday night were 55 miles per hour with a 35 mile-per-hour wind average during the past two days.

Civil Defense officials headed by Director Fred Gutierrez maintained an all-night alert. First distress call from the wave-threatened Piti resident was sounded at 9:40 p.m. Tuesday.

The family of Ana S. Cruz, and two others near the shoreline were moved to the schoolhouse at around 10 p.m. At 10:30 p.m. Acting Gov. R. S. Herman joined civil

Tuncap Back From Bay City Confab

Juan Tuncap, legislature liaison officer, returned from San Francisco, Calif., yesterday morning by Pan American Airways. Tuncap served as a delegate from Guam representing the legislature in the seventh annual legislative conference which took place in the Bay City last month.

Guam and Hawaii were the only territories represented at the conference along with 29 states of the Union, Tuncap said.

Since many legislative problems are common to all geographical areas, as found by a 1953 survey on the structure and procedures of American legislatures, the conference sought to work out solutions to problems relating to state and territorial lawmaking bodies, Tuncap stated.

Among factors discussed at the session were the outmoded rules and procedures, Tuncap said. Also overdue reapportionment, secrecy in legislative proceedings, failure to employ appropriate methods to acquaint citizens with important legislative jobs to be done, and with legislative accomplishment were taken up, Tuncap explained. And while only a few of those problems applied to Guam, Tuncap described the San Francisco meet as "intensely interesting."

The Guam delegate also attended discussions on legislative fiscal analysis. In Sacramento, Calif., he observed first the state legislative practices in interim legislative research, legislative fiscal review, legislative references and library services. With Tuncap was Attorney John Bohn, who played a double role as Guam legislative counsel and official host from the California legislature.

Tuncap said only Guam, the Virgin Islands, and the state of

P.I. Officer Ousted In Smuggle Probe

MANILA, Sept. 15 (AP)—A Philippine army colonel was relieved of his post last night as investigation into the reported half-million-dollar army-navy smuggling racket in luxury goods from Japan gathered momentum.

Lt. Gen. Jesus Vargas, armed forces chief of staff, ordered the immediate relief of Col. Carmelo Z. Barbero, reserve officers training corps superintendent, pending conclusion of the case.

Vargas issued the orders after another hurried meting with President Ramon Magsaysay and Defense Secretary Sotero Cabahug. The President reiterated a previous statement that "in this administration nobody kill be allowed to get away with dishonesty."

Vargas said Barbero's relief "is the beginning of a series of sweeping actions I will take personally on this case."

Barbero, former chairman of the army's post exchange council, said: "I accept the decision of my chief of staff with a clean conscience."

RUSSIA BLASTS SEATO AS AGGRESSION PLOT

MOSCOW, Sept. 15 (AP) — The Soviet Union tonight denounced the new Southeast Asia Treaty (SEATO) as being "directed against the interests of the security of Asia and the Far East."

A formal statement from the ministry of foreign affairs accused the western powers of taking steps both in Europe and Asia which "contribute toward sharpening the international situation and which create obstacles to the settlement of unsolved problems."

The statement compared SEATO to NATO, saying both are in "blatant opposition to the aims and principles of the United Nations."

The statement was distributed by Tass. It said:

"Like European security, the complete security of the peoples of southeast Asia can be guaranteed only on the basis of the common effort of all states in this region, independent of their social structure and without dictation and interference from without."

The foreign ministry said SEATO "is in fact a bloc of colonial powers" aimed at supplying "strategic raw materials to the military industry of the United States."

It was the second statement in a week by the office of Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov attacking the west. Last week, the foreign ministry lashed out at the western powers in Europe and their efforts to find a substitute for the now dead EDC.

VIOLATES TRUCE

The foreign office also charged SEATO's extension of protection to the states of Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia violated the Indo-

Ike Slashes US Defense Outlay

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP) — The Eisenhower administration tonight announced a sharp new cut in defense spending, but said spending hikes elsewhere and sharp falling revenues might run the government $4,700,000 in the red during the current fiscal year.

The new deficit forecast for the fiscal year ending next June 30 was an increase of $1,800,000 over the red ink predicted by President Eisenhower in his budget to Congress last January. And, reversing the downward deficit trend of the administration's first year in office, it was $1,700,000,000 higher than last year's $3,000,000,000 excess of spending over income.

The revised estimate of how much the government may go in debt this year was disclosed in the annual summer budget review, made public late today by the budget bureau.

ECONOMIC DEFENSE

It said the new defense spending level would support the most "powerful and efficient" fighting force the nation ever had in time of peace.

In all budget making, the budget bureau said, 'the needs of the national defense continue to be the primary consideration.'

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey told a news conference on the revised budget that the new deficit forecast was an "interim" figure only, that "we shall work every day, every week and every month" to better the figure before the fiscal year ends next June 30.

He emphasized that the deficit last June 30, at the end of fiscal 1954, was 800 million less than forecast in the previous summer revision, and said:

"We are going to try to do it again this year. We shall keep

Rep. Cotton Wins Senate Nomination

By the Associated Press

Rep. Norris Cotton, a four-termer and a second campaigner, yesterday won the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate from New Hampshire, defeating Sen. Robert W. Upton and Attorney Wesley Powell.

He won the right to run for the remaining two years of the term of the late Sen. Charles W. Tobey. Upton, who has been filling the post a year by appointment, is the second senator to lose in a primary this year. The other was Sen. Alton Lennon (D-N.C.)

With 275 of 297 precincts counted, Cotton had 26,825 to 20,456 for Upton and 16,009 for Powell.

First returns from Colorado's hot race for the Democratic senatorial nomination gave former Rep. John A. Carroll a healthy lead over Mayor Quigg Newton of Denver. This and the New Hampshire two-year Senate term race topped in interest the voting in nine states yesterday to nominate candidates for five Senate, 92 House, and six governor seats.

In Colorado the 53-year-old Carroll swept into a commanding lead of 12,989 to 8,535 for Newton on the basis of returns from 245 of 1,687 precincts. Lt. Gov. Gordon Allot was unopposed for the Republican Senate nomination.

All four of Colorado's House incumbents won renomination without contests.

Other New Hampshire returns: Rep. Merrow (R) easily defeated Rontfrew A. Thomson of Exeter and state senate president Lane Dwinell won the GOP nomination for governor.

Other returns from the cross-country voting:

VERMONT — Lt. Gov. Joseph B. Johnson won the GOP nomination for governor, equivalent to election in this state, and Mrs. Consuelo Northrop Bailey, speaker of the state house and GOP national committeewoman, won the nomination for lieutenant gover-

CARRIER, 16 DESTROYERS IN RESHUFFLE PLAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP) — The U. S. Navy will send the big aircraft carrier Midway and 16 destroyers from the Atlantic to the Pacific in the next four months as part of a long-range plan to place naval strength in the two oceans on an even keel.

In confirming reports that the 45,000-ton carrier and two destroyer squadrons will be assigned to the Pacific, a navy spokesman said the move has no direct connection with continuing alarms along the Asian mainland.

The U.S. Seventh Fleet is pledged to defend Formosa from attack, and recently the Chinese Communists have bombarded nearby Quemoy.

FAMILY LIFE

The spokesman said the transfers were dictated primarily, by the navy's desire to reduce the need for shifting units and the consequent dislocation of the family lives of crew members.

The Midway will be making its first tour of duty in the Pacific, relieving one of the smaller Essex class carriers now operating there and shortly due for overhaul. After serving with the fleet at sea for some months, the spokesman said, the Midway will return to the Pacific coast for large-scale modernization.

The two destroyer squadrons designated for transfer to the Pacific are now based at Norfolk, Va., and the 18th at Newport, R.I.

The navy spokesman said that for some years five destroyer squadrons have been involved in fairly frequent transfers between the two big oceans. He recalled that Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, recently declared the navy would rearrange ship assignment schedules so that personnel would know in advance that their ships would remain in one ocean or another for a longer period of time than has been possible since the outbreak of war in Korea.

5 SHIPS RETURNED

During the Korean conflict the Atlantic fleet sent to the Pacific one battleship, one carrier, 16 destroyers and some auxiliary craft. The battleship and four destroyers now have returned to the Atlantic on a permanent basis.

GOP Blames "Local Issues" For Maine Defeat; Demos Hail Victory

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—Republicans blamed "local issues" today for their loss of the Maine governorship while Democrats hailed the victory of their own candidate as a foretaste of success in the Nov. 2 congressional election.

National chairmen of both parties gave their divergent views in separate statements followed by a joint news conference, while other political leaders chimed in with individual post mortems on Tuesday's first-in-the-nation election.

One thing was pretty generally agreed upon: a split among Maine Republicans contributed to GOP Gov. Burton M. Cross' defeat at the hands of Edmund S. Muskie, a onetime Truman administration official.

Republicans sought to brush off Cross' defeat and spotlight the victories of Sen. Margaret Chase Smith and all other GOP candidates for congress in Maine, while Democrats hopefully weighed the reduced winning margins of the GOP candidates.

In Denver, President Eisenho-

Romulo Enroute To DC

Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo passed through here yesterday morning aboard a Pan-American plane enroute to Washington, D.C. to join the Philippine mission seeking revision of the US-PI Trade Act. Romulo was accompanied by his wife.

With the Filipino envoy was Counsellor Victorio Carpio of the department of foreign affairs in Manila. Carpio is on his way to New York to join the United Nations delegation of the Philippines. Carpio previously had served in the UN staff but was recalled to the Manila office in 1952.

Consul Bartolome A. Umayam met the officials at the terminal.

A TESTING GROUND?

HEADLINES these days suggest pretty furious activity between the Nationalist and the Communist Chinese around the small islands off the mainland coast of China. The effect could be misleading if military operations there are not kept in perspective.

The Reds may well be in the preliminary stages of an invasion attempt against Quemoy, an island some seven miles from the mainland. The island has long been occupied by the Nationalists, and used by them as a base for hit-and-run raids against the mainland.

These raids have harassed the Communists ceaselessly, and it would not be surprising if they should now be mounting an attack designed to wipe out the base.

NATURALLY the Nationalists are unwilling to abandon this desirable vantage point without a fight. Their spirited air and sea assault against the Red mainland and island bases near Quemoy is the measure of the importance they attach to their outpost.

But this is not war on a big scale, nor is it necessarily a prelude to Red attack on the far more important strategic prize of Formosa, the big Nationalist-held island 100 miles off the Chinese shore.

The Reds can try and may succeed in capturing tiny Quemoy with a vast assortment of junks and other vulnerable craft, despite Nationalist defense. To take on Formosa, with the U. S. Seventh Fleet standing patrol duty close by, is something else. There is no evidence the Reds are prepared yet even to attempt a sneak assault there by sea. Only the Russian Navy could give them the support they need for such an attack.

AS a theoretical matter, the idea of an airborne attack cannot be ruled out. But the chances are that Red China is not now equipped nor is its military manpower trained for that kind of offensive.

So blows against Quemoy, however loudly they are heralded, do not signal the start of a broader offensive against the big target, Formosa. Possibly their only value as a prelude would be to gauge the character and effectiveness of the Nationalist defense at Quemoy. If that defense is rugged, the Reds may think a long time before trying to remove the painful Formosa thorn in their side.

Nebraska have unicameral houses among American legislatures. He based this on a report made by the council of state governments. He found out that only members of Guam and North Carolina legislatures receive no travel allowance while attending sessions.

North Carolinans, like Guam representatives, are paid $15 per day while the legislature is in session, Tuncap commented. But while Guam solons receive their stipend for the entire 60-calendar-day session prescribed by the Organic Act, North Carolina lawmakers are paid for only 25 out of their 90-calendar-day session, the liaison officer revealed.

Tuncap reported that in 1952, the Guam Legislature introduced 174 bills and 51 enacted into law; 1953, 119 were introduced and 51 passed. He recalled that Hawaii in 1953 introduced 2153 bills and passed 340, while Puerto Rico in the same year introduced 1836 bills, and passed only 325.

Twenty one legislatures permit direct broadcast from the floor, and eight permit committee hearings to be broadcast. Only Nebraska, New Mexico, and Oklahoma allow committee hearings to be telecast, but twelve states permit telecast of legislative proceedings, Tuncap stated as he compared those findings to the sessions of the local lawmaking body.

Tuncap concluded by saying that "my mission to the conference was most fruitful."

working continually during the rest of this fiscal year to better the estimates we are presenting today."

Humphrey made the statement a day after arriving back in Washington from a weekend national security council meeting in Denver with President Eisenhower and other top officials. His statement aroused speculation that the flight conferences and the security council meeting had given Humphrey reason to believe Pentagon outlays could be cut back over the next 10 months more than foreshadowed in the new budget.

3 BILLION CUT

The new budget clipped three billion from outlays of $44,900,000,000 scheduled for major national security outlays in Eisenhower's January budget for fiscal 1955, making the new defense spending goal for the year $41,900,000,000.

That was $4,300,000,000 under defense expenditures of $46,200,000,000 last year and a decline in defense spending of $8,400,000,000 from the peacetime peak of $50,300,000,000 in fiscal 1953.

But while the new budget reduced security outlays by three billion it added $1,400,000,000 over Eisenhower's January estimate to other government spending for the current fiscal year.

I'M a Republican, of course. But I don't want to actively campaign unless it is absolutely necessary.

Minor Wind Damage Here

Defense party in the area for an inspection and "sizing up" of the situation.

First property damage recorded was at the wave-splattered building of Congressman Paul D. Saiting in Tamuning. Damage to the incomplete structure was placed at about $1,000. The congressman said the walls by the seashore and the floor were destroyed by the waves.

Acting Gov. Herman had instructed Director Gutierrez to proceed to Tamuning to survey the condition along the seacoast there. By 9:05 the civil defense office released an "everything under control" announcement for the Piti and Tamuning areas.

FALSE ALARM

However, Director Gutierrez proceeded with his survey party at noon to the southern district to inspect conditions there. An alarm earlier had been sounded by an unidentified civil service worker that a boat had capsized at the Talofofo Bay.

Marine rescue units were dispatched to the scene by the NAS rescue coordination center. Guam police headquarters rushed Lt. P. T. Rosario and Sgt. G.G. Perez to the bay.

Late yesterday Marine rescue units said no boat was sighted and the alarm could have been raised over a raft of coconuts sighted floating on the bay.

On the traffic front, only one accident was blamed on the weather. Martin E. Weber of Ordot, while driving towards the post office building from Route 4 Tuesday afternoon bumped into a vehicle driven by Miss Josefina B. Santos of Agana Heights. Miss Santos was driving from the Agana Cathedral towards Marine Drive. At the middle of the intersection near the Congress Building, Weber's car rammed into her jeep.

SCHOOLS OPEN

Weber said he did not notice the other vehicle on account of the heavy rains and the foggy windshield.

Schools remained open yesterday. Intermittent downpours from rain-soaked clouds and gusts of wind whining past telephone wires and buildings and trees kept children inside schoolhouses. Traffic was observed as fairly light as most residents preferred to stay home. Offices were opened as usual.

And the foaming sea kept hammering at the seashore.

GOP Blames Local Issues For Defeat

wer's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, voiced pleasure over "the victory of our entire (GOP) congressional delegation." Hagerty declined to talk about the party's loss of the governorship.

Similarly GOP Chairman Leonard W. Hall messaged Mrs. Smith and the other successful Republican candidates congratulations on winning "in the face of stiffer than usual opposition and the obstacles of local issues."

Stephen A. Mitchell, the Democratic chairman, said in a statement that Muskie's winning margin "exceeded our hopes."

Mitchell hit hardest, however, the vote in the other contests. He figured the Republicans got 12 per cent less of the total vote than in 1952, and he said a similar shift in other areas would give the Democrats control of congress in November.

Forty Republicans now in congress won their seats two years ago by 5 per cent or less.

Sen. Earle Clements (D-Ky.), chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee, viewed the Maine results as showing "the growing Democratic strength in the nation."

Mitchell said the Maine election bore out "many other indications we have around the country of the disenchantment of the people with the Eisenhower administration."

Hall dissented vigorously. "The President," he said, "is as popular as ever with the country. His program is popular with the people and the voters know that if they want the Eisenhower program completed they must give him a Republican congress.

Russia Blasts SE Asia Treaty

China truce signed at Geneva.

The statement began by saying favorable conditions had arisen for "settling of unsolved international problems, including problems related to Asia." These conditions, the statement said, came as a result of the Geneva conference and the "failure of plans to set up a so-called European Defense Community."

Asking how the present situation was being used to bring about further relaxation of international tension, the statement said:

"The facts show that not only as regards Europe but also as regards Asia, steps are being taken which have nothing to do with the interests of consolidating peace, but on the contrary help to aggravate the international situation and create obstacles for a settlement of unsolved problems."

The ministry charged intensive preparations for forming a new aggressive military bloc in Southeast Asia had been started even before the Geneva conference, so it could be presented to the negotiators there as an accomplished fact.

It went on to say the treaty's aims could be seen in the "fact that the (Manila) conference was not prepared by the countries of Southeast Asia.

MENACE TO CHINA

"As is known, it was prepared and carried out by a western power behind the backs of the Asian countries, and the main role was played by the U.S.A., although the frontiers of the United States are several thousand kilometers away from southeast Asia."

The statement said although Thailand, the Philippines and Pakistan—Asian countries—were participants in the treaty they were "bound hand and foot by enslaving agreements with the U.S.A. on military and economic aid." It pointed out that India, Indonesia, Burma and Ceylon had refused to take part in the Manila agreement.

Communist China, the statement declared, "opposes these aggressive plans because she justly regards the above military group as a menace to her security."

Charging the western power with branding as subversive the "national liberation movement" in southeast Asia, the statement said: "This precisely explains the insistent attempts of the western powers and particularly the United States to knock together in the area of Asia and the Pacific Ocean a military organization which could serve first of all for the liquidation of national liberation movements in the countries of Southeast Asia."

"The new military grouping, in actual fact, represents a bloc of colonial powers," the statement added, "based on the imperialist objective to maintain their economic and political positions in Asia. . . .

"It can be said confidently that notwithstanding the attempts to fetter the continuously developing national liberation movement in Asia, the peoples of the Asian countries will go along the path of independent national development.

"Just as in Europe, a genuine security for peoples in southeast Asia can be safeguarded only on the basis of joint efforts of all the governments of that region independently of their social system, without dictation and interference from outside."

nor. She is the first woman ever to be nominated for this post. She won over Atty. Gen. F. Elliot Barber and former Gov. Harold J. Arthur.

MASSACHUSETTS — Robert F. Murphy, state representative, a newcomer to statewide politics, was nominated by the Democrats to run for governor. He beat Francis E. Kelley, Boston lawyer. Murphy had state convention endorsement. He will oppose Gov. Herter (R), unopposed yesterday, in November.

For the Senate the Democrats nominated former Rep. Foster Furcolo, now state treasurer, to oppose Sen. Saltonstall (R), who was unchallenged in the primary. Furcolo, also convention endorsed, ran away with the nomination in a three-way race.

UTAH—Mrs. Reva Beck Bosone, former Salt Lake City judge who served two terms in the U. S. House, had a better than 2-1 lead over Warwick C. Lamoreaux for the Democratic nomination for the house in the second district, with 87 of 485 precincts counted. Unopposed were the state's two Republican representatives, William A. Dawson and Douglas R. Stringfellow.

WISCONSIN—Fred R. Zimmerman, veteran secretary of state and foe of Sen. McCarthy, increased an early lead in his bid for another term against an opponent who had the blessing of the state GOP organization. Zimmerman long has been at odds with the state party, mainly because of his opposition to McCarthy. However, McCarthy did not figure in the campaign and took no part in it.

In the Democratic race for the gubernatorial nomination — Republican Gov. Walter Kohler was unopposed—William Proxmire had 11,307 to James E. Boyle's 7,435 in 666 of 3,288 precincts.

Rep. Withrow (R), only incumbent with opposition, took an early lead.

Cdr. Parker is a 1935 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy. His selection to the rank of captain was approved recently by President Eisenhower.

A holder of the Navy Cross, the nation's third highest award, Cdr. Parker reported to Guam from the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, Calif., where he was in charge of the operational command department.

He served on the light cruiser USS Marblehead in the Pacific from 1935-38 and with torpedo squadrons on the aircraft carriers USS Yorktown, USS Enterprise and US Hornet in the early months of World War II.

Cdr. Parker was awarded the Navy Cross for his service in the Battle of Coral Sea while a member of Torpedo Squadron 5 on the USS Yorktown.

From August, 1944, to June, 1945, Cdr. Parker was commanding officer of Carrier Air Group 5 on the USS Franklin. He participated in six enemy engagements during the war.

In 1945 and 1946 he served as executive officer of the escort aircraft carrier USS Rudyard Bay, operating in the Pacific.

Nationalists Repel 'Frog Men' Raid

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 15 (AP)—The Nationalists yesterday repulsed a light "frog men" raid on its island fortress of Quemoy and once more pounded Red fortifications by sea and air.

While the pace in the "vest pocket" war along the Red China coast 100 miles from Formosa slackened somewhat on its 12th day, an army spokesman said it was possible this was only temporary.

Premier O.K. Yui, in a report to the Nationalist parliament, declared "we should be prepared to turn from the defensive to the offensive and fight the enemy on the mainland itself."

Lt. Gen. Chang Yi-Ting, the army spokesman, told newsmen three "water ghosts" — the Chinese equivalent of the strong swimmer-raiders known as frogmen — tried to land from a boat on Quemoy.

They hoped to seize a Nationalist soldier for questioning. A sentry spotted the boat, opened fire, and it vanished.

A defense ministry communique said Nationalist warplanes once more bombed Amoy, seven miles from Quemoy. Warships blasted Chingyu island near Amoy.

Chang said throughout Monday at most 16 Red shells hit Quemoy, little Quemoy which is five miles from Amoy, and Tatan, a tiny island just south of Amoy.

The Red air force and navy still was idle for unknown reasons. It was speculated here that the Communists were saving them until the time comes—if it does—for a quick invasion rush from massing points behind the mainland hills across the narrow waters to Quemoy.

The interior ministry's Tatao News Agency, which claims underground contacts on the mainland, insisted the Red bombardment of Quemoy was but a smokescreen for an attack on Thailand.

It said Gen. Chen Hsi-Lien, a Communist artillery expert, had been named commander of the "free Thai volunteers" which were massed 200,000 strong on the borders of Thailand and Burma. It reported they were working with Ho Chi Minh's Viet Minh forces in Indo-China.

Premier Yui told parliament Communist China's propaganda about "liberating" was linked to such Red objectives as expanding Russian influence in the Pacific, widening the cleavage among western nations and sabotaging anti-Communist combinations in the Pacific.

ROKs To Stage New Protests

SEOUL, Sept. 15 (AP) — South Korean leaders today were preparing another series of nationwide demonstrations against the troop pullout which will leave only two American divisions in Korea.

National assemblymen and civic leaders met here yesterday to appoint a 21-man executive committee to direct the national movement.

Demonstrations are expected to begin this week, although there are no indications as to the date.

The U.S. Eighth Army yesterday said the remaining troops of the 29th Division will leave Korea in four groups between Sept. 17 and October 3. The first large contingent of 3,700 men already is en route to Hawaii, the division's new base.

Iran Spies Leak All U.S. Secrets

TEHRAN, Iran, Sept. 15 (AP)—A Red spy ring that infiltrated the armed forces has given Russia detailed information on "every tank, gun, and uniform" Iran has been receiving from the United States, an authoritative source said today.

American circles here expressed shock at the extent of the espionage concerned with the money and material aid which Washington has been pouring into this hard pressed nation.

Brig. Gen. Abdollah Hedayat, war minister, said today 434 persons have been arrested in a purge which spread from the military to civilian bureaus and ministries yesterday. Hedayat told the Majlis, the lower house of parliament, the spy ring had "long been negating the activities of the security forces," but now has been "completely uprooted from the army, police, and gendarmery (the militarized national police)."

Intelligence sources said the authorities have arrested the top military spies and now are turning to non-commissioned officers and the lower ranks of the gendarmerie and the regular police.

How Reds Build Up to Invade Formosa

By JOHN SMITH
Written for NEA Service

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of three exclusive eye-witness dispatches by an "Old China Hand" who takes you behind the Bamboo Curtain for an up-to-date look at Red China and the preparations for a threatened attack on Formosa. The writer's by-line is an obvious alias for the equally obvious reason that members of his family still live in Shanghai, where he was born. He left China 19 months ago; how he returned for this report—and got out again—must remain secret.

HONG KONG — (NEA) — I have just returned from a visit to Shanghai, my home for 30 years before the Communists took over, and I have seen the buildup for the next Red attack in Asia.

They are ready for Formosa. They believe they will win.

This belief is based on the Western surrenders in Korea and Indo-China and the firm conviction that the U. S. Navy and Air Force will not act with enough speed or force to prevent a Red victory on Chiang's island.

My impressions are based upon what I saw and heard in Red China.

At Woosung, the ship I was aboard was held up for several hours by the quarantine doctor. From our vantage point in the harbor, I had a perfect view of the small shipyards which dot the shoreline of the Whangpoo River up to the main port.

On the ways, in various stages of completion, were scores of medium-sized vessels, ranging from 500 to 800 tons. At anchor were swarms of gun boats (formerly Japanese) and rows of LSTs and LSMs and smaller landing craft. The latter were all U. S. gifts to Nationalist China.

Two years ago these were a collection of rusty hulks with skeleton crews. Today they are a smart-looking armada of light ships. They are freshly painted and their well-trained crews drill day and night. Big guns have been mounted fore and aft and the LSTs have rows of automatic 30-mm. guns along each side.

This, I was told, is but one portion of the staging area which extends along the entire coast opposite the Nationalist stronghold.

This type of activity around Shanghai is all for offensive preparations. There are no signs of defenses. Gun positions and forts which protected the harbor from Woosung have been razed.

But amphibious training continues week-in and week-out as division after division takes its turn for sea drills under the watchful eye of Soviet tutors.

The Reds' strategy is based on two beliefs:

1. They can knock out Formosa with a "human sea" attack of small craft and paratroops covered by an air armada of MIGs, which can furnish them with local air superiority for at least a week.

The Reds have amassed enough small ships to move a million men in the first wave. (Chinese are loaded on 2½-ton trucks at 65 per truck. We load 24.) They can put 500 MIGs into the area in a few hours, knowing that the nearest U. S. Sabrejets, only opponent a MIG fears, are hundreds of miles away on Okinawa. They know U. S. Navy carrier planes are no match for MIGs.

2. By taking Formosa, they will eliminate the one talking point of the U.S. for steadfastly fighting Red China's admission into the United Nations—Chiang Kai-shek and his Nationalist government. The Peoples' Revolution in China will then be termed "completed" and a "united" government will demand representation.

The Reds will make their political bid for UN recognition this fall. The military bid may come at the same time.

The Communists know, more than citizens in the U.S. realize the same fact, that the U.S. Seventh Fleet is spread out over thousands of miles of Pacific and China Sea waters. They evaluate its strength as not sufficient to halt a tremendous mass invasion under an umbrella of MIGs.

They feel certain that the temperament of the U.S. Government is such that chances of the Seventh Fleet being built up to meet their planned attack are slight. They figure that the U.S. will reinforce after the initial invasion; by that time, the Reds hope to have the island overrun.

They do not credit Chiang's army with the ability that press accounts have given.

I am not an authority on either side of the picture. The issue of the U.S. Navy and Air Force's determination to fight for Formosa has been made clear in various public statements. The ability of Chiang's soldiers in a possible battle has been lauded by both American military men responsible for their training and by press observers. But on the Chinese mainland, these items are not believed.

The outcome of an attack may be in doubt. But it's certain the sights are on Formosa and the Reds are ready to trip the trigger.

(Tomorrow: The Reds clean up Shanghai.) 9-9-54

CLOSENESS of Formosa to Red mainland and to air and sea bases at Shanghai is shown here.

SHANGHAI'S WATERFRONT FROM THE AIR looked like this as craft milled about in Whangpoo River, fleeing the Reds in 1949. Today shoreline is dotted with Commie gun boats, landing craft.

Eden Wins Italy Backing Of EDC Substitute Plan

ROME, Sept. 15 (AP) — British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today won Italian support for a new seven-nation defensive alliance to replace the French-killed EDC plan.

A high British source said the success here gives Eden solid six-nation support for the projected alliance, based on the 1948 Brussels pact.

But American sources here feared France would reject the new plan to add German divisions to Western Europe's defense.

General agreement already has been reported from West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, other partners in the EDC treaty which was killed Aug. 30 by the French national assembly.

"The Eden Plan" — as Italians have dubbed it — calls for less than the supranational organization and single-uniformed European army which United States diplomacy plugged for so long.

The purpose still would be to beef up the free world's defenses in Europe with West German manpower. Prime Minister Churchill's government hopes that British membership in the alliance will erase French fears that a resurgent Germany might become the dominant continental power.

Eden's task tomorrow is to sell that viewpoint to Mendes-France. On Friday, the North Atlantic council will hear his report in closed session at Paris.

Today Eden sold his plan to Italian Premier Mario Scelba and Foreign Minister Attilio Piccioni. After a cordial three-hour meeting between Eden and Piccioni, a "complete agreement" was announced.

Juvenile Council Meets Tomorrow

A meeting of the island's Juvenile Council will be held at 2 p.m., tomorrow, Judge Jose C. Manibusan announced. Important matters relating to the juvenile problems will be taken up by the council, the judge said.

Presently awaiting completion of the new home for juveniles at the former dairy farm in Mangilao. An official inspection and survey of the progress of rehabilitation work being done by the public works department and the installation of utilities in the building, was conducted by court officials including the attorney general and a public utilities representative last Monday.

Judge Manibusan said more than 12 boys could be transferred immediately to the home upon completion. He earlier had announced a plan to solicit tools, reading materials and garden implements that could be used by the boys in the new home.

Members of the council are requested to be present.

Dulles Reports To Nation Today On Manila Pact

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles went over critical European problems with the French ambassador today and also set to work on a report to the American people on peace efforts in the Far East.

He will deliver his Far East report tomorrow.

On his second day back in Washington after helping draft the Southeast Asia defense pact at Manila, Dulles met for 55 minutes with French Ambassador Henri Bonnet.

Afterward, the ambassador told newsmen they had what he called a "tour d'horizon—an exchange of views on many, many questions."

Bonnet said he sought the conference because he leaves tomorrow night for consultations at Paris with Premier Pierre Mendes-France.

A few minutes after Bonnet's visit, the state department announced Dulles would make a 15-minute radio-television appearance tomorrow.

His topic will be the Manila pact.

Bonnet told questioning reporters he talked with Dulles "about problems created by the French parliament's rejection of EDC"—the European Defense Community which would have included Germans in a six-nation army.

Backers Urge Yoshida To Face Diet Probe

TOKYO, Sept. 15 (AP)—Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida was under pressure from his own backers today to make an unprecedented, face-losing appearance before a hostile committee of the Diet.

His Liberal Party leaders yielded to opposition and press demands last night and agreed that Yoshida should heed the summons to testify in a committee investigation of the million dollar shipbuilding scandal.

Yoshida was expected to make a final decision today on his return from the country. He also scheduled an audience with Emperor Hirohito to report on his plans to leave 10 days hence on a tour of the United States, Canada and Europe.

The opposition, which forced postponement of the tour earlier this year, was believed hopeful that the summons before the inquiry would disrupt his plans. But Liberal Party leaders said nothing will postpone Yoshida's trip this time.

Murphy Slates Talks On Yugoslav-US Defense

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Sept. 15 (AP)—U.S. Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy arrived by air today for talks on Yugoslav-American defense cooperation. He told newsmen he had held two "satisfactory but confidential" conferences with western German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer before his departure from Bonn.

Sen. Wiley Proposes New UN Voting System

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP) — Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) raised new protests today against Russia having three votes in the United Nations, and recommended study of proposals for a new system of U.N. voting.

One of these proposals is to base voting strength on the population of member nations and the size of the contributions they make to the U.N.

Wiley is chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee. He made his comments in connection with the release of a committee staff study on U.N. representation and voting.

Under the Yalta agreement, Wiley said, Soviet Russia "obtained the admission of Byelorussia and the Ukraine as full members of the United Nations."

Byelorussia and the Ukraine are constituent states of the Soviet Unions, "somewhat like Texas and New York are constituent states of our own federal republic," Wiley said.

"If they deserve representation," then we should seek additional votes, for Texas, New York, Wisconsin and other states of the union."

Wiley said the present system "not only gave the Soviet Union three times the voting power she deserves; what is even worse it tripled her speaking power in the general assembly."

Along with other U.N. delegates, Wiley said, he had been forced "to sit by the hour and listen to repetitive tirades by the numerous Soviet delegates."

Wiley said he ordered his committee staff to study the voting record of the assembly because the present U.N. organization gives "big states too much power" through the use of the veto by any of them in the security council.

Similarly, he said, "the little nations have too much power" under the present principle of "one-state-one-vote" in the general assembly.

Under this, the staff study showed that a majority could be obtained in the 60-nation assembly by small nations representing as little as 5 per cent of the population of all U.N. members.

Similarly, under the requirement for a two thirds majority on "important matters" before the assembly, it showed that states containing only 2.3 per cent of the total U.N. population could block action if they stood together.

These minority actions never have taken place, but Wiley said the possibility should be studied, especially with admissions pending for 19 nations including Germany, Japan and Italy.

In the past in the U.N. assembly the United States has "had a comfortable majority of the member states following our leadership on certain issue of importance to us," Wiley said, adding that this may not always be true.

Wiley noted that numerous proposals had been advanced for weighted voting" in the U.N. assembly, including some suggestions by Secretary of State Dulles.

The many proposals included voting "weight" based on populations, on contributions to the U.N. and its agencies, on military strength, on national income or production, and similar "weight" factors.

The staff study discussed advantages and disadvantages of many of these proposals.

It said most of them probably would arose bitter opposition from smaller nations.

Japan Edging US Over Indon Market

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP) — United States may lose to Japan an important section of its 100 million dollar market in Indonesia if trade trends which developed during the first six months of this year continue, Indonesian Consul-General Achmad Natanagara said today.

Speaking at a luncheon given by the Export Managers Club at the Hotel Statler, the Indonesian spokesman said U.S. exports to the Southeast Asian republic declined by approximately 12 per cent during the first half of 1954 from the level of the like period last year.

During the same period, Japanese exports to Indonesia rose approximately 14 per cent and placed Japan ahead of the United States as the leading supplier of the Indonesian market, Natanagara reported.

The main cause of the decline, he said, may have been the drop in U.S. purchases in Indonesia, lessening the amount of dollars available for buying in the U.S. at the same time, Japan offered merchandise at low prices and on easy credit—actually causing a rise in imports leading to an unfavorable balance of trade with that country.

Dr. John Kennedy, director of medical services, assisted in explaining the highlights of the picture. He spoke on tubercle baccili, the germ that causes tuberculosis and the importance of hospitalization for treatment.

Dr. Kennedy also encouraged the public to come out for an X-ray examination to discover the disease at its early stage. He said a person has the greatest chance of recovery if the disease is discovered early.

The film will be shown in all local communities, Executive Secretary Asuncion P. Torres announced. A representative from the medical services will be along for explanation and to answer question from the audience after the showing.

The schedule of showing follows: Merizo, Sept. 13; Talofofo, Sept. 20; Inarajan, Sept. 21; Mongmong, Sept. 22; Yona, Sept. 23; Tamuning, Sept. 24; Yigo, Sept. 28; Agana Heights, Sept. 29; Agat, Sept. 30; Santa Rita, Oct. 1; Asan, Oct. 7; Piti, Oct. 8 and Dededo, Oct. 15.

The curtain opens exactly at 7 p.m., Secretary Torres said.

The terms "longitude and latitude" came from the ancient days when the earth was believed to be grouped around the Mediterranean Sea. Since the sea was longer east and west, the word "longitude" was used to denote east-west directions.

Miss Universe Shuns Hollywood; To Terminate Contract With U-I

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 15 (AP) — Miss Universe has shunned Hollywood.

This is going to sound incredible to most girls, because most girls yearn for a movie career and most girls envy beauties like Miriam Stevenson, who won the title of Miss Universe for 1954.

Yet the wholesome, country-reared Miriam, 21, turned her back on glamor and announced she was terminating her six-month $250-a-week contract at Universal-International studios — the chief prize she won with her title last July 24.

The termination was by mutual consent, but that doesn't necessarily mean the studio initiated it.

Did she have any talent? Those who worked with her say: As much as any girl with a non-theatrical background can display in a few weeks of coaching. Didn't she like pictures? She says she did, and she says she enjoyed meeting a lot of interesting people — the kind she doesn't see around her home town of Winnsboro S.C.

Well, what, then? Miss Stevenson may not be too sure herself. She said:

"Things have happened so fast since I came out here for the contest that I've been studying and wondering what to do. And I decided I'd better go back and finish school. Yes, I know I arranged to put off my final year when I won the contest, but that wouldn't be right. I wouldn't want to do that now. I want to finish with my classmates."

Miriam has had three years at Lander College for girls at Greenwood, S.C. She's always been an A and B student. "But I don't know how good an actress I'd make," she said.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Stevenson, said in a Winnsboro interview last month that Miriam is a determined girl who will do what she thinks she should, regardless of attempts to influence her. They probably won't be too surprised by her decision.

There is one thing, moviewise, that might be a handicap to Miriam here. Hers is a stately, classic type of beauty. The sexy variety — like that of Maria Martha Rocha, Miss Brazil — pays off better at the boxoffice.

Miss Stevenson's renunciation of Hollywood is rare but not entirely unprecedented. A Los Angeles student nurse got a contract offer a few years ago, after she played a bit as a nurse in "The Magnificent Obsession." But Emmy Lou Kelley's mother had been a nurse before her, and Emmy chose the role of Florence Nightingale in general hospital drab corridors.

In 1952 the first Miss Universe, Armi Kuusela of Finland, decided to return home after winning the contest. She later married wealthy Filipino Virgilio Hilario. Last year Christiane Martel of Paris, France, won. She appeared in a few pictures and is still on the Hollywood scene. Her marriage to a Stockton, Calif., businessman ended in divorce.

Miss Universe — who is also Miss USA — is a home economics major from a little town. She knows nearly all the students at Lander. Aside from the festivals and contests at which her beauty has been acclaimed, her life has been chiefly church, home, school. And yet she says of her Hollywood stay:

"I feel like a Cinderella at midnight. It has all been so wonderful and thrilling."

"But," she added, "after I finish school maybe I'll take another crack at acting."

Perhaps she hasn't been here long enough to know that Hollywood is populated with ex-beauties awaiting a second chance which never comes."

"Semper Paratus"

LONG BEACH, Calif., Sept. 15 (AP) — A radio message from the fishing boat Huson, anchored off Santa Rosa island, to the Coast Guard said:

"Can we get medical advice for a puppy in misery? Right ear running quite a bit. Dog is nervous and itches, but has no fleas."

Such an emergency didn't daunt the coast guard, whose motto is 'Semper Paratus' ("Always Prepared"). A veterinary was consulted. The radio answer went something like this:

"Dog apparently has foreign object in ear. Administer aspirin to keep puppy quiet until reach shore."

Nudist Park All Yours For $30,000

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 14 (AP) — For $30,000 and a passion for cavorting in the altogether, you can pick up one used nudist park, somewhere near Annapolis.

But you have to promise to continue it as a nudist camp. Even to get in to look the place over you have to be in the pink. It is, in the purest sense of the word, strictly a raw deal.

No strip, no look.

The owners, who chose to remain anonymous, explain they want no non-believers turning the place into a sport for people who wear clothes. To prove your sincerity, you'll have to make the inspection tour in the altogether.

Mrs. X., who owns the hideaway with her husband, and maintains the traditional anonymity of her group by asking not to be named, said they're out to get a younger couple to run the place.

The bare facts:

It's somewhere near Annapolis, consists of 110-acres, has a 2½ story house, badminton and volley courts, a swimming pool and a five-acre grass plot for sunning. The place is officially known as the Pine Tree Associates.

The discreetly hidden park has been used by nudists for 18 years, the last 12 of which were under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. X.

Said Mrs. X: 'We've got doctors and ministers and a few people from the Pentagon who just want to come down and forget about it, but we never call anyone 'doc' or 'reverend.'"

She said the camp keeps a "balanced membership between men and women, and lately we've had an awful lot of engaged couples coming down. We're very strict on whom we take.

DEADLY — Wearing a few grapes and an abbreviated apron, this shapely French girl does her best to resemble the original Eve. Apparently she did all right for herself, as she was awarded first prize in the contest at Juan Les Pins.

ARMY, LOADED WITH VETERANS HAS EYES SET FOR EAST CROWN

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP)—A studied look at Eastern college football doesn't reveal a single potential national champion but it does show Army and Cornell as the probable standouts, a New Ivy League pact and coaching changes at Penn and Villanova.

June graduations always bring September football questions but Col. Earl (Red) Blaik of Army and Lefty James of Cornell seem to have found the right answers.

Cornell, defending Ivy champions, who have won the title three times in the past six years, have come of age. Last year the Big Red had talent but lacked experience. Now it has plenty of both.

Army enters the campaign as short of reserves as it was a year ago. An eye injury deprives the Cadets of Capt. Bob Farris, a sure bet to be one of the nation's finest lineman had he played.

But there is claw in the nine lettermen who are back and Blaik is a master moulder. Last year he transformed a series of summer mishaps into a season of seven victories, one loss and a tie. After defeating Navy 20-7 his team was awarded the Lambert Trophy, symbole of Eastern supremacy, for the sixth time in a decade. There's a good chance the Black Knights will keep it.

If Army or Cornell falters look out for Penn State and Navy.

Should the Nittany Lions come up with a quarterback to replace Tony Rados they'll be tougher than at any time since the 1947 Lambert winners. The Middies, who have put together two winning seasons, haven't ruled the East since 1943. They're due.

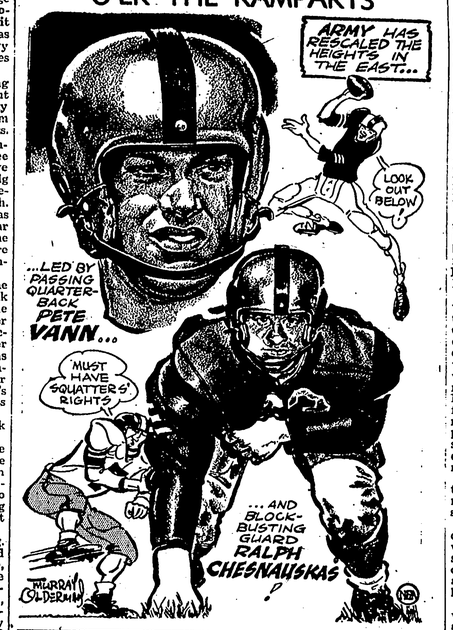
Boston College should be strong. Pitt, Penn, Princeton, Yale and Holy Cross bear watching. Colgate, Columbia and Dartmouth will be dangerous because of a trio of superb quarterbacks in Dick Lalla, Dick Carr, and Bill Beagle, respectively. Carr was the only player in the nation to play 60 minutes of every game in 1953.

Steve Sebo, the new coach at Penn brings the Michigan State multiple offense to Quaker Town. He succeeds George Munger who held the job 16 years.

Last winter the Ivies agreed to undertake a round-robin schedule as soon as commitments would permit. Meanwhile, the Quakers draw Notre Dame at Franklin Field Nov. 6.

Army boasts a backfield second to none in the East. Pete Vann, an excellent ball handler and good passer, returns to quarterback. Hard-hitting Tommy Bell again is the right halfback while Pat Uebel, who scored all three touchdowns against Navy last November, moves from left half to fullback. Bob Kyasky, up from the Plebes, could be the best of them all. This 180 pounder from Ansonia, Conn., combines deceptive speed and straight-ahead power and can punt well.

O'ER THE RAMPARTS



The line is the headache. Ralph Chesnauskas is headed for another great year at guard. Sophomores Art Johnson at end and Dick Stephenson at center will be called on to carry part of the load.

Speedy junior halfbacks Dick Meade and Richard Jackson and blasting senior fullback Guy Bedrossian give Cornell a swift murderous running attack. Billy Degraff directs the combination and passes. Meade also will do some throwing. Best in the line are end Stan Intihar, guard Len Oniskey and tackle Jim Van Duren.

If Capt. Phil Monahan has recovered fully from a spring knee injury Navy will have its 1953 backfield intact. Fullback Joe Gattuso, Quarterbacks John Weaver and George Welsh and Halfbacks Monahan, Bob Craig, Bob Hepworth and Dick Guest all are scheduled to return.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By WARREN PAGE
Shooting Editor

ONE way to stick your neck out is to take a specific instance of gun performance and from it draw a general conclusion.

Inductive reasoning may be OK in some fields of science, where there is a mountain of experimental data. But if you're at a meeting of the Oshkosh Bullets and Beer Can Society and try to sell the boys on a bit of inductive reasoning in respect to guns, with only one specific instance to support you, don't blame me if they move you to a seat away from the hot stove.

For instance, the .222 Remington varmint cartridge which was brought out a couple of years back has since been setting the river on fire in respect to sales. Inevitably the question has arisen: Is it a practical deer cartridge?

I have been told of an instance wherein a game warden of one of the populous eastern states was called in by the owner of a large estate to trim the deer herd thereon. Seems the place was fenced with twelve-foot wire, and the whitetail had multiplied out of all reason. So, the owner quite legally wanted to sell some of his deer for meat, and trim the herd to the number his acreage would support. With factory loads in a .222 some fifty deer were neatly killed, executed with a minimum of mess or trouble.

So that makes the .222 a practical deer cartridge? No. The man with the rifle was an expert shot.

He did not have to hunt the deer in the normal sense of the word. He took only standing shots at close range, where he could place the 50-grain pellet as precisely as a surgeon might his scalpel.

How the cartridge does on deer when used over all sorts of ranges and through all manner of bullet-deflecting second growth would be something else again.

A lot of our more ambitious duck shooters jump from the specific to the general all too quickly, too. Having once made a phenomenal long shot at a bird swerving way beyond the decoys or passing 70 yards overhead they figure their smoothbore will reliably kill at such ranges.

So, they make like anti-aircraft gunners defending London during the blitz, banging away at anything that flies. Every now and then our ambitious waterfowler is going to pepper ducks and geese with a few pellets. They will not be enough to kill or even cripple right now, perhaps, but enough hits so that the bird eventually sickens, dies, and is a complete waste. One kill doesn't make a duck shooter, not when it's an ultra-long shot.

One miss isn't reason for condemning any sort of equipment. No more is one kill enough to establish a cartridge's proper medicine for everything from blackbirds to elephants.

Indians Win 4-2; Need Two To Clinch

ODDS, PRECEDENT AND ROCKY FACE CHARLES

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP) — Ezzard Charles makes an unprecedented third bid to become the first ex-titleholder to regain the heavyweight crown when he faces champion Rocky Marciano again in Yankee Stadium tonight.

The 33-year-old Cincinnati challenger tied Jim Corbett's record of two title shots—and failed as Gentleman Jim did — when he dropped a 15-round decision to the undefeated Brockton blaster in a stirring scrap in the Stadium last June 17.

His third attempt puts Charles by himself in the record books. He hopes to make more sensational ring history by whipping the 30-year-old power-punching champ and becoming the first former king to regain the crown.

The odds and precedent are against him. Marciano, winner of all of his 46 pro fights, 40 by knockouts, is an almost prohibitive 1-4 favorite to prevail. The champ is also rated a 5-12 choice to knock out the broad-shouldered, lean-hipped negro.

Charles was the first heavy to go the route with Rocky since Red Applegate finished ten rounds on his feet on April 30, 1951. Marciano has stopped 10 in a row since, including Rex Layne, Lee Savold, Harry Matthews, Joe Louis, Jersey Joe Walcott (twice) and Roland LaStarza.

The champ, weighing about 188 pounds, has boxed 112 rounds in preparation for his fourth defense in 26 sessions since August 10. Before the first Charles' fight, June 17, he worked almost 190 rounds in camp.

"I feel as good as I ever did before a fight," he said. "Maybe I was here a little too long for the last Charles' fight. I had some dull days about a week before the end. This time was just right for me."

Al Weill, Marciano's manager, said the champ hit his peak Saturday in his last hard drill. He expects to come in at 186 pounds for the return fight at Yankee Stadium. The Rock won a unanimous decision in a savage 15-round bout in June but failed to floor Charles.

Peninsular Battle

OSLO, Sept. 15 (AP)—Norway defeated Sweden 131 points to 81 in an international track and field meet at Mislelt Stadium Saturday night. Norway had a 71-55 point lead after the first day and won 16 of the 20 events.

SEIXAS' DRIVES TOO STRONG FOR JAPANESE STAR

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15 (AP)—U.S. champion Vic Seixas won without trouble but Ken Rosewall of Australia had a battle on his hands in taking second-round matches in the Pacific Southwest tennis tournament yesterday.

Rosewall, the top-seeded foreign player for the tourney, dropped the first set to Jacque Grigry of the University of Southern California, 4-6, but rallied to win the next two 8-6, 6-4.

Seixas, seeded No. 1 among the U.S. entrants, whipped Atsushi Miyagi, the No. 2 Japanese player, 6-4, 6-1.

Seixas had too much power for the slight but agile Miyagi.

Young Ashley Cooper of Australia won his second round match with a 6-3, 7-5 victory over Bernard Bartzen of Dallas, Tex. Sweden's Lennart Bergelin advanced 6-3, 7-5 over Richard Doss, UCLA student from San Diego, Calif.

Rex Hartwig, the Aussie Seixas beat to win the U.S. title, won his second-round match by a 7-5, 9-7 count over Myron Franks of Beverly Hills, Calif.

South Africa's Abe Segal lost to Gil Shea of Los Angeles, 6-4, 8-6.

Giants Clip Braves 2-1 Behind Maglie; Brooks Shut-out Reds To Stay In Race

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP)—The New York Giants pulled out a 2-1 thriller from the Milwaukee Braves Tuesday night to remain 3½ games ahead of Brooklyn in the National League pennant race while the Cleveland Indians whipped Washington 4-2 to climb within two games of clinching the American League flag.

Brooklyn shut out the Cincinnati Redlegs 4-0 as the scoreboard in Ebbets Field showed the Giants and Braves locked in a tight duel at the Polo Grounds.

Then, with the Giants trailing 0-1 in the seventh inning, Whitey Lockman punched a home run into the upper right field stands to knot the count. The Giants got another run in the eighth to clinch the victory and all but eliminated Milwaukee from the flag chase. The defeat dropped the Braves 5½ games off the pace.

The New York Yankees played at Detroit in the afternoon, and drubbed the Tigers 11-0, but Cleveland jammed four runs across the plate in the first inning of their night game with the Senators and went on to win behind the 5-hit hurling of Mike Garcia. That spelled an 8½ game edge for the Indians who need to win only two of their remaining nine games regardless of what the Yankees do.

Sal Maglie of the Giants and Milwaukee's Gene Conley hooked up in a tight pitching duel for five innings, until the Braves broke the ice in the sixth. Singles by Eddie Matthews, Andy Pafko and Bobby Thompson produced a run, and it looked awfully big to the Giants.

LOCKMAN HOMERS

But Lockman's homer equalized things, and the Giants won the game in the eighth on singles by Don Mueller and Dobby Hofman and three walks. Hoyt Wilhelm pitched the last two innings for New York and allowed nary a hit to get credit for his 11th victory.

Johnny Podres, registering his second shutout of the year, gave up six hits. The Dodgers scored twice in the first inning, then salted it away in the fourth on a single and Carl Furillo's 17th homer.

Al Smith opened the Cleveland first inning with a double off Chuck Stobbs, a walk to Bobby Avila, Wally Westlake's single, a double by Hank Majeski, a sacrifice fly and George Strickland's single accounted for all 4 Indian runs.

Two bench warmers drove in all the runs for the Yankees. Eddie Robinson belted home six with a single, double and homer, and Bob Cerv drove in five with two home runs. They looked like the Yankee sluggers who one year ago today clinched their fifth straight pennant, but time is running out this year. Tom Morgan allowed only four hits for his 11th Yankee victory.

YANKS PLAY DETROIT

The Yanks have another game with Detroit today, but the Indians are idle until Saturday when they open a 3-game set with the Tigers in Detroit.

The merry National League doings continue today and tomorrow between the Giants and Braves and Dodgers and Redlegs.

In other games, the Baltimore Orioles and Philadelphia Athletics remained deadlocked in their private duel to stay out of the American League cellar. Joe Coleman tossed a 3-hitter to beat the Boston Red Sox 3-1 and Arnold Portocarrero shut out Chicago 1-0 on 4 hits to ruin Marty Marion's debut as manager of the White Sox.

Red Schoendienst and Rip Repulski slammed back-to-back homers in the 8th inning to break a tie and give the St. Louis Cardinals a 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phils.

The Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates split a double bills, the Cubs taking the opener 9-2 and the Pirates the nightcap 4-0. Ralph Kiner hit two singles and a double in the opener to drive in four runs.

Freed Newsmen, Officer Bare Chinese Brutalities

BY FRED HAMPSON

HONG KONG, Sept. 16 (AP) — Bedbugs, brain washing and isolation in darkened cells — that was the Red China encountered by two American newsmen and a Brooklyn ship captain who returned yesterday, ill and shaky, from 18 months as prisoners of the Communists.

There were flies, too, and endless meals of rice.

"They brain wash you from time to time," said Richard Applegate, 37, of Medford, Ore., a National Broadcasting Co., correspondent, after setting foot on this British crown colony. "We had to tell them we loved Communism before we could leave."

COMPANIONS

His companions were Donald Dixon, 25, of New York, an International News Service correspondent, and Benjamin Krasner, the ship captain, all seized aboard the 42-foot yawl kert by a Red Chinese gunboat off Hong Kong March 21, 1953, while they were sailing toward Portuguese Macao.

"Any boat that is small enough is apt to be captured by the Communists," said Dixon. "They like to jump on small things. The machine-gunners looked like they were itching to shoot somebody who couldn't shoot back."

Krasner, so run down he had trouble focusing his eyes, said he was forced to sign confessions written in Chinese without even knowing their meaning.

For the last 10 months, the three had been confined in small windowless cells in a Canton jail.

Taken by the Reds to the border at Lowu station, they were met by a U.S. vice consul who brought them in his car about 40 miles to Hong Kong.

SAME SOILED JEANS

Applegate was wearing soiled blue jeans and a sport shirt which appeared to be the same clothing in which he sailed on his ill-fated voyage. Dixon, who seemed to be in the worst physical condition, was in slacks. Krasner wore soiled civilian clothes.

About 70 reporters and photographers gathered at the peninsula hotel in Kowloon.

"Let us go up to our rooms and calm down first," one returnee said. "We're too shaky to talk. We'll talk to you later."

When they returned after a brief rest, the three talked in turn. Their joy over returning to freedom almost turned to hysteria at times as they recalled their ordeal.

All three said they would withhold some facts about their imprisonment "because the three others are still in Communist hands." They were referring to Krasner's Chinese fiancee, Wang Ying, and two Chinese boat boys seized with them on the yawl.

Applegate gave this account of their movements after their capture:

DARK CELLS

They were taken to a Red Chinese island where their yawl ran aground. A week later they were taken to Swabue, in Kwangtung province, and thence to Canton, where they were imprisoned in a

DULLES FOR STRONG US PACIFIC DEFENSE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles told the world tonight that U.S. military plans call for maintaining in the western Pacific "powerful naval and air forces" capable of striking any aggressor.

He discussed this force as a mighty reinforcement for the new southeast Asian defense pact which he signed at Manila last week along with representatives of seven other nations interested in the security of the southeast Asian area.

The treaty does not require the United States to make any "material changes in our military plan," Dulles said. He added that the deterrent power created by the presence of U.S. forces in the western Pacific "can protect many as effectively as it protects one."

The function of these forces, Dulles said, is to keep up the capacity for "striking at any aggressor by means and at places of our choosing."

His report on the Manila conference was recorded for broadcasting tonight following his departure for Europe.

SAYS REDS FAIL

Dulles also labeled as "a total failure" what he called Chinese Communist efforts to "intimidate" some members of the Manila meeting by opening the bombardment of Quemoy about the time that the meeting was beginning. All the countries which attended the conference signed the treaty, Dulles emphasized.

He said the pact would now have to be ratified and backed up by genuine will to make it effective but he expressed confidence it would achieve its purposes.

"I believe that the Manila pact will, in fact, make a substantial contribution to preserve free governments in southeast Asia and

Augusto Muller Dies In Hospital

Augusto P. Muller, vice-president and general manager of the American Global Insurance Company, here died yesterday morning at 5:45 at the Guam Memorial Hospital. He was 46.

The insurance executive is survived by his wife, Mrs. Gracia Retullida-Muller, and three children. All of them are in the Philippines.

Dr. August Dargovics, attending physician, said the cause of death could be "severe liver disease." He said the deceased "had been seriously ill for a long time."

Mr. Muller came to Guam last January and joined the American Global Insurance Company. Prior to that, Muller was district manager of the Capital Insurance Company, with headquarters in Manila.

Philippine-born, Mr. Muller had been recognized as one of the top insurance men in Manila. He was recipient of a letter of commendation from the Philippine insurance commissioner before he came to Guam. His wife is the daughter of a leading Manila department store owner, F. Rebullida.

Atty. Carlos Taitano, family lawyer, said final plans for the disposition of the remains will be made by Mr. Muller's sister and mother-in-law. Muller's sister, Mrs. Mercedes Kingan, is working with

Programs, Speeches To Mark 167th Anniversary Of U.S. Constitution

Exactly 167 years ago today, the Constitution of the United States was signed into a fundamental law. It embodies the rights and privileges and the corresponding duties and responsibilities of American citizens.

Schools will hold Citizenship Day programs with appropriate ceremonies. Speeches will be delivered. But speakers will stress not only the advantages of US citizenship but also its attendant responsibilities, Dr. John S. Haitona, director of education, said yesterday.

Sept. 17 of each year was designated Citizenship Day by the United States Congress in a joint resolution approved Feb. 29, 1952.

Gov. Ford Q Elvidge, in a recent proclamation urging the public to give "special thought and consideration" to Citizenship day, said this day also is "in recognition of all who enjoy the privileges and assume the responsibilities of citizenship."

The Constitution, Elvidge said, which guarantees priceless freedoms and sets forth a concept of liberty, "takes on still deeper meaning in these days of critical international affairs."

The governor called on federal, territorial and local officials and various organizations on the island "to arrange for appropriate ceremonies" in which the citizens may join "for rededication to the great principles for which this Nation stands."

Atty. Gen. Howard D. Porter is scheduled to address Barrigada School students and faculty members at 1:15 p.m. today.

Father Reports Tiny Daughter Of Tragedy Kidnaped

PARIS, Sept. 16 (AP) — James Goldsmith, handsome young British hotel heir, charged tonight an "unknown person or persons" kidnaped the daughter born in the tragic climax of his runaway romance with a Patino tin heiress.

Statements from Goldsmith and police sources suggested the 4-month-old girl may be with a member or servant of the Patino family.

Police sources said there had been difficulties between Goldsmith and the fabulously wealthy Patino family over custody of the child, Isabela.

The infant's 18-year-old mother died in childbirth.

Goldsmith reported to French police that the child had been kidnaped from a hotel in suburban Versailles and told reporters she had been under the care of her grandmother, Mrs. Antenor Patino, since Sept. 1 when Goldsmith left Paris on a business trip.

Police sources said they believe the baby may be enroute to Spain or already in that country but said they could give no reasons for such speculation.

The concierge at the hotel Trianon Palace in Versailles declined to say whether Mrs. Patino was in the hotel. However, he told a reporter by telephone that he was speaking on behalf of Mrs. Patino and that she knew nothing about the Goldsmith child.

Goldsmith's wife, Isabela, died shortly after the child was born by caesarian operation May 14. Isabela, the daughter of the Bolivian tin king Antenor Patino, and Goldsmith made headlines early this year when they eloped to Scotland.

"The child has been with my mother-in-law at a hotel in Versailles," Goldsmith said when reached by telephone at a Paris hotel following rumors that the little girl had been kidnaped.

"Today when I went out to see her my baby and her nurse had disappeared with their baggage," Goldsmith said. "I have filed a complaint against an unknown person or persons charging kidnaping."

The 20-year-old British hotel heir married 18-year-old Isabela Patino last January against the wishes of her father. The couple later made up with the elder Patino.

Five months after the romantic runaway marriage in Scotland, the lovely, dark-haired bride was found unconscious in the hallway of her Paris hotel apartment. Rushed to a clinic, she gave birth to the daughter and died soon afterward of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Two Accidents At Fonte Bridge

Two traffic accidents within five minutes were reported at the Fonte River Bridge in Anigua early yesterday morning. Three persons, two unidentified, were listed as injured. The first mishap occurred at 2 a.m. Pol. J. T. Aguon stated in his report. The policeman said a Dodge sedan with license No. 8568 rammed the Fonte River Bridge on Route 1 in Anigua.

The driver and a passenger sustained serious injuries, Aguon declared, and were in no condition to be interrogated. He failed to report the hospital to which the victims were taken.

A checkup the whole day yesterday by Lt. Antonio C. Ada, chief of the traffic section, gave no clue as to the whereabouts of the supposed victims. Lt. Ada said the two hospitals said no accident casualties had been admitted.

Five minutes after the first mishap, another accident happened at the same place. A Dodge sedan, driven by William E. Olsen of Piti, bumped the rear of a car operated by Pantaleon I. C. Pangelinan, USN, of Sinajana.

A passenger in Olsen's car, Magdalena H. Quengo, sustained bruises on the right arm. She refused treatment. Pangelinan's car's damage was estimated at $125 while Olsen's vehicle suffered an estimated $325 damage.

Olsen was cited for "following too close," Sgt. C. G. Perez said. Police said Pangelinan was traveling toward Agana from Piti and upon nearing the bridge, he slowed down. Olsen, following behind, struck the rear of Pangelinan's car.

Saipan Reels Under Blow; Two Vessels Father Reports

Six Navy dependent housing quarters and the Bachelor Officers Quarters in Saipan were levelled off by typhoon "Lorna," ComNavMarianas announced yesterday. "Lorna" unleashed her fury at the island base in the course of her northwesterly churning in the Pacific.

Other navy buildings damaged were the enlisted men's barracks and mess hall and the exchange warehouse. Native villages also received severe wind punishment. There were no casualties reported.

A civilian motor vessel, the Miss Garapan, owned by the Pacific Navigation Co. was reported with a "strained bow gunnel on the starboard side," by Sherwood Wiseman, vice-president of the shipping firm. The vessel earlier was reported by the navy as in a "not serious condition."

The Miss Garapan was on a local freight transshipment to Saipan and Tinian when "Lorna" overtook her moored at the Saipan harbor. Wiseman said the vessel "did not suffer much" and the slight damage was "due to the pitching of the boat." It will sail under its own power and is expected here tomorrow, Wiseman stated.

Meanwhile, Ken C. Jones, president of the Pacific Navigation announced the motor vessel Hope presently is undergoing extensive

Reluctant Warrior Will Be Decorated

ATLANTA, Sept. 16 (AP)—A 23-year-old Atlantan who says he rode into combat under "shotgun" guard will be presented the Distinguished Service Cross tomorrow at Ft. McPherson.

Dan L. Gallimore will be cited for extraordinary heroism in Korea but, as he tells it, his road to heroism was a rocky one.

He said he went AWOL five or six times because "I didn't go for the army in any way.

"I jumped shipment to Korea twice," he added, "but they finally got me over there. Yeah, I was under shotgun guard. I went over with a whole bunch of guys in the stockade."

But in a desperate battle June 11, 1953, it was a different story. When a shell shattered Gallimore's rifle, he picked up another. He wiped out a group of enemy soldiers in a foxhole with a hand grenade assault and charged another group that had surrounded two American doctors.

DEWEY'S LAST STAND

BECAUSE Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York reversed himself in 1950 and ran for a third term after saying he would not, some skepticism inevitably greets his new announcement that he will not seek a fourth term. But there are signs he may mean it this time.

For one thing, the governor's language was stronger. He said he would not run "under any circumstance." This suggests a draft would fail.

Then, too, it is four years later. Dewey may have genuinely wearied of political campaigning after going three times for the governorship and twice for the presidency. Furthermore, it is certain his collection of enemies is larger now, both within and without his party. Not even the ablest executive avoids treading on toes.

SOME men assert that political ambition never will die in Dewey's breast, that he still would like to occupy the White House. Whether or not that is so, a return to private life is not necessarily inconsistent with such ambition. Dewey will never be wholly a private figure.

Dewey's contributions to his party have been large. At a time when it seemed to be popular to suggest that only one major party (the Democratic) was fit to govern, he demonstrated a Republican's high capacity for executive leadership in a political setting—New York state—second in importance only to the national administration itself. He maintained a high performance level through nearly 12 years.

Though he twice tasted the bitterness and frustration of defeat for the presidency, Dewey for the most part kept his balance and tried to cast his political weight toward the moderately progressive side of his party.

WHETHER or not one regards that as an admirable accomplishment, of course, depends on where he stands in the political spectrum. But it cannot be denied that Dewey was effective in exercising political power in behalf of the forces he allied himself with.

He managed twice to capture the GOP presidential nomination over more conservative elements, and in 1952 was the most powerful single factor in Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's successful fight over conservatives backing the late Senator Taft of Ohio.

Mr. Eisenhower and his supporters obviously will miss Dewey's heavy influence in their behalf. What this will mean for the President's future, for his position in the Republican Party, and for the GOP's liberal elements, the political sages can only guess.

It seems sure, however, that if Dewey sticks to his announced resolve a definite milestone will have been marked in Republican Party history.

Telescopically Yours

While our department of education is very much concerned about regular attendance of pupils and teachers, it also is proper that the personnel board be concerned with the safety of children traveling to and from school, either by vehicle or on foot.

Why can't the personnel board empower the director of education to use his own judgment to call off school sessions in case of inclement weather and allow teachers and pupils to stay home and at the same time carry teachers on the payroll as present for the day? Personnel board regulations regarding the department of education where children are involved, need scrutiny.

It must be borne in mind that danger in traveling is at its peak in rainy, foggy and windy days. Let's keep the children at home as much as possible in such days.

* * * * *

What are we doing for our farmers? This question seems timely. Almost every year a storm strong enough to damage crops extensively visits our island. The Guam farmer after the wake of each storm usually suffers most. But as far as we know, no assistance is ever given the tillers of the soil similar to what our mother government, the United States of America, does for stricken planters in case of farm disasters.

Has there been a survey of damages of crops in recent storms? And to what extent? Has the department of agriculture any recommendations to make to the administration and the Guam legislature regarding farm subsidies for storm aftermaths?

We are always talking about people going back to the soil, yet the farmer, it seems, is the most forgotten man on this island.

Public works engineers certainly must answer for the countless leaks in the $25,000 homes recently occupied by Guam government VIPs at the Memorial Hospital area.

Could there be a solution to drain the "middle-of-the-highway way lake" in front of the Long Barn Store at Barrigada on Route 8?

Dulles For Firm Pacific Defense

to prevent Communism from rushing on into the Pacific area where it would seriously threaten the defense of the United States," Dulles said.

Dulles rejected Soviet complaints against the treaty. He said it is aimed at no nation, only at aggression, and added:

"The fact that the Communists find that objectionable is tragically revealing of their ambitions."

8 NATIONS ALLIED

The Manila pact commits the eight member nations, including the United States, Britain and France, to act together to meet the common danger in case of aggression by armed attack, Dulles said. It also opens up new ground in diplomacy by providing that if there is a threat to the treaty area through subversion or "indirect aggression" the member nations shall consult immediately.

Dulles told his radio and television audience that this went further than any other security treaty that has been made.

Dulles said of the Quemoy attacks by the Reds:

"Apparently they hoped to intimidate the members of our conference and perhaps prevent some from signing the security pact."

Such use of violence is typical of the Reds, he went on. He recalled that bloody attacks were made at the climax of Korean armistice negotiations and in connection with the Geneva meeting to discuss peace in Indo-China.

RUSS STATEMENT

In respect to the attack on Quemoy Dulles said:

"This effort to intimidate the Manila conference was a total failure. All of the participants signed the Manila pact and the Pacific charter with confidence that in so doing they were adding to their own security."

He noted that the Soviet foreign office has issued a statement denouncing the treaty, particularly article 4 "which provides for united resistance to armed attack and political subversion." He said the Russians state that the Red Chinese don't like the pact either.

"The Manila pact," Dulles said, "is directed against no government, against no nation and against no people. It is directed only against aggression. The fact that the Communists find that objectionable is tragically revealing of their ambitions."

Dulles said that for the other seven nations at Manila, all of which have territory in southeast Asia, the treaty dealt with any and all acts of aggression which might disturb the peace of the area. But the United States stipulated that the only armed attack which it would "regard as necessarily dangerous...would be a Communist armed attack.

DANGER TO U.S.

"Any significant expansion of the Communist world would indeed be a danger to the United States," Dulles said, "because international Communism thinks in terms of ultimately using its power position against the United States. Therefore, we can honestly say, using the words that President Monroe used in proclaiming his doctrine, that Communist armed aggression in southeast Asia would, in fact, endanger our peace and security and call for counteraction on our part."

Dulles got into a discussion of United States forces in the western Pacific by saying that one possibility for developing strength under the treaty was to create a joint military force.

"However, I explained that the United States responsibilities were so vast and so far flung that we believe that we would serve best, not by earmarking forces for particular areas of the Far East, but by developing the deterrent of mobile striking power, plus strategically placed reserves.

NO CHANGE IN PLANS

"This viewpoint was accepted. Thus, the treaty will not require us to make material changes in our military plans. Those plans already call for our maintaining at all times powerful naval and air forces in the western Pacific capable of striking at any aggressor by means and at places of our choosing. The deterrent power we thus create can protect many as effectively as it protects one."

Dulles praised President Ramon Magsaysay for his work in the conference. He said Magsaysay had contributed the idea of the "Pacific charter" which proclaimed what Dulles called certain basic principles in relation to the right of peoples to self-determination, self-government and independence.

private house until last Nov. 5. Then, blindfolded and handcuffed, they were taken to cells only 6 by 11 feet with a slit in the wall of each for ventilation. They stayed there until their release.

Although the Peiping radio announced Sunday the Americans had been "deported," they were not told they were being released until Tuesday night. U.S. representatives at the Geneva conference had received hints from the Chinese there in May they might be released soon. Britain's former prime minister Clement Attlee intervened in their behalf recently when the Labor Party's delegation was in Peiping.

When the Red inquisitors learned Applegate had covered the Korean war, they questioned him repeatedly on germ warfare. He first told his questioner:

"That's a lie. There were no germs dropped in Korea."

But the Communist interrogator pounded his desk and yelled:

"You lie, and if you don't tell the truth, we'll kill you. Go back to your cell and think awhile."

He finally learned what the Chinese wanted from a translation of Russian stories they let get into the cell.

REDS WANT LIES

"I knew then what they wanted to hear, and I gave it to them," he said. "After that I started confessing to being in Chinese waters and everything else they asked.

"I found out the Reds wanted me to lie about germ warfare in Korea, so I lied plenty. I lied 17 pages of lies. They told me that even the wind from Honk Kong contained germs. I agreed.

"They said Hong Kong was an uncontrolled port but that they intended to change that soon."

Asked by the newsmen about Attlee's recent remark the Chinese Communists had got rid of flies, he said.

"Yes, there were flies and bedbugs and all sorts of vermin. I wonder why the British people don't throw that jerk out? May be that's an unkind remark, but there it is."

Emphasizing the insect pests, Applegate said he had malaria attacks twice and Dixon once. The Americans had their own medicine, but the Chinese took it from them, later giving them atabrine and quinine. Most of the time, Applegate added, his Chinese doctor had only "American penicillin and a Parker 51 (fountain pen.)"

NO KILLERS

"Once they told me the Chinese government did not believe in killing prisoners, but that I had refused to tell what I knew and they might have to kill me," he said. "For a while they had me convinced.

"I think the Communists have done a lot of good for China. They have stopped graft, opium smoking and drug traffic, but all at the expense of the personal liberty of the people.

"China is a police state — as far as I could see it was no different from a Fascist dictatorship. Before this happened to me I was a reporter, and as a reporter I tried to stay neutral in the cold war between freedom and Communism. But I'm not neutral any more. I'm going to get into it. I'm going to fight that tyranny any way I can from now on."

Krasner said, "I never saw a more stupid crew" than the gunboat men who captured them.

On his release, the captain said, the Reds told him this offered him a "good opportunity for the promotion of world peace, and I should try to make friendship between China and America."

Krasner said he would stay in Hong Kong and try to get his Chinese fiancee released. He has no idea where she is. Applegate also plans to remain here a few days.

Dixon said he would return to the United States soon.

drydocking at the local Naval drydock.

Another vessel, the Vigilantibus, owned by the Pacific Micronesian Lines, broke its moorings in the Saipan harbor and ran aground, the navy said. Latest reports stated the ship now is fire and is riding out the remainder of the storm at anchor.

The tropical storm brewed at about 550 miles east-northeast of Guam Sunday. "Lorna" as the typhoon later was named, came only as near as 190 miles east northeast of Guam Tuesday sending here rain-soaked clouds and fairly heavy winds. Guam had two days of continuous rains while "Lorna" waltzed around.

Picking up a northwesterly track, the big blow roared into Saipan Tuesday and Wednesday. Early yesterday morning the roaring mass of wind and rain was located midway between Guam and Okinawa moving northwest at about 15 miles an hour.

The Philippine Weather Bureau, quoted by an Associated Press dispatched, said "Lorna" was moving toward Okinawa with winds up to 120 miles an hour. The storm earlier was reported heading for the northern Philippines but veered northwest late yesterday. Weathermen pinpointed the typhoon's "eye" 650 miles northwest of Guam.

Dulles Off For Europe Parleys

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles declared tonight, as he boarded a plane for Europe, that he was going in quest of ways to restore German sovereignty and to rearm Germans in Dulles is flying to Bonn and London, where he will talk with German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

"I am leaving for Europe on account of the problem created by the French failure to ratify the treaties which would have restored German sovereignty and brought Germany into a European Defense Community," Dulles said in his airport statement."

He recalled that the U.S. Senate had unanimously resolved that in this eventuality steps should be taken to restore German sovereignty and to enable her to contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security."

In his statement, Dulles in effect apologized to other European Defense Community (EDC) nations which he will be unable to visit, he said, because he must rush back to New York City for the opening next Wednesday of the United Nations general assembly.

However, he said, he hoped to meet representatives of these countries, later this month" at a European meeting." He gave no details in disclosing this probable gathering of what he called "a number of interested countries."

the Brown-Pacific-Maxon here. Mrs. Gracia X. Rebullida, his mother-in-law, arrived recently for a visit here.

Mr. Muller had joined the Rotary Club only last week. He took the club membership classification of the late King Chapman, who died last July. Mr. Muller's wife and a child left Saturday to bring the rest of the family back to Guam. They had planned to stay on the island permanently.

An overseas phone call to Mrs. Muller in Manila was made late yesterday by relatives of Mr. Muller here.

Rotarians To Sell Tickets For Scout Benefit Raffle

The Rotary Club yesterday geared itself for the benefit raffle for the Boy Scout funds to be held on Oct. 30.

Club President Al Minot appointed a committee of three to handle the distribution of raffle tickets. They are Rotarians Felix Crisostomo, chairman; Fred Gutierrez, Jose Driskoll and Ed Newton.

Gene Krapf, club secretary, said two cars will be at stake in the benefit drawing.

The board of directors was convened after the regular weekly luncheon to map out club projects and the plans for the benefit sponsored by the club.

The club will hold a cocktail party in honor of President Minot on Saturday, Oct. 2 at 6 p.m. at the Surf Club. Minot will be leaving soon for a new assignment in Manila.

Rotarians George Selwyn and E. T. Calvo both gave the club brief accounts of the travel in the mainland. Selwyn, PAA manager here, recently returned with his family after a six-week vacation in Hawaii and the West Coast. Congressman Calvo discounted the talk about a "secret mission" during his four-month vacation in the mainland.

Rotarian Jim Butler made a report on the club's bowling team which entered into the Civic League torunament sponsored by the Guam Bowling Center. Butler said the members of the team are going to have weekly practice every Monday night at the bowling center in Anigua.

The members were entertained by a three-man band invited by the program chairman for the day, Rotarian Jack Smysen.

The tribute, in the form of a one-minute silent prayer, was rendered by the club in memory of a departed member, Rotarian A.P. Muller, who died yesterday morning. Muller joined the Rotary last week.

Guests during the luncheon were Lem Nelson, new chief of the Federal Housing Administration here, Gayle Shelton, president of the Guam Chamber of Commerce, Ken Hodges, Tom Osgood, Jack Kaiser, Dwight Look, Charley Turbyville, Sherwood Wiseman, Hac Odell and the three-man band, Frank Franquez, Josephat Peroz and Johnny Blas.

M'Carthy Backers Defeated At Polls

By the Associated Press

Rep. Norris Cotton's defeat of Sen. Robert W. Upton for the Republican nomination for a New Hampshire senate seat provided the major lineup change resulting from Tuesday's spate of nine primary elections.

Elsewhere, congressional candidates seeking renomination emerged victorious as party candidates were chosen in New Hampshire, New York, Vermont, Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Colorado, Utah, Minnesota and Washington.

A New York state convention and a Rhode Island primary later this month will complete selection of nominees for the November 2 election.

Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) didn't participate in the primary campaigns, but his name figured in some of them.

In Wisconsin, a strong McCarthy opponent, Fred R. Zimmerman, won GOP renomination as secretary of state over an opponent who ran with his party's blessing. And Dist. Atty. Harley Kelley, who waged a legal battle against efforts by the Joe-must-go club to oust McCarthy from the senate, was defeated by James R. Seering.

In New York, Rep. Stuyvesant Wainwright II, who campaigned on an anti-McCarthy platform, scored a 4-1 victory over William P. Shea, a strong booster of the Wisconsin senator.

The New York returns were watched also for their effect on the expected convention battle next week between Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. and W. Averell Harriman, former mutual security administrator, for the Democratic nomination for governor of New York.

Incomplete and unofficial returns, involving supporters of Roosevelt and Harriman, indicated Roosevelt lost ground.

Roosevelt himself was renominated without opposition for another term in the house, and other New York congressmen, among them Chairman W. Sterling Cole of the joint atomic energy committee, also won out in the primary.

USO Show Will Arrive Tuesday

USO Troupe No. 1189 is scheduled to arrive on Guam Tuesday on their final lap of a 20-week tour of military installations in Korea and the Far East.

The troupe, "Show Shop Revels," is scheduled to give 10 performances at Guam's air force and navy theatres.

"Show Shop Revels" features Frances Burns, young singing star from the Bronx, N.Y.; Don Hooton, comedian, singer, dancer, rope spinner and m.c. who was stationed with a radar unit in the South Pacific during World War II, and 22-yeor-old Elaine Terri, tap dancer who began dancing in her hometown of Philadelphia when she was four.

A unique banjo musical act is brought to prospective audiences by Mel Hicks. Ralph and Lorraine provide a musical comedy dance routine that includes acrobatic, ballet, modern and pantomine dancing. Ralph, in the navy for three years, started his professional career as a dancer while stationed in Naples, Italy. Both Ralph and Lorraine appeared in the Broadway production "Song of Norway."

Tommy Brent gives "Show Shop Revels" audiences something different as one of the country's foremost "Punch and Judy" puppeteers. A former welterweight boxer with 75 fights to his credit, Tommy has been in seven tours abroad.

Providing music for USO Troupe 1189 are Fred Billingham, accordion; James Hamlin, clarinet and combo drums, and Anne Drenak, bass.

"Show Shop Revels" is scheduled to make the following appearances: Sept. 21, Naval Station Theatre; 22, Radio City Theatre; 23, MCB-10; 24th, Ward Shows; 24, Turnage Agana Bowl; 27, Turner Theater; Theater; 25, none scheduled, 26 28, Naval Hospital; 29, El Camno Theater, and Sept. 30, at the Naval Supply Depot.

Starting time for all shows is 7:30 except ward shows which begin at 1 p.m.

POLICE NOTES

SHE HIT HIM—A closer look at a police diagram of the traffic incident near the Congress Building in Agana revealed Martin E. Gerber's car was the one hit by Miss Josefina B. Santos' vehicle Tuesday afternoon. Gerber's car had the right of way as he was fairly out of the intersection when the other vehicle cut in. He was driving towards Route 4 from the post office building. Miss Santos, police said, was given a warning. The accident was blamed on heavy rains and foggy windshield.

Surviving Dionnes Seek New Careers

MONTREAL, Sept. 16 (AP) —The four surviving Dionne quintuplets took up studies for new careers today.

Marie and Annette registered at the Marguerite Bourgeoy's college; Cecile and Yvonne started training as nurses at Norte Dame del Esperance Hospital in adjacent Ville St. Laurent. They are 20 years old.

Emilie, the fifth quintuplet, died of suffocation Aug. 6 during an epileptic seizure at a rest home in St. Agathe, Quebec.

Marie will study French literature and sewing while Anette will follow courses in music. Maxie returned home earlier this year after eight months as postulant and novice in a cloistered order.

TB Radio Series Begins Sept. 18

"The Constant Invader," a new dramatic radio series, sponsored by the Guam Tuberculosis and Health Association, will be broadcast for 13 weeks beginning Sept. 18 over the local radio station every Saturday at 3:45 p.m. The series is presented in cooperation with the station's mahagement.

"The Constant Invader," transcribed dramas based on the lives of people who have fought personal battles against tuberculosis, was produced by the National Tuberculosis Association for the use of its local affiliates.

The series combines stirring dramatic entertainment with information on how to protect one against T.B. Some of these stories could have come right out of this territory. Most of the problems they illustrate so forcefully are problems right here in Guam.

The fight to control T.B. dramatized in "The Constant Invader" is carried on in this territory by the Guam T.B. and Health Association through projects such as:

1. Health education through schools and communities. Health education is the heart of the TB control movement.

2. Case finding: Mass X-ray survey, to find the disease early and to isolate the reservoir of infection.

3. Recreational activities and other special services to the tuberculosis patients in the hospital.

Presentation of 'The Constant Invader" is part of the association's program to help the people of this territory to protect themselves against TB.

Draw Anti-Red Line In Asia, Knowland Urges

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (AP) — Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) says the free nations must "as quickly as possible draw a line in Asia and notify the Communists that if they cross it they must fight."

"When I say fight, I don't mean fight in another little war," the senate majority leader writes in the current issue of Colliers magazine, out today.

"The free nations should let Red China know that if she invades—directly as in Korea, or indirectly as in Indo-China—any territory we have undertaken to defend, she must take the consequences, not only on the violated land, but on her own mainland."

Knowland said "if we do nothing, the Reds will merely follow their own program for involving us in war and, they hope, crushing defeat."

All nations should be told, he says, that America "will take such action as our national interests require, and no foreign power will be permitted to exercise any veto rights."

"This policy is not go it alone," he added.

"It is go with dependable allies but don't be shackled by frustrated or paralyzed ones. Indeed the time has come for a renewed American declaration of independence."

Top Iranian Spy Nabbed, Jailed

TEHRAN, Iran, Sept. 16 (AP) —The Iranian army's top counterspy in charge of watching over the big oil refinery center of Abadan on the Persian gulf was jailed today, accused of spying for the Russians instead of against their agents.

With the total arrests in the two-week roundup of alleged Red spies in the military nearing 500, Premier Fazollah Zahedi's operatives locked up Capt. Gholam Hossein Garagozloo on the Russian spy charges.

The officer, as the army intelligence service's chief counterspy in the rich oil-producing province of Khuzistan in the south of Iran, headed a group of 133 men assigned to keep Red spies out of Abadan. He worked in plain clothes as "Mr. Moghadam."

Army intelligence sources meanwhile maintain that the military attache in the Soviet embassy here, Gen. Alexander Rodionov, was one of the key figures in the spy ring being rounded up.

The slowly unfolding picture of the Red spy network showed the total number of active spies discovered in the armed forces may exceed 1,000. Those held so far, with few exceptions, are officers in the army, gendarmerie and police forces. The stunned Iranian leadership has not even scratched the surface among the non-commissioned officers and rank and file of these forces.

HOMEBODY — Pretty Jeanne Crain, popular movie star, has been chosen "Miss National Home Week" by the National Association of Home Builders in Washington, D. C. She will preside over the nationwide celebration from Sept. 19-26. Jeanne was chosen on the basis of her homemaking talents.

Plane Victim's Kin Sue Airline For $750,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Sept. 16 (AP)—A $750,000 suit was filed in federal district court today for the death of William Kapell of New York, internationally known concert pianist, who was killed in a plane crash near Redwood City, Calif., last Oct. 29.

Melvin Belli, San Francisco attorney, filed the suit on behalf of the executors of Kapell's estate.

All 19 persons aboard the British Commonwealth Pacific Airlines Ltd. plane were killed when it crashed into a mountain on a foggy morning on a flight from Sydney, Australia, to San Francisco.

The executors, naming BCPA, now doing business as Qantas Empire Aviation Ltd., as defendant, alleged negligence in the operation of the plane and disregard of "known safety standards" caused the crash. In May, 1954, the complaint said, BCPA turned over to Qantas its operations between Australia and North America.

The executors said Kapell left a widow and minor children who have been deprived of his "love, care and support."

Mao Successor, Nation-Building Up In China's Peoples Congress Meet

TOKYO, Sept. 16 (AP)—Mao Tze-Tung told the opening session of Red China's first national peoples congress yesterday to "learn from the advanced experience of the Soviet Union."

Red China's ruler also called on the congress to "be prepared, in the course of several 5-year plans, to build our country, at present economically backward, into a great, industrialized country with a high standard of modern culture."

A Peiping broadcast said 1,141 of 1,226 delegates from China's 25 provinces, inner Mongolia and Tibet attended the opening meeting.

The congress before it ends may furnish a clue to the successor of the ailing Mao. Among its tasks is to select a "chairman and vice chairman of the People's Republic of China," as the heads of the Red regime will be known.

While it may mean nothing, Liu Shao-Chi, often considered the No. 2 man in the Chinese Communist hierarchy, was given billing second only to Mao himself on the first day.

Liu was called upon to discuss the new constitution, which the congress will approve. He praised it as the product of "nation-wide discussion in which 150 million people participated."

Liu also boasted that Communist China has "emerged as a great power in the world."

Chou-En Lai, now premier and foreign minister, also considered a likely successor to Mao, was listed seventh among the dignitaries upon the rostrum. But this too may mean nothing. Liu himself was mentioned third behind Mao and Gen. Chu Teh, commander in chief of the army.

The delegates were chosen in "elections" held throughout China. While they include some non-Communists, the delegation slates were hand-picked in Peiping. They were elected for four-year terms.

The supreme power in Communist China is supposed to rest in the peoples' congress. Actually, power will be exercised by the chairman and a state council composed of a premier, ministers, and secretary general.

Missing from the lists of bigwigs present were three prominent party members who reputedly were thrust into the Red doghouse because of asserted failures in the first year of the first five-year plan in 1953.

These are Kao Kang, the former Manchurian boss who was put in charge of the five-year-plan, then vanished from the news; Chen Yun a vice premier and minister of heavy industry, and Po I-Po, former minister of finance.

A fourth, however, turned up as secretary-general of the congress. He is Li Wei-Han, who was ousted last year as secretary-general of the government's administrative council.

PI To Refer Illegal Residence Case To UN

MANILA, Sept. 16 (AP) — The Philippine government yesterday decided to refer to the United Nations the question of illegal residence of an estimated 10,000 Chinese and Indonesians in this country.

President Ramon Magsaysay and his cabinet instructed the Philippine U. N. delegation to place the problem before the U.N. conference on stateless persons now meeting in New York.

Vice-President and Foreign Affairs Secretary Carlos P. Garcia, said there are about 8,000 Chinese and 7,000 Indonesians who have overstayed their visas or entered the Philippines illegally.

Congressional quarters have expressed fears there are Communists in the group who may attempt to disrupt the internal security of the country.

The Indonesians have entered the Philippines mainly through Mindanao island in the south, where they have sought work. Filipinos complain it has heightened the unemployment problem in this area because the Indonesians work for much lower wages.

S. Korea Snarls Jap SEATO Membership

SEOUL, Sept. 16 (AP) — South Korea said yesterday it will stay out of the southeast Asia defense alliance so long as its participation would be linked with Japan's membership.

Dr. Karl Hong Kin, official ROK spokesman, said in a statement South Korea "for the present at least is not interested in becoming a part" of the southeast Asia alliance although it supports the principles behind it.

"Japan has not clearly and unmistakably announced herself anti-Communistic and is even at this minute flirting with the Soviets and Red Chinese," Karl said.

Karl said "sponsors of SEATO have strongly hinted Korea's participation would be tied in with Japan's membership and contingent on full military cooperation with Japan."

Karl said Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was trying "to make Japan the most powerful nation in Asia — without assurance on which side Japan will eventually use that military might."

"Such trust must be based on a short memory," he added.

Greek Monarch Stages Cruise Off Magic Isle

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 16 (AP)—Greek King Paul's luxuriously staged cruise for European royalty around Greece's magic isles bids fair to pay off in a royal marriage.

A source close to former King Umberto of Italy says the engagement may soon be announced of Umberto's eldest daughter, 19-year-old Princess Maria Pia, to Prince Alexander of Yugoslavia, son of Prince Paul, former Yugoslav regent.

The prince, 30, and princess were fellow passengers last month on the liner Agamennon chartered by King Paul to give 70-odd members of Europe's royal houses a 12-day free outing and incidentally publicize Greece's tourist business.

Shanghai's New Red Look Under Mass Submission

* * * * *

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of three exclusive eye-witness dispatches by an "Old China Hand" who went back to Red China for an up-to-date look behind the Bamboo Curtain. His real name—and how he got in and out—must remain a secret.

* * * * *

By JOHN SMITH
(Written for NEA Service)

HONG KONG—(NEA)—The tremendous job the Chinese Reds have done in cleaning up and modernizing Shanghai surprised me on my recent return to that city.

The Whangpoo was once undoubtedly the world's dirtiest river. Garbage, trash and refuse bobbed about in it and the stench was unbearable. Today, in comparison to the old days, it is like a mountain freshet.

AT SHANGHAI DOCK, armed Reds like this one kept watch over author and others on ship.

Wharves, buildings and docks are in good condition. At the former Shell Oil Co. property, big tanks have all had recent coats of bright aluminum paint and a new cracking plant is being installed.

There is not as much shipping as formerly, but considering the so-called embargoes, there is a surprisingly heavy amount of traffic in the port. British gun boats will escort any ship desiring protection through the Chinese Nationalists' feeble blockade.

Radio contact is made from Shanghai to approaching ships the afternoon before they are to dock. Instructions from the port are that the captain of the vessel will be responsible for seeing that all cameras, binoculars, fountain pens and pencils are collected and locked up. A list of all monies, checks and jewelry is requested for inspection.

Twenty miles from Woosung at Port Buoy No. 1 (entrance to the Whangpoo or Shanghai River), we collected a pilot and four Army guards. The guards first locked and sealed the radio room in which all cameras, binoculars and such had been placed. They checked through the staterooms, but did not search private luggage.

The pilot was green, indicating that the old experienced pilots have been replaced. It took us from 6 a.m. until 4 p.m. to make the wharf, twice as long as in the old days.

This dock had recently been taken over from a British trading company and the stevedores were all new at their jobs. It is Communist policy, I learned, when taking over private enterprise to replace all personnel, whether it is a factory, office, bank or dock.

They do not simply fire workers. They shuffle them. Our crew of dock workers were far too pale for outdoor workmen, and it developed that many of them had recently been working in a bank.

The loading officer and I speculated that no doubt the First People's Bank of China now had a cashier who had lately been a crane operator on this wharf.

In this job-switch plan, I also learned, a worker's salary is never summarily cut. Instead, if the Red governors desire to reduce a man's pay, he is asked to take a reduction voluntarily in accord with the standard of the new job to which he has been unwillingly assigned. This is to prevent any chance of organized opposition.

While we stood on deck, a stern-faced Red Army guard with a tommygun stood at the gangplank, inspecting us and apparently watching for any infractions.

I learned that Dutch and British ships make regular runs to this port, but the most frequent customers these days are vessels of Scandinavian registry.

Crates of U.S. machine tools were on the dock, unloaded from a previous ship. They had been sold via England to Czechoslovakia and then to Red China. Egg powder and liquid egg yolks consigned to Marseilles and Hamburg made up the cargo of the ship I saw loaded.

At this point and throughout my entire visit, I observed generally that the Reds are far more efficient at most things than the old government was.

This, I believe, is simply an achievement of mass submission as a reaction to mass regimentation and mass discipline.

I could well remember the other side of the picture when I left Red China nearly two years ago . . . the hysteria of mass trials and mass executions.

It certainly has seemed to be an efficient road to success for those cynical enough to consider blind submission and mass discipline as the epitome of good government. That, indeed, the Reds have achieved.

Another ever-present component of present day Red China is the blaring of radio and public address systems 24 hours a day. The people of China eat, sleep, live, work and even love to the accompaniment of a constant chorus of Communist party objectives for the good earth.

Even in small country towns and villages, the loudspeaker dins ceaselessly and repetitiously "The Old Red Refrain." 9-9-54

US Troop Pullout In Korea Not Weakening ROK, Gen. Hull Declares

SEOUL, Sept. 16 (AP)—General John E. Hull said today that the redeployment of American troops to better strategic positions in the Far East "is in no sense a weakening of Korea."

"If there is further unprovoked aggression on the part of the Communists, the United States and the United Nations will come quickly to the support of Korea," the Far East commander declared.

"I can not believe the Communists are so stupid to think they could be successful in such an operation," Hull said.

The four-star general arrived here early this morning from Taegu, in South Korea, for a brief inspection tour.

Hull visited Pusan and Taegu yesterday.

In a short statement at Plainside, Hull told newsmen he had heard of the fears expressed on the part of the Korean people concerning the pullout of four of the six American divisions now in Korea.

"I am not concerned about the defense of Korea. The improvement of the Korean military forces has been quite marked and is much better today than at the time of the armistice," he said.

"So I hope the people here will not be too worried. The U.S. and U.N. have not abandoned Korea," Hull said.

The Far East commander warned that his statement did not mean he had any faith in Communist intentions. "They would attack again at any time if they thought they could succeed," he said.

"If they start unprovoked aggression again, there is no question as to the outcome," he said.

Yesterday Hull inspected rear area positions at Pusan and Taegu where the South Korean army may soon take over control from the U.N. command. He said the ROKs are "in a good position" to take over the job but he thought it would be a few months before they are given full control of the support job.

He planned brief visits today with President Syngman Rhee and Eighth Army commander Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor and will also visit the war dead body exchange near Munsan.

Yankee To Build $175 Million US Dreamopolis

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Most people have dreams. Stanley M. Siegel has a "dreamopolis."

That's a dream city.

At 39 Siegel says he is now ready to make his dream city come true — at a cost of $175,000,000.

He and a group of 16 syndicate teammates figure that with that sum of money they can build what they believe will be America's first thoroughly planned modern city.

It will be called Suffolk City. Siegel has assembled 2,000 acres for its site near Yaphank, at the geographical heart of Long Island, some 56 miles from New York City.

"I have been working on this for more than 6 years," said Siegel quietly, "and when I have finished it, I don't care what happens to me afterwards."

DOESN'T NEED HAIR

"The men who are in this with me need money like I need hair — and I don't need hair. But that's not a philanthrophy. It's just a mixture of good business and good works."

What he has in mind is an ideal suburban community of 6,000 moderately priced homes. It will be completely self-sustaining, having its own industries, schools, churches, and shopping centers.

"The New York area is one of the greatest reservoirs of skilled workmen in the world," said Siegel. "And most of them would accept less pay — and save money at that — if they could work close to their homes and avoid commuting into the city."

Siegel's scientifically planned town isn't just a drafting board project. He went into real estate selling at the age of 19, pioneered in the building and management of suburban shopping centers. In the last five years he has had a big hand in real estate transactions totalling $200,000,000.

UPS AND DOWNS

He has had his ups and downs in the business. Shortly before going into the army during the second world war he talked a plumbing supply company into taking 17 old Manhattan brownstone houses off his hand for $150,000.

"They did me a favor at the time," he said, "because if anything happened to me I didn't want my wife and kids stuck with the problem of handling those old houses. But now I kind of wish they hadn't done me the favor. The houses today are worth a million dollars."

Siegel now feels that real estate in old cities is stagnant and static, and that the best investments are in the outlying suburban areas.

'The modern industrial plants in the suburbs dont' look like a factory, and they don't create slum areas," he said. "They are built to resemble a high school, and they are well landscaped and have plenty of light and air."

Five years ago, Siegel said, the project of building a complete new city would have been rejected as fantastic.

"Today businessmen want to rent space in your shopping center before you can build it. What used to be fantastic is now accepted as commonplace.

Siegel expects to start building his dream community in the spring and finish it in about 30 months.

Non-Com Goe Real Gone

Latest addition to the cast of the Andersen Air Force Base musical show, "Real Gone," is Cpl. Billy Rockett of the U.S. Marine Barracks.

Rockett formerly worked with Hank Thompson, popular hillbilly recording star, and has composed several western hit tunes.

Arthur Prince, producer-director of "Real Gone," announced the show would continue to run through Oct. 7. Performances will be held at 8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Airmen Shows Theater in the Marbo-3d Air Division area. Admission is free.

AAFB Radiomen Make Long Shot U.S. Contact

Radio operators at Andersen Air Force Base's MARS short wave station are used to making "long shots" with their transmission equipment.

Sitting out here on Guam in the western Pacific they managed to contact the States, either by voice transmission or international Morse code, virtually every day.

And since the TDY assignment of the 508th Refueling Squadron from Turner AFB, Ga., here with 509th Bombardment Wing (SAC) the operators have another distant target.

Although Turner has been contacted directly a few times, most messages aimed at the Georgia base are relayed through WOTOD in Fairburry, Neb., or W5MN in San Antonio, Tex., or W7DRW in Bremerton, Wash. The Nebraska, Texas and Washington stations are contacted by Andersen's MARS station on a regular daily schedule.

In addition to messages for wives and families of 509th. 508th and other base personnel, the MARS contact with the United States is used to relay radio "traffic" from other Air Force MARS outlets in Japan and Korea.

More than 7,000 "long shots" messages go out from Andersen each month. The longest contact recorded by the local station was not to Turner AFB but to another part of the East Coast — station K2GFG in Rye, N.Y. The local operator talked to the New York station via the Morse code long enough to establish the distance record.

Open 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday, the MARS station attempts to send free messages to wives and families of base personnel any place in the United States. Any message turned in at the MARS office before 8 p.m. will go out the same night and those written after 8 will go out with the next night's batch of dispatches.

Two Sinajana Youths Making Good In Korea

Pfc. Roque T. Rivera, son of Mrs. Candelaria Rivera of Sinajana, is undergoing intensive training with the 24th Infantry Division north of the 38th Parallel in Korea.

He entered the army in March, 1952 and arrived overseas the following January.

Pvt. Thomas G. Blas, son of Mrs. Ana G. Blas, also of Sinajana, is participating in the 7th Infantry Division's Armed Forces Assistance to Korea program.

Blas and other men from Company "L" of the division's 31st Regiment are sponsoring a temporary classroom for a Korean primary school, pending construction of a more permanent structure.

Blas, a rifleman in the unit, entered the Army in 1951 and arrived in Korea last October 1953, after serving with the 43d Infantry Division in Germany.

Nationalists Continue Amoy Naval Shelling

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 16 (AP) —The lighthouse of the Red port of Amoy was demolished yesterday by Nationalist warships in the ceaseless attacks on the mainland, the Taipeh defense ministry said.

Great clouds of smoke also rose from Chingyu island, near Amoy, after a naval shelling. A communique said war planes in undisclosed force sank three Red craft near the Nationalist island of Quemoy and killed numerous Communist soldiers in strafing runs.

The ministry said planes and warships had sunk 180 military junks, 4 gunboats and 22 motorized boats since the "vest pocket war" broke out Sept. 8 around Quemoy, 110 miles across Formosa strait from Formosa. Quemoy is seven miles from Amoy.

The ministry figures covered operations up through Sunday. Also claimed damaged were more than 100 military junks, 2 gunboats and 4 motorized boats. Six military junks were captured.

Nationalist operations have slackened, however, and it is likely that future attacks will be of routine nature barring unforeseen developments.

Eden, Mendes Talk On Crucial German Problems

PARIS, Sept. 16 (AP) — Anthony Eden flew to Paris in a drizzling rain today and opened talks with Premier Pierre Mendes-France in an attempt to persuade France to accept quickly a new accord which would permit rearming of West Germany.

The British foreign secretary, citing agreement in Brussels, Bonn and Rome with his view that "peace and freedom can be assured by strengthening European unity," was met at the airport by Mendes-France, the man blamed by many advocates of the European Defense Community (EDC) treaty for the treaty's defeat in the French assembly.

They opened with a conference of about two hours at the premier's official residence, then took a brief break at 6:30 p.m. Mendes-France accompanied Eden to his car in a friendly, informal mood.

After the meeting, Eden told newsmen: "We have worked hard and we still have work to do."

Mendes-France told the reporters: "You must not be surprised that in the short time we have been together we have not been able to finish."

The French premier turned further questions aside with a promise there will be an official statement after today's meetings.

A French foreign ministry spokesman said Eden had presented his plan for joining west Germany and Italy to the Brussels pact setup under NATO as a means of getting German troops into the European defense bastion.

Mendes-France made a few suggestions and both men asked several questions, the spokesman said, adding: "The conversation was an expose of ideas, not an attempt to reach an agreement."

Presumably Secretary of State Dulles is flying to Europe tonight for urgent talks with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in Bonn and with Eden in London on ways to get West Germany rearmed. He is bypassing France and the other west European nations now, but sent word he hopes to see them on a later European trip.

In their meeting at Le Bourget airfield on his arrival from Rome, Eden greeted Mendes-France warmly. He commented that they had worked together to get the Indo-Chinese armistice in Geneva and told two score newsmen standing in a slow and misty rain he was sure the two could "find a working solution" to the EDC crisis.

Eden wasted little time getting down to business. He read a brief statement to newsmen at the airport, where he landed at 3:05 p.m., and by 4:30 was at the foreign office. Mendes-France, whose car had hurried on ahead, met him on the big stairs that lead up from Seine embankment.

Local STANVAC Office Selling New Kind Of Gas

The Standard Vacuum Oil Company has announced its agencies now are selling a new kind of gasoline — the new double-powered Mobilgas.

"It's the best motor gasoline ever sold on Guam and we feel sure our customers will be pleased with its performance," said E. G. Newton, local Stanvac manager.

Newton revealed there are two accepted ways of improving gasoline: the refining and the chemical additive ways. By the refining way, improved octane high energy catalyctic stocks are blended from new processes to upgrade the gasoline base.

New volatility specifications give better control of starting, warm-up and vapor lock control, Newton said.

By the additive way, the manager explained, special chemicals are added to the gasoline to cure engine difficulties. This unique combination of chemicals is called mobil power compound. In new double-powered Mobilgas, the benefits of both ways have been combined, Newton revealed.

The new kind of gasoline has seven features which give improved performance from the moment the starter is pressed, Newton said, until the ignition is turned off. By the additive way, the motorist gets pre-ignition control, spark plug misfiring control and engine formed gum control.

By the refining way, he gets improved octane, more miles per gallon, faster starting and warm-up and vapor lock control.

The gasoline firm head explained that engine-formed gum is a conglomeration of small amounts of unstable materials in the fuel systems of the engine. This condition, he said, is a serious problem in many modern cars, particularly when mechanisms become stuck with small amounts of gum deposits.

"Mobil power compound prevents the formation of these sticky deposits," Newton said.

When gasoline is to volatile (turns into vapor too fast) gas bubbles are formed before the gasoline reaches the fuel pump, Newton added. The pump could not deliver sufficient gasoline to the carburetor, and the engine stalls. This condition, according to Newton, is known as vapor lock.

Pre-ignition, he explained, occurs when carbon deposits in the combustion chambers of a car so hot that they glow and ignite the fuel charge before the spark fires. This condition causes loss of power and damage to the engine, Newton said.

It was learned all these adverse conditions are "cured" by the Stanvac's new kind of gasoline.

New Quake Jars Stricken Algeria

ORLEANSVILLE, Algeria, Sept. 11 (AP) — This once flourishing north Algerian city lay stricken and in ruins today in the wake of the most devastating earthquake North Africa has known in generations.

And as tractors and bulldozers dug in to clear the wreckage, the stunned inhabitants were shaken by new but less violent tremors.

French district officials here said 497 bodies had been recovered so far from the ruins of yesterday's disaster. An Algerian official said the dead, already buried by relatives and friends before authorities were informed, brought the total dead to more than 600 in the Orleansville region.

Unofficial sources said it was almost certain the final death toll would exceed 1,000. At least 1,000 are known to have been injured.

As the earth continued to tremble, the seismographic institute at Algiers reported 69 tremors within 24 hours had been recovered in the 50-mile-wide belt so violently rocked before dawn yesterday.

Hardest hit by today's tremors was Tenes, on the Mediterranean coast 40 miles north of Orleansville. Telephone and telegraph lines were still down, but first reports said there were no deaths. Damage was extensive.

'Airman Of The Month' To Get Award

Ten dollars in cash and a leave in Japan will be awarded A/1c Kenneth M. Jones, who has been named as the 3rd Air Division's first "Airman of the Month."

The 3rd Air Division board, composed of five officers and three non-commissioned officers, cited Airman Jones, chief of the personnel assignments division, for "superior performance of duties ordinarily assigned to a senior NCO."

His work, which includes monitoring of the airman rotation program for this Air Division and its subordinate units," calls for a sense of responsibility and maturity not ordinarily required of an airman," the board said.

Airman Jones, 22, has been in the Air Force since shortly after graduation from high school in Salt Lake City, Utah, in 1951.

Dr. Smyth Resigns From AEC; Ike Names Successor

DENVER, Sept. 16 (AP)—President Eisenhower "very reluctantly" accepted today the resignation of Dr. Henry D. Smyth as a member of the Atomic Energy Commission and appointed a University of Chicago atomic scientist to succeed him.

Smyth, 56, said in his letter of resignation that the United States has a stockpile of hydrogen and atomic bombs which, in the event of enemy attack, "would assure this country and the free world the capacity to answer with overwhelming power."

Smyth is the only current member of the five-member AEC with a scientific background and cast the only dissenting vote when the commission last June refused to lift Dr. Robert J. Oppenheimer's suspension from access to secret atomic data.

He plans to return to Princeton University where he was a faculty member from 1924 to 1949. A university spokesman said Smyth will become chairman of the board of scientific and engineering research in a few weeks.

The summer White House announced Eisenhower is naming Dr. Willard Frank Libby, 45, to succeed Smyth, effective Sept. 30.

In his letter to the President, Smyth made no reference to his dissent in the case of Oppenheimer, who was declared a security risk by the other AEC members. Nor did Smyth mention anything about differences with Lewis L. Strauss, commission chairman.

The President left this morning for five or six days of fishing.

Smyth was named to the commission by President Truman May 31, 1949, for a term expiring June 30, 1956.

He testified before the senate-house atomic energy committee in July that he felt there was an air of tension on the commission under chairman Strauss.

He joined other Truman-appointed commissioners in opposing a proposal to give Strauss legal position as the commission's principal officer. The move was beaten and the members retain equal authority on policy matters.

Smyth disclosed in his letter that he told Strauss last February that he intended to resign in the fall.

Yoshida To Step Down After Tour

TOKYO, Sept. 16 (AP)—A conservative leader predicted yesterday that Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida will step down shortly after he returns from his tour abroad this fall.

The 76-year-old prime minister, who has tied Japan's destiny close to the United States, leaves Sept. 26 during another of the many political storms that have beset his administration.

Hitoshi Ashida, former prime minister who is a leader of the Conservative party said, after talking to Yoshida, that the prime minister plans to designate a successor soon after he returns in November.

He said Yoshida told him he had no objection to making public the fact that he does not want to cling to power and wants to get out of politics "as soon as possible if the situation permits."

Yoshida refused to appear yesterday before a Diet committee investigating a shipbuilding scandal, saying he was too busy. The committee, dominated by opposition Socialists, then issued a new summons for tomorrow.

It was a question whether Yoshida would show up tomorrow or wait until his return from abroad. Opposition parties in a joint statement said it would be "insulting the Diet and the people" to put off the hearing until he returns.

The opposition fears Yoshida will bring back U.S. loans or British trade concessions to strengthen his popularity and prolong his rule, now in its sixth year.

The prime minister is untouched by the scandal. But some members of his Liberal Party have been accused of taking bribes from shipbuilders.

Okazaki Against 7th Fleet Intervention

TOKYO, Sept. 16 (AP)—Japanese Foreign Minister Kateuo Okazaki said yesterday the U.S. 7th Fleet should not intervene in Nationalist-Red Chinese fighting around Quemoy island.

The Nippon Times quoted Okazaki as telling a Diet foreign affairs committee session "clashes between Nationalist and Red China will not develop further if the U.S. 7th Fleet does not intervene in the incidents. x x x it is most desirable that the 7th Fleet does not intervene."

The foreign minister also defended American atomic and hydrogen bomb tests, currently under severe criticism by many Japanese.

Indon Party Puts Up Anti-Red Front

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Sept. 16 (AP) — Indonesia's largest political party, the Masjumi, has established an "anti-communist front" in the west Java provincial capital of Bandung, it was announced here today.

The mountain city of nearly a quarter million people is the stronghold of the major Moslem party, which is not represented in Prime Minister Ali Sastroamidjojo's communist-supported government.

A Masjumi spokesman said the anti-communist front is the result of the party's "formal determination it will never cooperate with the Indonesian Communist party on principal political matters." He added that invitations have been sent to political parties, popular organizations and prominent community leaders to join the front.

The spokesman said the Indonesian communists are "bent on the destruction of the nation's Moslems." He declared his party was in possession of evidence showing the Indonesian Communist Party (PKI) has issued "secret instructions" for elimination of Masjumi leaders.

He accused the party of being "strictly a fifth column of Soviet Russia which is striving for the downfall of the Indonesia republic in order to bring it under Russia's colonialism and slavery."

TEXAS LOOKS LIKE SW CONFERENCE FAVORITE

Written for NEA Service
By EDWIN B. PRICE
Head Coach, Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. — (NEA) — In the Southwest Conference, where a surprise comes almost as frequently as the expected, close observers seldom go for the unexpected. Too often, they point to Texas.

Ed Price

Unfortunately, for the Steers, 1954 is no exception.

Last year's record and returning personnel justify ranking Texas equally with Rice and Baylor—but not as a decided favorite.

Rice and Baylor rebuilds with lettermen headed by the great Dickie Moegle, reliable reserves and freshman standouts. Guard Kenny Paul, center Don Wilson, back Morris Stone and end Marshall Crawford are prized veterans.

Baylor faded last season through lack of depth, but the Bears will be as dangerous as ever and perhaps better prepared. First-rate veterans like tackle James Ray Smith, guard Clarence Dierking and halfback L. G. DuPre are still around. Center Bill Glass heads an array of exceptional new talent.

Look for Southern Methodist to be more potent offensively and virtually as tough defensively despite the loss of Tiny Goss, middleman in the league's toughest defense last year. SMU has experience and superlative backfield strength in Frank Eidom, Hal O'Brien and Don McIlhenny.

Abe Martin has been beset by

TEXAS HAS THE HOSSES

We lost few men but will miss the end play of Carlton Massey and Glimer Spring, especially on defense. Gone also are leading ground-gainer Dougal Cameron and all-conference guard Phil Branch.

Offensively, Texas should be more resourceful, with prominent backfield lettermen like quarterback Charley Brewer, Billy Quinn (shifted to full), Delano Womack, George Robinson, Bill Long and Chester Simcik.

Veteran tackles Herb Gray and Buck Lansford, guards Kirby Miller and Jim Rosser, end Menan Schriever and center Johnny Tatum make for improvement up front. Promising newcomers include guard Ben Woodson, ends Mort Moriarty and Mike Trant and fullback Don Maroney.

Rice suffered heavily from graduation, especially in the line, but hard luck at Texas Christian, losing a topnotch lineman and fullback through ineligibility. He still has top hands, however, in quarterback Ron Clinkscale, tackle Ray Hill, center Hugh Pitts and end Johnny Crouch.

Arkansas looks to new blood, numbering only five seniors. Crafty Lamar McHan has departed, but there are reports that sophomore George Walker might take up where McHan left off.

Texas A. and M. seeks a replacement for quarterback Don Ellis, who sparked the early season success of 1953. Bear Bryant likely will be shorter in numbers than his rivals, but the Aggies have a way of coming up for big games. There are some topnotch footballers still around—men like Bennie Sinclair, Fred Broussard, Don Kachtik, Sid Theriot and Marv Tate.

GOLFING SERGEANT—T/Sgt. Robert R. Bizzack gets a drive away on Guam's Armed Services Golf Course. Sgt. Bizzack, who is assigned to the 9th Motor Transport Squadron at Andersen Air Force Base, is a professional golfer and former assistant to Lou Worsham. The sergeant is an alternate member of the team that will represent Andersen at the FEAF golf tournament.

FORMER TEE PRO AT ANDERSEN, ON 2ND GUAM TOUR

T/Sgt. Robert R. Bizzack, a former assistant to professional golfers Lou Worsham and Andy Gasper and a champion in his own right, recently arrived at Guam's Andersen Air Force Base.

This is the second Guam tour for Sgt. Bizzack, who is assigned to the 9th Motor Transport Squadron, but the first time he was here he had no opportunity to play golf.

"We came to Guam right after the initial landing," Sgt. Bizzack said, "and the only thing standing when I came was one wall of a church in Agana."

Like many other professional golfers, Sgt. Bizzack began playing as a caddy in his hometown of Pittsburgh, Pa. He won his first tournament at 17, annexing a caddy tournament on his home course.

The sergeant joined the Air Force in 1948 and took his basic training at Miami Beach, Fla. From basic he was sent to radio school at Scott Field, Ill.

While overseas during the war he was stationed in Hawaii but spent most of his time at Guam's Harmon Field.

The first major golf victory earned by the sergeant was the Pennsylvania State Amateur championship in 1945. Other tournament victories have included the Alaska Command championship in 1951, the championship consolation flight title in the 1947 Air Force Tournament and many pro-amateur crowns. In addition, Sgt. Bizzack was medalist in the 1953 Holloman AFB tourney and finished second in the match play competition.

This year he won two pro-amateur tournaments in July before leaving for Guam. Since his arrival the sergeant has earned a position as first alternate on the team that will represent Andersen in the upcoming FEAF golf tournament.

The Debts We Sportsmen Owe

By WARREN PAGE
Shooting Editor

GROCERY bills we pay when we can, the mortgage payments on the house we get up every month or else—but there are certain debts every sportsman owes. These he can never repay in cash. Indeed, he can never quite square them with his creditors, who probably belong to a generation already passed on. He can only make payment to the generation now coming on.

When I was 12, like every other kid of 12, I was subject to bad influences and so inveigled into smoking cornsilk out behind the barn, to good influences and so forced to wear a stiff collar to Sunday School—and to vastly more important and memorable influences and so permitted to try a real fly-rod on the pickerel of Tinkertown Mill Pond.

Who could have predicted the adult effect from the experience of shooting a bone-jarring .45-70 lever rifle when I was 13?

It is to the outdoorsmen, who put into our childish hands the real things of hunting and fishing and put into our young minds the spiritual meaning of God's work in nature, that we owe our debt.

My own father was never a shooter or fisherman; his pleasure was in watching his youngster swat a baseball. But the dads of my two boyhood chums were devotees of the duck blind and the flickering spinner. They first took me into rifle and reel adventures.

Fred S.'s pop owned a cabin in the Plymouth woods, on a lake we instinctively preferred to call Sanquattanappepanoquash instead of its prosaic English name.

Seixas, Trabert, Talbert Score Wins In PST Play; Seixas Vs. Talbert Today

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 16 (AP) — The weather was warm but former U.S. champion Tony Trabert had plenty of trouble with Jack Frost before winning his third round match in the Pacific Southwest tennis tournament yesterday.

Frost, a Stanford star from Monterey, Calif., ran up a 5-1 lead in the opening set before Trabert, of Cincinnati, finally controlled an erratic game and won the match 9-7, 6-1.

Meanwhile National Champion Vic Seixas breezed through to win over Gerald Moss, the National Junior titlist from Modesto Junior College, 6-0, 6-2.

Seixas next meets Bill Talbert of New York who scored a mild upset by downing Sven Davidsson, the Swedish champion, 6-4, 6-4.

A couple of foreign entrants scored sparkling upset wins to go into the quarter finals.

Kosei Kamo of Japan, with his tireless retrieving play, trounced into the quarter finals.

Luis Ayala of Chile outlasted Gil Shea of Los Angeles in a grueling 39-game match to win by scores of 4-6, 12-10, 6-1.

The Australian ace, Ken Rosewall, advanced without difficulty, defeating Hugh Stewart of San Marino, Calif., 6-0, 6-4. Hamilton Richardson of New Orleans handed a 6-1, 6-2 lacing to Lennart Bergelin, Swedish Davis cupper.

Lew Hoad of Australia whipped his fellow countryman, Ashley Cooper, 6-4, 6-4.

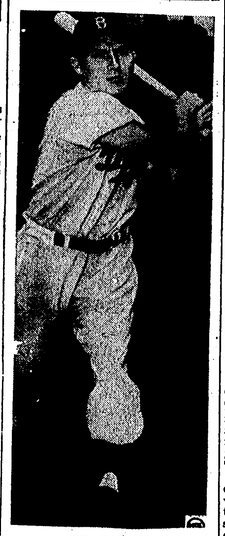
NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers climbed within three games of first place in the National League Thursday beating Cincinnati in the rain 10-4 while the New York Giants and Milwaukee Braves sat in the clubhouse and watched the steady drizzle.



GIL HODGES
. . . hits 40th

The American League pennant picture remained unchanged with Cleveland 8½ lengths in front of the rain-idled New York Yankees. The Indians weren't scheduled and the Yanks were washed out in Detroit.

Gil Hodges' 40th home run ignited a six-run Brooklyn barrage in the sixth inning against the Redlegs who had held the Dodgers to a 2-2 tie through the first five frames.

The Redlegs, fighting to hold fourth place, protested that the game never should have been played with the rain falling steadily but the umpires ploughed right ahead without delays.

Don Newcombe won his ninth game and allowed eight hits until he gave way to Jim Hughes in the eighth.

In addition to Hodges' homer the Brooklyn runs in the sixth included a three-run double by Pee Wee Reese who also scored when the outfield relay went into the stands.

The sixth place St. Louis Cardinals moved to within 1½ games of first division by whipping the Philadelphia Phillies 3-1. Tom Poholsky allowed seven hits. The Phils run came on a triple by Mel Clark and a sacrifice fly by Smoky Burgess in the sixth.

The Baltimore Orioles climbed out of the American League cellar with a 2-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox on Jim Fridley's single in the ninth. Fridley smashed on off the left field wall with the bases loaded and two out. Ted Williams went hitless.

TITLE CLASH SLATED FOR TODAY

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (AP)—A drizzling rain yesterday forced postponement until today of the Rocky Marciano-Ezzard Charles heavyweight title fight after Charles had weighed in at 192½ pounds — heaviest of his career. Marciano weighed 186½.

ROCKY MARCIANO
CHAMPION ROCKY MARCIANO still remains a 1-3 choice as the rain failed to dampen the bookies' faith in the Brockton Blockbuster. The champ expects to enter the ring at 188½.

The postponement was announced at 1:55 p.m., by promoter Jim Norris after he and all the principals had spent the morning pearing at the gloomy, grey skies and consulting various weather authorities.

The forecast for today was just as bleak—cloudy, cool with occasional rain.

If rain deals the fight another setback Thursday a decision will be made then as to the next possible date.

Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, was hoping to use Sunday as the alternative for the Yankee Stadium affair. It can't go on Saturday because of the IBCS regular radio-TV show that night from Washington featuring Walter Cartier and Willey Troy.

There were several difficulties about Sunday, too.

Both Charles and Marciano appeared relaxed at the weigh-in ceremony Wednesday and they conversed in Italian. Charles learned the language while stationed in Italy with the Army during the war.

Charles' weight today was seven pounds more than he scaled for the June 17 clash when he lost a 15-round decision to Marciano.

Marciano's weight was just about what he figured. He weighed 187½ for the last fight.

They won't have to weigh in again today. They will receive physical exams, again, however, in private and separately. The two went to different gyms to loosen up.

Neither the rain nor the announced weights brought any noticeable changes in the odds. Marciano remained a 1-5 choice to win, and a 5-12 favorite to stop his 33-year-old opponent. It was still 6-1 against Charles knocking out the undefeated 30-year-old champion.

EZZARD CHARLES
THE POSTPONEMENT saw the one-time loser, Ez, seven pounds heavier and if the weather doesn't clear up soon, a few days older than he'd like to be.

Carney Urges U.S. Build Nuclear-Powered Fleet

MARE ISLAND, Calif., Sept. 17 (AP)—Adm. Robert B. Carney, today called for a revolutionary nuclear-powered American fleet because "the Red star of Soviet Naval power has appeared, bright and rising, above the horizon."

The chief of naval operations, paying a nostalgic visit to his birthplace here, spoke at the 100th anniversary of the Mare Island Naval Shipyard.

The admiral said "we as a nation are not seeking trouble. There is clear documentation that we have leaned over backwards to avoid it.

"But we have also become aware that the only true security lies in strength, and this fleet of the future—an essential element in the scheme of national defense and effective alliances—must incorporate in its tactics and equipment every advantage offered by nuclear progress."

He referred to construction of the atomic-powered submarine Nautilus and said "the atomic submarine can circle the world again and again, in the depths, spending weeks, in fact months, beneath the surface, limited only by the endurance of her crew."

But he said United States' submarines of World War II vintage, along with destroyers and escorts, were getting old.

Referring again to the Nautilus, Admiral Carney declared: "It is my firm conviction that she is the forerunner of a revolutionary nuclear-powered fleet.

"Many more Nautili must be added to our fleet," he continued. "And, as a corollary, generated from this requirement, our nation must expand its facilities to meet

TESTS TERMED DEFENSE AGAINST ATOM WARFARE

MOSCOW, Sept. 17 (AP)—The Soviet Union announced today it has exploded another atomic weapon — to study its battle effect.

A five-line announcement by the Soviet news agency Tass and printed in the government newspaper Izvestia said:

"In accordance with the plan of scientific research work, trials of one of a type of atomic weapons were carried out in the Soviet Union during recent days.

"The aim of the trials was the study of an atomic explosion.

"The trials produced valuable results, which will enable Soviet scientists and engineers to solve successfully problems of defense from atomic attack."

WASHINGTON MUM

No further details were given.

Neither the Atomic Energy Commission nor the State Department in Washington would comment on the latest Russian announcement.

A year ago today the Soviet Union anounced its last successful tests of "new type" atomic bombs. The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission in Washington said then that announcement confirmed its own report of Aug. 31, 1953, that a fission — atomic — explosion had occurred Aug. 23 in Russia.

The AEC announced earlier, Aug. 21, that the Soviets had conducted atomic tests Aug. 12 involving both fission and thermo-nuclear bombs. Thermo-nuclear is the term scientists use to describe a hydrogen explosion. The AEC said these all appeared to be part of a series of tests.

H-BOMB REPORT

Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the AEC said at a White House news conference last March — in connection with American thermo-nuclear (H-bomb) tests in the Pacific:

"In August of last year the Russians tested a weapon or device of a yield well beyond the range of regular fission weapons and which derived a part of its force from the fusion of light elements.

"There is good reason to believe that they had begun work on this (H-bomb) weapon substantially before we did."

Dulles, Adenauer End Secret Talks

BONN, Sept. 17 (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer threshed out in secret talks tonight the problem of how to give the West Germans sovereignty and arms without alienating France. Dulles goes to London tomorrow but plans to bypass Paris.

Dulles and the German leader met for almost three hours in Adenauer's chancellery, then dined informally with their full staffs. U.S. spokesmen said there were no plans for further formal talks.

Results of the conference were a tightly guarded secret, but informants described Dulles as "not downcast."

Informed American and British sources in London said earlier that Washington has decided to support Britain's plan for quickly rearming west Germany within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). These same sources said the United States has reserved its position on the proposed new seven-nation alliance until it studies the details.

In Strasbourg, France, the European assembly also was talking of alternatives to EDC, but decided there was too much diplomatic activity to get a clear picture immediately.

Whatever Dulles and Adenauer hit on, it faces scrutiny by the British immediately and later would have to meet the crucial test of the French. They have a veto right in NATO just as potent in the final analysis as their veto which shelved EDC.

The Eden-Mendes-France agreement in Paris today could boost the chances for success in the Bonn talks, since one of the big problems confronting Dulles and Adenauer was the widening German-French split since the collapse of EDC.

REDS BASE BOMBERS ALONG ARCTIC COAST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP)—The magazine Aviation Age said today Communist Russia has based almost her entire long range bomber force—as well as many other army and navy air forces—at airfields along the coast of the Arctic Ocean.

"Like the United States, Soviet Russia views the polar regions as the main avenue for aerial warfare in the event of World War III," the private trade publication said.

It said the chain of Russian bases begins at the Kola peninsula, north of Scandinavia, and follows the Arctic coast all the way to Chukot peninsula facing Alaska, and then on south to Kamchatka and the sea of Okhotsk.

"Along this coastal area of the Arctic and the northern Pacific, about 60 percent of the whole Soviet aerial force stands ready to attack the American continent across the North Pole," it said.

"Only a few months ago not one of the 54 long range bomber squadrons known to exist in the U.S.S.R. was based in the west or south of that vast country.

"The network of airbases along the Arctic and the northern Pacific coasts today consists of 150-200 air force, guided missile and supply bases, and communication and radar centers."

Aviation Age long has quoted from secret sources of information behind Communist borders. The air force has conceded the reliability of much of its material.

The current article said, among other things:

1. The Russians are building one of their largest bases on Franz Josef land, 3,000 miles from Detroit. It will have a runway 18,500 feet long and 650 feet wide, covered with iron plates heated electrically.

2. One of the largest bases of the Soviet strategy bomber command includes several large air-

3 Hurt, $800 Lost In Car Accidents

A driverless truck "ran berserk," ramming three cars a la billiard ball fashion and causing an estimated $800 damage, near the J&G Junction early yesterday morning. In a separate accident, three servicemen were injured in a hit-and-follow bumping style near the former Piti power plant along Marine Drive Thursday evening.

Police said the quadruple-car smash-up occurred as a truck being towed by Manuel D. Hernandez of BPM snapped loose while passing in front of the Pacific Insurance Associates along Marine Drive in Agana. The momentum of the car sent it rushing to the left of the highway hitting a car driven by Vicente Martinez of Agana which was traveling on the first lane of the vehicle going the opposite direction.

The rampaging truck pushed back Martinez' car which in turn hit another driven by Joseph L. Garrido of Agana Heights, traveling on the second lane. The truck continued towards the side bumping a taxi on the road shoulder. The taxi was pushed to the left making a complete 90 degree turn as the truck finally rested.

Sgt. J. C. Baleto who conducted the investigation said Martinez' car was damaged at an estimated $500 worth; the taxi, driven by Juan E. Balanon of Asan, at $200 and Garrido's vehicle at $100. Baleto said Hernandez will be booked for failure to secure the vehicle being towed properly.

Injured in another accident were William Cline, Donald E. Campbell and Donald M. McDonaugh, all of NSD. The last two servicemen were released after treatment at the NOB disponsary. Cline was admitted for further treatment.

Investigation conducted by Sgt. J. C. Mesa showed DeDonauch was driving towards the Naval Base and upon nearing the entrance to the NSD drum lot, he bumped another car driven by Theodore R. LeFlore of PWC. The impact sent the car careening towards the right as LeFlore lost control.

LeFlore's car rested after a complete turn far into the side road. McDonaugh, meanwhile, also lost control and the car veered towards the same direction and rested in a parallel position to LeFlore's vehicle.

Sgt. Mesa said McDonaugh will be booked Monday for reckless driving, causing bodily injuries.

Dixie Solons Vote Out Public Schools

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 17 (AP) Standby authority to abolish public schools to keep Negroes and whites separated cleared Mississippi's legislature today.

The amendment to the state constitution faces a vote of the people on Dec. 21.

Gov. Hugh White predicted the people would ratify the amendment. But state leaders admit there is a strong undercurrent of opposition.

The house of representatives has whipped a move to use state funds "to fully inform the people of this satte of the provisions and purposes of the proposed amendment."

The amendment's opponents, joined by some supporters, shouted rejection of "being propagandized with state funds" to get the people's support at the polls.

Sponsors labeled the amendment a "last resort" measure to be used only if other methods fail to keep segregated schools despite the U. S. Supreme Court decision outlawing public school segregation.

The state senate gave the amendment the last of three required approvals today, one week after the house overwhelmingly passed it.

If the people ratify the amendment, it will be inserted in the state constitution at the next legislature.

Under the amendment, the legislature could:

1. Abolish schools throughout Mississippi by a two-thirds vote.

2. By a majority vote, set up a local option plan whereby individual countries and school districts could abolish their schools.

3. Sell, lease or rent state-owned property to private individuals or corporations.

4. Pay tuition for students to attend private schools.

Ex-MIG Pilot Enrolls At Delaware

NEWARK, Del., Sept. 17 (AP)—Kenny No, the former Communist pilot who flew a MIG15 jet fighter from out behind Korea's iron curtain a year ago — and collected a $100,000 reward — enrolled this week as a freshman at the University of Delaware.

From Gen. Mark Clark, the man responsible for the award, came hearty congratulations.

"He's doing the right thing," Gen. Clark told the Associated Press by telephone from Charleston, S.C., where he heads the military school, the Citadel.

"It's wonderful that he is using the money wisely—and I am sure he has good advice.

"He has seen Communism — knows what it is to have to live under it. I send him my warm regards and wish him all kinds of success."

The world's most unusual college freshman lined up with 575 other beginners at registration desks yesterday, in this quiet college town 12 miles southwest of Wilmington.

He donned the blue-and-gold class-of-58 cap which freshmen traditionally have been required to wear on or off the campus.

He moved into one of the ivy clad red brick "frosh" dormitories overlooking the university's pleasant, tree lined lawns. As a freshman, he may not own or drive an automobile. He'll learn about other underclassmen's limitations as he goes along.

At his dormitory the huskily built, broad faced 22-year-old Korean was found in typically collegiate slacks and sport shirt. He was polite, agreeable — and reticent. He lived up well to the "No" part of his name. No pictures, no story, no comment.

"I wish very much to be considered as any other student," No said. "I don't like for people to read about me and see my face in the newspapers. So I would rather not talk if you are a writer."

The former British prime minister is scheduled to spend seven hours in Honolulu during a Qantas Airlines layover between New Zealand and Canada.

'Disappointed' Envoy Seeks More U.S. Aid

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP)—Australian Foreign Minister Richard Casey flew to Washington tonight seeking massive American military aid for the newly formed Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO).

Diplomatic informants said Casey left London somewhat disappointed over Britain's attitude toward the eight-nation alliance signed in Manila earlier in the month.

PAA Announces New Schedules

A new schedule of arrivals and departures of Pan American Airways planes from the mainland and Manila was announced by the airline's branch office yesterday. It will take effect beginning Sept. 26.

Planes from the mainland are scheduled to arrive every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday at 11:30 p.m. They leave for Manila on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays at 1 a.m.

Flights from Manila are expected every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 7 a.m. Their departures for the mainland are scheduled at 8:30 a.m. the same day.

The new schedule is effective until further notice, G. H. Selwyn, PAA representative announced. The traffic office will be opened for further inquiry on flight arrivals and departures, Selwyn said. The phone numbers are 14-8138 and 14-8259, he added.

South Korean Mission Leaves DC

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP) — The South Korean mission whose negotiations increased United States military and economic aid for Korea left for home today declaring its six weeks talks "have not yet produced completely satisfactory results."

In a formal statement, former Premier Paik Too Chin, the Korean economic coordinator and spokesman for the mission said:

"We are now returning to Seoul with an interim report on our discussions here; a final agreement shall have to be reached somehow in Seoul at a later date."

Paik left by plane for Los Angeles and Honolulu where he will be joined by Adm. Sohn Won Il, South Korean minister of defense.

American officials said the agreement still required decisions in the field before it could be concluded. The exact terms of the negotiation were not disclosed, but previously authoritative sources said military and economic aid would amount to 700 million dollars this fiscal year.

Paik said the amount of military and economic aid and the degree of expansion in the Korean air, navy and marine corps program "have been indicated to us with the attached provision that several conditions be complied with by our government."

"Also the United States government has recommended development of a 10 division reserve force in order to increase effectiveness of the Republic of Korea army, although the Korean people are most anxious to expand the ROK army with the addition of more regular, fully-equipped divisions."

Paik said he was "deeply grateful" for all the assistance pledged to South Korea and promised it would be used effectively and to the mutual satisfaction of both governments.

"Every dolar invested in Korea wil yield heavy dividends in the free world's struggle against world Communism," he said.

Auditor Leaves For Mainland

Charles Pringle, last member of the Arthur Young auditors here, left yesterday by PAA for Los Angeles. He and others who left before him had ben auditing the Guam government books.

Pringle was seen off the airport by Robert Honda, chief accountant of the local finance department.

Clarence Powers, formerly of the Guam Tire & Supply departed for his home in the mainland. He was seen off at the airport by Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Marks and Phil Schepps.

Joe Sternberg is returning to his home in Los Angeles after spending four months vacation here with his folks. Sternberg has been living in Los Angeles, Calif., for the past 28 years. He is employed by the Goodyear Tire Co.

Sternberg was seen off by his brother, Vicente Garrido, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Garrido, and Fred Aflague.

Norman Simmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. E.E. Simmons of Manila Trading Co. here, left to resume his studies at Claremont Men's College, Claremont, Calif. He will enter his junior year in school.

Norman was seen off at the airport by his parents and Mr. and Mrs. Vance O. Smith of Tamuning.

Mrs. Paul Muller, wife of the vice-president of the Global Insurance Co., who died Thursday, returned yesterday morning by PAA to make arrangements for the return of her husband's body to the Philippines. Mrs. Muller was met at the airport by her mother, Mrs. Gracia Rebullida, and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Kingan of BPM.

Storm Off Iwo

TOKYO, Sept. 17 (AP)—Typhoon No. 14 with winds of 97 miles an hour at its center was spotted 300 miles southwest of Iwo Jima.

The central weather bureau said the storm was heading northwest at 20 miles per hour and it was not known whether the new typhoon will hit the main islands of Japan.

A near-final tally indicates that 81 persons were killed and 257 were injured by typhoon June which ripped through southern and western Japan early this week, the police board reports.

Another 75 persons are listed as missing.

The police survey shows 1,488 houses destroyed and 4,232 damaged by the storm. Also, 137,927 acres of rice paddies and farmland were washed away, 336 bridges destroyed and 119 ships sunk.

First West Coast Nuclear-Powered Ship Yard Chosen

VALLEJO, Calif., Sept. 17 (AP) — The U.S. Navy announced today that Mare Island navy yard has been selected as the first yard on the Pacific Coast for the repair and construction of nuclear powered ships.

It will be the third such yard in the world, all three in the United States.

The announcement was made by Rear Adm. Wilson D. Leggett, Jr., chief of bureau of ships, as a highlight of the opening day of the Mare Island centennial celebration.

Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, hinted broadly at Mare Island's selection as a nuclear installation before introducing Admiral Leggett.

Leggett drew round after round of applause from more than 3,000 dinner guests gathered in a reconverted warehouse when he said:

"It is my privilege to announce that Mare Island has been selected as the first yard on the Pacific Coast to develop capabilities for the repair or construction of nuclear-powered ships."

Admiral Carney, speaking of what is believed to be the world's first atomic-powered submarine, the Nautilus, said, "the atomic submarine will have new offensive roles to play — for example as guided missile launcher and radar picket vessels for our fast carrier task forces.

"What I have said about our submarines is equally applicable to our destroyers and escorts. They too are rapidly growing older, and an energetic replacement building program has now become a necessity which can no longer be deferred.

"It is my firm conviction that she (the Nautilus) is the forerunner of a revolutionary nuclear-powered fleet, not restricted to nuclear-powered submarines."

Admiral Leggett said:

"Today, our naval supremacy and the security of the free world are both gravely threatened. We are engaged in a race for technical superiority which we cannot afford to lose. Thanks to organizations like Mare Island we have a good lead in this race."

The other two yards in the U.S. selected for work on nuclear-powered craft are the Portsmouth, N.H. naval shipyard and the electric boat division of General Dynamics at Groton, Conn.

A-Bomb Survivor Sworn To US Army

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17 (AP) — Kazumi Salamaza, 24, a survivor of the atom bombing of Hiroshima, was sworn into the U.S. Army today and said he enlisted "because I feel it is my duty as an American citizen."

Salamaza lost his parents and a sister in the atom blast nine years ago. He suffered severe burns himself and was in a hospital for two months. He was a mile away from ground center at the time of the blast.

Officials said Salamasa will go to the army's language school at Monterey, Calif.

He was born in Seattle, Wash., went to Japan with his parents when he was eight and returned to the United States in 1948.

JAP SHIPS TO DAIREN

TOKYO, Sept. 17 (AP) — Japanese ships will begin calling at the Manchurian port of Dairen this month for the first time since World War II, the Yamashita Steamship Co. said today.

The freighter Seikyo Maru will be first to call at the big Red port, reaching there on Sept. 23.

Eden Gets Mendes' Nod On New Plan

PARIS, Sept. 17 (AP) — Premier Pierre Mendes-France agreed today to British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's emergency plan for a seven-nation west European defense alliance including Britain.

The new alliance would include Britain, France, a rearmed west Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. There also were widespread reports here it would be expanded to include Norway and Denmark during London talks.

The United States and Canada also are expected to attend the London talks.

The agreement came after two-day talks climaxing Eden's flying swing through western Europe capitals to save European unity after the French killed the EDC, which had not included Britain.

Eden and Mendes-France issued a joint communique today saying they were fully agreed on the importance of strengthening the Atlantic community and achieving unity "in which the United Kingdom will play a full part."

A French foreign ministry spokesman said that meant agreement on the basic idea of Eden's plan. Mendes-France himself announced the forthcoming London talks. The French premier said diplomats will try to iron out differences before the London meeting.

Eden, back in London tonight, indicated to reporters he still did not have full American and French support for all phases of his program for rearming west Germany. He said a "wide measure of agreement" was reached, but warned that "a good deal of work remains to be done."

The Reds are building airfields and weather stations on floating ice islands, have equipped aircraft with braking parachutes, recently started using thrust reversers for braking purposes, have made great progress in de-icing methods, and have fuels and lubricants specially suited for polar air operations.

5. They have an airborne division on eight airfields on Sakhalin island, north of Japan.

Aviation Age said the turboprop (jet engines driving propellers) MI-13 has a range varying from 3,700 to 9,900 miles and "will become the main striking weapon of the Reds' long range bomber force." It estimated that the strategic command contained 400 modern and 700 older-type four-engine bombers.

Admiral Confirms Presence Of Red Subs In Pacific

VALLEJO, Calif., Sept. 17 (AP) — The chief of U.S. naval operations told a press conference today that it is known Russia has submarines in the western Pacific but declined to say whether any are operating in the Formosa strait.

Adm. Robert B. Carney, here for the centennial of Mare Island Navy shipyard, was asked specifically about the possibility of Russian subs in the 110-mile strait between Formosa and the Red China mainland where the U.S. Seventh Fleet stands to thwart announced intentions of the Red Chinese to "liberate" Chiang Kai-Shek's stronghold.

"I would have no comment on that," Adm. Carney replied to questions, "except we know they (the Russians) have submarines in that area."

He would not elaborate on what he meant by "that area."

Adm. Carney said he had no particular reason to be pessimistic about Formosa. He would make no comment relative to Quemoy.

this up-coming need. x x x

"We are aware of the fact that the United States no longer has a monopoly on matters nuclear. The country is less generally aware of the fact, although it is also true, that we and our allies no longer have a monopoly on the seven seas.

"We are no longer sitting pretty as the sole custodian of nuclear secrets nor as the unchallenged masters of the oceans. x x x

"The red star of the Soviet naval power has appeared, bright and rising, above the horizon. This matter has not been neglected and the congress has already authorized significant additions and modernizations for the fleet.

"I merely point out the fact that this is not a time for complacency and our best brains and our best efforts are needed if we are to keep abreast of the times and ahead of the world at sea."

Frank D. Perez & Brothers is undertaking construction of the building.

Mrs. Erma Barton, wife of KUAM's announcer John Barton, was persuaded by friends last Thursday night to take over the mike at the Rabeth. After her first song, she not only took over the mike, but everyone else present in the downtown Agana night club. All were spellbound with her lilting songs. The numerous rounds of applause from the audience made her dominate the place for the entire evening.

Laos Accuses Reds

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP)—The Laos legation protested today that Communist Viet Minh forces have made "violent attacks" on Laos within the past week, in violation of the Indo-Chinese armistice.

The legation said Laos has filed a protest with the international control commission set up to supervise the armistice.

US Key To Victory

PARIS, Sept. 17 (AP) — Brig. Gen. Chisholm De Castres, who commanded at Dien Bien Phu, said today "a very massive intervention of the American air force" could have saved the fortress.

He told a news conference American intervention could have changed the face of the battle on the condition that it would have taken place in the early days of the siege."

De Castres said his fortress fell because of lack of ammunition combined with bad weather conditions which prevented French planes from dropping reinforcements and material and from destroying Viet Minh guns.

Giants Open 4 1/2 Game Gap

Hand Milwaukee Pair Of 6-2 Losses As Brooklyn Bows To Cincinnati 9-3

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (AP) — The New York Giants buried Milwaukee's pennant hopes in the mud of the Polo Grounds yesterday and took a commanding 4½ game lead over the second place Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Giants beat the third place Braves twice by the same score, 6-2, and pushed the Milwaukee club 7½ games behind with only 10 left to play. The New Yorkers also added a length and a half to their margin over the Dodgers who bowed to Cincinnati, 9-3.

The season ends a week from Monday and any combination of five New York victories and Brooklyn losses will clinch the flag for the Giants.

The only other major league action saw the New York Yankees keep alive their mathematical chances in the American League by beating Detroit 4-2. The Yanks trail Cleveland by eight with nine to play.

26th victory and his fourth in succession. Monte Irvin drove in four runs with a double, a single and a sacrifice fly.

Mary Grissom, one of Leo Durocher's regular bull pen brigade, made his first start since May 1 in the second game and allowed only two runs before giving way to Floyt Wilhelm with two on and one out in the sixth. Wilhelm closed out the sixth when Johnny Logan lined into a double play, then retired the last nine men in order.

Willie Mays hit his 40th home run and two singles, raising him into a tie for the batting lead with Duke Snider of the Dodgers at .343.

Joe Nuxhall, the only lefthander to whip Brooklyn in Ebbets Field this season, did it for the second time although he gave up 10 hits. It was his 11th victory against four defeats. Wally Post, Bobby Adams and Ted Kluszewski homered for the Redlegs. Big Klu's blast was his 49th, tops in both leagues. Post drove in four runs.

Carl Erskine lasted only into the third inning against the heavy hitting by the Reds.

Yogi Berra's three-run homer in the first inning carried the Yankees to victory at Detroit. Rookie Bob Grim won his 19th game, scattering six hits.

Slate PST Play Semi's Sunday; Trabert Shines

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 17 (AP)—Defending champion Ken Rosewall of Australia yesterday won his way into the men's singles semi-finals of the Pacific Southwest Tennis Tournament by defeating Hamilton Richardson of New Orleans, 6-3, 2-6, 6-1, 6-2.

Rosewall will play former national champion Tony Trabert tomorrow.

Trabert flashed his best form of the tournament Thursday to oust Kosei Kamo, the champion of Japan, in the quarter-finals.

Trabert, of Cincinnati, won in quick fashion, 6-3, 6-0, 6-1. His controlled shots were just too much for the agile Kamo who Thursday pulled the upset of the tournament by defeating Australia's Rex Hartwig, runner-up in the recent U.S. tournament.

Trabert's big serve was one of his best weapons while his forehand rattled down the sidelines with what appeared to be his old time sting. Up to today, Trabert had won twice in this tournament but in both outings appeared off form.

The other two men's singles' semi-finalists will be the winners of today's quarter-finals: Vic Seixas of Philadelphia vs. Billy Talbert of New York, and Lew Hoad of Australia vs. Luis Ayala of Chile.

Richardson and Rosewall put on two close and hard-fought sets today but the short, dark-haired Australian displayed more control in the last two sets.

ROCKY-CHARLES BOUT RAINED OUT 2ND TIME

BY JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (AP) — The Rocky Marciano-Ezzard Charles' heavyweight title match was postponed because of rain for the second time yesterday and rescheduled for 0800 GMT Saturday at Yankee Stadium.

Th new starting time, a half hour later than originally planned, was the result of a conflict with a New York Giants-Philadelphia Phillies' night baseball game across the Harlem river at the Polo Grounds.

Jim Norris, I.B.C. president, set the new date without realizing there was a conflict with a night game. After much telephoning and several conferences, it was announced the Giants had given their "reluctant consent" to the fight at a later hour.

VIC SEIXAS
meets Talbert Today

If it should rain out the show a third time, it will be held Sunday. After that, don't ask. The Yankees will be home all next week, using their own stadium.

The weatherman wasn't too optimistic about today with a forecast of "partly cloudy."

The 30-year-old champion and the 33-year-old challenger, getting his third chance to win back the crown he once held, went back to work after the postponement. They will have to weigh-in again.

Jake Mintz, one of Charles' comanagers, said he didn't think the Cincinnati Negro would be any lighter than the 192½ he scaled before. The champ from Brockton, Mass., probably will be a little heavier than his 188½ at the first weigh-in.

Marciano remained a 5 to 1 favorite to retain his title in his fourth defense with practically no betting on the outcome. In fact, it was 12-5 that Charles wouldn't last the 15-round route and 6-1 he wouldn't stop Rocky. The champ didn't drop Charles once in 15 rounds in the first match, June 17.

It was pouring rain and thundering and the bout was postponed shortly after noon. An hour later the rain let up and both the Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers were able to play their important ball games on slippery fields.

Allies Call New Meet On Europe

9-POWER TALKS TO THRESH OUT GERMAN ISSUE

LONDON, Sept. 19 (AP)—The United States and Britain today called a nine-power parley on west European defense for on or about Sept. 28. They showed determination to bring west Germany into the Atlantic alliance quickly despite French fears.

The conference will take up a new British-American proposal to put west German divisions on the defense line against Communist aggression within the framework of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

The foreign office said the showdown meeting on the German rearmament crisis was arranged last night during U.S. Secretary of State Dulles' flying visit to the British capital. It will take place in London at the foreign ministers level.

BRITISH INVITATION

The Churchill government is sending out formal invitations to the United States, Canada and the six members of the French-scuttled European Defense Community (EDC) which originally was designed to rearm the Germans. The EDC nations are: France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, and west Germany.

British officials said the ministers of the United States, Britain and France will meet at the same time with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to consider ways of ending the western big three occupation and granting sovereignty to the German federal republic.

Sizing up chances of success at the parley, Dulles said upon his arrival in the United States from Bonn and London:

"It is apparent there is no adequate substitute for the European Defense Community. Nevertheless we must do the best we can."

Dulles warned that no solution has been "fully developed" for rearming western Germany.

But he added the West German chancellor "feels that it is no longer possible to withhold sovereignty from Germany until European uni-

ADLAI SOUNDS DEMO CALL TO POLL FIGHT

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 19 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson tonight sounded a Democratic call to battle against Republicans who he said rely on defamation, deceit and double-talk in a "reckless grasp for power" in the November elections

The 1952 presidential nominee put the Democratic campaign for control of congress under way in an address prepared for a $100-a-plate dinner that had become the center of back-stage feuding over control of his party.

Stevenson accused the GOP of "give-away government," of responsibility for "alarming deterioration of our world position," of 20 months of "drift, division and demoralization."

America, he said "is ready for a fresh start."

"I think," he said, "the good sense of the American people will prevail and that America has already made its decision on those demagogues who rely on defamation, deceit, and double-talk."

At the same time, Stevenson called upon fellow Democrats to "so conduct this momentous campaign as not to weaken but to strengthen the nation in this troubled hour." He cautioned them against any sowing of discord, mistrust and hate.

Declaring there have been "sorry reversals" under the GOP at home and abroad, Stevenson said the Republican Party "is so deeply split that it cannot pursue consistent policies anywhere."

He summed it up in one long sentence:

"It tries to appease the China-firsters by slogans like liberation, the unleashing of Chiang Kai-Shek, and massive retaliation, it tries to appease the budget-firsters by cutting into the bone and muscle of our security but still the deficit increases; it tries to appease the slander-firsters by demoralizing our foreign service, persecuting our army, and defacing the image of

Air Force Puts Up Order For More Sabrejets

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP)—The U.S. Air Force, speeding up its jet fighter program, announced tonight an order for more than 100 million dollars for additional F-100 supersonic planes. They will be produced at a new, second-source plant at Columbus, Ohio.

This was at least a third order for the faster-than-sound F-100s, but a major purpose of the New York was said to be to get "two sources of supply for this important product."

Reflecting the high priority given the F-100 program, the Air Force said tooling will start immediately at the Columbus plan of North American Aviation which has been turning out super-Sabres from its Los Angeles plant since last October. Deliveries from Columbus are expected to start in about a year, the air force said.

Tonight's announcement was only that an undisclosed number of F-100s are involved in the latest order. The united price of the plane is understood to be something less than one million dollars.

However, an unknown but presumably substantial part of the 100-million dolars plus contract will go toward tools and other facilities to produce the planes. The number of planes produced under this initial contract therefore might

Filipino Board Of Directors Elected

The Filipino Community of Guam formally was organized Saturday night following the adoption of its constitution and by-laws and the election of 21 members of the board of directors. Election of the officers from among the board members was set for tonight at 7:30 at the Panciteria Far East in Tamuning.

The organization, given active support and encouragement by the Philippine consulate will seek to:

1. Look after the welfare of the Filipinos on the island;

2. Promote unity among all the Filipinos on Guam;

3. Provide a common and ready agency which could undertake projects that affect Filipinos here;

4. Promote wholesome and friendly relations between Filipinos and local citizens and to create an atmosphere of goodwill and mutual trust, and

5. Seek more means for the improvement of Filipino relations with their employers especially with the Armed Forces agencies like the Navy and Air Force as well as private business firms.

Elected to the board of directors were the following: Mrs. Carmen de la Cruz, Antonio S. Dimalanta, Jose C. Abbede, Johnny Aquino, Cayetano Arellano, Marce-

Storm Leaves 13 Dead, 36 Injured In Japan

TOKYO, Sept. 19 (AP) — Japan's second typhoon in a week blew itself out in the Pacific yesterday leaving a toll reported by police of 13 dead, 10 missing and 36 injured.

The fast weakening storm whipped through Yokohama and grazed Tokyo Saturday night, raking eastern Honshu island with violent wind and rain. Thousands fled their homes as the downpour sent rivers over their banks and through the streets of coastal towns.

The main Tokyo-Kyoto railroad was washed out in several places and more than 50 houses were demolished.

The Japanese coast guard listed 16 ships sunk, 28 damaged and 5 missing.

Typhoon "Lorna" and its predecessor, "June," took a total of 94 lives, by police count.

Tiny Spark Could Set Off War, General Says

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 19 (AP) —The commanding general of the 6th Army said here today that the "tiniest spark" could set off World War III in the Far East and he cautioned everyone to remain calm in an effort to avoid that spark.

"Don't go off base through blind passion or be swayed by emotions," Lt. Gen. Willard G. Wyman said. He added:

"The Chinese have had a lot of little fires (wars) and they have been putting them out for centuries. Don't get too excited."

Wyman, here from his headquarters at San Francisco for an Army reserve day observance, told newsmen that it is "psychologically important to defend" the Nationalist island of Quemoy, latest target of the Reds.

But the general declined to speculate on whether this country should take a direct hand in its defense if the Reds decide to in-

Speaking on the European picture, Wyman warned: 'Don't ever undersell the French."

He said, "we've been talking France down too much" ever since the French national assembly killed the European Defense Community treaty. Actually, he said, France would have to be an integral part of any defense of Europe.

US-Sino Red Battle Over UN Seat On

Cabot Lodge Issues List Of 39 Attacks By Chinese Communists On Free World Shipping

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 19 (AP)—The United States levelled new aggression charges at Red China tonight as U.N. delegates gathered here for another general assembly and debate on seating the Chinese Communists.

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief U.S. delegate to the U.N. issued a list of 39 attacks by the Chinese Communists on free world shipping during the last four years. He called them "acts of piracy."

He said the list, made public officially for the first time, speaks for itself in showing that Red China has been guilty of a "pattern of constant aggressive pressure against the free world."

The list showed 27 incidents involving the British flag, 5 involving the United States, 2 involving Denmark, 2 Panama and 1 each involving Norway, France and Portugal, Lodge said.

The statement and the list were distributed to reporters here without any comment by the delegation. But one source said the purpose clearly was to remind U.N. delegates of Red China's record since 1950, in addition to her intervention in Korea.

Lodge recently took to the U.N. security council the case of a U.S. Navy plane shot down by Russian MIG planes off Vladivostok Sept. 4.

In his statement there he listed 28 Americans killed and 16 missing after six attacks by Soviet planes on American planes since 1950. Lodge said this proved a pattern of unprovoked attacks which would not go unchallenged.

The council debated the dispute Sept. 10 but adjourned without action. Russia's Andrei Vishinsky rejected a U.S. proposal to take the dispute to the world court and said he would veto any attempt by the council to set up an inquiry board on the Sept. 4 incident.

U.S. spokesmen were unable to say whether the United States will continue to press the case against the Russians in the security council or whether the Red China attacks will be taken to the assembly.

Emphasis on the attacks made on foreign shipping by Red China was clearly meant to bolster British and other delegations expected to side with the United States in voting against seating Red China in the U.N. now.

The British government has agreed to support the U.S. position despite a change for seating Red China touched off by the recent British Labor patry visit to Red China.

Lodge's statement accompanying the list said "the shooting down" of an unarmed British airliner off Hainan island last July 22 was "at the latest of at least 39 warlike acts by the Chinese Communists against the ships and aircraft of free nations in the last four years.

(Ten persons including three Americans were killed and eight others, including three Americans, sur-

Seething Unrest Noted Beneath Bamboo Curtain

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP) — Walter S. Robertson, assistant U.S. secretary of state for far eastern affairs, said today there is deep unrest beneath the Communist grip on China.

Robertson expressed the view through trade sanctions and the posture of U.S. military strength against them, the Chinese Reds already have become weakened.

"I think conditions in China today are probably worse than they have been at any time since the Communist took over," he said in a radio interview.

'I don't mean that the Communists don't hold the people in a grip; they have complete military control over the government. But I mean underneath their military regime, there is deep unrest."

Asked whether the U.S. has given up hoping for self-liberation by the Chinese people, Robertson said: "We have not given up our hope that the Chinese people will liberate themselves from this terrific regime which holds them in this ruthless power."

Robertson was aked whether the U.S. decision to withdraw four divisions from South Korea can be reconciled with "our concern over the danger of renewed Communist aggression in the Far East."

Robertson, who was at Geneva during the Indo-China cease-fire negotiations, was asked if he thought the new Manila Asia pact has retrieved the free world's position in Southeast Asia after the buffeting it got during and after Geneva.

"I feel that the Manila pact does represent a very positive gain for the free world and that it will operate to minimize the advantages which the Communists hope to gain from the Geneva settlement," he said.

Ike's Top Aide Dies

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP) — Brig Gen. William P. T. (Pete) Carroll, one of President Eisenhower's top aides and a World War II comrade, died of a heart attack at the Army's Walter Reed Hospital Saturday night. He was 44.

Ironically, Vice President Nixon only last Sunday had cited Carroll's case as a "dramatic" example of the progress made in dealing with heart disease.

Depression Tracked 150 Miles Off Guam

A tropical depression 150 miles south of Guam was tracked yesterday by the Fleet Weather Central. Lt. (jg) R. E. Liotmoli, duty officer, said the depression was moving south-southwest.

The weather central spokesman said shower activities with accompanying winds were expected to "be heavier than usual" but discounted any possibility of the island's having another tropical storm or typhoon."

At 4:30 p.m. yesterday. Lt. Liotmoli said, Navy and Air Force reconnaissance planes still were flying through the depression to observe and report its progress. He said a "lot of weather is hanging" behind the depression.

REDS CATCHING UP

IN all our calculations of American military might, we properly put first emphasis upon our acknowledged lead in nuclear weapons. But ever since World War II we have also taken it pretty much for granted that in any future war the United States would surely have control of the seas.

No one has been blind to the tremendous growth of Russia's submarine fleet, but it has been just as plain that our total naval forces were vastly superior to Moscow's.

Therefore, it comes as a definite shock to hear from no less a source than our own Navy that the Soviet Union may supplant this country as the top naval power by 1961 if its present pace of naval expansion relative to our development continues.

Looking at the huge land armies Russia can muster, we have comforted ourselves with the thought that whatever edge the Soviets had there we could take off by our clear advantage on the seas and in the air.

AS we have seen in other recent reports, our margin of air superiority may be dwindling. To learn that our naval edge is also diminishing is not easy to take.

Ten years ago Russia's fleet ranked seventh in the world. Today it stands second. The Russian navy already exceeds America's in manpower. And Moscow is bent on passing us in number of vessels as well.

The Soviet sub fleet of some 350, about 40 per cent of which are long-range types, is nothing terribly new to us. But read these figures released by our own Navy:

In cruisers, Russia has 13 large, light ships matching one best we have. This total is greater than that we have presently active.

The Soviets have 125 destroyers against our 175, but more than 50 of Russia's are fast, well-armed craft built since World War II. We have done little in that span, and Moscow has a larger building program for destroyers than all Western navies combined.

WHERE we still retain a decisive superiority is in aircraft carriers. So far as is known, Russia has none at this time, though it has a number of shipyards capable of building them, as well as the largest battleships.

Russia does have, however, some 3500 land-based planes in its fleet air arm, including many jet fighters and light jet bombers.

The U. S. Navy noted that Russia's fleet has four main divisions, with the largest in the Baltic Sea. A newly developed canal and river system makes it possible to shift many smaller naval craft from one operating theater to another under ideal protection.

Our strategists believe that Russia, the great "land" force, is definitely bent on creating a great deep-sea navy to outstrip any in the world.

To those complacent ones who think we can never be headed on the sea or in the air, to those misguided ones who think Russia is devoted to peace and has abandoned plans for world conquest, we recommend a second reading of these estimates. They are not comforting.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEFS

LONDON, Sept. 19 (AP) — The union of Red Cross and Red Crescent societies of Russia has given 150,000 rubles to the Algerian Red Cross for earthquake relief, Radio Moscow said tonight. Russia values the rubbles at about four to the U.S. dollar.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 19 (AP) — Belgium will provide Switzerland with uranium ore for an atomic pile, the foreign ministry said today. The ore will be refined and enriched in Great Britain.

A foreign office communique said: "The pile will be fueled with about 10 tons of enriched uranium and will serve exclusively for scientific and industrial research."

NAIROBI, Kenya, Sept. 19 (AP)— A terrorist gang raided Kukenya prison 25 miles outside Nairobi Saturday night, killing a guard and freeing some 200 Mau Mau prisoners.

More than 1,000 police aided by planes, began a search today for the escapees.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Sept. 19 (AP) — Robert Mooney accidentally got locked up for the night — in a pub.

The bar men found him there next morning, surrounded by empty bottles and a sea of spilled beer.

"A glorious kind of incarceration," magistrate J. H. Campbell called it. He ordered Robert to pay the pub owner 50 pounds ($140) to meet the damage he had done.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP) — Britain's Duchess of Kent and her 16 year old daughter, Princess Alexandra came to the U.S. capital today for a brief week-end of sightseeing.

British Ambassador Sir Roger Makin and his attractive young daughters, Cynthia and Molly, greeted the visitors.

Since this is an unofficial visit, no representative of the American government was present.

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Exclusively Yours: Hedy Lamarr hopes "An Apple for Venus" will be an apple barrel of money for Hedy — and just to make sure she's leaping into the role of business woman for U. S. distribution of the Italian-made film in which she stars.

A print of the flicker, first titled "Helen of Troy," is under Hedy's arm and she's personally talking release deals up and down movie alley. The better the deal—the better for Hedy—she'll share in the profits.

Loss of the "Helen of Troy" title was a bitter blow — but Warner Bros. got there first in the wooden horse race.

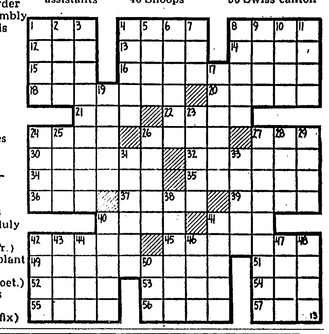
Answer to Previous Puzzle



PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty signed by representatives of eight nations at Manila is only another piece of paper till it is ratified by the congresses or parliaments of at least five of the member governments.

For the United States, this could be done at the reconvened session of the U. S. Senate which will consider the censure motions against Senator McCarthy. But the general expectation is that the treaty won't be sent to the U. S. Senate for ratification until the full Congress reconvenes next January. That means hearings and probably no ratification before February at the earliest.

Implementation of the treaty may be as much as six months or a year off if some of the nations exercise their customary caution in ratifying any new alliance. After that will come creation of a Southeast Asia Council, to consider how the treaty shall be implemented.

This does not mean that all action to make the treaty effective will be blocked for that long. Some preliminary planning can be done before ratification and creation of the new council.

THE IDEA IS TO HAVE a permanent council in session at all times to keep an eye on developments in Southeast Asia. No location for permanent headquarters has been decided upon.

The Philippine government has been designated as depository for ratifications of the treaty. Manila has therefore figured prominently in speculation on where the SEATO will sit. Honolulu or Singapore, with their big military bases, are other possibilities.

A small "standing committee" of military commanders, such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization maintains in Washington, might also be established here to direct defense forces in the Southeast Asia area.

There is a great temptation to say that SEATO is a Pacific counterpart to NATO, but that is considered an exaggeration. SEATO has no military force of its own, such as NATO has. SEATO is a far weaker organization than NATO was when it was created five years ago. At best, SEATO may be considered a third cautious step towards the creation of a NATO-like organization in the Pacific. The first step was the U. S.-Philippine mutual defense agreement made at the end of World War II. The second step was the ANZUS (Australia-New Zealand-U. S.) pact made in connection with the Japanese peace treaty negotiations for mutual defense against any new aggressions in the Pacific.

IN CONNECTION WITH this ANZUS pact there have been a number of secret five-power military conferences—including France and Great Britain—at Singapore and Washington. The machinery set up for these five-power operations is now capable of expansion to include the three other SEATO charter members—Pakistan, the Philippines and Thailand.

This organization obviously has great gaps in it. But the way is left open for the admission of new members as they wake up to the threat of Communist aggression in Southeast Asia.

It is notable that the new treaty extends its theoretical if not very real protection to the three Indo-China states of southern Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia. By the terms of the Geneva armistice agreement, Viet Nam is barred from joining the Southeast Asia alliance now. Laos and Cambodia might be admitted, technically, but there will probably be no immediate move to take them in.

The United States government has taken the position that it will do nothing to overthrow the Geneva armistice terms, but that it would view any renewed Communist aggression in this area as a threat to peace.

WHAT THIS SEEMS to add up to is that U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles now has the "united action" agreement on Southeast Asia that he tried to get out of the British and French before the Geneva conference. It is too late now to do anything about saving Viet Nam. But it is perhaps better late than never as a timid step towards uniting this part of the world against Communism.

There are of course three other alliances to back SEATO up if it ever gets in trouble. These are the U. S. mutual defense alliances with Formosa, Japan and Korea.

Rhee Asks ROKs To Be Cool On Troop Pullout

SEOUL, Sept. 19 (AP) — President Syngman Rhee today advised Koreans "to pay little attention" to withdrawal of American air and land forces, and to strive instead to do our own job well.

The 79-year-old ROK chief said he has his own thoughts about the American pullout but "I do not want to disclose it as yet."

The ROK president spoke in a philosophical vein at ceermonies marking the start of the new Korean army training command at Kwangju in southwest Korea. He did not bring up his persistent cry about "marching north alone."

Rhee also made no reference to the criticism this week of ROK leaders by American diplomatic and military officials in the Far East and Washington. The American officials, under constant attack by Korean leaders, have it back with suggestions the ROK "give their wholehearted cooperation" or the U.S. aid program might be slowed down.

One Seoul newspaper quoted a "high republic of Korea official as charging the United States is trying to blackmail the ROKs into stronger ties with Japan, which owned Korea until World War II.

The English-language Korean Republic, a government-subsidized paper, also quoted an unnamed official as saying the United States is risking South Korea's survival by withdrawing its forces.

Gen. John Hull, U.S. Far East commander, visited Seoul earlier this week and said the United States is not "abandoning" South Korea and will remain in Asia within striking distance in case of Communist attack.

PI Wants Manila As SEATO Site

MANILA, Sept. 19 (AP) — Vice President Carlos P. Garcia said yesterday Singapore "would not serve well" as permanent site for the eight-nation southeast Asia defense council because of its status as a British colony.

"Primary objection to Singapore," he said, 'is that it is a colony of the United Kingdom. It would not speak well of the alliance, especially in the eyes of the uncommitted Asians, if the permanent council site were located in a colony."

Garcia said the Philippines is pressing hard for Manila as the permanent site. "Manila is easily accessible to treaty members, is the capital of an independent state, and is detached from the Asian mainland," he said.

Australia, United Kingdom and Thailand has proposed Canberra, Singapore and Bangkok respectively, as sites for the council.

"Bangkok could be an ideal site but is too close to the source of aggression," said Garcia. "Canberra is too far down south, making it alomst inaccessible to a majority of the treaty members."

Red-Ruled Hungary, West-Sponsored Nations Renew UN Membership Bids

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 19 (AP) — One Soviet bloc country and a number of western-sponsored countries have renewed their membership applications to the United Nations ,it was learned today.

Despite a general feeling here that the cold war will continue to freeze the U.N. membership at its present 60, western-supported countries previously vetoed by Russia for U.N. membership are renewing their appeals for a new vote. U.N. officials said they would be listed for committee consideration after the assembly convenes Tuesday.

Red-ruled Hungary, which recently rejoined the U.N. education, scientific and cultural organization, has sent a request to the U.N. to reconsider her plea for membership in the parent organization.

None of the other Soviet bloc candidates—Albania, Bulgaria, Romania, Mongolia, North Korea and North Viet Nam—has made a new application but observers here said they would not be surprised if the other bloc members follow Hungary's lead.

The Russians have used 28 vetoes since 1946 to keep out countries sponsored by the West. These included five on Italy, three each on Ceylon, Joordan, Ireland and Portugal, and two each for Austria and Finland. One Russian veto each has barred South Korea, Nepal, Libya, Japan, Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia.

No Soviet bloc country has ever gotten enough security council votes —it takes seven of the 11 members — to entitle it to membership. Western countries have opposed them on the grounds they have been aggressors or violated human rights.

A special membership committee headed by Victor A. Belaunde, Peru, has drafted a report for the general assembly saying that the political climate is not favorable for any change in stand that would let down the bars for any country.

"But we must also consider that the road is never closed in diplomacy," he added.

Meantime, the U.S. delegation was preparing for some surprise maneuver in a Monday meeting of the U.N. assembly aimed at seating the Chinese Communists.

The eighth assembly, which recessed last December and left the Korean question open, was to hold a formal session under its president, Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, Monday to close out its work. Although only a statement by Mrs. Pandit and a moment's prayer was on the work program, delegates said they would be alert for any propaganda move to open the Chinese representation question even before the ninth session convenes formally on Tuesday.

U.S. sources were confident they can stave off the question for another year, either in the dying days of the eighth assembly or the opening moments of the ninth.

3,270-Mile-Walk And A Book—'The Grand Walk'

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19 (AP) —A stroll that brought 60-year-old John F. Frey from the steps of the New York public library to San Francisco's Golden Gate ended last night after 3,270 miles.

Frey, Swiss-born author and lecturer of Lincoln, Neb., who started on April 7, said he walked every step of the way, wearing out 10 pairs of heels and socks and three pair of soles.

He said he walked 1,258 hours, at an average rate of 8:5 hours a day and lost 23 pounds.

"It was the wish of my boyhood years," said the wiry, deeply-tanned Frey, who plans to remain here long enough to write a book. He'll call it "The Grand Walk."

Wiley Opposes New Senate Meet

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP) — Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) said today he is opposed to calling the U.S. Senate back into session until some definite agreement has been worked out between France and Germany and other west European nations for anti-Communist defense forces.

"The situation is much too delicate now to have a Senate session," said Wiley, who is chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee.

With future world peace at stake, Wiley said "this could become a political football" if the Senate is called back before the Nov. 2 elections, or even after that, "unless some alternative for EDC is worked out quickly."

Wiley is just back from a month in Europe where he conferred with top leaders of France, Germany and England both before and after France rejected the European Defense Community (EDC) and its plans for rearming Germany.

Finn President Gets Order Of Lenin Award

Soviet Ambasador Victor Lebedev called on the president to inform him that he had been awarded the order for strengthening the bonds of friendship between the two countries.

Paasikivi was a member of the Finnish delegation in Moscow before the outbreak of the 1939-40 Finnish winter war and was Finland's minister to Moscow after the the winter war until the outbreak of war in 1941.

Holland Meets Guam At Arizona State College

Two students from widely separated parts of the world — Holland and Guam — registered at the Arizona State College at Flagstaff last week. Both are transfer students from their home schools.

Miss Maria C. Taitano, 34, of Mangilao, where she taught in the Price elementary school, Ralph E. de Croot, 21, is from Arnhem, Holland. Seven students attended the fall term last year from Guam. Nancy Pangelinan of Mangilao, is here again this year.

Miss Taitano is attending the Flagstaff college on a student loan granted by the government of Guam. She had one year at the University of Hawaii, and extension work at the University of Ohio and the University of California.

Her mother, Mrs. J. G. Taitano, lives in Mangilao. She has two brothers in the United States Navy; one in San Diego and another in Honolulu.

De Croot, a senior, will major in commerce. He expects to receive his Bachelor or Arts degree here next August. Following graduation he will return to Holland for six months and then go to South America as a trader.

"My family is widely separated," he said. "I am in the United States; my father is with an Australian automobile firm at Medan, Java, in Indonesia, and my mother and 15-year-old brother, Hans, live in Arnhem. But I am used to that, during World War II my brother and mother and I were sent to different concentration camps while my father was a prisoner of war."

Yacht-Shy Ike May Yet Be A Sailor; Navy Rebuilding Vessel For His Use

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 19 (AP) — President Eisenhower may have rejected the Williamsburgh as a presidential yacht, but the Navy apparently hasn't given up trying to make at least a part-time sailor of him.

A sleek, 92-foot cruiser named the Barbara Anne is being built and refurnished here, to be available for presidential use. Delivery is expected in about three weeks.

After weeks of hush-hush work on the boat, White House sources said it will be available for the President. There was no indication that the Barbara Anne would take the place of the much larger Williamsburgh.

The Williamsburgh, which had been used by Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, was returned to full-time Navy duty after Eisenhower's inauguration. He said it was "too rich" for his blood.

White House sources said the Barbara Anne named after one of the President's granddaughters, will be a "day cruiser" only. Although elaborately furnished, it has quarters only for the commander and crew. The larger Williamsburgh, with an overall length of 243 feet and a 36-foot beam, had sleeping accommodations for the president and his party, in addition to the crew.

Before her conversion under a veil of secrecy here, the Barbara Anne was the Lenora, one of two escort cruisers for the Williamsburg. She is to operate under the supervision of the Potomac River Naval Command and be available for presidential use when he wants to take short cruise, the White House sources said.

They said the other escort cruiser to the Wilamsburg, the Margie, was used by the President and his grandchildren a few weeks ago. The Margie is currently at the naval gun factory, Washington, and is also to be refurnished for presidential use, White House sources said. It was reported she will be renamed the Susan E, after the president's other granddaughter.

The Barbara Anne is powered by four diesel engines and is equipped with electronic navigational devices. It is slender, as yachts go, with a a beam of only 16 feet, but White House sources seemed to indicate it would be used mainly for bay or river travel.

The yacht was to have been delivered last week, but reportedly encountered engineering difficulties during a test run It was brought back to Trumpy's yacht yard for further work on the drive shafts.

UK Court Martial Mete Death To Two Soldiers

VIENNA, Austria, Sept. 19 (AP)—A British army court martial tonight sentenced two young British soldiers to death for the murder of a Viennese salesman during a "wild night" in Vienna but recommended mercy because of previous good character.

Finding and setence are suject to confirmation by higher authority.

The men, Richard McBrinn, 20, of Belfast, and Dennis Warrington, 19, London, were found guilty of murdering Armin Schwab, 49, after drinking large quantities of beer and breaking out of their barracks with stolen rifles.

Before they were arrested, the court was told, they had injured five other people and terrorized the neighborhood.

Low-Cost Imports Distress Canada

GUELPH, Ontario, Sept. 19 (AP)—Trade Minister C. D. Howe says low-priced imports are causing distress and unemployment among some Canadian industries, but warns that import restrictions will not provide a solution.

The minister, reviewing economic trends tonight, estimated that Canada's economy is generally recovering from a recession, yet he predicted "controlling drags" on economic activity caused by world industrial competition.

From this problem there was no 'quick or easy solution," and therefore, he told the Guelph board of trade, 'industrial output may not regain for some time the peak levels reached last year."

However, said Howe, Canada has succeeded in preventing serious economic fluctuations. He said he did not believe she should try to eliminate "all the ups and downs," for in a free society it is healthy to have periods of consolidation follow periods of surging activity so that inefficient and uneconomic enterprises "are trimmed away."

The problems among industry, coupled with the recession following the 1951 defense build-up, means that Canada will record no gain over 1953 in her total output. But there is no need to apologize, said Howe.

This year would be as good as Canada's best year and "we can't go on making new records every year."

"Total unemployment, which showed more than the customary decline during the winter and early spring, now is almost back to the level of one year ago

PI Rescinds Move To Refer Illegal Chinese, Indon Entry Case To UN

MANILA, Sept. 19 (AP) — Vice President Carlos P. Garcia said yesterday the Philippine government has rescinded a move to refer to the United Nations the question of illegal residence of an estimated 10,000 Indonesians and Chinese in the Philippines.

Garcia, concurrently foreign secretary, said he wired Felixberto Serrano, Philippine ambassador to the U.N., to disregard a previous order to bring up the question before the U.N. conference on stateless persons.

Garcia said the Philippines and Indonesia have undertaken steps to solve on a government-to-government basis the problem of an estimated 7,000 Indonesians who have illegally entered the island.

The secretary said similar talks are under way between Manila and the Nationalist Chinese government at Taipeh, Formosa, regarding some 3,000 Chinese who have overstayed their temporary visas.

Garcia said in a statement Indonesian minister Tjokroadisumarto had assured him the Indonesian government would "take all possible steps" to reach a mutually satisfactory agreement with the Philippines.

Garcia said the Indonesian and Chinese illegal immigrants "are not technically stateless persons." He said they still have retained their nationalities. It is doubtful, he said, whether the Philippines would succeed in including the case on the agenda of the U.N. conference.

Garcia said the Philippine government is prepared to legalize the residence of Indonesians who have entered the country before Philippine independence of 1946. "The present tally shows only 600 Indonesians entered the country illegally since independence."

On the Chinese, Garcia said: "If only we could ascertain they are Chinese Communist it would be simple to deport them. But there are many who entered the country to flee Communism.

He said a large number of Chinese have sought political asylum here.

Garcia said the Taipeh authorities have requested the Philippine government to defer reparation of Chinese nationals to Formosa because the island fortress is overcrowded.

NY Publisher To Stop Printing Horror Comics

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP) — Sen. Hendrickson (R-N.J.) today applauded an announcement by a New York publisher that he will discontinue all horror comic magazines for youngsters.

William Gaines, announcing his decision earlier in New York, said that 'seems to be what the American parents want, and the American parents should be served."

Gaines reiterated his own belief that horror and crime comics have nothing to do with juvenile delinquency. But he said his firm, which he credited with introducing horror comics, would drop several magazines with a combined circulation of 300,000 and publish a "clear, clean line" of science, adventure, piracy and 'lampoon" comics.

He said he hoped other publishers would follow the example of his company.

Hendrickson heads a Senate committee on juvenile delinquency which heard Gaines as a witness last spring.

The Senator said there have been "indications for sometime that the comic book industry was about to shoulder the responsibility it owes the children and parents of America."

He added:

"Too long have many of the publishers of sadistic and horror crime books been more interested in dollars than in the evil effects of their products upon our children

Spinster Glorifies 'Bachelordom' At International Meet

GREVENICH, The Netherlands, Sept. 19 (AP) — "Bachelordoom makes for greatness," Dutch authoress Mary Pos told about 1,000 unmarried delegates here today for the second Dutch international bachelors congress.

"Look at Jeanne D'Arc, Florence Nightingale and Elizabeth Arden," Miss Pos said to the spinsters. "They were and aren't married and look what they have done for the world."

"And you men can be an Alfred Nobel of the peace prizes, a Henri Dunant, founder of the Red Cross. They, too, had time to devote to humanity because they were not married."

Miss Pos, 48, said the modern world "must give those words bachelors and spinster another value." She is a spinster.

Delegates from eight nations were on hand Friday night for the opening of the congress in this south Holland hamlet.

Spinsters outnumbered bachelors as seven women and one man hoisted the flag of the United States, Germany, Belgium, France, Sweden, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

But Gerard Greyn, 37, municipal secretary, expects a better balance when the bulk of participants — expected to total 1,200 — have all arrived for the four-day congress.

Since Greyn took the initiative to bring international bachelordoom to Grevenbicht last year he has devoted his off-duty hours to a voluminous international correspondence. He has also received American, Canadian, Belgium and French offers to organize the bachelors in those lands.

"Not being averse to marriage at all," Greyn says, he still believes it worthwhile to bring into the open "the problems and specific psychology of the bachelor."

Yoshida Foes Map Strategy To Keep Premier In Japan

TOKYO, Sept. 19 (AP) — Two political leaders who want Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida's job called a strategy conference today.

It was the latest in a series of moves aimed at killing off Yoshida's plans for a goodwill world tour, by tying him up with parliamentary maneuvers. But there was no sign it would succeed. The 75-year-old premier went right on with his plans to leave Sept. 26.

Opponents are concerned lest he reinforce his prestige by winning loans from the United States and trade concession from Britain. Yoshida's Socialist opposition feels Japan already is too closely tied to the United States. Some Conservatives have joined the Socialists in moves to censure Yoshida.

The strategy meeting was called by Ichiro Hatoyama, who belongs to a group of splinter Liberals, and Mamoru Shigemitsu, who heads the powerful Progressives. They were expected to discuss the effectiveness of pooling their forces.

Japanese Army Officers To Survey US Bases

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Sept. 19 (AP) — Five high officers of Japan's new air defense force have arrived here for a month-long tour of U.S. air force installations.

The guests, led by Lt. Gen. Sadamu Sanagi, deputy chief of staff, arrived at Travis Air Force Base yesterday and start their inspection trip today at nearby McClellan Air Force Base.

"We are here to study your organizational and training systems so that we can begin similar programs in Jauan," the lieutenant general told newsmen.

"The Japanese air defense force is just that. We don't have the money to build large bombers and other types of offensive aircraft. Our program will be limited to defensive strategy only."

All Japan wants, he said, is the ability to defend itself "against the Communist threat."

The other officers are: Maj. Gen. Monjiro Akiyama, chief of operations; Maj. Minoru Genda, chief of materiel; Col. Mitsuo Otani, superintendent of the maintenance school; and Col. Fumio Maruta, a member of the training section.

From here, the Japanese accompanied by Lt. Col. Wilbur Bechtold, of Larson Air Force Base, Wash., will go to the Los Angeles area.

Findings On Blood Pressure Revealed

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 19 (AP) — Fat people with high blood pressure live longer than — or at least as long as — people with normal weight who suffer from the same trouble, say three Danish doctors.

They reported this conclusion after a study of 1,000 cases of high blood pressure followed for nearly 20 years. Their effort was made to the Stockholm world congress for internal medicine.

'The first remarkable finding in this invesitgation was that so many still survive," Dr. Poul Bechgaard, of the Arrhus communal hospital, Denmark, said.

He continued:

The high age among many of the cases was another surprise. Twenty years after they were first found to suffer from high blood pressure, 36 persons had reached the age of 76 or more. And 25 were more than 80.

Many of those rechecked after 20 years were 'not seriously troubled by their high blood pressure" and 60 had actually regained normal blood pressure.

The highest mortality in high blood pressure patients occurred during the first two years, after which time there was a downward trend. The older the persons observed became, the smaller seemed the risk that they should die from high blood pressure.

Shipment Probe Asked

MANILA, Sept. 19 (AP) — An immediate investigation into a reported shipment of onions and garlic from Communist China to the Philippines by way of Hongkong was requested Saturday by Rep. Celestino C. Juan, vice chairman of the house cmomittee on anti-Filipino activities.

Rep. Ferdinado Marcos previously submitted a complaint to President Ramon Magsaysay that he had "strong evidence 40,000 crates of recenty imported onions and garlic came from Red China through Hongkong."

Juan said the committee should lose no time in investigating the report.

Sunset Foils Hotel Heir's Try To Win Back Young Child

PARIS, Sept. 19 (AP) — The sun set on the process server tonight and Jimmy Goldsmith apparently won't get his ailing four-month-old daughter back from his multi-millionaire Bolivian in-laws before today.

The 20-year-old British hotel heir earlier yesterday won his court fight to regain custody of the baby, the object of a four-day contest between wealthy young Goldsmith and the wife of tin magnate Antenor Patino. Judge Jean Ausset ruled the child should be returned immediately to its father.

Lawyers for Mrs. Patino said she was willing to return the child but would do so only after the court order was served on her. Under French law, such papers cannot be served after sundown or on Sundays. And the sun set first, in a hazy, dazzling mist.

Goldsmith, waiting patiently in his newly rented nursery-fitted apartment in the fashionable passy section west of the Arch of Triumph, told reporters at nightfall that things looked hopeless — until today.

The process server had tried, but had not been able to find Mrs. Patino. After dark, he entered the Antenor Patino home and came out announcing he had delivered the papers to a valet, but not to Mrs. Patino. Nobody would say whether that would bring the case to a head.

Menawhile, Mrs. Patino was observed in an automobile that circled around the house from time to time. She has not lived there since she became estranged from her husband.

18-Foot Python Escapes From Fort Worth Cage

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 19 (AP)—An 18-foot python name Pete was still loose here tonight.

A search party of Forest Park zoo officials and police were beating the bushes for the giant, man-killing reptile at nightfall.

No trace of the missing snake had been found.

Pete's absence from his home in the zoo's snake pit was discovered early yesterday morning. He apparently pushed aside a tin plate used to close one end of his box. Then he went over the stockade fence, which is about eight feet high.

Reptile experts Harry Jackson said Pete is not particularly dangerous unless he's stepped on. The snake kills by coiling and crushing.

Pete was brought to the zoo four years ago from Bangkok, Thailand. He's a foot in diameter and weighs several hundred pounds.

He can travel through the trees and swim streams.

German Issue Up At 9-Power Talks

ty is achieved: also that there can no longer be deferred the preliminary steps which will permit Germany to exercise the inherent right of individual and collective defense.

VIEWS SHARED

"I informed the chancellor that his views in these respects were fully shared not only by President Eisenhower, but by congress, and I believe by the American people generally."

An authoritative source in London said Dulles on his lightning trip to Bonn and London deliberately bypassed Paris not merely as a snub to France—but as a warning.

Dulles was warning the French, the source said, that France alone will not be allowed any longer to block progress toward European unity and the creation of German divisions. The informant added that Britain and the United States do not have any plans in the works right now for going ahead with West German rearmament if France vetoes it at the forthcoming meeting.

But he said there was a definite possibility that the United States and Britain might act alone if France proved too balky.

All of France's western allies appeared to be crowding her into a corner on the issue of German rearmament following Dulles' trip to Europe and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's almost simultaneous swing through Brussels, Bonn, Rome and Paris.

SPAAK'S STAND

Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak appeared to be speaking for France's continental allies when he declared today in a speech before the European assembly at Strasbourg U.S. troops will be withdrawn from Europe if the Germans remain unarmed, and Britain would follow suit.

"We have to answer that terrible question," Spaak said. "Must we rearm the Germans? Yes or no?

"Speaking as a foreign minister I am obliged to say yes. To say no would mean the end of Europe, the end of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as it exists. Such a change in the concept of strategy would leave Europe defenseless."

The assembly is due to hear French Premier Pierre Mendes-France tomorrow.

France—which has been invaded by the Germans three times in the last three generations—faces an agonizing decision: Shall she allow guns to old enemies on equal terms within NATO or shall she risk the chance of losing the close friendship of her western partners?

vived the Hainan plane incident.)

"This is for the information of the public. It speaks for itself.

"When the attack off Hainan took place, not only the United States and Britain, whose citizens lost their lives, but people all over the world were alarmed at this action against humanity and international law.

"My purpose in making public list of 38 additional attacks is to show that the Hainan shooting was no isolated incident but part of a pattern of constant aggressive pressure against the free world.

"In turn, this series of acts of piracy must be viewed part of a still larger pattern.

"I refer to the Chinese Communist record in Korea; the campaigns of extermination against the Chinese people themselves, in which millions have lost their lives; the boast of the Chinese Communist leaders that they have the second largest army in the world — second only to the Soviet Union."

"Wihin this larger pattern, the many violent actions off the Chinese coast over the past four years seem to reveal the basic character of the Chinese regime — a regime committed to any means whatever but especially to violence, in order to achieve its aims of conquest."

One of the incidents was the seizure of the U.S. yacht Kert March 21, 1953, and of the three Americans, Richard Applegate, Donald Dixon and Benjamin Kraner who were released only last week. Lodge said three Chinese who were with them have not been released.

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 19 (AP) —Nationalist fliers of American-built Thunderjets claimed they destroyed a 1,000-ton Chinese Red tanker with rockets, blasted gunboats, sent an ammunition dump ablaze and machinegunned fleeing Red artillerymen in a big jet-bomber attack yesterday along the mainland coast.

A communique last ninght reported "excellent results" in what was believed to be the heaviest Nationalist air action since the vest pocket war flared up in the Quemoy area Sept. 3.

The raid on shipping along the Fukien province coast brought claims of four Red gunboats damaged, with one probably sunk, a tanker destroyed, three motorized junks and many wooden military craft damaged.

The fliers said many Red guns were destroyed in the Amoy area, where the vest pocket war opened with a Communist artillery attack Sept. 3 on Nationalist-held Quemoy seven miles east.

The fliers reported that Red soldiers fled gun positions and the Thunderjets swept low, inflicting many casualties by machinegun fire.

Thunderjets spotted the Red tanker off Changpu unloading supplies into sampans and scored direct hits on it with rockets. Sighting later of an oil slick as far as a mile away prompted the claim the tanker was sunk.

Shipping also was attacked around Chuanchow and Amoy. Nationalist artillery on Quemoy teamed up with planes in hitting the Amoy area. An ammunition dump there caught fire and belched heavy smoke, the Nationalists claim.

Yesterday was the 16th straight day of such Nationalist attacks.

E. German Police Set Up Concentration Camp

BERLIN, Sept. 19 (AP) — A western underground organization reported today that East German security police had set up a "concentration camp in east Berlin and moved 400 political prisoners behind barbed wire enclosures.

The usually reliable west Berlin "fighting group against inhumanity" said the camp was established on the grounds of a former factory.

Inmates were reported put to work in an institute for developing new types of oil and fuel compounds.

NATO Ups Strength

ESTORIL, Portugal, Sept. 19 (AP) —Military strength of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization has more than doubled in its five years existence, Lord Ismay, secretary-general, declared today.

Air Force Puts Up Order For More Sabrejets

be considerably less than 100.

The air force aims at having production of its war planes from more than one plant for two major reasons—to have available facilities for a rapid stepup in deliveries in event of war; to have alternate production facilities in the event one should be knocked out by air attack in a war.

Early this year, after deliveries already had been started from North American's Los Angeles plant, the air force announced a cutback in production of F-84s and said funds will be diverted to an additional order for the F-100s which are superseding the famous F-86 Sabrejets which defeated the Soviet-made MIG-15s in the Korean air war.

Tactical units, a spokesman said, will begin receiving the first F-100s within the next few weeks, with a wing at George Air Force Base, Calif., first in line for delivery of the new fighters.

The air force calls the F-100 its "first operation supersonic fighter." It has had for several years a number of individual, experimental planes, including the original J-1 rocket powered plane and subsequent models, which flew faster than sound. But the F-100 is the first plane built for combat to be put into operational use by the USAF.

A compelling reason for the advent of a fighter which fly faster than sound (761 miles per hour at sea level, 660 miles per hour at 30,000 feet) is the appearance in the air fleets of major powers, including Russia, of high speed jet bombers. Faster-than-sound bombers already are being built or may be in operation in Russia.

The F-100 set a speed record of 755 mph on Oct. 30, 1953, in a test at Salton Sea, Calif.—while flying at sea level. This meant that at higher altitudes, where performance of jet engines improves vastly, the speed of even that early model was faster than sound. Usual combat altitude for jet planes ranges from 30,000 feet up.

An estimated 500 representatives from Camp Roxas, Marbo and private business firms were present to launch the first representative Filipino community organization on the island.

Consul Bartolome A. Umayam led in the oath-taking of the elected directors. The consul opened the meeting with an address. Felix V. Avellana, chairman of the organization committee presided over the elections.

The election got underway after a snag over the constitutionality of the procedure of the nominations which was raised by Camp Roxas representatives. Vice-Consul Jose Q. Tabora, designated by Consul Umayam to help organize the community, explained the steps followed by the committee in the nomination and notification of all Filipino elements on the island.

Conspicuously absent during the election were representatives from Camp Quezon, home of Brown-Pacific-Maxon employees. It is the biggest Filipino group here.

Soviets Offer Danes 75,000 UK Pounds For Big Secret

MOSCOW, Sept. 19 (AP)—The Soviet Union today offered Denmark 75,000 English pounds for a big secret.

A military secret? No . . . a cheese secret.

The Soviet trade organization, according to Danish sources, offered 100,000 pounds for a cheese factory. Of this, said the Danes, 25,000 pounds would be fore machinery and 75,000 for instructions on how the Danes preserve cheese more than a year without refrigeration.

PISA, Italy, Sept. 19 (AP) — Health authorities of the Communist administered port city of Leghorn (Livorno) today asked for a geiger test to determine whether canned Japanese tuna fish arriving there from the Pacific is radioactive from United States atom bomb tests.

The canned tuna, consigned to Rome markets, is being held at the port. Leghorn officials asked the University of Pisa's institute of minerology to send down an expert and a geiger counter to make the tests.

Sooners, Texas, Terps Take Openers

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (AP) — Oklahoma, Maryland, Texas and Georgia Tech — four of the teams that should be up among the leaders when all the returns are in—opened their football seasons Saturday with crushing victories.

Held to a 7-6 margin during the first half, Oklohoma erupted for three touchdowns in the second half to whip California 27-13 in the first of NCAA's nationally televised weekly games.

Maryland dropped Kentucky 20-0, Texas routed LSU 20-6 and Georgia Tech shut out Tulane 28-0.

The national schedule was rather slim and there was only one upset of any consequence. That took place when Oklahoma A&M defeated Wyoming 14-6. The latter was rated one of the big threats for the Skyline title before the season opened, but now must prove itself all over again.

Gene Calame was the big gun for the Sooners, who were ranked right behind Notre Dame in the Associated Press annual pre-season poll. The slim, split-T quarterback had not been expected to play because of bruised ribs but he masterminded the perennial Big Seven champions for 59 minutes.

They proved a team of real opportunities by converting two California fumbles into touchdowns. Actually, they never were behind once they opened the scoring with a 33-yard march in the second period.

Like Oklahoma, Maryland took advantage of the breaks by converting two pass interceptions into touchdowns. Rapid Ronnie Waller scored once for the Terps, regarded by the nation's sports writers and sportscasters as the No. 3 team in the country, when he slipped through on a 23-yard romp.

Charlie Boxold scored another and then tossed to Russell Dennis for the third tally.

Charlie Brewer, the sly quarterback, who helped Texas to the co-championship of the Southwest Conference last year, directed operations again today and before the half ended his club had a 14-0 margin, more than enough.

Despite the one-sidedness of its conquest, Georgia Tech was disappointing. The Yellow Jackets failed repeatedly in their split-T plays and were forced to resort to straight-T play for their scores. Tulane also gained freely against the erratic Tech line, but its inexperienced quarterbacks failed to take full advantage of their opportunities.

In other important games, Mississippi State outscored Memphis State 27-7, Texas Christian overpowered Kansas 27-6, and Kansas State whitewashed Colorado A&M 29-0.

COCKELL, VALDES SLATED TO MEET ROCKY NEXT YEAR

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (AP)—Don Cockell and Nino Valdes are next in line for Rocky Marciano in 1955, preferably in that order as far as Al Weill is concerned, but the heavyweight champion's manager demands the two top challengers keep busy.

"They can't just sit around and wait for us," said Weill at a press conference. "Let them keep fighting." Weill, of course, knows that the giant Cuban and pudgy Briton must be kept in the public's eye if they are going to be good drawing cards next year. When and if Cockell gets the chance, it will be in the United States.

Marciano positively won't fight again this year. It may take six months for his split nose to heal. The 30-year-old champ wore a tight bandage over the nose and a patch over the left eye as he met the press to talk about his knockout victory over Ezzard Charles Saturday in 2:36 of the eighth round at Yankee Stadium. He looked like a kid dressed up for Halloween with a putty nose.

Valdes, recent knockout winner over Hurricane Tommy Jackson, has won nine in a row. Cockell, who balloned into a heavyweight, has copped 10 straight since he was knocked out by Randy Turpin as a light heavyweight in 1952.

Yanks Step Down Gracefully

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19 (AP) — The New York Yankees heard the story of their expulsion from the American League throne with diffidence last night.

Most of the players, warming up for a night game with the Philadelphia Athletics, merely nodded at the expected news of Cleveland's clinching 3-2 victory over Detroit. Pitcher Ed Lopat grinned and cracked:

"It comes as no surprise."

Manager Casey Stengel then sent a wire to Al Lopez, Tribe leader, and the Yankee players forwardd one to the Indians.

Stengel said:

"Congratulations on your great management and leading your players' determined drive for the 1954 American League pennant against such splendid New York Yankee opposition. Success to you, your coaches and the Cleveland ballplayers in your bid for the world championship."

The players' telegram read:

"Congratulations to the Cleveland ballplayers on winning the 1954 American League pennant. We admired the clean method and hard fighting in which you gained your great triumph. We send a sincere desire for your success in the world series." It was signed: "Sincerely, the New York Yankee ballplayers."

GIANTS WIN 9-1; NEED THREE TO TAKE FLAG

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (AP) —The New York Giants all but clinched the National League championship by crushing Philadelphia, 9-1.

The victory of the Giants was high-lighted by inside-the-park homers by Willie Mays—his 41st homer of the season—and Don Mueller. Mueller also singled to raise his total hits to 200, first major leaguer to reach this mark in 1954.

The clubs played under leaden skies and from the moment Mueller hit his homer in the first it was never a contest. Don Liddle, until he issued 11 straight balls in the sixth, looked superb on the mound, and Marv Grissom promptly came to his rescue. Between them they pitched a three-hitter, Liddle giving up two and Grissom one. The single Phillies score was a homer by Willie Jones in the eighth.

Thus in all probability the world series of baseball between the Indians and the Giants will open at the Polo Grounds in New York on Wednesday, Sept. 29, and after two games, move to Cleveland.

There is still a slight element of doubt in the National League. The Giants are five games ahead of Brooklyn with seven to play. Any combination of three Giant victories or Dodger defeats assures the championship for the New York team.

The bitter city rivals meet tomorrow night at Brokklyn, and play again there Wednesday and Thursday. That should settle it. A third team still is mathema- in contention, the Milw- Braves, but they now tra- Giants by eight games.

In other major league games yesterday, the Cincinnati Redlegs defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-1. Chicago White Sox turned the Baltimore Orioles 6-2. -ton beat Boston 8-7 and shut out the Braves.

Mitchell, Hegan Hit Successive Homers To Lead Tribe To Dramatic 3-2 Win

By JOE REICHLER

DETROIT, Sept. 19 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians ended three long years of bitter second-place frustration yesterday when they clinched the American League championship on a pair of dramatic home runs by Dale Mitchell and Jim Hegan.

With a sheet of rain darkening Briggs Stadium, Mitchell and Hegan hit consecutive home runs in the seventh inning to provide a 3-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The Indians' triumph, which became a possibility last June, a probability in August and a virtual certainty last Monday when they trounced the ex-world champions in a doubleheader before the largest crowd ever to see a baseball game, was well received around the baseball world.

There were many who believed the Yankees, who have won 20 pennants in the last 34 years, and have captured the last five straight world championships, had been doing baseball little good by hogging the spotlight too long. In short, the baseball public wanted a change.

It was fitting then that the bridesmaiding Indians, runer-up victims of New York for three consecutive seasons, were the team to dethrone the Yankees. Incidentally, it was the Indians, through their victory in 1948, who prevented the Yankees from making it seven straight pennants.

This was not an easy triumph for Al Lopez' warriors. Pressed practically from the start, first by New York, Chicago and Detroit, later by New York and Chicago, and finally by New York alone, the Tribe had to climb over the .700 percentage mark to assure its third American League flag. The Indians won their first pennant in 1920 and their second 28 years later. They have yet to lose a world series.

No Cleveland team ever won as many games as the 1954 club. In fact, only a handful of American League teams has won more. And with more than a week of this season remaining, the Indians can better the league record of 110 victories established by the 1927 Yankees. How fast the Indians had to travel is best indicated by the fact that they had to beat out a team that probably will become only second place club ever in 100 American League games.

with a chance to close in still more on the Indians, the Yankees dropped seven of 10 games in the first two weeks of September to fall 8½ length behind. At the same time, the Indians won eight of their 10.

As usually happens when a club crashes through to a pennant, several men led the way with exceptional play. Larry Doby and Bobby Avila are the Indians who caught fire this season. Doby leads the league in home runs and is battling for the lead in runs batted in. Avila is out front in the batting race and is a leading candidate for Most Valuable honors.

REDS ADMIT SEIZING 2 AMERICAN SOLDIERS

VIENNA, Austria, Sept. 20 (AP) — Czechoslovakia's Communist government admitted tonight it is holding two American soldiers saying they were arrested on Czech soil Saturday while "photographing military installations and carrying out observation with field glasses."

In a protest note handed to the U.S. embassy in Prague, the Czechoslovaks complained that U.S. troops from West Germany also violated the border yesterday.

"Numerous American soldiers" moved to the frontier, installed a heavy machine gun and pointed it against Czech territory, the note asserted. It said this was "obviously done to cause a bloody incident by bringing about a gun battle with Czechoslovak soldiers."

PRAGUE CHARGE

The Prague government formally accused American forces in West Germany of carrying out large-scale espionage activities and said it "will not tolerate such violations of Czechoslovak sovereignty."

The note, as broadcast by the government radio, identified the Americans in Czech custody as two 32-year-old servicemen. The announcer gave the names phonetically as Lt. Richard Dryers and Cpl. George Pecse.

A third American soldier, a sergeant, who was with them on the excursion, escaped.

The note said Dryers was in civilian clothes and that he and his companion had two field glasses, one loaded pistol, a map and other documents "for espionage purposes."

U.S. Army officials yesterday denied a report by Bavarian border police that one of the men—seized by Czech frontier guards—was a lieutenant in civilian clothes carrying forged credentials on an espionage mission of Czechoslovakia.

NO FORGED PAPERS

A spokesman at the U.S. army headquarters in Heidelberg, Germany, said this man, though wearing civilian clothes, was not en route to Czechoslovakia and did not carry forged papers. The spokesman said the lieutenant and his companion had been cruising along the border in an official capacity "to see what they could see," but that both were on West German territory when picked up.

"The lieutenant was in civilian clothes because as interrogation officer he must interview German civilians on this side of the border," the spokesman said. "His duties are not covert. He is well known along the border."

The officer's companion was described in Heidelberg as a private.

This was the third German border incident in less than two weeks. A Communist East German patrol fired on American troops Sept. 9 and a Czechoslovak patrol loosed some bullets at an American detachment four days later. No one was injured in either case.

CIFU, Japan, Sept. 20 (AP) — A Japanese court today convicted U.S. Marine Cpl. Clarence J. Butler of Roanoke, Va., of "rape, resulting in death" of a 73-year-old Japanese woman, the newspaper Asahi reported

The court sentenced the 20-year-old Negro to five years in prison, Asahi said. The government, which had demanded the maximum penalty of life imprisonment, was expected to appeal the sentence as too lenient. Under Japanese law, either side may appeal the verdict, issued by three judges.

The marine was accused of inflicting numerous injuries on elderly Mrs. Kinue Iwaoa near here last April 18, resulting in the woman's death.

$10,000 Collected For Air Force Aid

More than $10,000 was raised at Guam's Andersen Air Force Base during the 1954 Air Force Aid Society drive just completed.

Col. Richard I. Dugan, commander of the 6319th Air Base Wing, announced that a total of $10,485.49 was contributed to the drive through memberships, donations and special events.

The Third Air Division and the 509th Bombardment Wing, both Strategic Air Command organizations, led the drive with 100 per cent participation.

The SAC outfits were followed by the 10th Communications Construction Flight with 97 per cent, 6413th Supply Squadron (Ammo) with 81 per cent and Headquarters Squadron, 6319th Air Base Wing and the 852nd AC&W Squadron, each with 71 per cent.

Guam business establishments led the list of outright donations with $1,365. The principal special events and the amount each netted: Carnival, $2,792; "Real Gone," $571; boxing show, $465, and the NCO Wives Guild auction, $334.

AFAS membership cards brought in $4,924.70.

Third Division Will Leave Korea

SEOUL, Sept. 20 (AP) — The U.S. Third Infantry Division will be re-deployed to the United States in October, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, U.S. Eighth Army commander, announced today.

The "Rock of the Marine" division will be the fifth American division to leave Korea this year. It will follow the Second and 25th now pulling out.

The name of one more American division to leave Korea before the end of the year is expected to be announced soon. That will leave two U.S. divisions on the peninsula.

Taylor's announcement said the Third will be trimmed to approximately 1,000 officers and men eligible for rotation home. Men of the Third not eligible will be transferred to other units remaining in Korea.

The division landed Nov. 10, 1950, at Wonsan on the east coast of Korea and fought in all sectors of the war. In the last days of the fighting, men of the Third spearheaded the defense against the big Red drive, in the Kumsong sector.

Filipino Shoots Five To Death

MANILA, Sept. 20 (AP) — A suspended district bureau of lands official today killed five persons and then attempted suicide, police reports from Dagupan City, Pangasinan province, said.

The shooting occurred in the office of the district land bureau while an administrative investigation was underway.

Police said Pedro Rico, who was called as a witness, shot and killed Teofilo Cabrera, senior member of the Pangasinan provincial board; Escolastico Escarraga, bureau of lands investigator from Manila; Paulino Reyes, employe of the district land office; Teresa Reyes, wife of Paulino and Francisco Bautista, a local investigator for the bureau.

Cabrera until recently was acting governor of Pangasinan, located northwest of Manila on the Lingayen Gulf. Paulino was under investigation on charges of extortion and Cabrera was appearing as his counsel.

Rico, who is in critical condition in the Dagupan hospital, was reported by police to have said in a bedside statement that he fired "after being insulted by Cabrera and Reyes. Mrs. Reyes laughed at me. This made me mad. I threw an ink stand at Reyes as he was testifying. I then pulled out my gun and fired at Reyes. I shot everybody who was in the hearing room."

FDR's Son Pitted Against Harriman

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP) — Franklin D. Roosevelt's son and namesake and Averell Harriman, one of the late president's closest advisors, will battle it out tomorrow for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. has the odds against him in his bid for the Albany Post that catapulted his father into the White House.

The state's most influential leaders, including the Tammany chieftain, have endorsed Harriman, holder of the high posts in the new deal and fair deal administrations.

Roosevelt forces concede they have an uphill fight but intend to carry the contest to the state convention floor. They claim strong upstate strength and contend Roosevelt will get more votes of New York City delegates than the leaders expect.

The Democratic nominee will in all likelihood be opposed in the Nov. 2 election by Sen. Irving M. Ives. He has no rival for the Republican nomination for governor.

Whatever the outcome of the Democratic convention, the campaign to elect a successor to retiring Republican Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will have overtones to the new deal against the Eisenhower administration record.

Both Harriman, 62, and Roosevelt, 40, staunchly follow the philosopy of the elder Roosevelt. Ives, 58, is a supporter of President Eisenhower.

Packing Heir Held On Marijuana Rap

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 20 (AP)—George A. Hormel II, meat packing heir and former husband of actress Leslie Caron, was arrested today by narcotics officers who reported finding 13 marijuana cigarettes in his car.

Hormel, 26, described by one officer as having "all the earmarks of a perfect gentleman" surrendered without a fuss at his Laurel Canyon home. But officers said Hormel's girl friend, movie starlet Rita Moreno, gave them a bad time.

"I was met by 100 pounds of wildcat," officer John E. O'Grady reported after he entered the house and tried to question Miss Moreno, 22.

O'Grady said he asked to search her handbag, but that she refused violently, kicking and striking him. The officer said he will ask the city attorney for an assault complaint against her.

Miss Moreno, through a 20th Century-Fox spokesman, later apologized, saying: "I thought it was a gang. The officers were in plain clothes, and their names were O'Grady and O'Connor."

AEC CHIEF CITES EARLY START IN WEAPONS FIELD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP) — U.S. Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lewis L. Strauss tonight expressed his belief that the United States still has atomic superiority over the Russians and can make hydrogen bombs of any power the military asks.

And, Strauss said, the U.S. is making great strides toward the development of peacetime uses of atomic energy.

The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) chairman gave a cautiously worded appraisal of the U.S. atomic picture on a TV-radio show.

He said his belief that America surpasses the Soviets in atomic weapons and stockpiling is based on two factors:

"We went into the project of manufacturing nuclear materials and weapons a number of years before they did and then we had access, so we think, to very much larger supplies of uranium ore since we had the world to draw from."

MORE URANIUM

Strauss said the U.S. had increased its uranium production "to a figure never thought possible" but the search for new sources is continuing.

The commissioner refused to indicate the power of hydrogen bombs now being stockpiled but said "it is feasible to make them any size the military requires."

Strauss added that while U.S. atomic superiority has been an effective deterrent to any attack "there will come a time when other countries will have enough bombs to fight us, at which time the fact we may have very many more becomes unimportant."

Asked if an atomic-hydrogen bomb attack might make America too impotent to retaliate, the commissioner replied:

CERTAIN RETALIATION

"I believe that in the event that any country made a surprise attack on us nothing could prevent swift, certain and condign retaliation." Strauss defined "condign" as "deserved—a punishment that fits the crime."

The commissioner said the AEC recently opened its testing reactor to industry and this had brought some "astonishing" developments in the peaceful uses of atomic power. He said "undoubtedly a great many new products" will result from the experiments and this will create a number of new jobs and industries.

Strauss said he hopes to see the day when atomic energy will produce electric power so cheaply it won't be worth measuring its flow into homes.

One questioner noted that Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, atomic scientists recently barred from top government security secrets, is director of the institute for advanced study at Princeton, and that Strauss is a trustee of the institute. He asked Strauss if any move was being made to oust Oppenheimer from that post.

Cabbie Kills Two

HONOLULU, Sept. 20 (AP)—Police said a Filipino taxicab driver confessed today that he killed his estranged wife and her uncle with a shotgun last night and incidentally wounded two neighbors.

Leon M. Straus, assistant police chief, quoted Joaquin Padayao, 43, as saying he killed his wife, Rose, 28, because she swore out a warrant against him for threatening her, and shot her uncle, Henry Hiton, 60, for advising her.

Padayao is held on suspicion of first degree murder.

LABOR AND POLITICS

FOR some years it has been apparent that the CIO high command believes its fortunes are firmly bound up with the Democratic Party. CIO leaders have dropped all pretense of impartial political judgment.

As the heavy fall campaigning starts, top officials of the rival AFL organization seem ready to join the CIO in the Democratic fold. If this attitude holds, it will put the two major labor federations in the "automatic" category politically.

George Meany, president of the AFL, disclosed his organization's thinking on the matter when he said recently that the present GOP government is pursuing "the cold-blooded philosophy of private management which holds that profits come before people and that the scales of economic justice can be balanced only after the budget is balanced."

This does not, of course, reflect President Eisenhower's expressed philosophy of government. The President describes himself as a liberal where human welfare is at stake and a conservative in matters of money management.

NOR does Meany's comment square well with what Congress did under the first GOP regime in 20 years. A good deal of social legislation was passed, though not enough to satisfy Mr. Eisenhower.

Meany's distortions fit neatly with his and other leaders' cries of "depression," the battle hymn they hope will bring them back to greater power.

Reports indicate that the much-talked-of economic slump actually brought a drop in national personal income of only 1.3 per cent over a nine-month period. Since that period ended in April, there has been a slight rise.

No one would wish to minimize the upward surge of unemployment that accompanied the business drop, but it is a fact that new claims for jobless benefits have been getting fewer and fewer in the past several weeks. This easing suggests the worst is over.

THE deliberately gloomy interpretation placed upon events by Meany and the CIO chiefs makes it clear they think of the nation's economic problems not as thoughtful, responsible economic specialists, but as propagandizing politicians of the worst order. They are determined to get from the business statistics only one answer: an answer unfavorable to the Republicans.

This is really quite unfortunate for them. It sharply lowers their stature as public figures, and damages their credibility as spokesmen in the economic sphere.

Furthermore, it is an unhealthy situation when any segment of society tries to ally itself uncritically and automatically to a particular political party. Parties are human and fallible, they change in quality and character, and it seems unwise to pretend that any group's welfare can be assured only by fealty to a single party.

Luckily for this nation's workers, they have shown far greater independence of thought and action than their pat-thinking leaders. The chances are that they'll keep on showing it.

Yugoslav President Sounds Appeal To Halt 'Ideological Propaganda'

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Sept. 20 (AP) — President Josip Tito of Yugoslavia today called for a halt to what he termed "ideological propaganda" — an obvious reference to U.S. attacks on Communism in general — even while he reaffirmed his belief in the policies of the party.

Speaking at Ostrozno in Slovenia province, Tito reminded the audience "of what we have suffered" since Yugoslavia's break with the Cominform — "harm, damage and pressure," and said "we will not forget."

But he said Yugoslavia still wished normalization of relations with the Cominform countries.

Among his points on other questions:

1. The collapse of EDC is no catastrophe. There are still ways and means to create a strong Europe.

2. The danger of Russian aggression has diminished, "but other elements have developed which could repeat what happened after World War I and II."

3. Yugoslavia does not wish to see Germany "remain in chains." The armament — as he expressed it — should be limited to the point where the Germans would not become equal in world affairs "so that other elements in world affairs could not use the present world situation as an excuse to do what they did after World War I."

UK Show Gratitude To Royal Air Force

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Britain today climaxed a solid week of ceremonies in which the many formally acknowledged their debt to the RAF few who beat the touted and numerically superior Nazi Luftwaffe in the battle of Britain 14 years ago.

Focal point of the celebration was Biggin Hill, Kent, famous RAF fighter station near London from which many planes took off during the battle. Air Marshal Sir Dermot Boyle, head of the RAF fighter command, presented a station badge to Biggin Hill.

The bishop of Rochester dedicated two old wartime planes—a Spitfire and a Hurricane—which stood on either side of an altar at the airfield chapel and which in future will permanently guard the chapel gate.

IN HOLLYWOOD

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Exclusively Yours: Claude Jarman, Jr., the boy actor who decided he would rather be a doctor than an actor, has changed his mind. Now 20, handsome and six-foot-two, he's back in Hollywood without the father who guided his career in 1946 when he starred in "The Yearling."

He was visiting the set of MGM's "Hit the Deck" with an agent when I spotted him. "I'm going to try again," he told me. "If it doesn't work, I'll go back to Nashville and finish up at Vanderbilt University.

"I tried to pursue medicine, but I didn't get into it too vigorously. I guess I have some ham in me. It drew me back to Hollywood."

Is he worried about the jinx that pursues former child stars?

"If I could get one mature role that would take me over the wall, I wouldn't be in such bad shape. But right now everybody looks at me as being very young and that's not good."

18-Foot Python Named Pete Still At Large

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 20 (AP) — A large python named Pete still was on the loose today with rewards totaling $500 posted for the return of all his 18 feet of potential danger.

Wary searching parties still combed the forest park area, with hundreds of curiosity seekers looking on, but no trace had been found of the fugitive serpent.

Experts believe the 150-pound snake is in or near the sluggish Trinity River which flows nearby.

Picnickers and zoo visitors were not deterred by the threat of encountering the snake and both Forest and Trinity parks were crowded with Sunday visitors.

Pete escaped from the reptile exhibit in Forest Park zoo early today.

Pete, who came to Fort Worth from Bangkok, probably won't attack anyone. Pythons are not poisonous.

Some experts theorized that the snake might have slithered into one of the sewer openings in the park.

Chiang's Forces Blast Red Ships Off Amoy Area

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 20 (AP) —Chinese Nationalist warships and planes today attacked Communist vessels along the Fukien province coast opposite Formosa and pounded the Amoy area.

It was the 18th straight day of assaults against the Red China mainland.

The Amoy area attacks centered on Tateng and Hsiteng, two small islands between Nationalist-held Quemoy and the mainland. Nationalist guns on Quemoy shelled these islands today inflicting heavy losses, the defense ministry said.

The new communique listed as sunk one of the four Red gunboats which were reported damaged today by Nationalist Thunderbolt fighters near Hutoushan (Tiger Head mountain), 50 miles southwest of Amoy.

The Nationalists claimed that at least 36 other smaller military craft were destroyed in the raids.

Meanwhile, they were keeping watch on Communist warships reported grouping 100 miles southeast of Shanghai and north of the hard-hit Amoy area.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP) — Nationalist China's ambassador to the United States said today he did not believe Nationalist bombing of the Chinese mainland opposite the island of Quemoy would lead to a big war.

Dr. Wellington Koo said bombing is simply "retaliation" for Communist shelling of the Nationalist-held island.

Such retaliatory bombing of mainland bases, Koo said on a television program, is likely to slow, rather than speed, any spread of the conflict between the Communists and the Chiang Kai-Shek government.

"The fact that they have answered only with artillery seems to confirm this," he added.

Koo said also that while the Communists have the larger air force, the Nationalists have better trained and more experienced pilots.

Koo said the Communists want Quemoy as a stepping stone to the invasion of Formosa, while the Nationalists want to keep the island as a vital radar and general observation post.

As to the Communist invasion of Formosa, the ambassador said "it is bound to come . . . as to how soon, that is a question for them to answer."

He said he did not expect it to come soon because the Communists "would think twice, or maybe three times" before attempting to run over the U.S. Seventh Fleet, now stationed in those waters.

POLICE NOTES

HIT AND RUN — Delfin C. Chaves of the Naval Hospital reported yesterday that while his Ford pickup was parked on the junction of Routes 1 and 4 in Tamuning it was struck on the rear left fender and running board by an unidentified car.

Chaves told police the driver of the car, instead of stopping for identification, drove off. Police said Chaves' vehicle was damaged in the amount of $75.

PEEPING TOM — A Barrigada woman told police Saturday that while she was in her room she saw somebody peeping through the window.

HOUSE FIRE — Damage estimated at $500 was caused Sunday when a fire broke out in the house of Ana C. Babauta of Agat, police said. No injuries were reported.

The fire was extinguished by Fire Station No. 4, Naval Base.

ASSAULT — Police patrols were alerted Sunday when S/Sgt Charlie E. Bridges, 6319th Supply Squadron, AAFB, reported he was assaulted by two persons while at a tire shop in Tamuning. Bridges, police said, identified one of the assailants as Tex MacDonald of Agat.

Investigators were told the pair promptly left the place in a sedan, colored red, and headed for Agana.

LIVE MINE — Francisco G. Blas of Mongmong reportedly found a live mine 150 feet from the Agana Beach Sunday morning. The explosive was fished out of the water by members of the Bomb Disposal Unit.

PUNCH ON MOUTH — It isn't safe to be within the punching distance of brawling men. Jose Q. Cruz of Talofofo proved that theory when he was struck on the mouth by one of the Filipinos who were fighting inside a Dededo cafe.

Castro charged his puncher with assault when officers arrived but later waived it. Asked by the investigator why he made the waiver, Castro allegedly answered, "I just changed my mind, that's all."

THEFT — Jim Lewis of Koster & Wythe informed police headquarters that an unidentified worker for the firm stole men's clothing, a wrist watch, two pairs of shoes and other articles from his co-workers Sunday.

The suspect, upon investigation, allegedly admitted having committed the offense and was required to return the booty. Police said the offender is an alien who soon will be shipped back to his country.

DOMESTIC TIFF — An irate woman walked to the police station Sunday and complained that her husband struck her with his fist on the forehead in the heat of a domestic quarrel. She told police the incident took place in front of a neighbor's house in Agat.

The angry husband, the woman claimed, also threw their food, and household utensils out of their window and refused to pick them up.

One-Third Million Viet Refugees Forsake Properties Flee Reds

SAIGON, Indo-China, Sept. 20 (AP) — A third of a million Viet Namese have fled southward from the Communist occupation of North Viet Nam. What happens to them here will ultimately determine whether all Viet Nam goes Communist or part remains free.

Soldiers, farmers and business people, some of whose homes, land and family roots go back to the time of Genghis Khan, have foreseaken practically everything they own to get away from the Reds. They have poured down here to an uncertain future. Spokesmen report others were restrained by the Viet Minh from leaving, sometimes by seizure of their children.

The government of South Viet Nam, struggling with its own organizational problems, the United States aid program, the Catholic Welfare Organization and the junior chamber of commerce international have helped get the refugees settled.

They are living in tents during the miserable monsoon season now at its peak. There are 180,000 of them in the Saigon and Camp St. Jacques area alone. Others are scattered in the cool plateau country around Dalat or headed for the swamplands west of Saigon.

They make a pathetic sight as they pour out of U.S. Navy ships and air transports with all the things they were able to salvage . . . what might have been a comfortable life slung on their backs. Many are aged, and American sailors help them down the gangplanks with their loads. Each one has a bundle, even the tiniest toddler.

They are driven by trucks to one of the 42 refugee areas in the Saigon sector. There they are crowded into tents and given their rations of rice, fish and vegetables. Each adult is given space in a tent, food and 12 piasters (about 35) cents a day. Children under 5 are allowed six piasters a day. The payments are made from Viet Nam government funds. But these funds will last for only three months.

The problem of feeding and finding homes for these refugees is being handled as expeditiously as possible.

The United States Foreign Aid (FOA) program plans to build 125 new villages in the south.

From the U.S. Army and Navy, other necessities of life and medicines are being supplied to these refugee centers.

Native doctors and priests teach the refugees sanitation. The refugees cook their own food.

Some will get homes and rice paddies in the rich provinces of the south. Others will be resettled in the swamplands that are yet to be drained. Bulldozers and other equipment necessary to properly drain these swamps are yet to be acquired.

Premier Ngo Dinh Diem says this is one of his government's major problems. He realizes that unless these people are resettled and given some of the comforts of life immediately, the seeds of Communism will begin to sprout among them.

If they grow desperate and turn to Communism in disappointment at their treatment here, the Reds are expected to come rolling down the high road which was followed by the Japanese in 1941 to all the rest of southeast Asia — Thailand, Burma, Malaya, Singapore and Indonesia.

Maine Case Not Important: Nixon

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 20 (AP) — U.S. Vice President Richard Nixon said today the recent Maine election, in which a Democrat was elected governor for the first time in 20 years, was not particularly significant. He said the Republican party does not regard the voting in Maine as a trend.

"But it showed the need for great reorganization of state Republican parties around the nation," Nixon said at a news conference.

Nixon said Republicans have been working harder than ever to unify themselves in all the states he has visited. Disputing Democratic charges that the Republican party is split, Nixon said, "People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones. The Democrats have splits themselves."

Nixon denied charges by Adlai Stevenson, unsuccessful 1952 Democratic candidate for president, that the Republican administration is a "give away government" and is responsible for an "alarming deterioration of our world position."

Nixon further said Stevenson has made no constructive suggestions of his own on world issues, such as Indo-China and Korea. "The people are entitled to know what Stevenson's action would have been in these cases," the vice president said.

Hotel Heir Wins Custody Over Child

PARIS, Sept. 20 (AP) — The tinrich Patino family, bowing to a court order, today returned frail 4-month-old Isabela Goldsmith to her father, British hotel heir James Goldsmith.

The infant's return ended a four-day battle 21-year-old Goldsmith had waged with his late wife's family for custody of the child.

The child's grandmother, Mrs. Antenor Patino, conferred with a custody suit, but the court directed the Patinos to give little Isabela back to her father.

Democrats Seek To Stall 'Bluff' In US Policy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP) — The U.S. Democratic national committee said today that election of a Democratic congress would help end "foreign policy by bluff" and other "best chance" of enacting the Eisenhower trade and the public housing programs.

It added a Democratic congress would be "better able to stop further giveaways" of public resources.

The committee made the statement in a 94-page "Democratic Fact Book" which it is distributing to party candidates and speakers for use in the current election campaign.

The book said a Democratic congress would help to end what it called a paralysis in foreign policy that resulted from "old guard domination of congress."

It listed a number of instances of "bold pronouncements and promises which we the U.S.) could not —and in some instances did not intend to — fulfill."

These included what was described as the "unleashing" of Chiang Kai-Shek with President Eisenhower's order to the Seventh Fleet.

The "fact book" claimed a "secret agreement" existed between the Republican administration and Chiang specifying that Chiang's troops "must stay put on Formosa —thus proving that the unleashing was a phony, designed mainly for domestic applause."

The chapter entitled "Diplomacy by Bluff" also cited threats of "massive retaliation" coupled with defense cutbacks, "threats and hints" of intervention in Indo-China and threats of "agonizing reappraisal" unless France ratified the European defense treaty.

The book said many foreign policy decisions "have not been based upon facts and realities, but have been designed to court popularity with public opinion at home — to win votes."

Sen. Wiley Has Ideas Aimed At Changing United Nations' Ways

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP) — Sen. Wiley, the Wisconsin Republican who is chairman of the Senate's foreign relations committee, has come up with some ideas which seem headed no place.

His ideas — he offers them for study and not as flat proposals for the United States to follow — are aimed at possible changes in the United Nations' way of doing business.

When the wartime allies stitched the U.N. together in San Francisco in 1945 they agreed on how they'd operate, writing their agreement in 111 articles of the U.N. charter.

Foreseeing that some of them might want to change those rules some day, they wrote in a rule for doing just that. It's rule No. 109.

It's a beaut. Briefly, it says none of the rules can be changed without approval of two-thirds of the U.N. members — there are now 60 — including all five permanent members of the security council.

The five permanent members are the United States, Russia, Britain, France, and Nationalist China. Since Rule No. 109 says there can be no charter change unless all five approve, any one of the five could veto any change.

CHARTER REVISION

Rule No. 109 also says the U.N. must, in 1955, put on its docket the question of revising the charter. But whether the members go into a special conference to consider changes is left up to them at the time.

One of the things which makes Wiley unhappy is that Russia really has three votes in the general assembly while every other nation, including the United States, has only one.

The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is made up of republics just as the United States is made up of states but Russia as a whole and two Russian republics, the Ukraine and Byelorussia, are U.N. members.

The Ukraine and Byelorussia couldn't be thrown out unless the charter was changed. And Russia could veto that.

This veto power in the security council is also something which needs study, Wiley says. But no one around here is predicting the United States would ever let the veto power be taken from the council's five permanent members.

The United States can use that veto any time it wishes to prevent the U.N. from pushing through a major proposal which this country considers injurious to its interests.

ONE STATE, ONE VOTE

Wiley notes another study problem: the present one-state-one-vote arrangement in the general arrangement in the general assembly which, gives the smallest nation as much voting power there as the largest.

Wiley asked his staff on the foreign relations committee to make a study and a report. The report was released last night together with Wiley's introductory statement.

This report suggested some possible solutions but offered none as a final answer. This could be proposed, for instance:

Instead of limiting each member, large or small, to one vote, let each member have a number of votes in accordance with its size, population, national income and the money it spends to help support the U.N.

It's hard to see the small U.N. nations going for a proposition that would give the big powers a stronger say and themselves less. So it is difficult to see how a two-thirds majority could be mustered for such a change, even if all the big five should approve.

And even though 59 U.N. members approved the weighted-vote formula, Russia could veto the whole business.

Mrs. Bailey Is First US Lady Lt. Governor

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 20 (AP) — Mrs. Consuelo Northrop Bailey, who as a young state's attorney prosecuted hundreds of bootlegging cases including one involving murder in the late 20's, was virtually assured today of being the first woman elected lieutenant governor in the United States.

A life-long Republican, Mrs. Bailey, 54, defeated Atty. Gen. F. Elliott Barber and state grange master and former Gov. Harold J. Arthur for the GOP nomination for lieut. governor. Nomination is tantamount to election in Vermont.

As city prosecutor in Burlington at the age of 26 and for four years later as state's attorney in Chittenden County, the then Consuelo Northrop handled numerous liquor cases of the prohibition era.

She recalled today in her Burlington law office that the proximity of her county with the Canadian border brought many liquor law violators into her jurisdiction.

Mrs. Bailey remembered in particular one bootlegger who shot and killed a federal agent. She prosecuted the case through two trials and the man eventually was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The first woman prosecutor elected east of the Mississippi, Mrs. Bailey has been an active Republican for 29 years. Her victory last week accompanied by a sweeping win of the gubernatorial nomination by Lt. Gov. Joseph B. Johnson.

Vermont usually promotes its lieutenant governor to the governorship but Mrs. Bailey has no comment on the possibility she one day may be the state's chief executive.

Judge Dismisses Libel Suit Against Tribune

CHICAGO, Sept. 20 (AP) — Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher recently dismissed a 2½ million dollar libel suit against the Chicago Tribune and commended newspapers generally for guarding against corruption by public officials.

Kenneth G. Belt, an American engineer in France, charged that the Tribune libeled him in a May 9, 1952, article about alleged waste in a construction project at a U.S. army depot at Bussac, France. Belt was employed as a civilian engineer on the project.

Yankee's Desire For Peace Based On Fear?

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP) — The average American was described today by a British legislator visiting the United States as more scared of another war than the average Englishmen — and therefore more anxious for peace.

Richard Crossman, Laborite member of parliament and frequent critic of American foreign policy, gave this opinion in an article published by the Sunday Pictorial.

"The average American today is in a mood of acute frustrated anxiety," Crossman wrote from Washington.

"He is scared of being smeared as a Commie if he openly advocates peace with the Communists. But he is even more scared of another war.

Indeed, he is much more frightened that war is coming than the average Englishman, and therefore much more anxious for peace."

Attlee Plane Trouble

HONOLULU, Sept. 20 (AP) — Clement Attlee, former British Prime Minister on his way home after a visit to Red China, encountered a delay last night when his plane developed engine trouble 182 miles out on his way to San Francisco and had to turn back.

Attlee and his wife planned another departure tonight on Qantas Empire Airlines.

Unidentified Killer Stabs Girl To Death

CHEPSTOW, England Sept. 20 (AP) — A young girl was stabbed to death in a field overlooking the river Severn today — the third unsolved slaying of a young woman in this country in the last two weeks.

She was wearing shorts and a sweater and had gotten off a bicycle to eat a picnic lunch in a cliff-top field overlooking the river. Police said the killer stabbed her at the back of the head and neck.

They were not able to identify her immediately. She was about 22.

The spot where she was slain was about 100 miles west of London.

The other young women, Jean Mary Townsend, 21, and Helen Carlin, 28, were strangled to death, one with her scarf and the other with her nylon stockings.

Formosa Blackout

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 20 (AP) — All Formosa was blacked out for 55 minutes early today after radar picked up unidentified planes 100 miles away. Presumably the planes later proved friendly.

The Chinese Nationalist stronghold, alert for any move against it by Chinese Red planes, had a three-hour total blackout on Sept. 6.

Scientist Predicts Eventual Negro Change To 'Slight Brunette Shade'

BERKELEY, Calif., Sept. 20 (AP) — The American Negro eventually will disappear by mixing into the Caucasian population, and the main mark he will leave on the whites will be a slight brunette shade, says a University of California geneticist.

The process will require centuries, but just how long will depend on social developments, says Dr. Curt Stern, a professor of zoology who specializes in the study of heredity. Dr. Stern makes the statements in the October issue of The Scientific American.

There will be two stages of the process, he adds.

First, an increasing number of ostensibly black people who already have a mixture of white in them will become whiter as they mix with other whites and their offspring will become known as white. This will leave a smaller number of Negroes who can be classed as black. Second, these supposedly little-diluted blacks will be somewhat more African in appearance than the Negro of today. Whether they will mix slowly into the overwhelmingly larger white group or be taken into it rather rapidly will depend on social considerations of the future.

It seems likely, Dr. Stern reports, that the African genes of the remaining blacks will be dispersed among the Caucasian element so widely that they will add only a light brownish cast to the white population generally.

Eventually, Dr. Stern predicted, the fusion will become so thorough that only a few thousand people with black skin will appear in each generation.

Here is One Beer that Gives You All Natural Carbonation All the Time!

Those thousands of tiny bubbles fizzing and soaring in your glass of Budweiser are put there by Mother Nature in the costliest brewing and ageing process on Earth.

Budweiser is brewed with all natural carbonation all the time.

You see, there is something that we could do, but don't. We could artificially carbonate our beer after fermentation and package it. It would be beer, but certainly not Budweiser.

Instead, our beer goes through a second fermentation. During this much, much longer ageing, Nature carbonates it as she does the finest champagne. There is no other way to produce Budweiser . . . the beer that has pleased more people than any other beer in history.

Yes, when you know your beer, it's bound to be BUD.

READY TO GO — Sal Maglie, right, was named yesterday to try and clinch the National League pennant tonight as the Giants and Dodgers begin a three game series at Ebbet's Field. In the event Maglie, a Dodger-killer from way back, fails to go the distance, then Manager Durocher will probably have Marv Grissom. left, ready to put out any fires that Brooklyn may start.

BRAVES OUT OF RACE; BUMS AT TRAIL'S END

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP) — Milwaukee was mathematically eliminated yesterday from the National League pennant race and Brooklyn moved a step closer to exclusion when both the Braves and Dodgers suffered disastrous defeats at the hands of second division clubs.

The Braves bowed to St. Louis 7-6, the Cardinals overcoming a 6-0 deficit to drop Charlie Grimm's third placers eight games below the league leading New York Giants. Since the Braves and Giants have only seven left to play, Milwaukee cannot possibly win the flag this season.

Pittsburgh whipped Brooklyn for the fourth straight time, 1-0, to tumble the second place Dodgers 5½ games behind the Giants, six on the losing side.

The Giants, idled by rain, now can clinch the flag merely by winning once in the three-game set with Brooklyn starting at Ebbetts' Field tomorrow. One Dodger defeat in their remaining six games and one more New York victory would end the race. After their three-game clash, the Dodgers entertain Pittsburgh for three games while the Giants go to Philadelphia for their final four.

Bob Friend, who had beaten Brooklyn only once in four years, hurled the shutout for the Pirates, scattering six hits. Rus Meyer was the hard luck loser, giving up five hits. Pittsburgh's lone run was unearned, coming in the fourth when Preston Ward singled to right, raced to third when the ball rolled through Carl Furillo's legs, and scored on Frank Thomas' deep fly to center.

A sacrifice fly also accounted for the run that beat Milwaukee. It was hit by Bill Sarni with the bases loaded in the ninth and scored Stan Musial with the winning St. Louis run. Musial had opened the ninth with a double and had been sacrificed to third.

The Braves built their 6-0 lead in the first four innings off starter Brooks Lawrence and reliefer Al Brazle. Eddie Mathews hit his 38th and 39th homers and Andy Pafko his 14th. Sarni figured in the first two scoring innings for St. Louis with singles, and Wally Moon's second double tied the score in the eighth. Harvey Haddix gained his 18th victory, in relief.

Although the American League pennant is safely in the bag, the Cleveland Indians refused to let up, winning their 10th straight, defeating Detroit 4-2. Hank Majeski's three-run homer in the first paved the way for the Indians' 108th victory and righthander Mike Garcia's 19th triumph. The Indians have six games in which to break the Yankees' American League record of 110 victories set in 1927.

Scoring all their runs in the eighth, the Yankees defeated the Philadelphia Athletics 4-2 for their 100th victory, the most won in six seasons under manager Casey Stengel. Gil McDougald's three-run homer enabled reliefer Johnny Sain to even his season's record at 6-6.

Boston Red Sox moved into fourth place as Mel Parnell whipped Washington 6-2. It was the southpaw's third victory of the season, all against Washington. A broken finger had kept him out for most of the season. The Red Sox pounded Bob Porterfield for five runs in the first four innings to hand the Washington ace his 15th defeat.

Gil Coan collected four hits and drove in two runs as Baltimore defeated the Chicago White Sox 5-1 to foil Virgil Trucks in his attempt to gain his 20th triumph. Duane Pillete and Bob Chakales combined to limit the White Sox to three hits.

U.S. Carries Off Five Swim Crowns In Mexican Meet

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 20 (AP)—The United States carried off five individual titles yesterday but finished second to Chapultepec in both the men and women's division of the Mexican Swimming Championships.

Beth Clotworthy of Ohio State turned in a surprise triumph over Joaquin Capilla of Mexico, U.S. national champion, in the 10-meter dive. Clotworthy won by a margin of 172.07 points to 170.98.

Dick Cleveland of Ohio State showed the way home in the 100-meter freestyle with a 59-second clocking. Shelly Mann of Arlington, Va. won her specialty, the 100-meter freestyle, in 1.06 and Pat McCormick of Los Angeles captured the women's 10-meter diving event with 96.17 points.

The other U.S. triumph was turned in by Jackie Brown and Joanne Berthelsen in synchronized swimming for women.

Richard Fadgen of North Carolina State was second to Mexico's Walter Ocampo in the 200-meter breaststroke and the men's relay team of Al Wiggins, Fadgen, Bill Woolsey and Ford Konno took third in the 1,200-meter freestyle relay.

Chapultepec won the men's team title with 80 points and the women's with 108. The U.S. was second with 58 and 51, respectively.

Maglie To Try For Pennant-Clincher Against Dodgers Tonight In Brooklyn

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP) — The New York Giants can clinch the National League pennant tonight by beating defending champion Brooklyn in the Dodgers' own backyard.

The job of dethroning Brooklyn has been given to Sal Maglie, an old Dodger killer, who has lost only one game in his entire career at Brooklyn's Ebbets Field. Maglie will be opposed by southpaw Johnny Podres.

Actually, the Giants need two more victories to stow away the '54 flag. But a victory over Brooklyn is equivalent to two New York win. Should the Giants win tonight, they will boast a 6½ game lead with only six games left to play against Brooklyn's five.

If the Giants fail to win, they still can clinch the flag tomorrow or Thursday as the interborough rivals conclude their season play against each other with a three-game series.

Manager Walter Alston of the Dodgers has been grooming his three top pitchers, Podres, Carl Erskine and Billy Loes for this do-or-die series. Leo Durocher, manager of the Giants, declined to name any other pitchers besides Maglie.

Even if the Dodgers should sweep the series, their task still will be one of herculean proportions in order to overtake the Giants. They then will have to win all three remaining games with Pittsburgh while the Giants will have to lose all four to Philadelphia.

BOOK BLAMES US SCIENTISTS FOR H-BOMB STALL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP) — A new book called "The Hydrogen Bomb" says the United States lagged behind Russia for four years in developing history's most powerful weapon. It puts most of the blame on Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer and a number of other leading atomic scientists.

The soon-to-be-published book, by James R. Shepley and Clay Blair Jr., contends "it was an accident bordering almost on the miraculous" that the U.S. caught up with and passed the Soviets, who set off a droppable H-bomb six months before the United States did.

(Russia exploded its first H-weapon Aug. 12, 1953, and Chairman W. Sterling Cole (R-N.Y.) of the joint committee on atomic energy later said the Soviet device "can be carried by air." The first such American weapons were tested the following March at Eniwetok in the south Pacific.)

With the coming year, the book says, the United States could virtually wipe the Soviet Union from the face of the earth with a rain of H-bombs. But it adds: "Within only a few years or even less the Red air force . . . must be conceded the same capability against the U.S."

Both authors of "The Hydrogen Bomb" are Time Magazine staff members. Shepley heads Times' Washington bureau. The book, copyrighted by the authors, is to be published by the David McKay Co. Inc., of New York. Lengthy excerpts appear in the current issue of U.S. News & World Report magazine.

The authors put the blame on a number of factors for the United States failure to press ahead the H-bomb development as soon as Russia exploded its first atomic weapon — known as "Joe One" —in August, 1949. They say President Truman was "evasive" at first, the air force indifferent and the prevalent Washington attitude one of confusion.

"In 1949, while Washington debated whether or not to launch a thermonuclear (H-bomb) program as a result of Joe One," the authors say, "the Soviets were plugging away on their own thermonuclear program and had amassed a dangerously long lead."

By far the biggest obstacle in the U.S., Shepley and Blair said, was a solid "wall of opposition" put up by Oppenheimer and various other scientists who, the books says, ultimately were proved wrong in their calculations when Dr. Edward Teller came up with a theory about how the H-bomb could be built successfully.

Fifteen Chaplains 'Chute To Safety From Fiery Plane

NEWHALL, Calif., Sept. 21 (AP) Fifteen Civil Air Patrol chaplains and three crewmen of an air force C-46 transport plane narrowly escaped death today by parachuting just before the big craft crashed in flames on the Los Angeles City prison farm.

The air force reported that the plane with a pilot, co-pilot and engineer and the chaplains crashed shortly after takeoff, trailing smoke and with one engine afire.

At first there were conflicting reports as to how many were aboard. But air force officials finally gave the total as 15 chaplains and the three crewmen and said all have been accounted for.

The air force reported that all the chaplains parachuted. They were scattered throughout the hills.

The pilot was reported dazed and shaken up but apparently not injured seriously.

Two or three inmates of the farm, which has 500 prisoners, suffered minor injuries.

The plane crashed shortly after taking off from Lockheed Air Terminal about 17 miles south of the prison farm, on a trip to Mather Air Force Base near Sacramento. The chaplains were headed there for a Civil Air Patrol meeting.

Pope's Health Unchanged

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, Sept. 21 (AP) — The condition of Pope Pius XII fatigued by a heavy summer schedule of audiences and extraordinary Marian Year activities, was described today as unchanged.

A Vatican source at the pontiff's summer residence here said despite his fatigue, the Roman Catholic leader had gone about his regular schedule in conducting the affairs of the church.

FACES POSSIBLE FINE OF $13,000 IN COURT TODAY

A bartender accused of illegally transporting untaxed liquor on the highways of Guam is facing a fine in excess of $13,000 following his conviction yesterday by Judge Joaquin C. Perez in island court.

The accused, 39-year-old Stephen Haseing Atkins, bartender at the Sans Souci in Tamuning, was found guilty on 21 charges.

Judge Perez will pass sentence at 1:30 this afternoon after the taxes due from the liquor have been computed. The computation will be made by the court, assisted by a government of Guam internal revenue officer.

Government prosecutor Richard Rosenberry said the law reads that a person convicted of possessing untaxed liquor "shall be fined 100 times the amount of unpaid taxes." Based on a preliminary and unofficial computation made by Rosenberry, Atkins could be fined $13,360.

Rosenberry stressed however, that this figure "is not final." The findings of the court and the revenue officer, he said, will be conclusive.

Atkins, according to information compiled by naval and civil authorities, and filed with the attorney general's office, transported liquor at various times between July 1 and Aug. 10.

Arrested Aug. 17, Atkins was released after posting a $1,500 bond.

He went on trial Aug. 31.

Atkins denied he dispensed the tax-free liquor, purchased at the US Accepts Bid To German Talks

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP) — The United States today morally accepted Britain's invitation to a nine-power conference on German rearmament next Tuesday in London.

State department press officer Lincoln White assembled newsmen to tell them of the receipt and acceptance of the British bid.

He said Secretary of State Dulles "hopes" to be able to fly from Washington Sunday for London. That will depend, White said, on "developments at the U.N."

Dulles is scheduled to deliver America's policy statement in general debate at the United Nations some time this week probably Friday.

THE CASE OF QUEMOY

SECRETARY OF STATE JOHN FOSTER DULLES said the thing the nation wanted to hear when he voiced confidence that American military might would succeed in turning back any Chinese Communist attack on Formosa.

Formosa's strategic importance to the United States is well established. It is part of an island chain that also embraces the Philippines, the Ryukus (Okinawa) and Japan. This chain is America's first line of defense in the Pacific. The loss of any link would imperil the rest.

But, publicly at least, Dulles stepped into new ground when he told newsmen pressing him on the issue that the defense of Quemoy, the Chinese Nationalist island seven miles off mainland China, is "primarily related to the defense of Formosa and is being considered and studied in that light."

THE key to this comment may be in the words "primarily related." The question in citizens' minds is just how Quemoy's defense is related to Formosa's. Since the latter is upwards of 100 miles from the mainland, it is nearly as far from Quemoy. Its conquest by Red China would thus hardly put the Communists a big stride toward Formosa.

To contend, therefore, that the U. S. defense barrier must now be bulged westward 100 miles to include an island within shelling distance of China's mainland is really to advance a whole new defense concept.

When the high-level studies alluded to by Dulles are completed, the American public should be given a clear understanding of the place our military experts give Quemoy in the strategic picture.

THERE is no question that Quemoy in Chiang Kai-shek's hands is a valuable weapon of harassment against the Reds. And if they should ever seriously attempt an invasion of Formosa, the Quemoy Nationalists could prove a source of major interference with Red attack plans.

But supposing that interference did not occur, that the Reds seized Quemoy before undertaking a Formosa invasion? Would Formosa be doomed or its defense even moderately compromised because Quemoy had fallen first?

American military men have made no public representations to this effect. Nor have our diplomats, until Dulles used the words "primarily related."

Until he or they explain those words, the American people cannot help having certain doubts about this country's posturing in the Far Pacific. If we are to defend Quemoy in event of attack, we really ought to know why.

Court Convicts Stephen Atkins

Employees Service Association liquor store in Camp Asan, at the bar where he works. Police investigators, in written reports submitted as evidence in court, stated they found "several full bottles" of liquor in a rear room of the Tamuning tavern. The "untampered bottles" were presented in court as evidence.

Earlier, the prosecution established Atkins was able to purchase liquor from the Employees Service Association by using an ESA membership card belonging to James D. Keesee, a civil service employee.

Keesee, taking the witness stand, denied any knowledge of the purchases. But Keesee admitted he gave his card to Atkins "six months ago."

Shown ESA sales receipts also presented by the prosecution as government evidence, Keesee said the signatures on the receipts were facsimiles of my signature."

At the second stage of the trial, Sept. 17, two government witnesses, Det. Sgts. F. C. Concepcion and J. P. Ignacio of the Guam police, testified Atkins previously had admitted he purchased liquor from the ESA "for the use of a friend in Barrigada."

Atkins, a former civil service employee, said his friend, identified as "Ben Aguon," needed liquor to entertain friends during a fiesta.

The case was touched off by a tip to the Navy Intelligence Office that a "certain individual was buying liquor in large quantities from the ESA," according to testimony by Investigator John G. Powell of the ONI.

Working in cooperation with the ONI, the Guam police obtained a warrant from Judge Jose C. Manibusan to search the tavern. Atkins' arrest followed.

Atkins was represented by Attorneys Paul Palting and Joaquin Arriola.

committee; Robert Humphrey, in charge of organization; and Val Washington who handles relations with minority groups.

The quartet came to Denver with Maine's election of a Democratic governor last week still uncomfortably fresh in Republican minds, and with opposition criticism for the Eisenhower administration mounting as the campaign goes into the home stretch.

The President so far has campaigned in a restrained kind of way, strictly according to the pattern he set out for himself months ago.

He has said repeatedly that he would not do barnstorming for individual GOP candidates — that instead he would go around the country plugging the record of his administration and the Republican-run 83rd congress. And that is just what he has done on the few occasions he has spoken out.

Gasbags Meet At Andersen

The GASBAGS met in force at the Andersen Officer's Club yesterday noon and the air force never will be the same.

Col. "Flight Line" Dugan (co named by the Gasbags) was the host.

Gasbag "Smokey Joe" Caldara flew in by special plane the Gasbag Queen for 1954, Miss Carabao of 1954, and she was made the guest of Gasbag "Flight Line" Dugan.

Gasbag "Sawbones" Provencher reported that the Gasbag committees are classed in four categories: existing, non-existing, active and inactive. The Gasbags heard reports from the non-existing and inactive committees which held no meetings and as a result had no business—new or old—to present to the group.

New members added to the fold Tuesday were Col. "Flight Line" Dugan commanding officer, Andersen Air Force Base; Lieut. Com. "Earth Mover" Hayen, executive officer, MCB 10; Ed "Secret Mission" Calvo and Cecil "Audits" Miller.

A special meeting has been called by the Gasbags for the Halenanea at 8 tonight. The affair will be broadcast over KUAM. Everyone is invited to attend.

All men in Guam, both military and civilian, are invited to join the Gasbags in putting on the Gasbag Clown Ballgame at Camp Roxas Ball Field Sunday Oct. 3, at 7:30. The proceeds will be used to help needy children of Guam.

West To Rebuff Mao In UN Meet

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 21 (AP) — U.S. sources said tonight the West is ready with a strong counterattack to meet expected demands of the Soviet bloc and India for admission of Red China to the U.N.

The West drew its lines tighter as the eighth general assembly wound up in a two-minute session and the delegates prepared for the ninth assembly, convening at 1000 GMT (5 p.m. Guam time) tomorrow.

U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will be on hand to speak for the United States if and when Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrie Y. Vishinsky brings up the Red Chinese issue, American delegation members said.

Getting ready for the fight, U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., charged yesterday that Communist China carried out 39 "warlike acts of piracy" against ships and planes of seven nations.

The organization of the Filipino Community of Guam is a step forward in the right direction. The desires of both Filipinos and local citizens for better ties and stronger relationship bteween them is at last materializing.

The new club's aims and purposes are products of clear thinking men and women. They show the willingness of Filipinos here to play an important role in the progress of Guam. And we know that only through mutual and friendly understanding could make Guam forge full speed ahead.

The animal welfare association will not hold a meeting this month. They wish, however, to bring to the attention of the public the growing number of accidents involving animals on the highways. Many of these have been caused by animals kept too close to the road.

Here is the present law in regard to this matter:

Animals Impeding Traffic

"Whoever secures animals alongside any public highway in such a manner that the rope and/or animal impede traffic shall be fined the sum of $2.00."

LAUREL DRIVES FOR US-PI TRADE CHANGE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP) — Sen. Jose P. Laurel today launched a Philippine drive to revise existing trade relations with the United States by a hard-hitting policy statement calling for abrogation and special parity rights to American citizens in the Philippines and three other major objectives.

The so-called parity amendment to the Philippine Constitution gives American citizens and corporations the same rights as Filipinos until 1974 in exploitation and development of natural resources and operation of public utilities.

Laurel, who campaigned against parity eight years ago, before a special Philippine election, called for outright abrogation or "the search for a new formula mutually satisfactory to our two peoples."

MAJOR POINTS

Three other major points proposed by Laurel as chief of the Philippines economic mission at a closed session today were:

1. Elimination or modification of provisions of the 1946 trade act and executive agreement which is "not consistent with our sovereignty and independence." This is aimed primarily at a provision pegging the peso to the dollar at two for one with the stipulation it could not be changed without consent of the President of the United States.

2. Removal, correction or improvement of such provisions have produced inequalities or which have worked hardships on the Philippine national economy in the past or possibly in the future.

3. Formulation of a new or revised pattern of economic relations to mutual advantage of both countries.

James M. Langley, Concord, New Hampshire publisher, opened the 45-minute afternoon session for the American delegation he heads with a warning that there are no miraculous or simple solutions to the complicated trade matters at hand.

U.S. FAVORS P.I. AIMS

Langley said the United States basically is in agreement on the Philippine objectives of more farm production, expansion of commerce and industry, raising the standard of living, reducing unemployment, increasing foreign trade, stabilizing currency, and creating ample public works and government revenues they make necessary, and greater social benefits.

He said it on the methods by which these objectives can be achieved that there may be different judgments. He noted the 1946 trade agreement set the pattern for only a fraction of the methods.

"Some of the few methods this agreement prescribes undoubtedly are not as beneficial as had been hoped when the agreement was devised," Langley said. "On the other hand, there are very considerable benefits contained. A fact sometimes forgotten when deficiencies of the agreement are derided, but recalled the moment criticism reaches the point of suggesting abrogation of the agreement."

Langley cautioned that "no matter how well we do our job we should not expect to solve all of the outstanding problems of either nation through trade negotiations."

LITTLE TIME

He reminded his listeners that there are only four months before the congresses of both countries convene, and he urged that the recommendations be ready by then. He said he doubted if the U.S. Congress would approve further extension of duty free trade beyond January, 1956.

Langley said the United States is ready to discuss "any and all aspects" of the trade agreement and related matter not now covered by it.

"We await your specific proposals," he said.

The next meeting is scheduled for Thursday at the State Department international conference suite.

Laurel said he was highly pleased with the start of negotations and called it a "wonderful reunion of well-meaning people," Laurel said it was "soothing and comforting to a tired soul," as he described himself.

Langley said the opening session were "highly congenial."

We will start serious discussions at the Thursday meeting," Langley said.

Attlee Outlines China Appraisal

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 21 (AP) — Clement Attlee arrived here by airliner today on his way home from his trip through Russia and

The former British Labor Prime Red China.

Minister arrived from San Francisco after a trans-Pacafic flight. He was to take off later in the day for Montreal. He was met at the airport here by civic officials and leaders of the Cooperative Commonwealth Party.

At San Francisco, Attlee said "we believe a greater contact with China from the western world will be better for peace."

The former British Prime Minister read a brief statement to newsmen but permitted no questions.

"There is a Communist government in China," his statement said. "They have a sympathy with Russia. They replaced Chiang Kai-Shek. The Communists are efficient and honest. Chiang's government was not efficient and many of his followers were not honest.

They were cut off from necessary and important supplies and so they naturally rely a good deal on Russia. The strength of any revolutionary regime is the feeling that it is being attacked from without.

"China is an immense country. It has a very old civilization. If you try to ring China to keep her from the western world, you will drive her more into the hands of Russia."

When newsmen started to interrogate him, the hatless Attlee stopped short with:

"There will be no questions. I have had my say."

Accident Accountings

Nearly 10 per cent of traffic accidents are due to careless or improper signals being given by motorists, or to complete failure to indicate intention to stop, turn, or slow down.

Canada is considering building the world's longest and, perhaps, biggest natural gas pipeline. It will run from southern Alberta to Toronto and Montreal, about 2240 miles.

559 Sino-Pardoned Japs Off For Home

TOKYO, Sept. 21 (AP) — Peiping radio said today 559 Japanese had been assembled in the northern Chinese city of Tientsin and would leave for home shortly on a Japanese ship.

A broadcast said there were 142 civilians and 417 "former Japanese military men who have been pardoned for crimes they committed in China during the Japanese invasion."

Peiping said more than 400 of the former soldiers visited a Tientsin graveyard where "Chinese martyres who resisted the Japanese militarist" are buried and took an oath 'that we will never tread the criminal road again." The oath also said they would "struggle for peace and better relations between Japan and Red China.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 21 (AP) — Japan's finance minister, Sankuro Ogasawara, arrived by plane today on his way to Washington for a monetary conference and to help arrange for the impending visit of Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida.

Ogasawara landed at the International airport at 11:20 a.m. on Japan Air Lines and went to the St. Francis Hotel for an overnight stay.

Spain Okays Pact On German Foreign Debts

MADRID, Sept. 21 (AP) — Spain completed ratification of an agreement on German foriegn debts today —only a few days before the start in Madrid of negotiations for a new commercial accord.

Both delegations will study the thorny question of the liquidation of a Spanish deficit of 65 million German marks for goods received from Germany in the past few years.

For that reason, well informed sources said, the talks will be longer than usual and could prevent the quick signature of a new commercial accord between Spain and West Germany.

Ratification of the accord on German foreign debts was published in the Spanish official journal. It was signed by Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish chief of state.

The accord was signed in London Feb. 27, 1953 by 21 countries, including Spain and West Germany. It establishes the ways in which West Germany can liquidate her foreign debts.

Korea Blasts US For 'Failure' To Discuss Troop Pullout In Advance

SEOUL, Sept. 21 (AP) — South Korea yesterday kept the dispute over America's troops pullout boiling with another charge that the United States failed to discuss its redeployment plans with the ROK government in advance.

"The stage is set for Korean unification — but by the Communists," said an official statement by Gen. Choi Duk Shin, who had accompanied President Syngman Rhee to the United States as a military adviser.

The statement, released by the government information office, apparently was in rebuttal to a U.S. embassy statement last week claiming redeployment had been discussed with ROK officials in Washington and that South Korea was not being abandoned.

Choi, former ROK delegate to the Panmunjom truce talks, said "the question of how many U.S. forces would return home — and when — was not brought up," unquote at U.S.-ROK conferences in Washington, "before, during and after Rhee's recent visit.

The general also said President Rhee did not sign the draft he was shown of a proposed joint statement with President Eisenhower on their Washington talks.

"Even this (draft) was revised and enlarged before it was released, consequently it is different from the original," Choi said, adding, "certainly such a procedure cannot be called a consultation nor even an honest, straightforward request for concurrence."

Choi also charged that America's answer to South Korean talk of unifying the peninsula — by force if necessary — was "a restriction on fuel and munitions to two days supply."

Choi said Rhee in Washington stated foreign troops could leave "at any time without any hard feelings and we would thank them for what they have done and bid them goodbye in friendship regardless of what might happen to us."

The general added the ROK stand is: "Train us, arm us, equip us and we will do the fighting ourselves, but the hasty withdrawal makes it impossible for us to be ready in time."

He said South Korea has inadequate air power, fire power, ammunition and fuel and needed more trained manpower.

2 Red-Freed Newsmen Leaving Tokyo For US

SEATTLE, Sept. 21 (AP) — Two American newsmen imprisoned 18 months by Chinese Reds will arrive here from Tokyo tomorrow, Northwest Orient Airlines announced.

The brief stopover will reunite Richard Applegate, National Broadcasting Co. correspondent, with his mother, Mrs. Frank Applegate, Medford, Ore.

Applegate and Donald Dixon, International News Service correspondents, were seized, along with Ben Krasner, Brooklyn, on a yacht off Hong Kong early last year. Their captors said they were in Chinese Communist waters, a charge denied by the three men. They were released last week.

The two newsmen will have an hour's layover here before continuing to New York.

With them on the flight from Tokyo are Howard Handleman, former INS Tokyo bureau chief, and George Folster, NBC's far eastern director. Krasner, the yacht skipper, remained in Hongkong.

Mrs. Applegate, who never lost faith her son would be returned without harm, is scheduled to arrive by plane from Medford.

ARC Chapter Select Nominating Committee

Eight persons, headed by Congressman Joaquin Santos, was selected last night by the American Red Cross, Guam Chapter, executive committee to nominate candidates to fill the unexpired term of 10 of the 21 board members for the fiscal year 1954-1955.

This was announced today by Congressman B. J. Bordallo, chapter president.

With Cong. Santos are Congressmen Jim Butler, E. T. Calvo, Vicente Bamba, Manuel Lujan, Director Fred Gutierrez of Civil Defense, Chief Commissioner Ben Zafra and Schools Superintendent Simon Sanchez.

The committee will meet at the chapter's headquarters in Agana Tuesday evening, Sept. 28.

Latin Society Builds Child Centers

BY GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor

CARACAS, Venezuela—(NEA)—The child day-care center, long familiar to American mothers who hold jobs, is just becoming known in Caracas.

All twenty of Venezuela's states (plus the federal district which includes Caracas) will have child welfare centers by the end of the year. These will provide aid to thousands of women and children who have never known such help before.

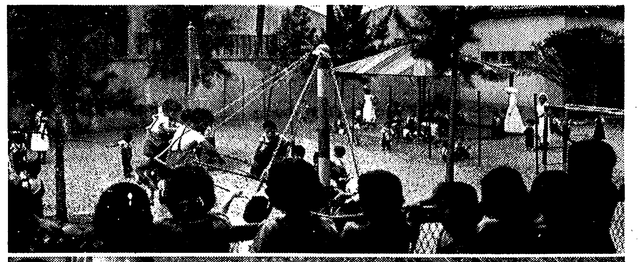
The child day-care centers are divided into two age groups, those for children up to three years and those from four to seven years. Children in both age groups are given free meals prepared from menus established by trained dieticians. They get medical and dental checkups as well. For the older children, there are free play clothes, too. These youngsters also get kindergarten and preschool training.

Social workers, employed by the Bolivarian Ladies' Society, visit homes and investigate applications for assistance. Pleas for help often come directly to Dona Flor de Perez Jimenez, honorary president of the society and wife of Venezuela's president, Colonel Marcos Perez Jimenez.

Dona Flor, with the aid of women from all over the country, established the society in August, 1953. In its first year, the society has by-passed tree-planting and cake-cutting in favor of hard work. It has created fifteen different charitable institutions throughout Venezuela and scheduled the opening of an equal number by the end of this year.

Members of the society include wives of diplomats, business leaders and government officials as well as women important in the fields of public health, social welfare and nursing. The determination of these women has brought into being the child care centers, orphan homes, free dining rooms for poor children, maternity care centers, postnatal clinics and a school for delinquent girls.

Welfare activities on this scale were unknown in Venezuela a year ago. Money for the projects comes from benefit dances, raffles and card parties given by the society. Contributions are made, too, by various institutions and state governments.



Child care centers are new to Caracas, Venezuela. At this one (above), recently established, children of working parents are schooled, fed and cared for during the day.

Morse Hits Ike; To Deliver 100 Speeches

LONG BEACH, Calif., Sept. 21 (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse (Ind.-Ore.), sharply criticizing President Eisenhower, says he will make 100 speeches for the Democrats before the November congressional elections.

Morse said that the Eisenhower administration has a "bumbling and fumbling foreign and domestic policy." He added:

"The day for his (Eisenhower's) political accounting is at hand, and on Nov. 2 the American people should answer his sorry record by placing the committees of congress under Democratic control so that the Eisenhower administration will have to sit down on a truly bipartisan basis and work out a foreign and domestic policy that will advance rather than retard the best interests of the American people.

FASHION POINTERS

In a cold clime, a coat without wind sleeves is a bad buy. If the coat is a bargain, buy the inner cuffs at the five-and-ten and install them. If you're handy with a needle, wool embroidery will brighten the edges of the cuff.

* * *

Maternity jackets must be long, be they homemade or bought. If you're going to make, spend a day trying on ready-mades in the high-priced line to determine how long is long enough for you.

Managing those lovely stoles can be done gracefully or you can look like the circus lady wrestling her snake. Try it in front of a full-length mirror. A judicious clip or pin at the shoulder or sleeve may help you.

Fashion still means a lot to someone confined to bed in a hospital or at home. Short frilly nighties are more comfortable gifts than ankle-length ones. A pink bed jacket, with a matching lipstick in the pocket, is nice. Not often remembered for the home convalescent is a pillow-slip in a new, becoming pastel color.

If your work means a lot of moving around, a blouse with long tails that stays tucked means a lot. You may find that the frilly styles you want have skimpy tails. Attach some more fabric to the bottom. It will never show.

Short gloves are very popular for winter. If you have just-right wrists and arms, cut and whip your old long gloves. If your arms are fat and your wrists wrinked, cheat a little. Cut longer gloves off about two inches up your arm from your wrist bone.

For a chic look this fall, get shoes to match, rather than contrast with, your favorite dress-up outfit. Gloves in the same fabric are a fine trick, but don't wear matching shoes and gloves and dress all at once.

The care you give your berets won't do for this fall's hats. They're deep and have lots of shape. Allow a hat box for each, or a hat stand and plenty of space that won't be disturbed by a hunt for that little suitcase.

* * *

Avoid those so-naked sandals unless you are utterly comfortable with your heels three inches in the air. Better to walk with grace and ease in a medium heel pump than totter on the most glamorous pair of tiny straps and skinny heels.

* * *

A cotton-quilted housecoat is fine for winter. But have it dry-cleaned or you'll find your floor-lengther is a shortie, with sleeves and waist to match.

New Armed Forces Lab Is Atomic-Proof Fortress

By KENNETH O. GILMORE
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA)—Threat of an atomic or hydrogen bomb attack is giving modern architecture the grim, windowless look of sturdy, blockhouse type buildings.

One of the best examples of this new trend is the nearly completed eight-story Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, on the grounds of the Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington.

Far from an architect's dream of beauty, this all concrete medical research center looks more like a throwback to the rugged forts built 150 years ago as protection against Indians. The Institute is the first medical building in the country constructed to withstand the desolations of a nuclear attack.

Despite its gray, dull appearance, any television star would jump at the chance to work in the up-to-date TV studio inside the Institute which is to be used for medical purposes. There are also two auditoriums and numerous laboratories behind the building's formidable 12-to-16-inch walls.

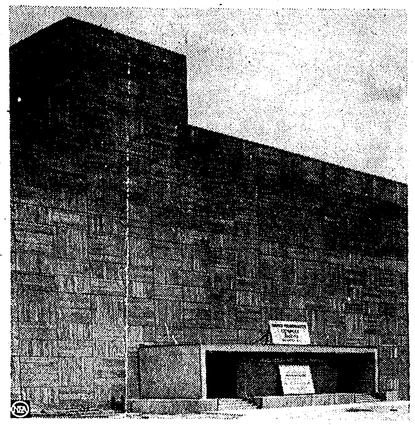
Construction started two years ago and by the time the last Bunsen burner is connected this fall the cost will come to around $6 million. Doctors have been working hand in hand with the architects since the beginning. The result is one of the best equipped laboratories in the world.

In order to get to the third floor of the Institute, it's necessary to take an elevator down one flight. Only five of the eight stories are above the surface and the lowest part of the structure is 50 feet below the ground.



GRIM, WINDOWLESS WALLS of new Armed Forces Institute of Pathology are built to withstand the blast of nuclear attack.

The south side is especially constructed to hold up against a blast. Its thicker walls are made to resist 14,520 tons of positive pressure. Architects figured that if a bomb was dropped in downtown Washington repercussions from the explosion would be sure to hit this section first.

Huge metal doors which roll on tracks can partition off the most sensitive part of the building in case of an emergency.

The Army's Corps of Engineers and the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks are experimenting with protective anti-nuclear structures.

As yet no such work is being done by non-government concerns. But many new department stores, offices and factories have swung in the direction of heavy structures and a minimum amount of window space. Notable examples are Foley's Department Store in Houston, Tex., and the Lincoln Arc Welding Co. in Cleveland, Ohio.

But these monolithic edifices pose one major problem: despite the interior cooling and lighting, employes tend to feel closed in if they cannot see the sky and out-of-doors.

There is still a strong trend toward light, all glass, United Nations type buildings. How great an effect the atomic age will have on this optimistic style remains to be seen. But the course of world events will certainly be changing the blueprints of tomorrow.

Yoshida Bares Plan To Foil Forming Of New Party By Jap Conservatives

TOKYO, Sept. 21 (AP)—The newspaper Asahi said today Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida had come up with a plan to foil Conservatives who are trying to form a new party without him.

Asahi said the plan was worked out last night at a meeting of Yoshida and other leaders of his Liberal (Conservative) party.

According to Asahi all Yoshida supporters would join any new Conservative party formed. Then they would outnumber the anti-Yoshida Conservatives and could keep the Prime Minister in power.

Mamoru Shigemitsu, leader of the Progressives, Ichiro Hatoyama, head of the splinter Liberals, and other anti-Yoshida Conservatives met again last night and went over plans for the new party.

The wrangling is a difference in personalities, more than policy. The anti-Yoshida conservatives believe Yoshida has been in power too long and is damaging the Conservative cause.

Asahi said the opposition-dominated lower house audit committee has decided to lodge formal charges with the Supreme Prosecutor's office today against Yoshida for his failure to answer an unprecedented summons.

The committee voted Saturday to prosecute the case when the crusty cabinet head gave notice that "pressure of official business" prevents his appearance until after he returns from his projected world tour.

Yoshida was ordered to testify in connection with the shipbuilding scandal involving many Liberal bigwigs with bribe-taking charges. Yoshida is not implicated.

A light but face-losing fine or jail sentence awaits Yoshida if his political foes win. However, this appears remote.

In another development, Yoshida won a minor victory yesterday when lower house Speaker Yasujiro Tsutsumi rejected as out of order a house foreign affairs committee resolution opposing Yoshida's world tour.

Red Traders To India

NEW DELHI, Sept. 21 (AP) — A four-man trade mission which flew in from Peiping Sunday called on President Rajendra Prasad today. Earlier, the mission, led by Red China's deputy foreign trade minister Kung Yuan, laid a wreath at Rajghat where Mahatma Gandhi was cremated.

An agreement to boost trade between India and Red China, which is almost completed at embassy level, is expected to be signed next weekend.

The mission plans to fly to Bombay afterward to contact private traders, particularly in textiles.

There is one service station for every 253 autos, trucks and buses in the U. S., supplying each vehicle with an average of 770 gallons of gasoline annually.

Gasoline costs the equivalent of 70 to 80 cents a gallon in Europe.

British Navy Girls Win Battle Of Bulges

LEE-ON-SOLENT, England, Sept. 21 (AP).—The Royal Navy admitted defeat in a feminine battle of the bulge today and gave 200 girl sailors the right to stay slim.

The girls—members of the Women's Royal Naval Service (WRENS)—won permission to eat in restaurants near their barracks. For nearly a week they had boycotted the naval messroom, charging the food was ruining their figures.

Once permission was granted, most of the girls didn't want it. About 80 trooped off into town to eat salads and such. The great majority marched into the cookhouse they once spurned and lunched of pea soup, steak pie, mashed potatoes and peas followed by tapioca pudding and jam sauce.

"Nothing fattening about that," said one male officer. And most of the girls seemed agreed it was a whole lot better than the grilled sausages and boiled potatoes.

MENDES OFFERS REARM-GERMAN TREATY PLANS

STRASBOURG, France, Sept. 21 (AP)—French Premier Pierre Mendes-France today outlined plans for a treaty to rearm West Germany in western defense which he said could be signed and ratified before the year's end.

The plan, which Mendes-France outlined to the European consultative assembly here would tie West Germany in a tight European alliance including Britain before there is any step to add rearmed Germans to NATO's ranks.

The preliminary alliance would include Britain, West Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg at least. Once it is formed, the premier said, France would be less hostile to German entry into the 14-nation NATO.

He has never said he would veto West Germany's admission to the NATO pact that binds the United States to western Europe's defenses, he declared.

The main points of Mendes-France's plan to plug the breech left by the French-killed EDC unified army proposal are:

1. A pact calling on West Germany and France to unite to provide troops for common defense must include Britain as a full partner. The basis for the new alliance would be the 1948 Brussels pact.

2. Top limits would be fixed on fighting forces of West Germany and other members of the alliance.

3. Construction of arms factories and arms production would be strictly supervised and controlled.

4. The new alliance would be tied closely to NATO. Mendes-France said this would reduce French resistance to West Germany's entry into NATO.

5. Quick drafting of a treaty of only 20 to 25 articles to carry out the plan. The premier predicted the job could be done within a month, with the member countries ratifying the treaty before the end of this year.

PAA Plans Non-Stop US-To-Japan Flights

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 21 (AP) — Pan American World Airways said today it has plans for non-stop Pacific flights of 12½ hours between Japan and the U.S. Pacific coast.

Eastbound planes making that time would be riding the jet stream. Westward, from the west coast to Japan, a non-stop trip would take about 18 hours. If a stop were made it would add an hour to the schedule.

Clarence M. Young, executive vice president of Pan American's Pacific-Alaskan division, said:

"With the new Douglas DC-7C airplanes now on order for 1956 delivery, we can fly the Pacific non-stop between Japan and the U.S. west coast on a regular basis by using the short great circle course."

Young said PAA hopes to use Seattle as the exit and entry point for the non-stop trips, with flights continuing on to San Francisco and Los Angeles as co-terminals.

"Our plans await only delivery of the airplane," Young continued, "and action by the Civil Aeronautics Board and the President on our pending application for removal of the obsolete provision in our certificate requiring PAA to stop at a mid-Pacific island on the way to the Orient."

Contrary to popular belief, many Indian tribes in the United States did not practice scalping, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Port Isabel, in the southeastern part of the state, and Texline, in the northwestern part, are separated by 931 miles of highways in Texas.

Won Pat, Bamba Sound Murphy On Isle Employment

Speaker A.B. Won Pat of the Guam Legislature and Congressman Ben Bamba recently called on Rear Adm. M. E. Murphy to request the admiral to consider continuous and increased employment of Guamanians at naval stations on the island.

The legislators also asked the admiral to consider pay increases similar to those announced recently by the air force.

Bamba, the legislative secretary, said Adm. Murphy told them he would discuss the matters with the navy industrial relations officer upon the latter's return from an official visit to the mainland.

Bamba said the admiral also assured them that the present apprenticeship program at the various naval units where young Guamanians are being recruited as trainees, is permanent, and that should there be a cut-back in personnel, this program will not be affected.

Speaker Won Pat also has recommended to Acting Governor Pat Herman that an economic survey be made to determine the standard of living on the island.

The results of the survey would determine the earning and spending powers of individual workers, Bamba said.

Coalition Party Cops Swedish Voting Lead

STOCKHOLM Sept. 21 (AP) — Sweden's governing coalition of Socialists and agrarians remained solidly entrenched today following weekend local elections but both the government parties lost some ground.

The Conservatives, the country's third largest party, scored the largest gains. The Communists held steady, in last place with only 4.9 percent of the 3,701,541 ballots cast.

Prime Minister Tage Erlander in a statement said the outcome in the voting yesterday would "bring no change in the policy of the Swedish government."

These were the complete unofficial returns on the voting (1950 local elections in parentheses):

	Vote	Percentage
Socialist	1,739,643 (1,888,123)	47.8 (48.6)
Liberals	799,230 (831,414)	21.6 (21.7)
Conservatives	561,710 (468,347)	15.2 (13.5)
Agrarians	386,488 (474,221)	10.4 (12.3)
Communists	182,576 (188,123)	4.9 (4.9)

U.S. Rearmament Policies Lashed By Jap Leader

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP) — Japanese Christian leader Toyohiko Kagawa said today the rise of a supposed anti-Americanism in Japan really is that of "anti-policies for rearmament."

Telling newsmen he was sorry the United States "does not have a more positive economic program for Asia, he said:

"You talk of rearmament, rearmament; soldiers, soldiers; the Soviets talk economic policies and make friends."

Kakawa argued that rearmament before more economic recovery will create poverty, and spread Communism. "Japanese, generally, especially mothers and young men who have to go to the front do not like rearmament," he said. "It's older people who are not required to go to the front who want it."

He said the United States was underestimating the dangers of its Pacific hydrogen bomb tests.

"Japan had a terrible time from March through July," he said. "Almost every rain had some energy-laden water. Even some vegetables were inedible. Even for the United States at its distance, the kind of test is harmful. Mutations in the human species may be produced.

"Japanese and United States scientists differ on the dangers, but the Japanese are more accurate. They have had more experience. It is time to end these weapons, and to seek an agreement through the United Nations to ban nuclear weapons."

He said he thought both the United States and Russia were "unduly suspicious" of each other.

Kagawa said he discussed with other leaders of the world council of churches at its recent meeting a scheme for resettling excess Japanese and refugee Chinese in Dutch-administered New Guinea. He said he found some interest expressed and a Dutch parliamentarian at the meeting said he planned to promote the idea.

"Easily 50 million could be supported," he said. "Some would have to study tropical methods of agriculture; others would make out in the New Guinea desert," Kagawa said.

He added that nothing has yet been done on the governmental level.

Meet Ike's New Team at the United Nations

Here's the five-man team that will represent the U. S. at the ninth session of the UN General Assembly. The majority of the new representatives, nominated by President Eisenhower, are well versed in governmental operation as well as U. S. foreign policy. From all indications their toughest assignment will be to block the expected drive for Chinese Communist membership in the UN.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr.

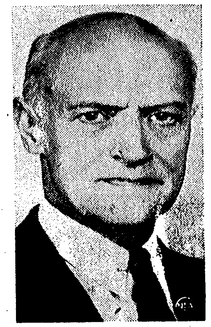
Former Massachusetts senator. He continues as permanent U. S. representative and chief of delegation.

Charles H. Mahoney

Detroit attorney and prominent insurance company executive. First Negro nominated as full representative.

Charles D. Jackson

Wartime psychological adviser to Eisenhower. Cold war strategist until recently. Time Magazine executive.



Sen. H. Alexander Smith

New Jersey Republican. Worked with Herbert Hoover's post-World War I relief team. Far East authority.

Sen. J. William Fulbright

Democrat of Arkansas. One-time Rhodes scholar and author of foreign exchange scholarship bill.

Mao Given Broad Powers By New Red Basic Law

TOKYO, Sept. 21 (AP) — The peoples' congress in Peiping yesterday adopted a new constitution for Communist China which grants broad and dictatorial powers to ruler Mao Tse-Tung.

A broadcast recorded here said the constitution was adopted unanimously by the more than 1,000 delegates — hand-picked by the party and then selected in nation-wide elections.

While the text of the constitution was not published immediately, previous broadcasts have indicated there have been few changes in the draft which was made public last June.

Under the constitution, Mao's title will be "chairman of the People's Republic of China." He can rule by decree, hire and fire government officials from premier on down, declare war and place China under martial law at any time he sees fit.

Peiping said when the vote was announced the convention hall "resounded with stormy applause and shouts of Wan sui (the Chinese equivalent of the Japanese Banzai meaning "Live 10,000 years.")

Peiping said the congress then adopted the organic law for the peoples' congress. Members, to be known as deputies, will serve one year. New congresses will be elected annually.

The next important task of the peoples' congress is the selection of the chairman and vice chairman of the government.

Mao undoubtedly will be chairman but there is no hint as to who will be the No. 2 man. The vice chairman rules if the chairman is incapacitated and succeeds him if he dies.

Liu Shao-Chi, the party's philosopher who helped Mao organize the Chinese Communist Party, and Chou En-Lai, premier and foreign minister, often are mentioned as the No. 2 men in Red China.

Treasury Kills Long Term Bond

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP)—The U.S. Treasury today shelved its desire to issue a long term bond and announced it will complete the "bulk" of this year's cash borrowing with a new four billion dollar short term security.

The decision, treasury officials said, was a deliberate effort to avoid competition with long term lending funds to be tapped shortly by state and commercial interests. These borrowings for business expansion and highway buildings are expected to provide working capital for employment-making project.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey announced that on Sept. the treasury will offer for sale four billion dollars worth of two-year, seven-month treasury notes.

The notes — to be dated Oct. 4, 1954, and mature May 15, 1957 — will pay 1⅝ per cent interest, Humphrey said. This is the lowest rate of return to be placed on a comparable issue in at least 10 years.

The new issue will pay slightly more than a two-year, nine-month issue of December, 1944, which carried 1¼ per cent interest.

Business has done a balancing act since last spring, according to statistics of the commerce department and the federal reserve board. With the tie at hand for the annual fall business pickup, the treasury's new financing plans indicated it intends to keep well away from any borrowing that might later be pointed to as a block to business resurgence.

Treasury officials said the new four billion dollar borrowing will take care of the bulk of its deficit financing needs this calendar year. They said a new cash borowing of one to two billion dollars might take place in December, but that "we may get by" without it.

If new money is borrowed in December, the officials said, it may be in the form of a tax anticipation issue. This would be an issue of only a few months maturity, bought by corporations and other big taxpayers as an investment for tax reverse to used in payment of taxes next spring.

Bao Dai 'Observing' Viet Political Snag

PARIS, Sept. 21 (AP) — Viet Nam's chief of state, ex-Emperor Bao Dai, cabled tonight from his French Riviera villa that he was studying carefully the bitter political crisis boiling up in his country between army chief of staff Gen. Nguyen Van Hinh and Premier Ngo Dinh Diem.

Bao Dai's message was sent to Hinh, who had urged the chief of state to return to Saigon and replace Diem. The general's demand was based on the grounds the premier was not strong enough to stand up against the Communists, who are taking control over the northern half of that Indo-Chinese state under the Geneva truce.

The message went out before Bao had been informed of a new crisis facing Diem with the the reported resignation of nine of his cabinet members today.

Another member, health minister Pham Hum Chong, was said in unconfirmed advices from Viet Nam to have disappeared last Saturday. He was believed to be hiding in the brush country north of Saigon until the political pot cools off somewhat, the report said.

The cabinet crisis was believed to be connected fith Diem's struggle for power with Hinh. When it became obvious Hinh did not support the premier politically, Diem ordered him to take a leave of absence in Paris.

SOVIET YOUTH TRAINING

MOSCOW, Sept. 21 (AP) — A new technical school program aimed at training Soviet youth for factory work went into effect today in Moscow and Leningrad.

More than 2,700 boys and girls 17-year old began one-year courses at four schools in Moscow. At one school in Leningrad, 300 students attended. Eventually, according to the plan, there will be nine such schools in each of these cities.

The pupils will study such subjects as how to operate turret lathes and milling machines.

It is the first time formal instruction in these subjects has been available to high school students in the Soviet Union.

B-26 CRASH CLAIMS FOUR

TOKYO, Sept. 21 (AP) — The U.S. Air Force today announced four crewmen on a Korea bound B-26 bomber were killed when the plane crashed into a mountainside in Japan Monday afternoon.

One crewman survied the crash and was rescued by a marine helicopter, but died later.

The Air Force withheld the names.

Red Frogmen 'Pestering' Chiang's Men; Port Of Amoy Battered Anew

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 21 (AP) —Sentries on Nationalist island off the Chinese Communist mainland are seeing ghosts these nights — Red ones.

"Water ghosts" is the name the Nationalists have given them. The United States calls them "frogmen." They are strong swimmers who raid by night.

The water ghosts usually choose a dark night to visit the islands. Their job is to abduct Nationalist soldiers for intelligence purposes.

A qualified official source says they operate this way: eight to 10 of them, their faces painted to make them look like visitors from the nether world, approach an island by boat.

Some distance away, they swim quietly ashore, pounce upon a sentry, stifle his outcries, knock him unconscious and swim back with him to the boat.

The raiders carry only light arms and rarely are successful. But the Communists pulled on successful foray last month on Quemoy, Nationalist-held island only seven miles from the mainland.

Red propaganda made it appear an invading army had landed on Quemoy. Here is the Nationalist version of the episode:

Eight water ghosts landed on the northwestern tip of Quemoy and decamped with a Nationalist soldier.

As they were pulling away in their boat, Nationalist troops ashore opened fire. As the night was dark, they could not tell whether they had inflicted any casualties. The water ghosts did not fire a shot.

An official who declined to be quoted by name observed: "For the Communists to have portrayed such an episode as a memorable victory creates something of a novelty in military history."

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 21 (AP) — The Chinese Nationalists stepped up attacks yesterday on the Red mainland as waves of medium bombers rained one-ton bombs on the battered port of Amoy.

The 18th straight day of Nationalist air and sea blows also saw warships bombard Weitow, on the coast eight miles northeast of Quemoy.

The Nationalists described the results as excellent.

A defense ministry communique said propeller-driven Thunderbolts attacked more than 40 motorized junks and 50 wooden junks north-east of Quemoy, sinking six and heavily damaging six others.

Other Thunderbolts ranged some 60 miles south of Amoy and attacked two Red gunboats in Houpu Bay, but results were not given.

The bombers attacking Amoy destroyed several artillery positions, the communique said.

There were he usual artillery exchanges between Red guns on Amoy and Nationalist guns on Quemoy, several miles away.

The Nationalists reported only minor Red shelling in the Tachen islands, 200 miles north of Formosa. Reports Sunday said that Communists were concentrating warships in that area, possibly for an attempt to invade the Tachens.

Some Heart Cases Blamed On Tobacco

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP) — A theory that certain substances, especially tobacco, might have an "allergic" cause of some cases of heart or circulation abnormalities, including coronary artery diseases, was suggested recently by a New York doctor.

Dr. Joseph Harkavy said there is suggestive evidence that some people may be born with or acquire a "heart allergy" to certain things in the same way that in certain other people the lungs or the skin might react allergically to certain substances.

He said there is suggestive evidence that some people may have an inherited sensitivity of the heart to such things as tobacco, certain drugs, foods, chemicals or pollen — or acquire it through long exposure. And the evidence further suggests, he said, that such allergic conditions can cause irregular heart beats, extra heart beats or even disease of the coronary arteries.

He told the second world congress of cardiology that the evidence comes from (1) animal studes; (2) studies of the histories of heart ailment patients with respect to their exposure to such substances; and (3) skin tests.

The doctor also said that "the clinical course in patients who refuse to stop smoking or in those in whom (some other) allergic excitant cannot be removed is chronic progressive cardiovascular disease."

SOVIET FIGHTS MOVE TO GIVE CAMBODIA, LAOS SEATS IN U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 23 (AP)—The Russians balked today at discussing the admission of Laos and Cambodia to the U.N. until a satisfactory settlement is made in Indo-China in accord with the decisions of the Geneva conference.

The U.N. assembly's steering committee voted 12-0, however, to recommend that the 60-nation assembly debate a proposal by Australia to give Laos and Cambodia a place in the U.N.

Russia and Czechoslovakia abstained.

The question of admitting these two kingdoms is listed on the provisional agenda separately from the general issue of admitting new members. Viet Nam also has a membership application pending under the general question.

COPLAND VS. VISHINSKY

Australian delegate Sir Douglas Copland took issue with Vishinsky. He said his delegation could see no objection to the immediate admission of Laos and Cambodia.

"We propose that they be admitted to the United Nations," Copland said, "and we will go further to say that Viet Nam should also be admitted. That is logical from the Geneva settlement."

Vishinsky formally moved that the item on the admission of Laos and Cambodia be deleted from the provisional agenda.

The Soviet Union still has the upper hand for it can veto in the security council the admission of Laos and Cambodia regardless of what the assembly does. The Soviet opposition to debate now made it clear that Russians will demand that the U.N. pay attention to the decisions of the Geneva conference, which has held outside the U.N.

Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky took the floor early at the first meeting of the steering committee and said he did not want the assembly to take up the applications of the two Indo-Chinese kingdom's until the Geneva settlement has been completed.

Sir Douglas Copland of Australia, Selwyn Lloyd of Britain, and Henri Hoppenot of France, opposed Vishinsky, saying Laos and Cambodia are entitled to admission now. Vishinsky did not press his opposition and announced he would abstain rather than vote against a debate.

CHANGE OF PACE

Vishinsky made his quick change of pace after Copland had also suggested the assembly decide at this session that Viet Nam should be admitted after elections have been held in that country. Copland did not make any condition and informed sources said he actually was proposing that admission of Viet Nam regardless of who wins the elections in Viet Nam. With the Communists hoping to win the elections, Vishinsky backtracked quickly and abstained on this item.

U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles also may touch on the Geneva conference tomorrow when he speaks to the assembly and gives the 59 other countries a report on the state of the world as the United States sees it.

Informed sources said Dulles would stress the necessity of developing a peaceful pool of atomic energy as suggested by President Eisenhower in an address to the 8th general assembly last year. The Soviet Union has turned down the idea but President Eisenhower has indicated he wants to go ahead with as many countries as will take part.

It was said also that Dulles would make another calm address along the lines of his speech to the assembly last year which some delegates praised as especially moderate.

GENERAL DEBATE

Chile and Canada will open the general debate tomorrow morning. The general debate is a period in the early days of the assembly in which the chief delegates of the the U.N. countries state their positions and lay the groundwork for possible decisions in committee meetings.

The assembly went about its work in a routine fashion today in contrast to the heat generated Tuesday by Soviet demands for the admission of Red China. That problem was put off until next year but Red China will continue to haunt the assembly debates. The Russians and India are ex-

Chicago-Bound Train Derailed; 15 Injured

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23 (AP) — The Chicago-bound Santa Fe Chief was derailed, apparently by a faulty switch, 40 miles east of here today. There were no fatalities.

The cars, including the Dome observation car, and the two diesel engine units of the crack streamliner left the tracts at a speed reported by the engineer at 70 miles an hour.

About 15 persons were reported hurt, nine seriously enough to require hospitalization.

There were 191 passengers on the Chief, which left San Francisco at noon.

The derailment occurred at 2:04 p.m., about 17 miles west of Stockton.

Ten of the train's 13 cars left the rails, but remained upright. The diesel engines also left the tracks.

The derailment was the second mishap experience by the crack Santa Fe streamliner within a month. On Aug. 22, the train was derailed at Lomax, Ill.

4 Die In Bloody Missouri State Prison Rioting

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 23 (AP)—A bloody riot broke out at the Missouri state penitentiary tonight and at least two guards and two prisoners were reported killed in gunfire between guards and the howling prisoners.

Fire broke out at the prison's furniture manufacturing plant about an hour and a half after the break. It spread to other buildings rapidly.

Flames leaped up around the eerie gray walls of the penitentiary and could be seen for miles.

Prison officials said the rioting started in "E" hall, the solitary confinement area of the sprawling stone prison.

Warden Ralph E. Edison said he did not know how the convicts had obtained firearms being used in the riot. Reason for the rioting was not known, he said.

After breaking from "E" hall, officials said, the prisoners freed inmates of at least two other halls.

The state highway patrol set up its radio alert system inside the prison grounds and some 50 especially trained troopers had been alerted to converge on the area. Patrol officers from as far away as St. Louis had been ordered to the scene.

Dededo Post Office Operation Bid Opens

Proposals for the operation of the contract post office station at Dededo with compensation at an annual rate for the balance of the present contract term which ends June 30, 1955, will be received at the office of the postmaster until Oct. 2.

This was announced by Agana Postmaster Tomas R. Santos yesterday.

Santos said sealed proposals indicating the amount of bid may be submitted to his office by interested parties. He added copies of Form 1459 to be used for the execution of the agreements may be obtained from the post office in Agana.

According to postal laws and regulations, Santos said, bidding shall be open without discrimination to all persons. Further information may be secured by contacting the postmaster personally at the post office or by calling Denver 4121.

Serrano Named Chairman

MANILA, Sept. 23 (AP)—Ambassador Felixberto Serrano has been appointed deputy chairman of the Philippine delegation to the United Nations general assembly, presidential press secretary J. V. Cruz said last night.

He said President Ramon Magsaysay signed Serrano's appointment papers at a cabinet meeting yesterday.

Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, President Magsaysay's personal envoy in the United States, was appointed chairman last Monday.

(Reports from U.N. headquarters in New York said Romulo and Serrano will serve as co-chairmen.)

Three New Isle Employees Here

Three Guam government employees recruited at Honolulu arrived Wednesday morning by Pan American Airways. They are Thomas Y. Hannaka, Ralph R. Yeneshige and James K. Nakamura.

Hannaka is a physical aid instructor assigned to the George Washington High School. He received his master of education degree from the University of Minnesota.

The Honolulu educator served in the U.S. Army infantry from October, 1944 to December, 1946. After his discharge from the army he worked for the Hawaiian pineapple company. He also was a graduate assistant to the intramural director at the University of Minnesota from 1952 to 1954.

Yeneshige is a telephone equipment installer supervisor assigned to the Public Utility Agency under Director Winston Cooper. He has been recruited to work on the installation of the new Guam government telephone exchange.

Yeneshige is a veteran of World War II, having served in the Army from January 1945 to November, 1946. After his separation from service he worked for the Hawaiian Telephone company.

The telephone exchange expert was accompanied by his wife and four children.

Like Yeneshige, James Nakamura also is a telephone equipment supervisor. His employment is similar to that of Yeneshige. From March, 1945 until late 1946, Nakamura was in the U.S. Army. Upon discharge he worked for the National Radio Service, and later was employed by the Hawaiian telephone company.

Nakamura's wife, Amy, and his four children will join him here later.

Chiang's Plane Off To Continue Attack

TAIPEH, Sept. 23 (AP) — The first flights of Formosa-based Chinese Nationalist air force planes set out early today to continue attacks on the Communists in the Amoy area and search for military craft, a communique reported.

It said six Red gunboats, instead of the five previously reported, were destroyed yesterday.

FLEMING RAPPED FOR PROMOTING RED PROPAGANDA

FT. SHERIDAN, Ill., Sept. 23 (AP)—An 11-officer court-martial board today found Lt. Col. Harry Fleming guilty of a charge of collaborating with the enemy while a prisoner in a North Korean prison camp.

He was found innocent of a charge of informing on other prisoners under his command. He also was found innocent of a third charge of conduct unbecoming an officer by jumping on the foot of an American corporal who also was a prisoner.

Fleming, the first U.S. Army officer to be court-martialed for his behavior in a prisoner of war camp during the Korean war, stood stiffly at attention before the court of colonels as the verdict was read.

Fleming's wife, Gladys, and daughter, Mrs. Patricia Madden, were in the hearing room when the verdict was announced. There was no demonstration among the spectators.

CALM ACCEPTANCE

Fleming accepted the verdict without any trace of emotion. He walked erectly back to his seat at the defense table.

Immediately, the court began hearing arguments of "mitigation and extenuation" as a prelude to passing sentence.

The maximum penalty could include dismissal from the service, forfeiture of pay and life imprisonment at hard labor.

The law does not provide for any minimum punishment but, in effect, it would be a reprimand.

There was no indication when a decision on any penalty would be reached.

Fleming was a captive of the Reds for three years. He was wounded by bullets and apparently also by shrapnel on the day he was caught.

He had been decorated by the United States and the republic of Korea. Both decorations were for the 55 days he was under fire in Korea before he was captured by the Communists Oct. 30, 1950.

Jap Scientists Reported 'Convinced' Russia Explodes H-Bomb Off Alaska

TOKYO, Sept. 23 (AP)—The newspaper Asahi said today that Japanese scientists have "almost conclusive evidence" that the Russians recently exploded an H-bomb on an island 500 miles northwest of Nome, Alaska.

The paper quoted Japanese researchers at the Tokyo meteorological laboratory as estimating the explosion took place in late August or early September on Wrangel Island. The island lies within the Arctic circle due west of Pt. Barrow, Alaska.

Soviet Russia announced last Friday it had exploded an "atomic weapon' 'to study the battle effect. The brief Moscow announcement said the explosion took place "in the Soviet Union during the recent days."

Asahi said Dr. Yasuo Miyake of the meteorological laboratory would submit the finding at a weather specialists meeting here tomorrow.

BASES OF CONCLUSION

The paper said the Japanese meteorologists based their conclusion on these recent Japanese weather phenomena:

1. Radio statics direction locators in Tokyo recorded impulses similar to those recorded when the Bikini H-bombs went off. The equipment recorded the impulses coming from a north-northwest direction at the end of August.

2. Four hours after these statics impulses, abnormal atmospheric pressure (wave) caused by a great explosion was registered on a manomenter (air pressure gauge). As explosion-propelled atmospheric waves travel about 1,000 feet a second, the explosion was estimated 2,500 miles away from Tokyo. This data placed the explosion on the Siberian island of Wrangel.

3. Radioactive rainfall has showered northern Japan almost daily

TYPICAL U.S. SHOW

SOME of the best things in American life are often found to be so intertwined with sentimentality, flamboyance, overdoses of showmanship and lapses in taste that they cannot be separated and enjoyed in a kind of isolated purity. But that does not mean they cannot be enjoyed.

Our political conventions provide an example. Anyone who glues himself to a TV or radio set for the duration of one of these affairs is in for some of the most boring hours on earth.

Good rich corn will come cascading down upon him. He will hear some of the worst propaganda imaginable, presenting distorted pictures of men, issues and events.

Yet a few would deny that U. S. national conventions are the most exciting, the most human public experiences most of us ever have a chance to know. Through all the carnival atmosphere, beneath the encrustations of boredom, runs the intense drama of conflict, of clashing wills, of minds bent toward ingenious tactic, of final triumph and shattering defeat.

MOST important, despite the distortions, the phony argument, and the distractions, our conventions most of the time seem amazingly to pick the candidates for high office that the people prefer. In other words, they fulfill their purpose.

Another example, from the more frivolous realm, is the yearly "Miss America" beauty pageant in Atlantic City.

The other night TV brought us the final hours of this celebrated test of feminine charms. The corn was there in abundance, as anyone would guess. The tricks of showmanship were painfully obvious. The jokes were weak. An air of exaggerated self-importance hung over the proceedings, and infected many of the participants.

And still, the pageant held something good. It was warmly human, open-hearted, unashamed in its sentimentality. In all these respects, it was typically American.

THERE was the excitement of a contest, of course, but a deeper excitement lay in catching this cluster of girls at a moment of great meaning. Diplomats will not furrow their brows, nor will cabinets fall, over the outcome at Atlantic City. But to the girls it was important.

This was really show business, and some of our social philosophies insist that the sort of fame "show people" gain inevitably "ruins them as human beings."

The evidence on this point is at least conflicting. Certainly none of the former "Miss America" winners who turned up on the TV screen seemed on the road to ruin.

The best shot of the evening, the camera glimpse that made the pageant a revealing and reassuring show of genuine human feeling, was the look of mixed disbelief and happiness on Miss California's face when she realized she had won.

A realm of fancy, maybe, this world of Atlantic City, but rewarding and comforting, nonetheless, in a way that even bright promise from the business charts and the councils of state can never quite match.

IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—Hollywood on TV: The Walt Disney "touch" made his theater movies world famous and blueprints for his new ABC-TV Disneyland series indicate his home screen ideas will be just as entertaining—and delightfully different.

Promised and hoped for Disney ideas on the show, debuting, Oct. 27:

A screwball symphony called The Rhapsiodoodle, inspired by a batch of daffy doodles on a telephone pad; film biographies of Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck; a trip to Mars science-fiction story and the life of Davy Crockett, filmed on location in Tennessee.

All the legal tentacles have been unloosened and Dan Duryea is now in San Francisco making 13 new installments in his China Smith telefilm series. Dan and Producer Bernie Tabakin are working at top speed to complete the first batch so he can report to MGM for his starring role with Barbara Stanwyck in "The Marauders." Then he'll start another series of 13 home screen thrillers.

For the first time the familiar Paramount trademark is popping up on home screens in several old Bulldog Drummond films starring John Barrymore. But it doesn't mean wholesale release of Paramount movies to TV. Explains the studio, which has sold some short subjects to video:

"The Barrymore - Drummond films were made for Paramount release by an independent producer and they recently reverted to him. He has the right to sell them to TV but legally he doesn't have the right to the Paramount trademark."

There was a "No Comment" about whether there will be legal fireworks over use of the trademark on the pictures.

TELEVISION SETS in the U. S. now add up to 31,036,000. With in average of two lookers per set, it's an audience Hollywood film makers dream of corraling via some kind of coin-in-the-slot gimmick. . . . The proposed TV version of radio's popular Mr. President will be a switch from the no-camera version. The characters will be in costume with no attempt to keep the President's name a punch line secret.

Edward Arnold's idea of narrating the show, in modern dress, with the camera playing the unseen executive to preserve the suspense, was shelved. Now Eddy has lost interest.

pected to oppose the credentials of Nationalist China later this session.

However, the United States was confident it has enough votes to smother this opposition.

It devoted its morning session to electing seven vice presidents and seven committee chairmen who, with the president, constitute the steering committee. As usual, the five big powers were elected vice presidents. Burma and Ecuador also were chosen.

Britain received 52 out of 55 valid votes for vice president, Burma and France 50 each, Ecuador and United States 49 each, Soviet Union 47 and Nationalist China 41. Five of the 60 votes cast were ruled invalid.

Those elected committe chairmen were:

Political—Francisco Urrutia, Colombia.

Special Political — Thor Thors, Iceland.

Economic — Sir Douglas Copland, Australia.

Social — Jiri Nosek, Czechoslovakia.

Trusteeship — Rafik Asha, Syria.

Budgetary and Administrative—Pote Sarasin, Thailand.

Legal — Francisco Garcia Amador, Cuba.

There was no opposition to these delegates except in the budgetary and administrative committee, where Sarasin defeated Henryk Birecki, Poland, 36-10.

In other actions of the assembly's egenda, the steering committee:

1. Ovorrode objections by the Netherlands and voted to recommend that the assembly consider Indonesia's claims on western New Guinea. The vote was 7-3. The Soviet Union, Cuba, Ecuador, Burma, Thailand, Syria, and Czechoslovakia voted for this action; Britain, Australia, and France voted against it, and the United States, the Netherlands, Nationalist China, Colombia and Iceland abstained.

Ike Links GOP Campaign With Administration

MCNARY DAM, Ore., Sept. 23 (AP) — President Eisenhower, welcomed rousingly to the U.S. northwest, today links his campaign for election of another Republican congress with a "spirited defense" of his administration on the public power issue.

The President, on four-state flying tour, scheduled a major address at ceremonies dedicating the 286 million dollar McNary Dam on the Columbia river here.

Eisenhower told an applauding audience of 30,000 at Missoula, Mont., last night that his administration's "basic policy" is that American citizens generally are better qualified to look after themselves "than is some bureaucrat in far-off Washington."

Indications in advance of his speech here were that the President would strike much the same theme in discussing the administration's controversial program for placing in local hands much of the responsibility for development of the northwest's power resources.

Aides said Eisenhower's address would amount to a spirited defense of the program.

Democrats have been sharply assailing the program as a step backward.

based on allegations that Fleming made recordings which were used for Communist propaganda purposes, and that he led discussion groups which reflected opinions that the United Nations and the United States were illegal aggressors in Korea.

The prosecution contended that Fleming's chief aim during his long captivity was "to survive without regard to the means or the consequences."

The court deliberated the guilt or innocense questions for 10 hours, spread over two days.

Fleming told a newsman after the verdict was read:

"Although I have lost this battle, I don't expect to lose in the end. In the end, right will prevail.

"I think American justice will prevail not only for me but for the thousands of prisoners who came out of prison camps with a halo of suspicion over them. My conscience is perfectly clear."

Best Big Game Collection Lies In N. Arizona

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 23 (AP) — High in a land of spectacular beauty, one of the nation's finest collections of big game animals thrives today.

The north Kaibab deer herd, living in an isolated pine and aspen forest, roams a range hemmed in by the Grand Canyon on the south and the arid desert on the other three sides.

It is here, in a tightly-circumscribed fragment of northern Arizona, that some of the most amazing mule deer antlers in the world can be found.

What they lack in symmetry they make up in size. Racks stretching more than 46 inches from tip to tip have been taken, and those with more than a 30-inch spread are not unusual.

They can be obtained with surprising ease. Last year 85 per cent of the 8,000 sportsmen granted permits got their deer.

This year 12,000 will try in the greatest hunt in the state's history. Each will be permitted, as always, to kill a buck, doe or fawn.

Game management experts are hoping they are all successful. For the prolific herd has been steadily increasing, despite greater hunting pressure each year and is about to eat itself out of a home. It now numbers about 25,000.

As usual, hunts this year will be held in two stages. The first from Oct. 13 to 24 and the second from Nov. 19 to 28, both inclusive.

When the hunting season is over in the area Theodore Roosevelt set aside in 1906 as the Grand Canyon national game preserve, the great bucks search for mates.

In the clearings the males rear and plunge in battle for the does of their choice. Sometimes the fight ends in a double tragedy. The antlers lock and the deer die of starvation, unable to free themselves.

The Kaibab mule deer is an animal of great beauty and strength. Bucks are lean and muscular, weighing from 125 to 190 pounds, and are well nourished. Does are somewhat smaller, but from the hunters' standpoint, the best of both is excellent.

Above all, the huge, spreading antlers are the one characteristic that set the Kaibab buck in a unique category.

The limestone content of the ground is believed to be responsible for these abnormal growths. It is drawn up into the fibers of the vegetation and becomes a part of the deer's diet.

What of the Kaibab herd's future?

It will be a bright one, Arizona's game authorities feel, if the herd's size is kept within bounds.

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, Sept. 23 (AP) — Pope Pius XII, whose doctors have urged him to rest more, received 7,000 pilgrims in general audience today at his summer residence here.

He gave only the words of his benediction. He did not speak, as he has done often in the past.

His doctors have urged the 78-year-old pontiff to hold fewer audiences, in order to rest more. He has held fewer private audiences, but has insisted upon continuing his regular twice-a-week general audiences.

Formosan Vessel Off Southern PI

MANILA, Sept. 23 (AP) — Another Formosan fishing vessel was intercepted by a Philippine Navy patrol boat yesterday in the Sulu archipelago between the southern Philippines and North Borneo, the defense department reported today.

The boat, carrying a full load of fish, was seized off Bongao island in the Tawi-Tawi island group, one of the southernmost Philippine islands, the department said. The vessel is being held at the Philippine Sulu frontier headquarters in Bongao, pending an investigation.

A Formosan fishing vessel from Knoshiung, southern Formosa, was seized Sept. 12 when it ran ashore on Mindoro island.

For Not Giving To Funds, Barman Gets Death Call

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 23 (AP) — A U.S. congressional subcommittee which launched a nationwide probe of union welfare funds today was told by a Chinese-American restaurant operator that he received a death threat for failing to contribute to such a fund.

Later the man accused of making the threat testified he was so drunk he didn't remember what was said. He said he was a parttime bartender and not a union official.

The restaurant operator's remarks were in a recorded telephone conversation played before a House group which met as the AFL was holding its annual convention across town.

Subcommittee Chairman Samuel K. McConnell (R-Pa.) said the inquiry is to provide data for legislation to protect workers' welfare funds, which amount to 17 to 20 billion dollars. There is very little regulations of such trust funds now, he added.

The 40-minute recording, punctuated by unprintable obscenities and profanity, was played by Joseph Gee of Barstow, Calif. He said he had not until recently contributed to a welfare fund because his employes would not have benefited.

Gee identified the man making the threats as Pete Besk. He said Besk was not a union official but had been a member. At the time of the recorded conversation last March he said Besk was working for a railroad.

Gee testified he received two previous threatening calls as had others in the area. He said they deduced Besk was making the call and arranged to tape a third conversation and telephoned the man.

The speaker in the tape threatened he was going to look Gee up "for no other . . . reason than to kill you." . . . .Now it's going to be blood."

The speaker accused Gee of working "American women" more than eight hours a day, which Gee denied.

Free World Losing To Reds — Al Commander

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 23 (AP) — Seaborn Collins, national commander of the American Legion, said today the free world is "losing the struggle' against Communism and should forbid the Reds from crossing a fixed defense line.

The newly elected Legion chief received enthusiastic applause from delegates at the American Federation of Labor convention when he suggested the nation's present policies are not tough enough against the Communists.

"We must determine a line and serve notice that if the Communists cross it, the consequence will be immediate and total military retaliation against Russia itself," Collin said.

"Fixing the line," he said, "could be left to foreign policy experts but unless there is a line, our present policies will eventually leave the United States alone and vulnerable in a Communist world."

"Obviously," he said , "we have neither contained Communists nor captured the cold war initiative."

FDR, Jr. For Atty. General

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP) —Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., agreed today to run for New York State attorney general on a Democratic ticket headed by Averell Harriman.

It will mark the first time the son of the late president has tested his vote-getting appeal on a statewide basis. He sought the gubernatorial nomination but was beaten by Harriman.

Roosevelt's acceptance of the nomination automatically would take him out of the race for reelection as a congressman from Manhattan's west side.

He built up frenzied support among his followers at the Democratic state convention Tuesday night for his fight against Tammany Hall and the state Democratic machine organization.

Party leaders who witnessed the demonstration for him on the convention floor last night said there was no doubt his name would add to the ticket.

Harriman, 62, is faced with the task of attempting to capture a post held by the Republicans for 12 years under Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

With Dewey retiring, the Republican convention in Syracuse is scheduled to nominate Sen. Irving M. Ives, 58, by acclamation tomorow to oppose the wealthy new deal diplomat in the Nov. 2 election.

Harriman received many congratulatory telephone calls, including one from former President Harry S. Truman who told him:

"I've never been happier in my life."

The New York governorship is regarded as one of the key political offices in the nation. The late Franklin D. Roosevelt went on from there to the White House and Dewey twice was nominated by the Republicans for the presidency.

4 Burmese Regiments Deployed Along Border

BANGKOK, Sept. 23 (AP) — Thai police sources today reported four Burmese regiments had been sent to the Shan states for "any eventuality that might occur on Burma's border with Yunnan."

It was noted that one possible route over which former Thai Premier Pridi Phanomyong might lead his so-called "free Thai" Communist army from Yunnan to Thailand is through Burma. The terrain along the other route,, via Laos, is more difficult.

The same police source also said Burmese troops have been sent near the north Tahiland border "to wipe out remnants of Chinese Nationalist guerrilas" who failed to leave Burma during the United Nations sponsored evacuation.

500 Foreign Educators Launch Big 'Invasion' Of American Schools

BY ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, Sept 23 (AP) — The big man in the red fez and what looked like a black and gold striped night shirt laughed uproariously. The little dark women in the filmy dress seemed timorous but pleased. The slender Negro in the billowing white robe grinned.

The invasion had begun.

For these weeks part of almost 500 educators and leaders here to study under a technical assistance program run by the State Department and the Foreign Operations Administration.

They were displaying four of their native countries' craft in the exhibit rooms of the department of health, education and welfare. And the man in the red fez was assuring everyone that usually he doesn't dress this way.

"In Egypt," he said, 'almost no one wears these clothes anymore. Look I will show you how a modern, middle class family lives."

He grabbed a photograph album and pointed to the pictures. "My wife. My three children. Typical middle class people," he said, with first class pride.

He then explained he was Mohamed Ahmad Chali, late of Cairo, and now bound for the University of Florida.

"Hallo!" he bellowed happily at a passing friend, "You know," he said. "I naturally assumed I would be sent somewhere in the north. Do you know anyone who needs a fine supply of long winter underwear?"

Mallam Yahaya Cusau of Sokoto, Nngeria, explained that he doubled in brass back home, as an education officer and as a member of the house of representatives.

"I had no idea I was going," he said. "I filled out the forms answered all the questions, but nothing happened. Then, a month ago, it came, the confirmation, and here I am."

He'll study education at the University of Buffalo.

T P. Amerasignhe explained he's principal of the National Institute in Colombo, Ceylon, the Ceylon exhibit was larger than the others, he said because his group had come by ship, instead of by air, and therefore could fetch along more artistic treasures.

"I hope I can get more practical knowledge to use in our schools," he said. "In Ceylon. everything is dominated by religion."

Trieste Dispute Nears Conclusion

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP) — Yugoslavia and Italy under strong American prodding were reported today near a complete settlement of their dispute over the free territory of Trieste.

Western diplomats said if less unexpected hitches arise an agreement between the two countries may be signed in London within a fortnight. The United States, Britain and possibly France plan to guarantee the settlement.

In Washington a state department spokesman said the United States now has an attitude of "cautious optimism" about the possibility of a final settlement of the quarrel over the strategic area at the head of the Adriatic, Italian before World War II.

Press officer Henry Suydam attributed the improved prospects to the diplomacy of U. S. Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy, who flew to Europe 10 days ago. He conferred in Belgrade with Yugoslav officials and in Rome with Italian leaders.

Apparently Murphy made clear to leaders in both countries that so far as the United States is concerned, the time has come to get the Trieste issue out of the way and begin a new period of closer cooperation.

Murphy is now in Paris and is expected to report to U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles in London this weekend.

He reportedly left Belgrade from Rome with word that President Marshal Tito's government is ready to make a significant shift in its position over one difficult territorial claim that had long blocked agreement.

A sequel to Murphy's talks in Belgrade is likely to be increased American economic aid to Yugoslavia during 1954-1955, informants here said.

Although such a prospect has not been related directly to the Trieste situation, it may have helped Tito make up his mind in reducing claims for a small slice of Zone A that Italy also wants. The area involved is understood to be a narrow coastal strip between Punta Piccola and Punta Grossa which includes several strategic hills, plus about 1,000 Italian inhabitants.

The Yugoslavs under the settlement are expected to get most of Zone B of the free territory which lies in the northeastern armpit of the Italian peninsula. Yugoslavia now administers Zone B.

Italy will get most of Zone A which is now under Anglo-American control.

5th German Red Held

DUESSELDORF, Germany, Sept. 23 (AP)—West German police announced today the arrest of another West German Communist leader, raising to five the total now held in prison. Three others escaped arrest recently by fleeing to the Soviet zone.

Police said Georg Gampfer, executive committee member, was arrested Monday charged with plotting against the Bonn republic. Four other Red leaders in West Germany have been seized under similar charges.

The three who fled into the Soviet zone were Max Reimann, Communist chairman in West Germany, and two other executive committee members.

Man To Fly In 30 Years - ARS

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 23 (AP)—The first man will be shot into space travel within 30 years, and the first unmanned satellite will be sent into orbital space within 10 years, the American Rocket Society was told today.

The prediction was made by A. J. Haley of Washington, D. C., president of the society which is holding its fall meeting here. The meeting lasts three days.

Two hundred top-flight rocket scientists are here now or due later in the day for the meeting. The first session opened with Herbert L. Halperin of Brooklyn, N.Y., as speaker.

President Haley made his prediction as to the time within which space flight will become a fact in an informal discussion of rocket progress before the convention opened.

He said it is the consensus of rocket scientists that "an unmanned orbital satellite is easily possible within 10 years. Within a generation, that is within 30 years, a man orbital satellite can be expected. It will become a fact sooner — much sooner — if a period of peace is assured for maximum experimentation."

Halperin told the assembled scientists that rocket engines in recent years have grown both in scope of application and volume of unit being produced.

He said "rocket engines have now reached the stage of development and application requiring a limited production status in several organizations." He added "today, rocket engines by comparison can be readily designed, tested and produced in quantities with a high degree of reliability."

His paper dealt with one type of ground handling equipment for rocket engines, the generation and supply of high pressure gas.

Scotland Yard Hunting Gold Bullion Thieves

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP)—Scotland Yard sought tonight a gang with international connections for the expertly organized theft of gold bullion worth $128,800 from a freight truck.

A special watch was kept at all seaports and airports to forestall attempts to smuggle out the 230 pounds of gold snatched with lightning speed yesterday from the truck carrying it to London airport.

Detectives say the gang may have received a tip from the continent disclosing when the Amsterdam-bound gold shipment would be moved from a KLM Royal Dutch Airline depot and loaded with other freight into an ordinary delivery truck. Transfer of the two boxes of bullion was supposedly a secret. No armed guards were used.

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP) — The Russians said tonight they have installed a microphone at the North Pole.

Moscow Radio, in making the claim, said "we are the first country in the world to do so."

There was no explanation why.

US Oil Firm To Build Similar Supertankers

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP) — Tide Water Associated Oil Co. has signed a ten-million-dollar contract with a Japanese firm for construction of two identical super-tankers, the American company announced today.

Each ship will be able to carry 300,000 barrels (about 12,600,000 gallons) of petroleum products. They will be designed to allow passage through the Suez and Panama canals, and to permit access to major oil terminals.

Mitsubishi Shipbuilding and Engineering Co. Ltd. will build the 735-foot, 46,000-ton tankers at Nagasaki, Japan. Hisashi Sato, managing director of Mitsubishi Shipbuilding, headed a Japanese delegation which negotiated the contract with Tide Water officials in San Francisco.

Each tanker will have a speed of 16½ knots, a draft of 36½ feet and a beam of 100 feet. Each will be powered by a 17,600-horsepower steam turbine.

BERLIN, Sept. 23 (AP) — The Communists notified the West Berlin government officially today they will participate in the city elections Dec. 5.

Jaundice Kayoes Jerry Lewis, But He's Up Again Zanier Than Before

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 23 (AP) — It took yellow jaundice and 30 days in bed but Jerry Lewis is now an expert on daytime television.

The famed zanier half of the Martin and Lewis team now recovering from his illness, estimated that he watched television 20 hours a day "including test patterns."

"I learned how to baste a pot roast and also 78 different ways of murdering my wife," says Jerry.

"I also saw a talent show in which an accordion player didn't win first prize," he adds. He said he watched so many quiz shows that he thinks he will produce one of his own.

"It will be called 'stop the money.' We'll give away music."

The weather shows also are great.

"I'm lying in a bed in Southern California and the forecaster tells me rain is expected in New Hampshire. Nothing about southern California."

Toughest ordeal of all was awakening two hours earlier than the rest of the household.

"The only program on that early in the morning is a guy whose sponsor is a coffee manufacturer. He gives the news, then drinks a cup of coffee. Then he plays a record, another cup of coffee and so on. Here I am every morning drooling while that guy drinks coffee. By the time my doctor shows up, I'm throwing rocks at the set and ready for a psychiatrist."

Jerry got so starved for good daytime entertainment that Dean Martin made a rare and free appearance on a local afternoon disc jockey show just so he could entertain his sick partner.

HOLLYWOOD, (AP) — Grace Kelly is a dilemma to Holywood's quote — happy press corps.

She admits that reporters out to X-ray her private life bother her. For the life of her, she can't figure out why such things as what she eats and in what she sleeps should interest a world that has far more important things to think about. She doesn't like to be interviewed "because I have nothing of interest to say."

Asked about items telling of her beauty and whether such items don't please her a little, Grace replies:

Of course they please me. They're very flattering I'm satisfied with my looks but I don't consider myself as beautiful as some of the stars. I think the real beauties are Vivien Leigh, Elizabeth Taylor and Jean Simmons. I wouldn't mind looking like them."

Miss America, After A Week, Soars To Popularity, Is Richer By $15,000

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP) — After a week as Miss America of 1955, Lee Ann Merewither is some $15,000 richer, is worth 25 cents per autograph to collectors and is short about 18 hours sleep.

She has seen the sights of New York — consisting mostly of the rooftops visible from the top of her hotel.

She has spent most of her waking hours: (a) in small fitting rooms while size 12 dresses in her 20-piece wardrobe are cut down to accommodate her size 10 waist, (b) in small dressing rooms as make-up men apply greasepaint and dressmakers change her clothes — "careful of that hairdo now, and touch up those straggling hairs with beeswax" — and (c) on small stage sets being photographed in ball gowns and street dresses — but not bathing suits — admiring automobiles, enjoying grapefruit and orange juice, looking pleased with various pieces of household electrical equipment.

She has eaten hearty breakfasts and mostly sandwich lunches and sandwich dinners. She has written letters home riding from the dressmaker's to the photographer's and while waiting for elevators. She had answered endlessly the question, "well, how does it feel to be Miss America?"

She has stood before mirrors and cameras about eight hours each day on three-inch heels and swears her feet don't hurt.

This is the glamorus life of Miss America, the 19-year-old, 5 foot 7½, 124-pound San Francisco college sophomore with blue eyes, brown hair, 34½ bust, 22 waist, 35 hips, who looks something like Jane Russell, who wants to be a dramatic actress and who was picked from 50 finalists as the most beautiful, talented, poised young woman in the country.

Lee — in spite of her looks, good humor, magnificent disposition, hopes, ambitions, fears and handsome 1954-55 income — is only incidentally a celebrity for the next 12 months.

A COMMODITY

She is an industry commodity which, it is hoped, will persuade more people to buy everglaze fabrics, Nash automobiles, Philco television sets and citrus fruits grown in Florida, a situation which has caused some nervousness in Florida and is being chuckled over by rival citrus interests in her native California.

Literally millions of dollars are invested in Lee Ann Meriwether and, like any other treasure, the investment is well guarded.

Principal watch dog is Leonora Slaughter, executive director of Atlantic City's Miss America Pageant, which is a modern version of the old fashioned bathing beauty contest, and was dreamed up in 1921 as a promotion scheme to attract more visitors to the New Jersey resort city. It still is, except that after bathing beauty contess became common and someimes sleazy publicity devices, Miss Slaughter has given the Atlantic City institution a transfusion of culture, intellect and gentility.

Miss America's first award was a college scholarship. She slipped out of her swim suit — the word "bathing," even when coupled with "suit," is frowned upon because of unpleasant bathing beauty connotations — and won't wear it again during the year. The cheesecake phase is behind her.

One of the real-life bits of drama involving Lee was the fact that her father, Gregg, office manager of a California Chemical Company, had carefully investigated and approved the qualifying beauty contests — each franchised by Miss Slaughter's group — which carried her from being Miss San Francisco to Miss California to Miss America. Meriwether was satisfied with the set-up. He died suddenly a month ago, and Lee, when notified of her selection on the great night, broke into quick tears and said: "Daddy must know about this — and I hope he's proud." A lot of people who also knew the story felt tears smart their eyes, too.

In pre-Slaughter days, some beauty contests unmercifully exploited the "lucky winners." If Lee is exploited, it is merciful, profitable and there are no concealed gimmicks. She is treated as if she were made of spun sugar. She is as hard to reach as the British crown jewels of a Saturday midnight.

UNDER CONTRACT

She is under exclusive contract for a year to the Miss America Pageant, which scrutinizes every commercial undertakng — and insist that all checks be made out to Miss America herself.

Bradford Frapart, Miss Slaughter's husband, is business manager in the deal. Neither he nor his wife receives more than a straight salary from the pageant.

The pageant is supported by admission tickets and money paid in by four sponsors.

The Joseph Bancroft Co., which makes everglaze fabrics, and Nash Motors paid the pageant $12,500 each, a total of $25,000 which went into scholarships of varying amounts for the 10 contests finalists. Lee received the largest: $5,000, with which she proposes, next year, to finish City College of San Francisco and go on to the Pasadena Playhouse.

London Confab May Take Up German Unity

BONN, Germany, Sept. 23 (AP) —Labor forces in Europe appeared headed tonight toward a drive to inject German unity into the London conference.

The Socialists in Germany demanded Chancellor Konrad Adenauer bring up the subject, contending sovereignty and rearmament for the West — even should it be granted—is only a stopgap measure.

In Great Britain, the rightwing forces of Labor Leader Clement Attlee won executive committee approval for a resolution on West German rearmament, but inserted the qualifying though that new efforts be made to induce the Soviet Union "to permit reunification of Germany on the basis of free elections."

How far the labor forces will get remains a matter of conjecture. The nine-power London parley due to start in a week is presumably confined at this point to the question of granting Adenauer's 50 million Germans equal rights in the western world plus rearming them in an anti-Red Atlantic alliance.

Pressures on France—the stumbling block to German rearmament in any form up until now — mounted with these developments:

1. In Paris, supreme allied commander Alfred M. Gruenther told French businessmen NATO had enough safeguards to control German aggression and that it is essential to have German soldiers in the anti-Soviet bloc.

2. In Bonn, Chancellor Adenauer's top spokesman said the West German leader is keeping an open mind on the French plan for a seven-nation European Defense Community, including Germany and Britain. By his words and tone, the spokesman implied Adenauer is unwilling to irk the French in any way now in order to see how things progress in London.

3. In London, authoritative sources said French Premier Pierre Mendes-France had formally demanded in his memorandum last Saturday to the western allies that American and British troops remain indefinitely in Europe. This point, which appears certain to meet stiff opposition in Washington and London, was made a condition for French approval of West Germany's rearmament, the informants said.

Also in London, Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden held their final pre-conference strategy talks. Presumably they threshed out how far Britain is prepared to commit herself to the continent in order to bring West Germany into the Atlantic fold.

Gruenther's appeal to the French group visiting SHAPE urged the French to have a "reasonable" attitude, emphasized that "we have a very good control against any one force starting a war" and maintained that the enemy now is not Germany. He ticked off Soviet strength, upwards of 350 divisions and 20,000 planes, and implied that only by becoming strong can the West make the outbreak of war impossible.

CAN YOU "BEET" THIS?—Yes, that's President Eisenhower holding a huge sugar beet grown on Louis J. Ellen's farm near Boulder, Colo. Ike visited the farm shortly after dedicating a new Bureau of Standards laboratory.

Attlee, Back From Red Land Tour, Urges West To Get Rid Of Chiang

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP) — Back from conferences in Moscow and Peiping, British Labor Leader Clement Attlee called on the West today to get rid of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek at once.

Simultaneously, Attlee's lieutenants supported the principle of West German rearmaments in the face of determined opposition from left wing and pacifist groups at a meeting of the Labor Party's national executive committee.

Both developments will influence the course of events at the party's annual conference next week at Scarborough, a Yorkshire seaside resort.

GET RID SOON

Arriving home after talks with top Russian and Chinese Communist leaders, Attlee stepped from a plane at London airport, greeted his two daughters and a grandchild, and said:

"Personally speaking, I think the sooner we get rid of Chiang Kai-Shek and his troops the better."

Long ago Attlee went on record in favor of giving Peiping representatives the United Nations seat held in Nationalist China, a wartime ally of the western powers.

The man who was prime minister when Britain recognized Mao Tze-Tung's Red regime in 1950 described Formosa — island stronghold of Chiang's Nationalist troops — as "the biggest difficulty of all" in Asia.

Further, Attlee told reporters he had the impression there has been a relaxation of tension in the Far East following the Indo-China truce agreement at Geneva.

Attlee led a Laborite delegation that visited the Soviet Union and Red China in August. He was the last member of the party to return, making a trip around the world by coming via Australia, New Zealand and the North American continent.

ARRIVED LATE

Attlee got back a little too late to take part in the executive committee's row over German rearmament. Instead of hurrying to a smoke filled committee room in London he drove to his country home, cherry tree cottage, at Great Missenden.

Attlee's followers on the executive committee took care of the preconference maneuvering against left-wingers led by Aneurin Bevan — Attlee's arch rival and recent traveling companion.

The moderates won committee approval for a carefully worded resolution on German rearmament to be presented at Scarborough.

This resolution calls on party leaders to consult with other European socialist parties to see how West Germany best can "contribute to collective security in accordance with the principles of the United Natipns and in a way which would preclude the emergency again of the German military menace."

It also suggests new efforts to induce the Soviet Union "to permit the reunification of Germany on the basis of free elections."

In the view of party Moderates such a resolution can be supported at Scarborough by all but the last-ditch opponents of any form of West German rearmament. But the Bevanites were not pleased and it appeared there would be a floor fight.

The committee also voted to have Attlee make the report to the conference on the labor delegation's trip. On China, the moderate and left wing sections see relatively eye-to-eye.

Steamer Sinks After Hitting Rock; 1 Dies

TROMSO, Norway, Sept. 23 (AP) —A small Norwegian ferry steamer ripped into a shoal off this land of fjords and islands north of the Arctic circle early today. It sank 15 minutes after 156 passengers and 45 crewmen piled into lifeboats and rowed to safety in the pre-dawn darkness.

One passenger drowned and one crewman of the vessel, the 1,020-ton Nordstjernen, was missing. It could not be determined immediately whether any other passengers had been lost.

Most of the passengers were sleeping in their cabins when the ship caved in its hull against shoals while cruising in calm, clear weather.

Awakened by the jar and the noise of the alarms, the passengers in their nightclothes tsreamed to the deck. Most of the passengers in their nightclothes streamed boats within minutes after the crash. There was no panic.

Future Of US-INDIA Relations 'Not Bleak'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)— U.S. Ambassador to India, George Allen said today future relations between the two countries are "not gloomy" although differences will continue to exist.

He told members of the Women's National Press Club that the major differences between India and the United States concern recognition of Red China, colonialism, atomic tests, collective security and U.S. military assistance to Pakistan.

Allen, scheduled to become assistant secretary of state for the middle east succeeding Henry Byroade, said the decision to give Pakistan U.S. military assistance did not ignore Indian opposition.

But he recalled that the secret protocol between Nazi Germany and Russia before World War II disclosed that Soviet territorial aspirations were southward to the Indian Ocean.

Allen said that because of the defense gap in this area it was felt essential to bolster anti-Communist middle east defenses in spite of India's objections.

Premier Held Responsible For Wilma Montesi's Death Scandal

BY JAMES M. LONG

ROME, Sept. 23 (AP) — Italy's powerful Communist party tonight charged pro-western Premier Mario Scelba with full responsibility for the Wilma Montesi death scandal and demanded his resignation.

The maneuver by the largest Communist party organization outside the Iron Curtain had been anticipated. Scelba promised to answer the charges tomorrow.

The Communists launched their assault on Scelba and his government in the senate.

Sen. Umberto Terracini, Communist senate leader, accused Scelba from the floor of "being responsible for the Montesi affair."

"We cannot tolerate being governed by anybody under any kind of suspicion," he declared. "If Piccionni paid for suspicion on his son by resigning, you (Scelba) should also resign."

"Young Piccioni's father resigned last Saturday as Italy's foreign minister "to defend my son and my family's good name."

MARQUIS HELD

Surrendering at Rome's Regina Coeli (Queen of Heaven) jail to face charges of trying to hush up the case and protect young Piccioni was millionaire Marpuis Ugo Montagna, often a host at parties for political and social figures since the days when the Fascists ruled Italy.

Apparently out of suspicion was Prince Maurizio of Hesse and Savoia, a great-great-grandson of British Queen Victoria. His passport had been withdrawn in the investigation, but a high police official said today he appeared only to have been dragged into the case by Montagna's attorneys "in an atempt to divert attention."

A former Rome police chief, Saverio Polito, was charged with misfeasance in office for "aiding Piccioni in evading arerst," but was not arrested because of his age. He is 73. Police chief Giovanni Carcaterra, who got the job when his precedecessor resigned because of the scandal, oredred Polito to report to court next Saturday.

NEWS PLAYED UP

Romans stopped in the streets today to gape at solid front page newpaper displays of the arrests playng the scandal into proportions of the Dreyfuss Case which shook France at the end of the last century.

Several independent papers and those of minor center parties, on whom Scelba's coalition depends for its life, said the investigation and arrests were evidence of the government's courage.

Big names burst into the case when a young magazine editor, Silvano Muto, went on trial early this year charged with "spreading false and alarmist news" in reporting Wilma died at drug orgy after having been at Montagna's seafront hunting lodge south of Ostia.

A star withness in the editor's defense broke up the trial with a dramatic declaration in court that Montagna was the brains of a drug ring that preyed on young women and young Piccionni was the ring's "assassin."

Piccioni insists he knows nothing of the girl or the party. He contends that at the time of Wilma's death he was in bed at home with tonsilitis. And Montagna also denies the charges.

Reds Still Forbidden To Fraternize With Germans

MUNICH, Germany, Sept. 23 (AP) — A Soviet army sergeant who escaped to the West said today Russian troops in the Soviet zone are still forbiddn to fraternize with East Germans.

The 21-year-old soldier, in a Voice of America broadcast to Soviet occupation forces and Iron Curtain countries, said "any Soviet soldier who fraternizes is put in jail."

The sergeant said he has assumed the cover name of Nikolai Garkin to protect his relatives still living in Russia. He was sentenced to 20 days in the stockade for keeping company with his East German girl friend. He was released last April 26 and fled with the girl to West Germany.

More Women Running For Congress; Year's Political Pot Brewing Hot

More women candidates for congress than ever before have reached the November finals, and the present record of 14 women lawmakers may be topped.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me.), reflected to a second term, can sit in the grandstand and watch the other races go by.

Contestants include 15 Democratic and 12 Republican women nominated for the House. Another Republican, Mrs. George Abel of Lincoln, Neb., is her party's nominee for the remaining two months of an unfinished Senate term.

And Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington, Republican who won a special election to succeed her late husband as delegate from Hawaii, may be nominated Oct. 2 for a full term.

No women are running in Rhode Island, the only state yet to hold its primary.

Bertha Adkins, Republican national committee women's division director, and her opposite number in the Democratic group, Mrs. Katie Loucheim, are predicting there will be more women than ever in the next Congress — and new faces. One of these will be Mrs. Iris Blitch, whose Democratic nomination in Georgia is tantamount to election.

Mrs. Loucheim said she was encouraged by the number of women candidates who survived by the primaries. "This indicates women are determined to partticipate in the making of national and international affairs," she said.

All but one of the 14 present women lawmakers sought renomination — and got it. Sen. Eve Bowring (R-Neb.), serving by appointment, did not seek election.

Regarded as an almost certain winner is Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass), dean of women lawmakers running for her 16th term. Rep. Katharine St. George (R-N.Y.) has no opposition.

Other women now in the House who were renominated:

Republicans — Reps. Marguerite Church (Ill), Cecil Harden (Ind.), Ruth Thompson (Mich.) and Frances Bolton (Ohio). Democrats — Reps. Gracie Pfost (Idaho), Vera Buchanan (Pa.), Maude Kee (W. Va.) Leonor Sullivan (Mo.) and Edna Kelly (N.Y.)

In Utah, Democratic former Rep. Reva Beck Bosone is trying for a comeback against the man who defeated her in 1952, Rep. William A. Dawson.

Other primaries this week brought victory to Mrs. Edna Bowen, Democrat, in Wisconsin, and Mrs. Ellen Harris, Republican, in Colorado.

Additional would-be lawmakers are:

Democrats: Mrs. Harriet Enderle (Calif.), Miss Helen J. Kellener (Ill.), Mrs. Inez Scholl (Ind.), Mrs. Martha Griffith (Mich.), Mrs. Warwick B. Hobart (Ohio), Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke (Ohio, and Mrs. Edith Green (Ore.)

Republicans: Mrs. Lillian I. Martin (Del.), Mrs. L. C. Davis (Mo.), Mrs. Cristine P. Odom (N.C.), Mrs. John E Messervy (S.C.) and Mrs. Lena Bellots (S.C.)

The Colorado primary recently brought victory to Mrs. Ellen Harris, Republican.

Reports at the Democratic national committee were that Mrs. Edna Bowen had won in Wisconsin's 3rd district.

But the office of the Republican incumbent, Rep. Withrow, said Withrow had phoned that he wouldn't have to tilt with a woman after all as a man had beaten her in a final count by 316 votes.

The actual count of women nominees remained unchanged, however.

The Democratic national committee received word that Mrs. Coya Knutson had won in Minnesota's 9th district.

Portable TV Set, Foreign Cars, Are Students' Whims

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

Now that several million parents have managed to dig up the required college tuition for their young hopefuls once more, a new trend is reported.

Some college students are demanding a rise in their standard of living, and are going back to their ivy-clad halls of learning equipped with such items as portable television sets, refrigerators, electric sewing machines and air conditioning units.

If this trend continues, imagine the plight of the long-suffering father who must provide push-button appliances as well as tuition for his off-spring, in order to induce them to expose themselves to a little of the world's learning.

The swing toward "ultra-modernity in college life" is reported by a young man who has built up a successful business by conducting polls among the nation's youth and reporting on their buying habits. He is Lester Rand, president of the Youth Research Institute, and he says:

"Unquestionably, campus life has undergone an amazing face lifting in the past few years."

Imported sports car will be seen in greater numbers than ever before on college campuses this fall, he says, and the old-fashioned bicycle is giving way to motor bike in some instances. The number of cars that go to college has increased to such an extent that a serious parking problem has resulted on many campuses.

In addition, Rand reports, students are taking up interior decoration in a big way, to transform drab college dormitories into rich and colorful suites.

One reason for all this college luxury, it seem, is the ability of students to earn substantial amounts of money during vacations, and even in some instances during the school year. Says Rand:

"It's not unusual for a young person to earn $1,000 during the summer."

While the trend is still in its infancy, and restricted to a gilded few, there's one solid fact that may nip it in the bud. That is the resentment of the average student to another who tries to "put on airs"

In eastern women's colleges, such as Smith, Wellesley and Vassar, the girl who arrives at the campus with a fur coat, a car and a big allowance is likely to find herself snubbed by her less solvent classmates

Chiang Hammers Amoy Port Anew

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 23 (AP)—Nationalist planes hammered an ominous concentration of Red shipping near Amoy yesterday and pilots claimed five gunboats and one big armed junk were sunk.

It was the second straight day of air blows at gunboats, junks and small wooden craft in Chuanchow Bay, a hill-girt inlet only 30 miles northeast of the Red port of Amoy.

A special communique also reported a heavy, one-hour artillery duel between Red guns on Amoy and Nationalist batteries on Quemoy, seven miles east. It was the 20th straight day of Nationalist attacks.

The mounting action along the nervous 120 to 150 miles from Formosa came as Vice Adm. Alfred M. Pride, whose U.S. Seventh Fleet guards this Nationalist bastion, arrived for a three or four-day visit.

Pride made a quick trip to southern Formosa. He is scheduled to meet with President Chiang Kai-Shek before he leaves. U.S. sources insisted his visit was routine.

Nationalist warplanes in their patrols along the coast claimed the biggest gunboat killing of the small war, which broke out Sept. 3, with a heavy Red shelling of Quemoy.

A defense ministry communique said the gunboats and 40 other craft were caught in Chuanchow Bay, where an equal concentration of small craft was spotted and attacked the day before.

British-Built Airliners Invading U.S. Routes

By JAMES MONTAGNES
NEA Special Correspondent

TORONTO — (NEA) — For the first time in history, British-built commercial planes will carry passengers on North American airlines this winter when Vickers Viscount turboprop aircraft begin flying between Canadian and United States cities.

"Unless you have traveled in a turboprop airplane, or a pure jet plane, it is difficult to describe the terrific passenger appeal that this method of transportation has to offer," says Jack T. Dyment, chief engineer of the Canadian government-owned airline, Trans-Canada.

The Canadian airline has ordered 22 of the four-engined Viscount aircraft, the first of which will start coming over from England in mid-October. The planes will be on scheduled service by Feb. 1.

One big United States operator —Capital Airlines—has ordered 40 of the British planes, with the first ones to come next spring. It has options on additional planes.

By that time the Canadian airline will have the planes on a number of daily flights between Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg, between Toronto and New York, Montreal and New York, Toronto and Chicago, and Toronto and Windsor, opposite Detroit. These runs carry the heaviest traffic between Canada and the United States.

The Viscount aircraft have already been in use on European airways more than a year. Other U. S. airlines besides Cdn. have indicated interest in the plane.

The turboprop aircraft is neither a full jet nor a conventional piston-engine plane. Like the jet engine the turboprop engine depends on hot gases to drive it. The full jet-powered aircraft has no propellers. The turboprop engine uses its hot air stream to drive a turbine which is geared to a propeller.

Trans-Canada's Viscount turboprops have been especially designed for North American service.

As a result of two months of winter flying in Canada in early 1953 with a prototype plane, engineers suggested some 250 major changes to meet North American passenger and safety standards.

Fastest short-range aircraft on the continent, only the U.S.-built DC-7 long-range aircraft is speedier.

The Viscount has less vibration than conventional-powered aircraft, but is slightly noisier when taxiing, a characteristic of all jet-powered aircraft. It has the largest windows of any aircraft, taking up almost half the space from the cabin floor to the baggage rack. The plane will carry 48 passengers and cruise at about 325 miles per hour.

From the airline standpoint, the turboprop aircraft will be easier to service and overhaul. It will fly on cheaper fuel than present aviation gasoline, using what is technically known as JP-4 fuel, a special gasoline now standard on North American military turboprop aircraft.

BRITISH TURBOPROP AIRLINER, the Vickers Viscount, here undergoing tests at a Canadian airport, will start flying from Canada to U.S. soon as first British plane on U.S. airlanes.

Colored - White Tension Easing

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—Tension created by attempts to integrate Negro students into white classrooms appeared to be lessening somewhat in several sections of the United State today.

Students at Cartnage High School, Carthage, Mo., elected two Negroes as class officers. Charles Scott was named vice president of the senior class and Dub Cheney was picked as reporter for the junior class.

In Washington, the U. S. Supreme Court announced it would hear arguments Dec. 6 on how to carry out its decision against racial segregation in the public schools.

Court opens in October, but Harold Willey, clerk of the high tribunal, explained that the week of Dec. was the earliest available date for the arguments. Briefs are expected to be filed by North Carolina, Arkansas, Texas, Florida, Maryland, Tennessee and Oklahoma.

U. S. Judge John H. Druffel denied a motion for a temporary restraining order against the board of education in the southwestern Ohio city of some 5,100 population. He set Sept. 29 for hearing petitions for a temporary injunction and a permanent injunction.

The court denied the temporary restraining order because the defendants had not been notified such a suit would be filed.

The case is believed to be the first court test involving segregation to be filed in a northern state since the Supreme Court ruled against separating whites and Negroes in public schools.

At Milford, Del., two schools remained closed due to telephoned threats against Negro pupils. Dr. Ramon C. Cobbs, Milford School superintendent, said the schools would not open until Monday at least.

The Milford school board and the state board of education scheduled a meeting for tomorrow night in an effort to solve the integration problem.

Nehru, Indon Minister Talk On Jakarta Meet

NEW DELHI, India, Sept. 23 (AP) — Indonesian Prime Minister Sastroamidjojo opened his talks with Indian Prime Minister Nehru today amid reports that India is ready to back his plan for an Asian-African meeting — provided Communist China is not invited.

Sources close to the government said Nehru is insisting Red China be kept out of any Asian-African meeting.

Such a meeting long has been a pet scheme of Sastroamidjojo's, although up to now Nehru has been generally cool toward it.

As originally sketched, the idea was to have as many nations as possible gather early next year at Jakarta, Indonesia's capital, to discuss matters of common interest.

Sastroamidjojo indicated on arrival here today that he would discuss with Nehru his plans for the meeting although he would not comment when asked whether Red China would be invited.

Sports, Entertainment At Marbo Camp Tomorrow

Entertainment galore and sports events are among the many activities scheduled for the big Marbo Filipino Day tomorrow.

General cleanup of barracks and facilities at the Foreign Nationals camp at the Marbo-3d Air Division area is slated to start the big day underway.

Entertainment, sports events and a banquet and dance will fill out the afternoon and evening.

Cleanup of the area will include cutting the grass throughout the area, working on the parking lot and on the inside of the billets in the camp.

All personnel working on the project will be issued "work tickets" entitling them to free food and drinks at the Filipino Club from 6 p.m. to midnight.

Music for the evening will be furnished by Roger's Royal Manilans.

Other entertainment highlights of the Filipino Day will include a championship volleyball game, a concert by the 595th Air Force Band, two basketball games and the big free evening including door prizes at the Filipino Club.

Barracks in the camp will be inspected and the outstanding building will win its residents special awards.

Rain Facts

An inch of rain, spread over an acre of ground, totals 6,272,640 cubic inches of water, which weighs 226,512 pounds, or 113¼ tons, the equivalent of 27,143 gallons of water.

US, Britain Decide To Maintain Own Consular Offices In Hanoi

SAIGON, Indo-China, Sept. 23 (AP) — The American and British consulates will hold on in Hanoi, the chief city of the North Viet Nam, when the Communist-led Viet Minh take it over in 2½ weeks. The French also are to leave an envoy behind.

Workmen were putting heavy iron grills over the windows and sinking big new fuel tanks in the yard of the U.S. consulate there today. American embassy sources in Saigon said Consul Thomas Corcoran and his small staff will remain "as long as possible."

The British decision to stay on was announced in London.

The French are pulling out of North Viet Nam in stages and the Viet Minh are moving in under the Geneva agreement that ended almost eight years of war in Indo-China. But Jean Santenay will remain in Hanoi as their representative.

NO POLICY CHANGE

The American and British decision to stay does not signify any change in the Washington and London policy of refusing diplomatic recognition to the Viet Minh regime headed by Moscow-trained Ho Chih Minh. It's even emphasized British and American insistence that the Geneva-drawn line cutting Viet Nam at the 17th parallel is not permanent.

In keeping Corcoran at his post, Washington would follow a precedent set when American consulates in China were maintained, particularly in Manchuria, after Chiang Kai-Shek's defeat until Red China boss Mao Tze-Tung forced their closing.

While the United States has only limited financial interests in North Viet Nam, there were reports representatives of U.S. oil companies might still be in the area.

UK TO MAINTAIN CONSULATE

In London, a foreign office spokesman said Britain also will maintain a small consular mission in Hanoi "to guard British interests" and raise it to a consulate-general under a new envoy, Geoffrey Baker.

Britain said last night her legation in Saigon, South Viet Nam's capital, will be raised to an embassy. Britain has full diplomatic relations wth the Viet Namese state headed by ex-Emperor Bao Dai.

The consulates will give the west a window to view political, economic and military developments in North Viet Nam.

EVACUATION

Army trucks began evacuating French headquarters from Hanoi today. Gen. Rene Cogny, French commander in the north, said new headquarters will be established at Haiphong tomorrow. Thirty French Union battalions and support units totaling to about 30,000 men already have moved south. Most of these are Viet Namese.

French and American planes ended the Hanoi-Saigon refugee airlift today after moving 81,912 Viet Namese civilians to South Viet Nam camps since the second week in August.

Failure to Success

When it gave its first public performance in 1900, the opera "Madame Butterfly" was pronounced an absolute failure. A later performance, in 1904, established it as a huge success.

The World Health Organization had antimalaria campaigns in 21 countries and other campaigns against a total of 27 major diseases in 1953, its fifth year of activity.

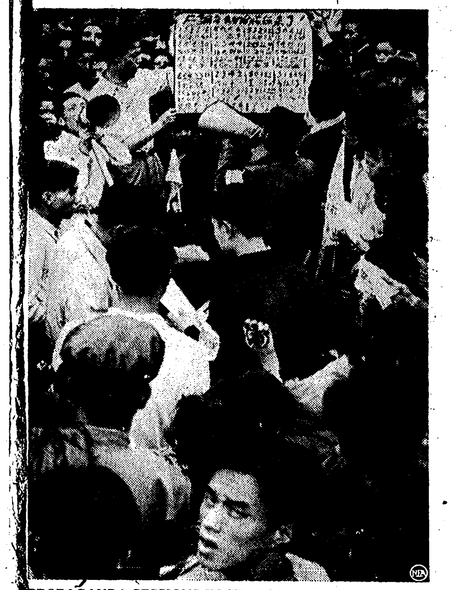
Chinese On Mainland Cool Toward Chiang



PROPAGANDA SESSIONS IN SHANGHAI: The Reds have discredited Chiang, but attacks on the U.S. are not so successful.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of three exclusive eyewitness dispatches by an "Old China Hand" who went back to Red China for an up-to-date look behind the Bamboo Curtain. His real name—and how he got in and out—must remain a secret.

By JOHN SMITH
(Written for NEA Service)

HONG KONG—(NEA)—The parts of China I saw on my recent visit to my former home are not seething for a chance to overthrow the Communists. Least of all would they be likely to rally to the banners of Chiang Kai-shek.

A third force in China could gain popular support to oust the Reds.

Chiang has been discredited to the mainland Chinese as "a corrupt old dictator." This Communist party propaganda line has convinced its captive audience.

But propaganda attacks against the "imperialistic Americans" have not achieved such widespread success, and there are many potential allies for the United States among those who would not lift a finger to aid Chiang's forces.

There is no question that the food situation in Red China is appalling. Many locally produced items of foodstuff are exported to Russia in repayment for arms and technical training personnel. Next to rice in importance in the Chinese diet are oil, fats and pork.

In South China, where enthusiasm for the U.S. is strongest, these items are in extremely short supply. In Hankow, rice and oil rations must be collected daily. This is an unbearable hardship for the aged and infirm, but the People's Government makes no exceptions.

The Army, the police and bureaucrats who administer the system are well taken care of and the masses remain in line.

Oddly enough, social life for foreigners goes on in Red China in faint facsimile of the old days. In Shanghai, the famous old clubs of the International Settlement which crop up in the nostalgic reminiscenses of any foreigner who once lived there, are gone. But there's an average of 20 parties of the black tie variety each week.

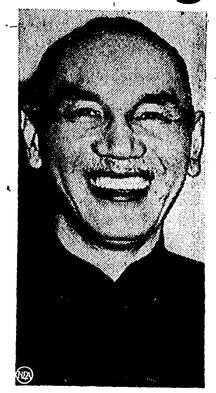
The entertainment is now confined to private homes. Scotch is US$20 a bottle and coffee is US$7 a pound. There are some 30 foreign families, mostly British, still in Shanghai. A few Americans are in this category, while another half-dozen Americans occupy quarters in the local jail.

When I left almost two years ago, private businesses were encouraged. Now the reverse is true. Through an ingenious Red method, property is not seized, however. It is given to the government as a present.

The owner is put in the giftgiving frame of mind by several means, such as withdrawal of an order in mid-contract and refusal to pay. Or perhaps the government will insist on bankrupting renovations of the property.



CHIANG KAI-SHEK: His 1954 re-election grin on Formosa is not reflected on the mainland.

Sometimes, the government puts the business owner through the motions of a sale. At one window of a bank, the owner draws the value of his business in cash. He is told to stop at another window, where he learns that he has overlooked back taxes which just happen to total exactly the same amount as he has withdrawn for selling his property to the government.

Some of the Communist zeal seems to have gone out of the workers as production has slipped. An example is a tire factory I was familiar with in years gone by.

At first, the workers enthusiastically endorsed the new regime. They poured forth extra effort and during the first year of Red rule did an outstanding production job. To their dismay they learned that the more they produced, the more would be expected of them. Each month the government production quota rose. Gradually, production and quality slipped, and the management was changed several times to little avail.

According to the Chinese, this is true in most fields of industry.

These conditions of unrest, food shortages and uncertainty might be interpreted by wishful thinkers as hopeful signs that the system will soon fall apart in China. Actually, it is felt here that these are danger signals. The internal troubles which I saw and the rumblings which I sensed are unfortunately the type that can lead to further aggression.

Low Price Halt Thai Tin Mine Operations

BANGKOK, Sept. 23 (AP) —Thailand's biggest tin mine has ceased operation because of falling prices and fear of war.

Government mines department sources said today the British financed and managed Thailand Tin Mines Ltd. in Yaya province near the Malayan frontier was now discharging workers and auctioning equipment. The mine, reputedly second largest in Asia, had been operating under Thai government concession since 1934.

The company was known for using some of the world's most modern tin extracting machinery.

Richter Released

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Sept. 23 (AP) — Dr. Donald Richter, Austrian scientists brought here to produce atomic energy under President Peron's sponsorship, was released today after serving five days in prison for contempt of congress.

Government spokesmen and opposition radicals claimed in the chamber of deputies Sept. 1 that Richter's plan to produce atomic energy from light metals was a costly failure.

But since World War II, shortage of expert engineers had created difficulties of operating it, the source said.

Laurel Asks US To Lift Barriers In Economic Relations With PI

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP) — Sen. Jose P. Laurel, Philippine elder statesman and leader of a trade revision mission here, today called upon the United States to remove special economic obstacles which he said prevent his country from playing its full role as a partner of democracy in Asia.

"We are not asking the United States to make us prosperous, like giving a blood transfusion to a dying man," he said at a news conference. "Prosperity must be deserved."

Laurel reminded that the Philippines under President Ramon Magsaysay, had "decided to seal their fate with the United States as a democracy" by entering into pacts for mutual security, granting military bases and most recently participating wholeheartedly in the eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO). (tf

BALANCED ECONOMY

But he said the Pillippines must establish a balanced economy and economic stability not possible now under terms of the 1946 Philippine trade act.

"Without food, hope and in despair, it will be very difficult for Magsaysay to rally the Filipino people behind him," he said.

"To play our part effectively in defense of freedom and democracy we are laying our cards on the table," he continued. 'We are not going to ask for anything that will be prejudicial to the government of the United States."

Laurel, former world war president of the puppet Philippine republic during the Japanese occupation, was joined by two top members of his trade revision delegation at the conference. Governor Miguel Cuaderno of the Philippine Central Bank and Sen. Gil Puyat, chairman of the finance committee, answered economic questions.

However, the specific proposals the Philippines will ask from the United States were not disclosed due to the pending negotiations which started Monday.

PARITY RIGHTS ABROGATION

In general, Laurel is asking for abrogation of special parity rights to Americans in the Philippines which give them privileges to exploit natural resources and operate public utilities and removal of duty-free trade which has stunted Philippine industrialization, caused by a drain on dollar reserves and impeded solution of a serious unemployment problem.

A requirement that the President of the United States must approve any change in the value of the Philippine peso is viewed as a string on Philippine sovereignty.

Laurel said there were 1,400,000 unemployed out of a total employable labor force of eight million — one of the highest rates in Asia.

He said the Philippines does not intend to compete with Japan and India in industrialization but wishes to make use of available raw materials.

STENGEL INKS FOR 2 YEARS AT "EXCEPTIONAL" PRICE

By JACK HAND

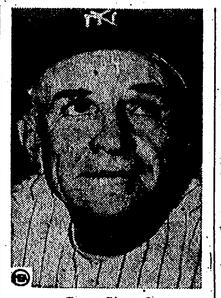
NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP) — Casey Stengel, still "surprised" that he failed to win a sixth straight pennant, signed up yesterday to manage the New York Yankees for a fourth two-year term through 1956 and promised to rebuild the club.

The grizzled old manager, now 64, will remain the game's highest paid manager at "exceptional money." Neither Stengel nor the Yanks would nail down the exact figures, but it was believed his basic salary is $75,000 a year with a profit sharing pension plan and a bonus edging the figure close to $95,000. Stengel had managed the Yanks to five pennants and five world series triumphs since 1949 until beaten by Cleveland this year.

Although the Yanks won more than 100 games in its second place finish to the Indians, Stengel left no doubt many changes will be made.

"Our farm system isn't dead," he said at a press conference. "We came up with Bob Grim and Bill Skowron this year and we may have two more next year.

"We've got to fix our hitting and our pitching. With the exception of Yogi Berra and Mickey Mantle I'd listen to talks about any others."



Casey Stengel

In the next breath, Stengel was talking about his three solid pitchers—Bob Grim, Whitey Ford and Tommy Byrne. "You can't tell, Harry Byrd might be better next year," he added. "You ask me what I am going to do first? Well, you fellows ought to know. You've been writing all year that my pitching was lousy.

"Well, they finally did catch up with us. After five years, I found out I forgot to win 140 games. I've got to find some way to catch Cleveland and so do six other clubs."

Remembering that Stengel said recently he ought to be fired if he didn't win the pennant, a writer asked Casey if he still felt the same way.

"I'm surprised I lost it," he said. "I didn't expect to lose it until we left Cleveland."

Dan Topping, co-owner of the Yankees, explained, "We talked him into coming back."

Indians Tie Win Mark With 110th

Large Stadiums Figure To NeT Players, Owners, Record World Series Checks

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP)—The 1954 World Series, to be played in the largest ball parks in the two major leagues with ticket prices at their highest levels, may be worth more than $10,000 to each player on the winning team.

It is almost sure to break all previous records for attendance and gate receipts and the estimated financial figures are astronomical.

The series opens next Thursday in the Polo Grounds, home of the New York Giants, which has a listed seating capacity of 55,000. After two games there, it moves to Cleveland's 73,500-seat Municipal Stadium for the fat weekend games. Then, if it lasts longer than five games, it returns to New York.

The Cleveland Stadium is where the all-time World Series record crowd of 86,288 saw a game between the Indians and the Boston Braves, Oct. 10, 1948. That record may not be broken, but the Indians have had about twice as many ticket applications as they could fill. The Giants also have been swamped, and standing-room-only crowds are assured.

From there on it becomes a matter of fairly simple arithmetic to arrive at new records and the $10,000 plus figure for the winning players.

Ticket prices are the same as they were last year—$10 for box seats, $7 for reserved seats, $4 for standing room and $2 for bleachers. The federal tax on admissions has been reduced since last year, so the actual "take" will be higher. The five percent New York City tax which the Giants have tacked onto the standard prices can be disregarded in the calculations.

Yanks 4th Club To Win 100 And Wind Up Second

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP)—Only four U. S. major league teams, including the current New York Yankees, have won 100 or more games in one season and finished second.

Winning 100 usually is a guarantee of a pennant, but it isn't necessarily so as the Yanks discovered this year. Detroit's Tigers in 1915 won 100, and the 1909 Chicago Cubs and 1942 Brooklyn Dodgers each won 104 games, but all it brought them was second money.

JIMMY CARTER

CARTER BATTERS HERMAN IN PREP

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23 (AP) —Jimmy Carter of New York, former lightweight champion, battered Mexican Freddie (Babe) Herman of Los Angeles with jolting punches to the face and midsection last night to win a unanimous 10-round decision.

Herman was down from a Carter combination but jumped to his feet before Referee Jack Silver started the count.

That was the only knockdown.

The former titleholder, who gets a return match with Champ Paddy DeMarco in the near future, grimly stalked Herman around the ring from the start to the finish.

GOOD FOR ELEVEN — Gene Calame, University of Oklahoma's standout quarterback, slides one tackler as he makes 11 yards in this first period play against California Saturday. Bringing up the rear is Sooner Cecil Morris (74) guard.

Tribe Tops Chisox 3-1; Dodger Rookie Fans 15 Giants For New Whiff Mark

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP) — The American League champion Cleveland Indians equalled a 27-year-old record for total victories yesterday by beating Chicago 3-1 for their 110th triumph.

In the National League, Karl Spooner of Brooklyn, who spent the season with Fort Worth, struck out 15 men in his first major league appearance, defeating the New York Giants 3-0. This set an all-time record for a first time performance. The old mark was 13 by Cliff Melton of the Giants.

Spooner allowed the new National League champs only three hits, all singles. He walked three.

Al Dark beat out an infield roller in the first inning. Willie Mays dumped a single over the infield in the third and loser Johnny Antonelli singled over first in the fifth.

Left fielder Al Smith drove in two of the three Cleveland runs and Don Mossi, usually reserved for relief duties, held the White Sox scoreless until the ninth. Bobby Avila raised his league-leading batting average to .337 with two of the seven Cleveland hits off loser Jack Harshman.

Tommy Byrne won his third game in four decisions since returning to the New York Yankees as he beat Washington 3-0 on five hits. The Yankees completed the season's fifth triple play in the sixth inning.

The Milwaukee Braves whipped Cincinnati 3-1, wrapping it up in the ninth on an unassisted double play by catcher Del Crandall.

With runners on first and second and one out, pinch hitter Bob Borkowski struck out on a wild pitch. Gus Bell tried to move from second to third and Crandall fired to third baseman Eddie Mathews. But Borkowski broke from the plate and ran to first. Mathews threw across the infield, hitting Borkowski in the back.

After a 15 minute conference the umpires decided Borkowski was automatically out when he struck out. And they called Bell out at the plate because Borkowski illegally drew the throw to first.

The St. Louis Cardinals defeated Chicago 6-3 with Brooks Lawrence posting his 14th victory since joining the Cards in late June. He gave up five hits. Stan Musial collected three of the nine St. Louis safeties.

The Philadelphia Phillies won a prank from Pittsburgh 12-1 and 5-1. Robin Roberts gave up only four hits in the second game as he won his 22nd game.

Athletic Success Leads To Domestic Distress In Soviet

MOSCOW, Sept. 23 (AP)—Being a champion on horseback is no reason for deserting a faithful wife said Soviet Sport yesterday, denouncing an athlete who did just that.

The newspaper lit into Konstantin Salnikov, Soviet Pentathlon champion, for getting a swelled head.

In true sob-sister style the paper described how Mrs. Salnikov worked hard to provide the money to enable her husband to spend his time practicing.

"She worked day and night to make money to give him free time for training," the paper declared. "When she gave birth to their son it only increased her duties."

Finally, Soviet Sport declared, their dreams were answered. In 1952 Salnikov won the men's pentathlon. And what was his wife's reward?

"You are not cultural enough for me," the champ told her.

So he walked out and, as Soviet Sport put it, "the poor woman was shocked."

The Young Communist league condemned him, but Salnikov only answered "it was his private business."

Taking up the cudgels, Soviet Sport urged "when people applaud Salnikov on a sport field for his successes, we must say don't applaud. He is a headless horseman. What he is doing is unworthy of Soviet sport."

American-Japanese Tension Mounts As H-Bomb Burned Fisherman Dies

U.S. LAUNCHES U.N. BID FOR ATOM POOL

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 24 (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles called today for the creation by next year at least of an international agency for the peaceful use of atomic energy despite the refusal of Russia to cooperate.

In new and daring moves, Dulles also proposed to an intently-listening U.S. assembly that the U.N. convene next spring an international scientific conference to consider the whole vast subject.

In his important policy speech to the assembly and in a letter formally stating the United States is raising this atomic issue as a new item in the assembly, Dulles made it clear the United States will go ahead outside the U.N. and in concert with those nations desiring to take part in the broad program. He indicated, however, the U.N. will be kept informed of developments.

He also made it clear that the Russians were welcome to come along if they wished but that at any rate the U.S. will not accept the familiar Russian "nyet" as a final block to the program first enunciated by President Eisenhower to the U.N. assembly last Dec. 8.

Dulles disclosed that the Russians only yesterday, having heard he would deal with this subject in his talk today, had offered to resume conversations on the pool for peaceful uses of the atom. But, he said, they showed no sign of receding from the opposition expressed months ago.

USA REPORT

In response to Dulles' letter, an announcement tonight said, the assembly's 15-nation steering committee will meet tomorrow to consider addition of a new item to the agenda:

"International cooperation in developing the peaceful uses of atomic energy: report of the United States of America."

Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet top delegate, said there is a lot to be said about Dulles' speech but he would wait until he makes his own speech. The Russian may speak Monday.

Selwyn Lloyd, British minister of state, said his government will support the proposals and be a member of the agency. He and a number of other delegates outside the

Missouri Prison Riot Is Crushed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 24 (AP)—The most disastrous riot in the history of Missouri State Penitentiary was brought under control today with four prisoners killed and 30 other convicts and three guards injured.

The savage 15-hour revolt was led by a small group of incorrigible prisoners.

Seven prison buildings were destroyed and three others damaged as the cursing, shouting convicts set out on a path of destruction.

Preliminary estimates of the damage by prison officials ranged from three to five million dollars.

Prompt mobilization of nearly 1,000 state highway troopers, policemen from neighboring cities and Missouri national guardsmen was credited with breaking the back of the riot and preventing a wholesale break by many of the 3,285 inmates.

Only about 300 prisoners were actually involved in the abortive break for freedom.

Convicts gave many reasons for the abrupt uprising, but a guard said he believed it stemmed from dissatisfaction with green watermelons served at supper last night. Other convict said the cause was poor food generally.

Reds Blamed For Magnifying Death

PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 24 (AP) — Red infulences in Asia were blamed today by Rep. Carl Hinshaw (R-Calif.) for magnifying the death of a Japanese fisherman from atomic radiation.

Hinshaw is chairman of the subcommittee on research and development of the joint U.S. congressional committee on atomic energy.

Japanese authorities say the fisherman died as a result of contact with fall-out particles of an American hydrogen bomb exploded at Bikini early this year.

Hinsaw expressed regrets, but he said American authorities cannot be blamed "because warnings had been posted months in advance."

Hinshaw's statement continued: "There will always remain the question of whether this man would have died if Japanese authorities had permitted examination and treatment by skilled physicians of the Atomic Energy Commission.

"Because of the failure to allow American scientists to board the vessel and make tests for radioactive particles on the boat, there will always remain doubt as to the extent of the contamination, if any, from radiation.

Red influences in Japan seem to be magnifying this case in order to create ill will for the United States in Asia, and it is to be hoped the people are too wise to be hoodwinked by these tactics," Hinshaw concluded.

Kefauver Says Dulles Hurts U.S. Prestige

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24 (AP) — U.S. Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) today blamed U.S. Secretary of State Dulles and the Republican administration for what he called allowing "America's prestige and moral leadership to drop to an all-time low."

"The election this fall of a firmly Democratic Senate would send a thrill of encouragement to believers in peace around the world," Kefauver said.

He accused the Republicans of bringing the war in Korea to an unsatisfactory conclusion and permitting "a clear victory for the Communists in Indo-China."

The senator, a candidate for his party's presidential nomination two years ago, also declared the GOP administration was partially to blame for the effect "McCarthyism and that sinister group which seems to be working as hard as it can to get the United States into a full scale war with Red China" are

COLONEL OUSTED FROM ARMY FOR AIDING COMMIES

FT. SHERIDAN, Ill., Sept. 24 (AP) — Lt. Col. Harry Fleming, a veteran of two wars, today was ordered dismissed from the U.S. Army for collaborating with his Communist captors in Korea.

An 11-officer court martial that convicted him yesterday ordered also that he forfeit all pay and allowances.

Fleming, white-haired at 46, vowed to "do everything I can to clear my name."

His civilian attorney, Alfred E. LaFrance of Racine, Wis., president-elect of the Wisconsin State Bar Ass'n., asserted the case will be pressed to "the highest reviewing authority" in an effort to reverse the guilty verdict.

Fleming is the first U.S. Army officer to be court-martialed on specific charges of collaborating with the enemy, although some officers were tried for aiding the enemy in the Civil War.

The court martial board of eight colonels and three lieutenant colonels deliberated 12 hours before Fleming's punishment.

Under military law, Fleming's army rank and pay will remain unchanged until the proceedings are reviewed by higher boards. The trial record automatically will go to the commanding general of the Fifth Army and the board of review in the judge advocate general's office. Upon a showing of cause, the case then could be appealed to the court of military appeals. The secretary of the army also must approve the dismissal of a commissioned officer.

The commanding general of the Fifth Army, the board of review and the court of appeals all have the authority to reverse the verdict or lessen the penalty.

The chief issue between prosecution and defense during the trial was whether the Reds exerted sufficient duress to excuse Fleming for making propaganda broadcasts and for conducting study groups on Red propaganda.

U.S. Jet Fuel Blast Kills 28

BITBURG, Germany, Sept. 24 (AP) — An underground American jet fuel storage tank exploded with a mighty roar today during a firefighting demonstration.

French military police said 25 persons were killed and 14 injured. German officials earlier had placed the death toll at 28. The 12,000-gallon tank was one of several at the German end of the NATO pipeline which pumps jet plane fuel from French ports.

The dead were all believed to be Frenchmen and Germans. German police said no American victims have been reported.

The bank—built into a former bunker of Germany's Siegfried line — exploded as it was being filled during dedication ceremonies.

It was located at the terminal of a fuel pipeline running from France and under control of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

The explosion sent a column of thick, black smoke 10,000 feet into the air.

MEDICS OF 2 NATIONS DEBATE DEATH CAUSE

TOKYO, Sept. 24 (AP) — A Japanese fisherman who was dusted by a U.S. hydrogen bomb — and became the focal point of tension between Japan and the United States — died last night.

Japanese doctors listed Aikichi Kuboyama, 40, as probably the world's first hydrogen bomb casualty. They said he died of jaundice brought on by radiation sickness and a generally weakened condition.

Dr. Shibenobu Kuriyama, vice director of Tokyo Nationalist Hospital, said flatly, "radiation sickness was the cause of death."

U.S. doctors have said Kuboyama and other fishermen from the Lucky Dragon, accidentally dusted by an H-bomb blast off Bikini March 1, could be suffering from jaundice resulting from blood transfusions. Japanese doctors challenged this view and refused to allow the Americans to make thorough examinations of the victims.

U.S. CONDOLENCES

In Rochester, N.Y., Dr. John J. Morton, director of the American Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission, confirmed that the Japanese never allowed Americans "to treat or even examine the victim." He speculated that the immediate cause of death "probably never will be known."

U.S. Ambassador John M. Allison issued a statement saying: "I speak on behalf of the government and the people of the United States in expressing extreme sorrow and regret at this most unhappy event."

State Minister Masazumi Ando, in charge of H-bomb damage negotiations with the United States, said Kuboyama's death "is a misfortune for all mankind." He expressed hope in a statement that the United States would take "a sincere attitude from a humanitarian standpoint."

In Washington, a spokesman for the Japanese embassy said Kuboyama's death would bring a highly emotional and sharp reaction from the Japanese.

He commented:

Thomas Says Navy Can Whip Russ Subs

CHICAGO, Sept. 24 (AP)—U. S. Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas said today the Russian submarine threat is the greatest in all naval history, but he declared the U.S. Navy is capable of dealing with it.

In contrast to World War II, Thomas said "we have the capability of dealing with the submarine navy of a size never before equaled in the history of naval forces." He said Russia now has a modern fleet of more than 350 submarines and is capable of producing them at the rate of one each week.

McCarthy Censure

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)— U. S. senate leaders today postponed a decision on calling back the senate to act on a proposed censure of Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.). The delay appeared to increase the possibility that no action will be taken on his case.

AEC Scientist Scores Predictions On H-Bomb Blast Radiation Effects

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 24 (AP)—Dr. John C. Bugher, chief of the Atomic Energy Commission medical division, said today there have been too many "reckless and uncritical" predictions on what radiation from A-bomb and H-bomb explosions will do to heredity.

For example, he said, "we have dire predictions of many monsters and even the obliteration of mankind itself from radiation exposures." He called this a distortion of emphasis.

However, in referring to immediate or relatively early effects of a bomb explosion, he said it could be fatal and that under certain conditions a "highly radioactive fallout" of wind-carried materials "may be lethal following an exposure of only a few hours."

The text of his speech, prepared for an industrial health conference, was released prior to the announcement from Tokyo that death had taken a Japanese fisherman dusted by radioactive ash 80 miles from the U.S. H-bomb blast at Bikini on March 1.

In the speech, Bugher said the United States has H-bombs having "millions of tons" of TNT explosive equivalent—and that an H-bomb of only one million ton TNT equivalent would have the explosive power of a 20-mile-long line of ships each containing 2,000 tons of high explosives. It was such a single ship, he said, whose explosion in a harbor devastated the city of Halifax during World War I.

Saying it is known that radiation has a potential for causing damaging genetic effects in man, but that there is as yet no clear evidence as to whether any significant number of such mutations can be expected throughout the world as a result of atomic energy activities, Dr. Bugher declared:

"This genetic problem which is one of the fundamental aspects of the adjustment of man to the

TIME FOR CHANGE

NOW that even the New York Yankees acknowledge that their reign over the American League has ended after five long years, it is fair to have a look at their successors, the Cleveland Indians, and to see how they brought about the dynasty's fall.

There won't be much disagreement that the Cleveland pitching staff was the greatest single key to the team's headlong rush to the pennant. The names "Lemon, Garcia and Wynn" must be etched deeply on the brain of Yankee Manager Casey Stengel. They put the chill of death on all aspiring batters.

They were Cleveland's strong boys, as they had been in other seasons, but this time they had magnificent help. Aging Bob Feller had a sparkling year, and Art Houtteman gave a real lift to the Big Three with 15 victories. Two stout-armed youngsters, Mossi and Narleski, provided sterling relief, as did Hal Newhouser, Detroit cast-off.

Together these fellows kept opposition batters away from scoring territory so persistently that some of them forgot the way there. Cleveland's opponents averaged less than three runs a game.

THE Indian catcher, Jim Hegan, said it didn't matter whether he called the right pitch or the wrong one. His pitchers threw the ball past the hitters anyway.

With that sturdy rock to tie to, the Indians developed a superior winning spirit. With good pitching, they knew they'd seldom be too far behind. They never gave up. They won three fourths of the one-run decisions they were involved in, two thirds of the extra-inning games, and again and again came from behind to win.

They set a killing pace from the outset. Morale was high, and the winning continued despite a succession of injuries that hobbled one after another of the key men. Castoffs and substitutes filled in and delivered, sometimes better than the damaged regulars.

This was not a high-scoring team, a really heavy-hitting outfit, or a superb-fielding club. Three, four, five or six runs most often were all it got, but they were enough.

THE bosses had switched away from heavy-footed power toward greater speed and the timely punch, and it paid off. On a lot of days the playing roster looked anything but dazzling. Talent seemed a bit sparse. But the men in the lineup had one attractive characteristic: they could win baseball games.

The Yanks and Chicago White Sox fought them to a standstill, but they kept Detroit in pretty fair submission and absolutely pulverized the four second-division teams, capturing 75 of 88 played with this competition.

New York, winning more games than in its five straight championship years, still showed signs of decline, mostly in pitching and around second base. The pace was just too swift. The old Yankee habit of refusing to lose finally rubbed off on their most persistent pursuers.

There are more Yankee haters than Yankee lovers, but even the latter may concede it was time for a change. The Indians' triumph is good for baseball. We won't try to argue that it's good for the country.

President Sounds Fighting Call For GOP Poll Win

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24 (AP) — President Eisenhower sounded a fighting call tonight for election of another Republican congress and declared loss to the Democrats would tend toward "endless political maneuverings, stagnation and inaction."

Slugging hard for the first time in the congressional election campaign, the president told a political rally in Hollywood Bowl that recapture of the legislative branch by the opposition party would lead to "a field day" in Washington politics.

The chief executive voiced confidence the Republicans will maintain control of congress in the November elections because, as he put it, "We have delivered," the promises he made to the people in the 1952 campaign.

Eisenhower reviewed the first 20 months of his administration and cited reasons — "the compeling reasons" — why completion of this great program requires the election of a Republican-led congress.

Among other things, he declared, "we at least deal effectively with the Communist conspiracy in the United States" — and, taking a swat at the Truman administration, he added that the Eisenhower administration "does not look upon the Communist menace as a Red herring."

In the foreign affairs field, the president had this to say:

"We have brought realism where there was wishful thinking. We have brought frankness, candor and force to foreign policy which at last insists on distinguishing words from deeds in the conduct of the affairs of the world."

Eisenhower flew to Los Angeles from the Pacific northwest on the third leg on a three-day political campaign tour of Montana, Washington, Oregon and California.

Dulles Calls For Int'l Atomic Agency

Iron Curtain countries showed great interest and indicated wide support of Dulles' ideas. Lloyd said Britain was consulted at every step in the formulation of the proposals.

Dulles' plan for creation of the agency and for the conference were two point of the four-point plan put before the assembly. He also suggested the opening next year, in the United States, of a reactor training school where students from abroad may learn the working principles of atomic energy with specific regard to its peacetime uses.

Lastly, he suggested the invitation to a substantial number of medical and surgical experts from abroad to participate in the work of American cancer hospitals in which he said atomic energy techniques are among the most hopeful approaches to controlling the cancer menace.

Dulles recounted his talks with the Russians leading to the rejection of the president's plan and said:

"The United States is determined that President Eisenhower's proposal shall not languish until it dies. It will be nurtured and developed. We shall press on in close partnership with those nations, which, inspired by the ideals of the United Nations charter, can make this great new force a tool of the humanitarian and of the statesman and not merely a fearsome addition to the arsenal of war."

Before Dulles spoke, Foreign Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada, told the assembly that Canada is ready to go along with president Eisenhower's proposals.

REDS STUDY SPEECH

Russian and Polish delegates closely studied the Dulles speech.

Jerry Winiewicz, Polish ambassador to Washington, hurried the equivalent of two city blocks between the assembly chamber and the press section to pick up copies after it was announced they would be made available a half hour before Dulles began speaking.

Soviet Ambasador Georgi Zarubin, who talked with Dulles earlier this year, gave the text a quick reading, then pointed out Dulles' statements on atomic power and disarmament to the Soviet delegation leader Andrei Vishinsky. The Soviet chief delegate shrugged his shoulders and scribbled a few notes, then settled down to listen to Dulles when he began speaking.

The secretary will go to Washington today preparatory to going to Europe next week for further talks on the German problem. He has finished his stay at the U.N. unless some development affecting the atomic program or other top issues calls him back.

Dulles ranged the world in his policy speech. Here, in brief, are some of the points he made on major issues:

Southeast Asia — The Geneva settlement on Indo-China ended the conflict but left millions in North Viet Nam subject to an alien despotism. One result was the Manila treaty calling for collective defense against aggression.

Korea — The United States does not believe the unification of Korea must await another year. The United States believes a peaceful solution is possible.

Germany — The division of Germany persists because of the Soviet Union but the United States persists in its resolution to end this injustice in the spirit of peace.

European unity — The votes of Communist deputies accounted for the shelving of the European Defense Community in one country (France) but the free nations do not accept the perpetuation of "the world's worst fire hazard." These nations are working actively to surmount this peril.

Guatemala — The Organization of American States showed anew it is ready, able and willing to maintain regional peace but the Guatemalans took care of Communism there before the organization took collective action. This is an example of the correct use of regional agreements, Dulles pointed out.

Limitations of armaments — Private talks among the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and Canada in London showed the Russians will cooperate on a program to end this wasteful diversion of economic wealth.

Ending his address, Dulles said the United States believes international peace is an attainable goal. "That is the premise that underlies all our planning," he said. "We propose never to desist, never to admit discouragement, but confidently and steadily so to act that peace becomes for us a sustaining principle of nation."

H-Bomb Burned Fisherman Dies

of Hiroshima and Nagasaki (atom bombed during the war). With the exception of a few scientists, no other people in the world have experienced the A-bomb. Our people have suffered."

The death unleashed another great wave of bitterness in Japan toward the United States. Radios and television station carried a heavy flow of news on the death and many commentators blamed the United States.

Newspapers, which have made much of the Lucky Dragon case, did not publish Thursday, a holiday, but their raction also is expected to be sharp.

Kuboyama's death lowered the spirits of the other 22 members of the Lucky Dragon crew still undergoing treatment in Tokyo hospitals.

The death had caught them by surprise because Kuboyama had appeared to be winning out against a coma.

FEARS FOR MATE

"I can hardly believe it," said the wife of one of the fishermen. "What will happen to my own husband now?"

Ever since news of the March 1 accident broke, many Japanese have campaigned against further tests in the Pacific, have signed petitions urging the outlawing of atomic weapons, and have called for heavy compensation from the United States.

Further complications in the negotiations over compensation now are expected. The United States has offered one million dollars, but the Japanese government is reported to have asked for several million.

The U.S. position has been that compensation would be in the nature of goodwill and not an acknowledgment of blame.

world of the future, is sometimes thrown into confusion by reckless and uncritical pronouncements based upon assumptions which go far beyond our knowledge.

"We have dire predictions of many monsters and even the obliteration of mankind itself from radiation exposures which are only a small fraction of that from cosmic radiation, from the radium and randon of the soil and air, and from the naturally radioactive potassium of which we all are partially composed.

"Such distortions of emphasis are comparable to contending that meteors from outer space are a major threat to safety on our highways and threaten the survival of all motorists.

"It is most essential that we keep our perspective in such matters and base our generalizations on substantial evidence."

Dr. Bugher did not specify who had made the pronouncements he called reckless.

Saying that studies of possible genetic effects have been underway among survivors of the Japanese atomic bombings in 1945, the doctor declared:

"No firm conclusions can be given until the statistical work is finished, but it seems likely that some evidence of genetic effect will have been obtained among the more highly irradiated survivors at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. At the lower exposure rates, it is quite evident that no changes can be recognized."

having on American policy.

The "sinister group," he added, includes Sen. William F. Knowland, California Republican.

"A major problem in America's relation with the rest of the world," Kefauver said, "is that Secretary Dulles has gone through periods of agonizing reappraisals which swing the state department from timid appeasement to reckless bluster."

He said Dulles had been caught unprepared by France's rejection of the European Defense Community.

Kefauver said he believes the Republican administration is heading toward trouble over Quemoy, the island outpost of Nationalist China four miles off the Red China mainland.

"I think we ought to make up our minds if we are going to defend it or not," Kefauver remarked. "Personally, I don't think it's worth going into an all-out war for."

Atom Guns In Action

SENNELAGER, Germany, Sept. 24 (AP) — Giant American atomic guns "blasted" British tanks today in the first simulated use of nuclear weapons in the allied "battle royal" war games in North Germany.

The tanks belonged to the famed British 7th Armored Division. A battalion of U.S. 280mm guns went through the motions of firing atomic shells.

The atomic gunfire was ordered by Belgian Gen. M. Tromme, commander of the Belgian corps defending southland. He acted to stop a threatening movement by the British armor across the hills east and west of Bielefeld.

Repatriation Ship Off

TOKYO, Sept. 24 (AP) — Peiping radio said the Japanese repatriation ship Koan Maru left Tangku today with 557 Japanese nationals from the China mainland.

The broadcast said they are 417 pardoned war criminals and 140 civilians who had applied for repatriation to Japan.

Radioactive Rain In Canada Tested

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 24 (AP) — A Canadian scientist reported today that some radioactivity from the recent Russian nuclear explosion has appeared here, but he doubts a Japanese scientist's theory that the blast was on Wrangel island in the Arctic.

Dr. Gordon Shrum, director of the British Columbia research council said a test of rain falling here today showed a mild radioactivity count of 300 per minute.

Dr. Shrum, who also heads the University of British Columbia physics department, said the count was not enough to be dangerous, but indicated that an atomic explosion probably had occurred within the past two weeks.

He said a normal count of radioactivity at ground level is about 42 a minute and a count of about 10.000 would be considered high and dangerous.

Aid Rejection Told

BANGKOK, Sept. 24 (AP) — Thailand has rejected a U.S. offer of one America air force unit and one army unit, a top army official said today.

Army chief of staff Gen. Srisdi Dhanajata told the national assembly that an offer — made last July — was refused because the presence of U.S. fighting men might raise the suspicions of the Thai people.

But he said the bases would be welcomed if Thailand's security were "definitely threatened."

Typhoon Skirts PI

MANILA, Sept. 24 (AP) — A tropical storm of near-typhoon strength skirted the northern Philippines today and threatened to lash southern Formosa early tomorrow, the Manila weather bureau reported.

It said winds of 65 miles an hour sweeping the outer fringes of Luzon strait at 8 a.m. The storm center was located 146 miles east-southeast of Batanes island.

Alabama, Maryland, and Virginia rejected the 19th Amendment to the Constitution.

William the Conqueror became King of England after the battle of Hastings.

TOKYO, Sept. 24 (AP) — Premier Chou En-Lai of Red China was quoted by the Peiping radio today as saying the U.S. Seventh Fleet must withdraw from Formosa strait in order to relieve international tension. He reiterated that Formosa must be "liberated."

An English language broadcast gave only a paraphrase of Chou's remarks before the people's congress in Peiping. But the paraphrase was far tamer than a Chinese language version as translated in Tokyo earlier.

In the earlier translation, Chou was quoted as saying the Seventh Fleet "should be chased away."

As translated from a Chinese language broadcast by Peiping radio, Chou's statement was much stronger than those emanating from Peiping recently calling for an invasion of Formosa.

An earlier translation had Chou saying "we consider must kick out the U.S. fleet from Formosa strait and we will liberate Taiwan (Formosa) without fail." A later translation toned down this version.

U.S. officials have declared that if the Communists seize Formosa they must first run over the Seventh Fleet. The Seveneth has been detailed since the onset of the Korean war to guard Formosa from invasion.

"We do not permit foreign intervention and aggression by the United States against Taiwan," Chou was quoted saying.

Translators in Tokyo said Chou made only passing reference to Formosa at the end of a two-hour speech which dealt in the main with Communist claims of progress since they captured the mainland in 1949.

Chou also said Red China's relations with Britain had improved and that further efforts were needed at strengthening those relations. He then criticized Britain's trade and foreign policies.

The premier accused Britain of raising trade barriers. He criticized the British for signing the Southeast Asia security pact at Manila and for "obstructing the Chinese people's governments proper position and right in the United Nations."

Chou said Britain was following U.S. policy and called this a barrier to British-Chinese relations.

EXPENSIVE FAREWELL—Tom Harrison, left, parted with this valuable silver and gold inlaid sword which he brought back from Korea. US CONSULATE IN HANOI TO REMAIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP) — The U.S. State Department said today the U.S. consulate will remain open in Hanoi indefinitely after the Communists take over Oct. 10 under the Indo-China truce agreement.

Department Press Officer Henry Suydam told his news conference the consulate is accredited to the state of Viet Nam. The Viet Nam government is still the government in charge of the country, he emphasized.

Suydam said he made the statement in response to inquiries about installation of bars on the consulate's windows and sinking of fuel tanks on the consulate grounds. These were taken as indications of intention to stay.

Under the Indo-China truce, agreed upon at the Far East peace conference in Geneva, Switzerland, the Communist Viet Minh will take over Hanoi Oct. 10.

Thomas Corcoran, in charge of the Hanoi consulate, was reported on his way back from Saigon after flying there to get a large stock of processed food. Suydam was asked whether this indicated a "seize type operation."

He confirmed the report of Corcoran's trip to Saigon, commenting that "seige" might be a correct assessment of what the consulate could expect in the "natural confusion" arising from evacuation as the Reds move in.

Bevan Makes Report, Says Kremlin Now Will Be "Easier To Deal With"

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP) — Aneurin Bevan, leftwing Laborite, said today the men in the Kremlin have at last mastered the internal situation in Russia and will now be easier to deal with.

"I left the Soviet Union," he said, "with the impression that its leaders are for the first time beginning to feel on top of their domestic situation, and so can face the world with the knowledge that any agreements they might make in external issues will not be accounted to them as weakness."

Bevan, who was a member of the British Labor Party delegation which recently visited Moscow and Peiping, made a report on his trip in the weekly magazine, Tribune, organ of the "Bevanite" segment of the Labor Party.

"It has always been my view," he said, "that the Soviet leaders were difficult to deal with after the war, not because they were strong, but because of their overwhelming consciousness of weakness."

Bevan, who dined twice with Premier Georgi Malenkov and other Soviet leaders while he was in Moscow said the men who took over after Stalin's death are self confident and show none of the "nervous rigidity of the past."

"At the dinner to which we were invited by the leaders of the Soviet Union, there was none of the stiffness associated with the Stalin period," said Bevan. "conversational exchanges were free, informal and frank."

Giving a first hand account of his talks with Malenkov, Bevan said: "He is much more prepossessing than his photographs would lead one to suppose. His mind is lively and subtle, and even through the tedious medium of translation he displayed a keen sense of humor. He insisted that no question exists between Russia and the rest of the world that cannot be settled by negotiation."

Chou Seeks New Parley On Korea, US Says

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)— A U.S. state department spokesman said today the Chinese Communists are seeking another conference on peace for Korea.

Press officer Henry Suydam told his news conference he understands that Chou En-Lai, Red China's No. 2 man, made the proposal in a radio speech. He said Chou's proposal was for "another conference on the Geneva model."

The United States and the 15 other countries which fought in Korea stand ready to negotiate, Suydam said, providing the Communists meet the two conditions they laid down last June 15 at Geneva.

1. That the Red Chinese recognize the right of the United Nations to act collectively to repel aggression and seek peace in Korea.

2. That the Reds agree to U.N. supervision of free elections on unifying an independent and democratic Korea.

The statement of principles was made at Geneva June 15 when the western allies agreed there was no use trying any longer to negotiate a Korean peace with the Chinese Reds.

"Little War" On Red China Coast Roars To 21st Day

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 24 (AP) — The "little war" along Red China's southeast coast roared into its 21st day today with more Nationalist air blows and heavy artillery duels.

A defense ministry communique said Nationalist warplanes damaged four Red gun boats of about 200 tons each and left a 1,000-ton landing craft ablaze and listing in a raid on Fotan Bay, 30 miles southwest of Amoy. One gunboat was left shrouded in heavy smoke.

The rubbled Red port of Amoy itself was hit by flights of light B-25 bombers with what the communique called "excellent results."

The air raids began at dawn, were resumed in the afternoon and were being pressed after night fall, causing the "bandits (Communists) heavy losses," the communique added.

Lt. Gen. Chang Yi-Ting, army spokesman, said Red guns and artillery on the Nationalist island of Quemoy Wednesday night engaged in the heaviest exchange since the little war broke out Sept. 3.

Chang estimated each side poured in about 1,000 rounds during the one-hour exchange. Communist guns were firing from Amoy, seven miles from Quemoy, and from other islands.

A communique also claimed six Red gunboats instead of five, as previously reported, were destroyed in Wednesday's air raids on Chuanchow Bay, 30 miles northeast of Amoy.

The army spokesman said Red planes had appeared both Tuesday and Wednesday near the Tachen islands, held by the Nationalists.

Russ Demand Halt To US "Espionage Acts"

BERLIN, Sept. 24 (AP) — The Russians demanded tonight that the United States stop what they called widespread "espionage and criminal activities" in East Germany.

Soviet High Commissioner Georgi M. Pushkin charged in a lengthy note of protest that American spy organizations had set up a "network of agents" to work underground against the Communist East German government and Soviet occupation troops.

He charged that American policy aimed to deepen the split between East and West Germany and the goal of the alleged spy organizations was to prevent unification through "criminal acts."

Pushkin's letter, made public by the ADN East German government news agency, was sent to U.S. High Commissioner James B. Conant with copies to the British and French high commissioners.

The engines were donated to the foundation by the Great Northern, Erie, Pennsylvania and Chesapeake Ohio railroads.

Senate In Uproar Over Montesi Case

ROME, Sept. 24 (AP)—Senators battled with fists and epithets such as "idiot" today in a floor melee over Communist party efforts to implicate the government in the Wilma Montesi death scandal.

The government of Premier Mario Scelba asked for a vote of confidence in reply to Red demands that it resign.

Scelba's Christian Democrats said they are confident they can win with the pledged support of three smaller center parties plus the monarchists.

Fisticuffs broke out as Sen. Onofrio Jannuzzi, a Christian Democrat, was defending the government. He accused the leftists of "exploiting a criminal action for political reasons" in the charges of corruption made yesterday by the Communists and the pro-Communist Socialists.

Referring to the Montesi case, he said he believed what Scelba had told him yesterday: that the premier "had never asked any official to do anything but what was right."

The Communists and Moscow-oriented Socialists have accused Scelba of "responsibility" for the Montesi affair, which already has brought the resignation of Attilio Piccioni as foreign minister. He stepped down last week to help defend his jazz pianist son, Piero, 32, against the accusations in connection with the mysterious death of the party girl in 1953.

Finance Ministers' Meet

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Finance ministers of nine Asian countries meeting here for tomorrow's opening of the international monetary fund conference, faced three big problems today—currency convertibility, world trade and industrial development.

One of the acute situations is faced by Japanese Finance Minister Sankuro Ogasawara, whose country is confronted by a sterling shortage and an increasing drain on dollar holdings.

Most of today's emphasis was on development and convertibility prospects which will be discussed in meetings lasting through next Wednesday.

Besides Ogasawara, other Asian representatives here for the conference include Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno of the Philippines, Finance Ministers Peh Yuan Hsu of Nationalist China, U Ti of Burma, Chintaman D. Deshmukh of India, Chaudri Mohamad Ali of Pakistan, M.D.H. Jayawardene of Ceylon, Ong Eng Die of Indonesia and Prince Viwat, privy councilior of Thailand.

India, Indonesia Join In 'Asia for Asians' Plea

NEW DELHI, India, Sept. 24 (AP)—The prime ministers of India and Indonesia — two of the biggest countries in southeast Asia—joined tonight in pleas that the Asian nations work to solve their own problem in war and peace.

While proposing toasts to each other at a big state dinner given by India's Jawaharlal Nehru for Indonesia's Ali Sastroamidjojo, the two leaders made peace appeals and reiterated views which are in effect a proclamation of "Asia for Asians."

The same theme was propounded by Nehru and Red China's Premier Chou En-Lai at a similar state banquet here in June.

Nehru said southeast Asia "desires peace with passion" and that he hoped the countries of this area would always behave peacefully and the rest of the world would be doing the same.

Sastroamidjojo said Asians should beware of "power policies" developing in their region. Such policies, he added "are the road to the infinite misery of mankind."

He said the big powers once considered the solution of Asian problems their exclusive prerogative. But since the Geneva conference, he continued, Asian cooperation "is recognized as a prerequisite" to the solution of Asian problems.

Sastroamidjojo also spoke of "the peace co-existence of all the countries in Asia" and said the main purpose of his talks with Nehru was to discuss their common problems for the preservation of peace.

Mutiny For Freeedom

WHITBY, England, Sept. 24 (AP)—Seven Polish seamen told British police today they staged a "freedom mutiny" on their trawler. They beat up the political officer, locked up the captain and other crewmen, and sailed to this Yorkshire port to ask political asylum.

It was the third time in less than a week that seamen from Communist-governed Poland have sought asylum in Britain.

Authorities here who boarded the trawler, the 200-ton Puszczyk, found the skipper, Capt. Kobryn Wiktor, locked in the lavatory and seven other crew members in cabins. All were released.

Nats Won't Say If Dressen Is In As New Manager

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Amid report that Bucky Harris is out and Chuck Dressen is in as manager of the Washington Senators, the ballclub yesterday scheduled some sort of formal announcement next Thursday.

Calvin Griffith, executive vice president of the Senators, told reporters no word of the club's managerial status will be given before then.

The Los Angeles Times reported Thursday an unimpeachable source had advised that Dressen, 56-year-old baseball manager, already had been signed by the the Senators. Griffith neither confirmed nor denied the newspaper report.

Clark Griffith, 84-year-old club president and a long-time friend of Harris, said he would follow his declared policy of saying nothing about next year's manager until after the close of the season on Monday.

Harris, who broke in as manager with the championship Washington club of 1924, is completing the last year of a two year contract.

He has been the Washington manager on three different assignments totaling 18 years. Before coming here in 1949 he was manager of the New York Yankees. At that time, Dressen was his No. 1 aide.

Andersen Gridders Meet Sun Devils At Gilkeson Tonite

The Sun Devils and Andersen Bombers meet tonight in Coral Bowl tilt. Game time will be 7:30 at Andersen's Gilkeson Field.

Big man in the Sun Devils' backfield is fullback J.C. Aimsworth, a six-foot, 235-pound giant who played for the University of California and in the Canadian professional league. Calling plays for the T-formation Devils will be A.E. Thompson.

The Sun Devil line outweighs the Bombers' by an average of 12 pounds, with tackles R.A. Lera and G.R. Weber both weighing in at 210 to provide much of the weight difference.

The Bombers, operating from a split-T, are relying on a fast, hard-charging line. Anchorman in the forward wall is team captain Jim Cates. Cates, playing his second year in the guard slot for the Bombers, has eight years of football experience behind him, including two years under General Bob Neyland at the University of Tennessee. Cates holds a scholarship to Tennessee and will return there on completion of his current tour.

Bob Keppler will quarterback the Andersen eleven in place of the injured Bob Hudson. Rounding out the starting offensive backfield are halfbacks Lee Senior and Bill Bennett and fullback Leon Gafford.

The Bombers are the only team in the league who have already seen action. They traveled to Clark Air Base, Philippines, on September 11 to meet the Clark eleven. Andersen won the game, 13-12, with a touchdown in the final seconds of play. They scored the deciding extra-point after the game had ended.

Dependent Football Loop To Meet Thursday; Lou Grahovac To Preside

A meeting for organizing a Navy, Marine and civil service employees' dependents touch football league will be held at the former Armed Forces Radio Station building, Nimitz Hill, Thursday (Sept. 30), at 7:30 p.m.

Presiding chairman of the touch football league meeting will be Lou Grahovac, president of the Guam Sports Officials' Association. Anyone interested in managing or coaching the future teams is invited to attend.

Marquette Sophs Are Inexperienced At Losing Games

MILWAUKEE — (NEA) — Marquette sophomores include two backs who don't know what it's like to lose.

They hope the situation remains the same at Marquette. So does Frosty Ferzacca, who was their mentor at Green Bay.

Champion Merman Looks For Olympic Berth With Sussies

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 24 (AP)—John Marshall, a world record holding swimmer will be a contender for a place on Australia's 1956 Olympic games team.

Marshall returned here yesterday after five years at Yale and Harvard universities in America.

"I am really going to try for a place on the swimming squad," he said. "I plan to resume training within two or three weeks and I want to specialize in the 1,500 meters freestyle."

Marshall, who currently holds five world records from the quarter mile to the mile, said Australia was stronger in swimming than ever before.

"However, we and all other countries will have to expect great competition from Japan in the next few years," he said.

Canadian Cracks Chadwick Catalina Crossing Record

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Sept. 24 (AP)—Tom Park, a powerful Canadian distance swimmer, crossed the the Catalina channel yesterday and broke Florence Chadwick's official record by a scant few minutes.

The U. S. Coast Guard said the 31-year-old Park, a professional wrestler, got to the southern California mainland to finish the swim of 21 miles at approximately 6:30 p.m., Pacific daylight time. He started from Catalina island at 4:06 a.m., PDT.

Miss Chadwick swam the channel Sept. 21, 1952, in 13 hours and 47 minutes, and was clocked officially by an AAU timer.

Park had several minutes to spare in breaking the record, having made it in less than 12 and ½ hours.

"Who's On First?" Situation Settled In Cincinnati's Favor

CINCINNATI, Sept. 24 (AP) — President Warren C. Giles, of the National League yesterday upheld Cincinnati's protest of Thursday's ball game with Milwaukee and ordered the game resumed at the point where the Redlegs had two men on base with two out in the 9th inning.

The game will resume with Wally Post on second base, Gus Bell on third, and Johnny Temple at bat, the Milwaukee leading, 3-1. Giles said it will not be necessary that Milwaukee continue with Warren Spahn as the pitcher, and that Cincinnati could put in a substitute hitter for Temple if it desired.

The Redlegs were given a penalty third out in the 9th after Bob Borowski fanned on a wild pitch with one out and ran for first base. Catcher Del Crandall threw to third baseman Eddie Mathews to head off a runner and when they failed, Mathews threw to first, hitting Borkowski. The ball rolled into right field.

Gus Bell and Wally Post, who were on the bags scored for Cincinnati.

The four umpires ruled that Borkowski had drawn a throw by his illegal presence on the baseline and declared Bell out as a penalty.

DIMAGGIO TELLS WHY YANKS LOST PENNANT

BY HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK (NEA) — "The Yankees won in the past," said Joe DiMaggio, "because they never stood pat."

"They've always done something to improve the club."

This could be a clue as to why the New York Americans finally lost, although the much better one is the Indians' sustained cyclonic pace.

It is a fact, however, that the front office preferred to stand almost pat going with the old pitching and not a new face in the regular lineup. The rout would have been vastly more complete had not young Bob Grim come out of the Marine Corps. Harry Byrd and Eddie Robinson obtained in the supposed big deal with the Athletics were distinct duds.

The great DiMaggio debunks the notion that Yankee uniforms were touched by some magic wand.

"They weren't lucky," he says in an article in True. "The fellows who wore them acquired a winning habit that became traditional."

DiMaggio, the model center fielder, leaves the impression that the erstwhile Bombers' failure in 1954 isn't a personal catastrophe. The large fellow who sparked the Yankees to 10 pennants and nine world championships in the 13 years he played with them agrees with the general public.

"I think the fans and sports writers just get a little tired or bored seeing the same club win every year."

Like George Selkirk, Tommy Henrich, Johnny Mize and other former Yankees, DiMaggio, the best of them in 20 years, is tinged by bitterness.

"I suppose," he says "there might be something to the gripe that the Yankees don't take care of their old stars. There are a few other old-timers beside Bill Dickey and Frank Crosetti who deserved a better break. I never looked for the Yankees to take care of me."

DiMaggio recalls that the only times he had problems were when the Yankees were trying to talk him out of some money.

"They'd pass along the propaganda to the sports writers, who in turn would feed it to the fans," he recollects, "My ears would be the final target."

After the 1941 season, when DiMaggio had the record 56-game hitting streak, batted .357, manufactured 30 home runs, led the league in runs-batted-in and was named the most-valuable-player, the late Ed Barrow actually tried to cut his salary. Barrow mentioned something about World War II boys getting $21 a month, indicated that it was DiMag's patriotic duty to take less.

DiMag reminded Barrow that he heard the turnstiles clicking during his two month hitting streak. He mentioned that he didn't notice the Yankees giving their receipts to the USO.

It was after the war, when Larry MacPhail arrived, that DiMag got the more important money.

DiMaggio has felt sorry at times for Mickey Mantle.

"If Mickey could curb his tendency to strike out, he'd be a more dangerous hitter."

"Mickey was brought up with a big splash (like DiMag), but didn't have the necessary minor league experience to lean on (like DiMag did, in coping with the adulation of the customers)," he points out.

Mantle strikes out around 100 times a year. DiMag stresses that Mantle's average would soar if he could get a piece of the ball 40 of those times.

"With his terrific speed, he's a threat to beat out an ordinary ground ball that isn't handled cleanly," he notes.

When DiMaggio broke into the American League in 1936, a two-hour game was considered a long afternoon. Today they're fortunate to get in five innings in two hours."

"It's due," testifies DiMaggio, "to the pitcher's lack of control. Young fellows are brought up so fast that they don't have time to develop control in the minor leagues."

DULLES GIVES MENDES-FRANCE STERN WARNING

By JOSE C. ABCEDE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP)—U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles warned the French government tonight that Americans "cannot afford to gamble" their safety and survival on defense programs which fail to assure genuine security.

Dulles and other American leaders have always insisted that German rearmament in association with the North Atlantic Alliance is absolutely essential in an adequate defense of western Europe.

MENDES WARNED

His words in advance of departure for a crucial conference at London therefore provided stern warnings to French Premier Mendes-France that if Germany is not rearmed with French cooperation the United States will have to consider alternative security plans.

Dulles' statement was made available for publication in advance of his departure. He is due in London tomorrow afternoon for talks with Mendes-France and British Foreign Secretary Eden on granting West Germany sovereignty as a step toward rearmament.

Dulles' statement on the event of so important a conference as the nine-power London meeting was an outspoken one as diplomatic documents usually go.

He is going to London hopeful that Mendes-France will agree to some workable plan for fitting West Germany into the western defense system, not only militarily but politically as well.

Dulles bared the heart of the U.S. approach to the problem in these blunt-for-diplomacy words:

"Most Americans have come to realize that it is no longer possible to turn back the clock and seek security through isolation.

"We also know that we cannot afford to gamble on our safety and our survival on arrangements and programs that have no reasonable prospect of providing genuine security."

US STRATEGY

Later as a last resort—the extreme meaning of the warning he issued today—Dulles could recommend an American strategy in Europe based on positions not in the heartland but on the rim, that is in Britain, Spain, Italy and the Middle East.

That would mean withdrawal of U.S. forces on a revolutionary scale. It is not presently considered a practical course, but officials have repeatedly emphasized

3rd Typhoon To Lash Japan Moves Northeast

TOKYO, Sept. 26 (AP) — The third typhoon to lash southern Japan within two weeks hit the coast of Kyushu early today and moved northeastward along Japan's southernmost island with diminishing velocity.

The typhoon, 15th in the western Pacific this year, struck Okinawa yesterday with gusts up to 110 miles an hour.

The Tokyo weather bureau reported the tropical storm has a radius of more than 300 miles. Heavy rains pelted Japan. High waves inundated coastal homes and farmlands in southern Kyushu and southern Honshu.

The storm, relatively small by typhoon standards, was expected to strike populous Tokyo and Yokohama tonight or early tomorrow. Japanese forecasters predicted that southern Japan, hard hit by two recent typhoons, will get up to 20 inches of rain.

SINAJANA BOY SHOWS DARING ACHIEVEMENT

A 21-year-old Guamanian attached to the 466th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battalion, March Air Force Base, Calif., last week hit the Los Angeles Examiner headline when, with another soldier, he prevented "possible heavy casualties in one of the most frightening traffic episodes in the Cajon Summit grade on U.S. 66," north of San Bernardino.

The local boy is Sgt. Jesus Rosario, of Sinajana.

It appeared that on Sept. 17 Sgt. Rosario and Cpl. Lonnie Thomas were driving a heavy army truck southbound and towing a long-barreled 75-millimeter anti-aircraft gun. The truck suddenly was locked in high gear and went out of control just after passing Cajon Summit.

The Los Angeles Examiner, in its report Sept. 18, said that for more than five miles as the truck built up to a 70-mile-an-hour speed, Cpl. Thomas clung to the wheel, "threading it through the two-way traffic, avoiding an oncoming Greyhound bus, a stalled commercial truck and countless passenger cars."

US-Russ Deadlock On Ike's Atom Pool Plan Bared By Secret Paper

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP)—Release of a file of secret documents exchanged between Washington and Moscow disclosed tonight that the United States and Russia were deadlocked from the start in their negotiations over President Eisenhower's proposal for peaceful development of atomic energy on a worldwide basis.

The documents were made public simultaneously in the two capitals. The action appeared to mark the end of the negotiations, although both governments held the door open to further exchanges if either has anything to say.

VITAL POINTS

Two points stand out in the lengthy compilation of messages and memoranda released by the state department:

1. The United States argued from the first that Eisenhower's plan was designed primarily to promote international cooperation in the atomic energy field and to create the trust and confidence that might lead to a solution of the atomic disarmament problem. But it was not designed to solve

16 INCUMBENTS HEAD POPULAR PARTY LIST

The Popular Party yesterday selected its 21 standard bearers for the November elections amid calls for unity and solidarity in the coming polls. Party delegates from all districts on the island heard the various leaders extol the group and dedicate themselves anew to party strength and for the welfare of the people.

Of the 21 Popular Party candidates, 16 are incumbents. Five newcomers will make their bid with the rest for seats in the law-making body. Heading the list of incumbents vying for another term is Speaker A. B. Won Pat.

The official party candidates are: Joaquin C. Arriola, Vicente B. Bamba, Baltazar J. Bordallo, Eduardo T. Calvo, Felix T. Camacho, Adrian L. Cristobal, Antonio C. Cruz, Antonio S. N. Ducats, Francisco B. Leon Guerrero, Pedro B. Leon Guerrero, Manuel U. Lujan, Jsus C. Okiyama, Paul D. Palting, Frank D. Perez, Joaquin A. Perez, Jesus R. Quinene, Florencio T. Ramirez, Vicente C. Reyes, James T. Sablan and Juan Q. San Miguel.

OPENS WITH PRAYER

The convention, held at the Sinajana auditorium, got underway with the admission and accreditation of delegates from the various isle districts. The assembly business opened up with a prayer and the announcement of convention officials.

Juan M. Tuncap, convention chairman, explained the various aspects of the convention. A keynote speech scheduled to be delivered by Speaker Won Pat was cancelled to give way to the more pressing business of the convention. Another last minute change in the program was the insertion of the names of Vice-Speaker F. D. Perez and his brother, incumbent Congressman Gregorio D. Perez in the nominee list. The vice-speaker has held off official acceptance of his nomination till the last minute.

Several leading citizens and high government officials were present

Scelba Receives Confidence Vote

ROME, Sept. 26 (AP)—Premier Mario Scelba's pro-western government beat down an attempt by Communists and extreme right-wingers to make political capital out of the Wilma Montesi scandal and won a crucial vote of confidence today in the Italian senate.

The 114-97 vote backed the government's conduct in handling the case of Wilma Montesi, a party girl whose body was found on a beach south of Rome the morning of April 11, 1953. The chamber of deputies is expected to be confronted by the same issue early next week.

The Communists left and its allies had joined with the far right in demanding that Scelba resign because members of his government or their families were involved in the drug and sex scandal.

The vote supported Scelba's charge of a few hours earlier the Communists are using the case to try to "disintegrate democracy" in Italy.

"They are conducting a fight without quarter," Scelba declared, "for their aim is the complete destruction of the adversary . . . They instill doubts on anything and anybody. This is a campaign to disintegrate democracy."

Envoys Assemble For London Meet

LONDON, Sept. 26 (AP) —Foreign ministers of nine nations were assembling here today for talks aimed at enlisting West Germany in the defense of free Europe for 50 years to come.

The British-organized conferences open Tuesday in the music room of Lancaster House, where Queen Victoria heard Chopin play his lilting melodies.

But today Allied disharmonies stemming from a century of conflicting German pride and French prejudice threaten the discussions.

The conference was called because the French parliament last month rejected an Allied project to free and rearm West Germany within an unprecedented European army. The now-dead project was officially called the European Defense Community (EDC).

French Premier Pierre Mendes-France will face a more or less solid front of eight critical colleagues when the talks begin.

THE ATOM POOL PLAN

IT was not too long ago that critics were saying harshly that President Eisenhower's atomic pool for peace was just a sketchy idea, that at the time he proposed it neither he nor anyone around him had the foggiest notion how it might be made to work.

They must have been rather startled at the recent announcement of an historic atomic agreement involving this country, Britain, France, Canada, Australia and South Africa.

Obviously the criticism was not well taken. That does not mean there was a clear, carefully thought out plan in existence when Mr. Eisenhower first mentioned the pool idea. What the criticism seems to overlook is that many statesmanlike achievements are born as sketchy ideas.

WHEN former Secretary of State George Marshall first suggested the European aid program which later bore his name, there was no detailed plan. When former President Truman listed certain items of world policy in his 1949 inaugural address, he included a "Point Four" calling for technical and material help to underdeveloped areas. Again, no plan existed. But one does today.

It is not necessary to wait until a plan is reduced to full blueprint stage before telling the world about it. Mr. Eisenhower's December speech to the UN on the atomic pool stirred the hearts of the free world as few utterances have done since the end of World War II. It deserved to be heard when it was.

Russia caused no great surprise, of course, when it refused to take any practical steps toward the fulfillment of this proposed program. But we can be thankful that there is still sufficient imaginative statesmanship in the free world to see that this was a plan to be pushed with or without Russia.

UNDER the new agreement, the participating countries will learn how to use the atom in medicine, agriculture and industry. Knowledge gleaned from operation of atomic power plants such as America is now beginning to experiment with will be passed on. To transmit this priceless understanding of the atom's peaceful uses, this country will set up a special training school.

As others have observed, atomic bombs may have served to prevent a third world war so far. But they have not helped to win the Cold War, the political struggle going on between Communist and free worlds in all the earth's free areas. Peaceful application of the atom, however, might prove to be one of the free world's most winning assets in this bitter contest.

The new atomic pool agreement is an alliance for peace. It is an alliance set up to serve mankind. It is aimed not at protecting people from some aggressor's bombs or guns but at making them stronger and healthier, at giving them a higher standard of living, and a fuller, richer life.

Quite an idea, when you come to think of it.

downward to scrape the road," the Examiner reported, Sgt. Rosario leaped from the back of the truck to the wildly whipping gunmount.

Rosario, a veteran of the Korean war, hung on to the axle, the report continued, and managed to reach the emergency brakes of the gunmount. The tandem vehicles later ground to a stop at Keenbrook service station, the Examiner said.

Early in its plunge down the grade the truck was reported to have passed a California Highway Patrol car driven by Officer W.S. Bloomer. Bloomer turned on his red light and siren and raced ahead of them on the two-lane road, according to the Examiner.

"I passed the truck as it hit 70," the Examiner quoted Bloomer. "We traveled about two miles on the wrong side of the road, desperately waving traffic aside. Most motorists just waved back until we were almost upon them."

SLIGHT INJURIES

Pvt. Robert J. Welland, riding in the back of the truck with Sgt. Rosario, "suffered a possible leg fracture," the newspaper reported, when a generator broke loose and struck him as they careened along blind curves.

One car was sideswiped, slightly injuring a passenger, as the right side of the vehicle was caved in. Another soldier in the truck, Sgt. W. A. Gatlin, sustained slight injuries when he jumped from the cab as it began to slow down to help Rosario with the gunmount brakes "but was bowled over," the report went on.

The Los Angeles Examiner added that in passing the stalled commercial truck, the army vehicle hit a flare put out by the trucker, skidding it into and setting fire to an adjoining field.

In a letter to the DAILY NEWS, Lcdr. John C. Melin of the Naval Ammunition Depot, Fall Brook, Calif., said the "outstanding conduct displayed by Sgt. Rosario . . . is a glowing tribute to his parents and all the other fine people of Guam."

Melin accompanied his letter with a clipping of the story played up in the front page of the Los Angeles Examiner.

YOUNG HERO

Another Statesider, Mrs. Martha Wilkes of Torrance, Calif., tabbed Rosario as a "young hero of your race" and requested that the story be reprinted in th NEWS. Mrs. Wilkes showed concern over the incident as she lived on Guam, she said, from February, 1953, to January, this year.

Director of Labor and Personnel Peter C. Siguenza, presently residing at Carmona Ave., Los Angeles, also sent a clipping of the story with a letter to the NEWS Sept. 18.

Lcdr. Melin, in his letter, also said two "fine boys from Guam" were serving with the US Marines stationed at Fallbrook, Calif. The pair, Pfc. Thomas J. L. G. Guerrero, of Barrigada, and Pfc. Edward Perez Santos, of Sinajana, are assigned in the Naval Ammunition Depot as security officers, Melin said.

"They are both excellent Marines and are gaining many friends for Guam," the commander reported.

Melin recently had been assigned on Guam with the Marines He said, "I hope some day to return to Guam and renew acquaintances."

Ministers Gather For London Meet

His colleagues are British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, Canadian Foreign Minister Lester B. Pearson, Italian Foreign Minister Gaetano Martino, Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak, Dutch Foreign Minister J. W. Beyen, and Luxembourg Premier Joseph Bech. Mendes-France has advanced his own plan to bring West Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). But just about all the other ministers, including Dulles, have pledged full support for a method advocated by Eden.

SIMILAR VIEWS

On several fundamental issues the French and British proposals agree. But on several extremely important questions they differ.

The British-French proposals start off with these things in common:

1. The gap left by French rejection of EDC should be filled and West German contingents should be brought into NATO.

2. The Brussels treaty of 1948 —joining Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg—should be broadened to take in West Germany and Italy, both enemies in the last war. The purpose is to provide a European base for mutual security against any sort of aggression and for cooperation in political and other fields.

US-Red Odds On Atom Plan Bared

the problem itself, U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles repeatedly emphasized.

2. The Soviet Union contended that the Eisenhower plan was inadequate because it would not provide for control or limitation of atomic weapons and that therefore it was essential first to have a declaration banning the use of such weapons. Russia wanted Red China in the declaration along with the Western powers. Dulles turned down any participation by the Chinese Communists on the atomic issue.

These two positions stood unaltered from the beginning of the exchange in January until its conclusion this week. Dulles rejected the Soviet condition because he said it was a deceptive device to disarm the free nations, while the Soviet bloc continued to arm, and that the only effective kind of ban on atomic weapons would be a system fitted with elaborate safeguards to prevent violation.

RED PROPOSAL

On January 30, according to documents released for publication by the state department, Russia formally proposed a draft declaration by the United States, England, France, Russia and Red China renouncing the "use of atomic, hydrogen and other forms of weapons of mass destruction."

That was less than two months after Eisenhower advanced his idea for peaceful development of atomic energy.

Popular Party Convention Picks 21 November Standard Bearers

throughout the party proceedings Spectators among the crowd were Land Management's Asst. Director Manuel F. Leon Guerrero, Commerce Director Jose D. Leon Guerrero, Atty. Leon D. Flores, Director Fred Gutierrez, Election Commissioner V. U. Zafra, Director Jose Salas and RCA Manager Ross Fulford. Mrs. Concepcion Barrett, an independent candidate for congress, was seen in the hall late in the morning.

The 45 delegates were seated in separate rows of chairs near the auditorium's platform. They each carried a band with the name of the district they represent.

Representation was allotted on the proportional basis of one delegate to every 200 registered votes in the district. The votes of three absent delegates were given to their co-delegates from the district in a ruling handed down by the convention chairman.

CALL FOR UNITY

Before the actual voting, all the 27 nominees were presented to the body. Each party nominee dwelt on the need for party unity and solidarity in the November polls. Cong. Calvo sounded a call for closer party members' work with the legislature to accomplish the program of the party in power. Cong. Lujan declared he wanted the party "to put out a clean fight" and dissuade from "personalities" during the campaign.

Balloting started past 1 p.m. after the convention adjourned for lunch. After the distribution of official ballots, the delegates were called officiallly and they individually cast their votes in a box placed in front of the convention chairman. Cong. Calvo created quite a stir when he paused before the platform to review his ballot before placing it on the box.

Island Judge Joaquin C. Perez was a delegate from Chalan Pago. During the voting time for the delegates, Congressmen J. A. Perez and Palting found time to huddle in a corner of the hall. Cong. Cruz filled out his ballot in a separate corner.

The tally of votes proceeded at a brisk pace after all the votes were deposited in the ballot box. Jose B. Sudo, chairman of the accreditation and teller committee, recorded the votes at the official tally sheet. After the counting, the 21st place in the lineup was tied up between two nominees, incumbent Cong. P.C. Lujan and party chairman, J. Q. San Miguel.

Before an announcement of the other winners was made, the tie was resolved by another ballot-ing. San Miguel was proclaimed for the 21st seat.

TOP NOMINEES

Cong. M. U. Lujan topped the list of nominees with a 46-straight vote. He was given a prolonged ovation when the winners were proclaimed. The 21 standard bearers were presented to the body and each pledged his efforts for a party win in November.

Cong. Calvo, in his address after the balloting, said the party has "weathered storms during the last session" and said the party squabbles are an indication of party strength.

The Maite lawmaker belied the assertion that a one-party government is not good, saying the Popular Party, by the "diverse stand of its members on important issues" has shown that the members of the party in power are free in their convictions and unmuzzled in their thoughts.

Cong. James T. Sablan, in a bid for party unity, declared he "has forgotten" all that happened during the past.

"I am ready to apologize and accept apologies," the Agana Heights solon stated. He was referring to past differences with other party members on the many issues that cropped up during the last two sessions of the legislature.

In his acceptance speech, Won Pat said the official nomination should not be viewed as a "personal triumph," but should rather make the candidates "aware of the responsibilities ahead."

Future party campaign plans were not immediately available. Other convention officials were Jesus Rivera, floor and entertainment committee, Antonio C. Sablan, sergeant at arms, and Miss Asuncion P. Torres, refreshment and lunch committee.

On the basis of the 1953 voters' list, the delegates were allotted as follows: Agana, 1; Asan 2; Maina, 1; Piti, 2; Agat, 2; Santa Rita, 2; Umatac, 2; Merizo, 2; Inarajan, 3; Dededo, 2; Talofofo, 2; Yona, 2; Chalan Pago-Ordot, 2; Sinajana, 5; Agana Heights, 2; Mongmong,Toto, 2; Maite, 1; Mangilao, 2; Tamuning, 2 and Yigo 2.

There were 74 candidates listed at the election commissioner's office. Five have withdrawn and with six Popular Party candidates out, the total number of candidates including the party now is 63. The island voters will select 21 from among the 42 independents and 21 party members. A total of 8,880 voters have registered for the November 2 polls. The island's 18-year-olds will be entitled to vote for the first time.

it in recent weeks as a theoretically possible one.

The U.S. Secretary of State is very skeptical, according to authoritative informants, about Mendes-France's whole attitude—and beyond that about the French premier's ability to win from the French assembly support for any plan which Mendes-France might agree on.

Dulles, Eden and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer would like a solution granting West Germany membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Mendes-France so far has seemed to lean more toward handling the problem through West German membership in a 1948 Brussels treaty.

these tactics to overthrow freedom," he vowed. "The press and all responsible men will realize that these stories help to spread doubts about justice and about democracy."

Spurning demands that he resign, Scelba pounded his fist on the table and declared: "This government does not quail before threats. It will repress all attempts to bring disorders or to limit the freedom of citizens."

The vote held strictly to party lines. Scelba's own Christian Democrats and his minor party coalition supported him. Communists, pro-Kremlin Socialists, pro-Fascists and regular monarchists opposed him.

Atom Plan Up For Debate

UNITED NATION, N.Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—The U.N. general assembly cleared the Eisenhower-Dulles atoms-for-peace proposal today for top ranking debate in the U.N. The U.S. wants this to begin quickly.

Guamanian Boys Making Good In United States Armed Services

Word has been received that Pvt. George C. Cruz, son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Cruz of Agana, is serving in Korea with the Third Infantry Division, US Army.

The division, known as the "Rock of the Marne," saw bitter fighting in the Iron Triangle and at Outpost Harry.

The entire unit now is training as part of the US security force in the peninsula.

Cruz, a mortarman with "A" company of the 7th Regiment, entered the army last January and arrived in Korea in July.

In a dispatch received from the public information office of the 44th Infantry Division in Fort Lewis, Wash., it was learned Sgt. Antonio M. Mendiola, son of Mrs. Benedicta Mendiola of Sinajana, has been promoted to the rank of sergeant first class.

Mendiola, presently residing with his wife, Elsie, at 723 Colorado Avenue., Ft. Lewis, Wash., is assigned as platoon sergeant with "I" company, 123rd Infantry Regiment. The division is undergoing tactical training as a general reserve unit.

The 11th Airborne Division in Ft. Campbell, Ky., revealed Sgt. Jesus Tenorio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francisco Tenorio of Lalo, Barrigada, is attending jump school at the fort.

Sgt. Tenorio recently was assigned to "A" battery, 544th Airborne Field Artillery of the 11th Airborne Division as a volunteer. He is undergoing regirous physical training to last three weeks to qualify as a paratrooper and win his parachutist wings.

Sgt. Tenorio joined the service in September, 1950. He has served a 34-month tour of duty in the European theater of operations.

Thomas Blas, private, son of Mrs. Ana Blas of Agana, is serving with the 7th Infantry Division in Korea. A rifleman in "L" company of the 31st Regiment, Blas holds the combat infantryman's badge and the South Korean presidential citation badge.

Lady Savant Reveals New Heart Treatment

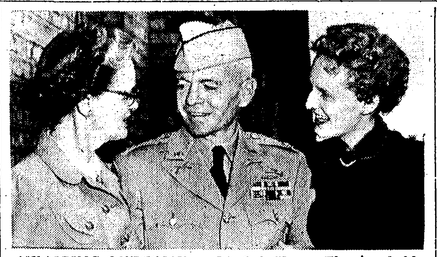
WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP) — A method of getting atomic energy "telegrams" from your heart looks promising for furnishing a major new aid in the diagnosis of heart ailments, the American Roentgen Ray Society was told today.

Dr. Edith Quimby of Columbia University said the method involves injecting a small amount of radioactive sodium into a vein in the arm. Then, its course in the blood stream in and out of the heart and lungs can be followed by means of the atomic energy signals it emits.

These signals are detectable on a Geiger counter, and recordable on a piece of graph paper — the whole process taking only a few seconds.

The scientist told a reporter it offers the first method for measuring the normal and abnormal rate and volume of blood flow through the heart — something which she said no other technique for diagnosing heart ailments can do. Therefore, she said, it looks promising for furnishing a major new aid in diagnosis — supplementing other techniques, each of which is designed to measure some particular phase of heart action.

She told the society that the radioactive technique, originally devised by oher scientists within recent years, is still under development.



AWAITING OUTCOME — Lt. Col. Harry Fleming holds the hands of his wife and daughter as he awaits the verdict of an 11-man army court martial at Ft. Sheridan, Ill. The court convicted the 47-year old much decorated colonel for collaborating with the enemy while a prisoner of war in North Korea. The decision was reached by the judges after a deliberation that lasted 4½ hours. Fleming was the first officer POW held in Korea to be tried and sentenced for collaboration. US, French Officials Slate Meet On Indo-China Anti-Red Strength

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP)—High American and French officials will hold a three-day conference here beginning tomorrow on possible joint measures to strengthen anti-Communist forces in the free areas of Indo-China and protect them against Red conquest.

France will ask the United States for assistance in carrying out whatever program is decided upon. Diplomatic officials said that some decisions about the future of Indo-China will have to be made. Among these is the question of maintenance of the 10-division French expeditionary force in Viet Nam.

Related to this is the problem of building up native forces in the three states of Indo-China—South Viet Nam (the north went to the Communists under the Geneva armistice of last June), Laos and Cambodia. The armistice prevents slipping arms into the area but French forces have large supplies of equipment, mainly provided by the United States, which can be turned over to native armies.

The real difficulty about organizing and arming native troops is the development of a secure political base to a foundation for military establishments. Laos and Cambodia are politically stable but there is considerable instability in South Viet Nam and the Communists with the backing and support of Red China are expected to make an all out political drive to gain power in South Viet Nam.

The talks, which will open at the state department tomorrow, will cover political, economic and military problems. France will be represented by Guy La Chambre, minister of war relations with the Associated States of Indo-China; Edgar Faure, minister of finance; General Paul Ely, French high commissioner in Indo-China, and Ambassador Henri Bonnet.

Undersecretary of state Walter Bedell Smith will head the American group. Others participating will be Adm. Arthur Radford, Assistant Secretary of Defense Anderson, Foreign Aid Administrator Harold Stassen, Assistant Secretary of State Walter Robertson, State Department Counsellor Douglas MacArthur II and Walworth Barbour, acting director of the state department's foreign division.

A Gentle Tear Must Be Shed For Fatwads, Too

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (AP) — The time has come, it seems, to shed a gentle tear or two for a couple of poor little multi-millionaires.

Life can be hideous, even in the uppermost tax brackets.

Take John Jacob Astor, for example, who had to cut short a European honeymoon for financial reasons. Or blonde Bobo Rockefeller, wiping pawnshop dust off her $30,000 engagement ring.

Astor, worth about 70 billion dollars, came back from an abbreviated honeymoon today on the liner Constitution. With him was his third wife, the former Dolores Margaret Fullman.

As for Bobo, her engagement ring vanished while movers were switching her belongings from her penthouse to a nearby Park Avenue hotel. It was given to her by Winthrop Rockefeller, from whom she was divorced last month.

Bobo also got 5½ million dollars from Rockefeller as the price of his freedom.

Yoshida Off For Goodwill Tour

TOKYO, Sept. 26 (AP) — Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida, guarded by 700 policemen, flew from Haneda airport for Canada today on the first leg of a 50-day, sevennation goodwill tour.

Bitter opposition to the Conservative leader's trip from extreme rightest and leftist elements led to the extraordinary turnout of police to guard him all the way from his residence to the airport.

There were no incidents, however.

Yoshida's Canadian Pacific Air Lines' "Empress of Mexico City" left precisely on schedule at 9 a.m.

He is due to land in Vancouver, British Columbia, at 10:30 a.m. today, Vancouver time.

The embattled premier, who, on October 14 will complete an unprecedented, unbroken administration of six years, gave his countrymen a sober political warning in a brief departure statement.

Referring obliquely to the violent, Socialist and some Conservative, feeling against him, he said: "Political stability is the basis of economic stability and the national livelihood.

"It is also greatly desired by the great powers.

"Unless there is stability, no hope can be placed in the future of our country. Unless we have stability, the great nations of the world will not take either Japan or her people seriously.

"On my departure, I pray that the people of Japan, one and all, will work hard and practice moderation in order to achieve the reconstruction and independence of our country."

'Hot' Group To Discuss Asia's No. 1 Problem

TOKYO, Sept. 26 (AP) — The Institute of Pacific Relations, a controversial organization in the United States because of charges that some of its Asian policies were pro-Communist, will argue the next few days in closed sessions over what is Asia's No. 1 problem.

Is security against Comunism the foremost problem? Or is it poverty, hunger, or overpopulation?

American opposition to admitting Red China to the United Nations was certain to be criticized during discussions by some 80 private citizens from 10 nations. Nations which favor co-exstence with the Communist are well-represented.

Scholars, editors and business leaders are here from Canada, France, India, Britain, Indonesia, Pakistan, Australia, New Zealand, Japan and the United States.

In 1952, a U.S. Senate judiciary committee charged that the IPR had exercised a pro-Red influence on American Far East policy. IPR denied the allegation. This 12th international conference of the organization was postponed from 1953 because of the controversy then raging in the United States.

It was learned that the Canadian delegation will present a paper sympathetic to recognition of Red China by the West. It was written by Charles J. Woodsworth, editor of the Ottawa Citizen. He told a reporter he considers this view as that of the majority of Canadians.

There are prospects for disagreement over the agenda.

Nobutane Kiuchi, former chairman of the Japanese foreign exchange control board, wrote the IPR secretariat in New York recently objected that the suggested program approached problems from "what we call the western point of view. In other words, the problems of Asia seem to be presented in a particular context of . . . the western democracies versus the Communist countries . . . that the study of living conditions in Asiatic countries is not taken up for its own sake, but rather as a means to prevent Asia from falling into the hands of the Communists."

D. K. R. Cadgil, director of the Gokhale institute of politics and economics in Poona, India, wrote that if the cold war is discussed at all there should be "adesuate time for expression of the large variety of views on these matters of a great immediate interest."

Editor Hits 'Too Much' 'Secret' Gov't Meets

CINCINNATI, Sept. 26 (AP) — A Florida newspaper editor asserted here today that "much of our federal government is conducted behind the locked doors of executive sessions and the people are given information of this secret government only in the form of handout releases from government press agents."

A "new philosophy of government" has been developed, V. M. Newton, Jr., managing editor of the Tampa Tribune, said in a speech prepared for delivery before the convention of the National Association of Foremen.

He said the handouts "often are propaganda carefully devised to promote and prolong the political life and interests of the office holders."

Newton spoke at a meeting at which he was given the Foremen's Association award as the "Free Enterprise for 1954."

He related several instances in which he said he had difficulty obtaining information on actions by

Supreme Court Sets Segregation Hearing Dec. 6 As Earliest Date

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP) — The Supreme Court today fixed Dec. 6 for the start of argument on how to end public school segregation. The timing raised a possibility that final decrees may not come until about the time for the spring windup of classes.

Announcing the December date, Supreme Court Clerk Harold B. Willey said this was the earliest time the argument could be heard. The court's argument schedules for October and November already were filled.

The decision on the date was reached at a closed conference of seven of the justices. Justices Douglas and Minton have not yet returned from their vacations, but they communicated their agreement with the decision and thus made it unanimous.

The new arguments will pick up not only the question of how to order the end of school segregation which was unanimously declared unconstitutional last May 17. Another major question will be the timing in final orders for desegregation.

The court's opinion last May asked interested attorneys to discuss whether decrees should require admission of Negro children "forthwith," to schools nearest their homes, or whether there should be an "effective, gradual adjustment."

Camera May Yield Clue To Jet Fuel Tank Blast; Death Toll Climbs To 32

BITBURG, Germany, Sept. 26 (AP) — A camera containing exposed film may proved to be an important clue to the cause of the explosion Friday of a 120,000-gallon jet fuel tank which killed 32 persons and injured 16.

German police said the camera had been found near one of the victims, a French engineer, who took pictures of a fire-fighting demonstration that preceded the blast. Police said the engineer, M. Jarty, was taking pictures a few seconds before the explosion.

Both French and German authorities appeared satisfied the blast was set off accidentally and was not the result of sabotage.

French troops Saturday night cordoned off the five-mile long Nims river valley into which the American-stored fuel was drained from other underground tanks Friday to prevent spread of the disaster. German authorities warned residents not to light fires in a wide area because hey said several rivers and creeks might be polluted.

Seven badly burned German and French victims died in hospitals Friday night and Saturday, bringing the death toll to 32.

Bitburg officials said a private company engaged in NATO air base work, including installation of fire extinguishing equipment, put on the fire-fighting demonstration. One German official said many of those who might supply full information about who ordered the demonstration are dead. Survivors are presently in no condition to talk.

Nature So Unkind In Later Years

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP) — Municipal Judge Frank Myers has ruled that "a beautiful woman with a beautiful body" can pose for nude photographs without necessarily being obscene.

The judge said a woman might in later years want to look with nostaligia at such photos should she feel "nature has dealt unkindly with those beautiful talents."

"Nudeness is not, as such, obscene, Judge Myers ruled, acquitting Murry Levy, 41, of a charge of keeping obscene photos in his studio.

The judge made his decision after examining evidence seized by police in a raid at the studio last July.

New PI-Japanese Reparations Talk Appears Unlikely

MANILA, Sept. 26 (AP) — Renewed wartime reparations negotiations between Japan and the Philippines yesterday appeared unlikely unless there is a change in the uncompromising attitude of both government.

But both nations have taken such a firm stand on what they consider the basis for resuming the talks that there was no indication either would relent.

A Philippine advisory committee Friday slammed the door on Japan's position. The committee rejected the agreement reached between Philippine Vice President Carlos P. Garcia and Japanese Minister Katsumi Ohno, calling for payment of four hundred million dollars in capital goods and services.

The committee, appointed by President Ramon Magsaysay's council of leaders to review the reparations question, also concurred that Japan is capable of paying more than the amount stipulated in the Ohno-Garcia agreement.

It based its decision on the findings of the special presidential mission sent to Japan last April to survey Japan's economy.

DULLES WARNS ALLIES AGAINST SHAKY DEFENSES

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP)—U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles flew into London today for the nine-power conference on German rearmament and called for quick results to prevent the collapse of western defense planning.

Dulles made a dramatic, conciliartory gesture toward France immediately upon arrival from America by personally asking to see Premier Mendes-France before the opening of the crucial conference tomorrow at stately Lancaster House.

The U.S. Secretary walked across the runway to where the French ambassador to London, Rene Massigli, was awaiting the arrival of the French premier-foreign minister. Dulles greeted Massigli warmly and requested an appointment "at the earliest possible moment."

DULLES WARNS ALLIES

Mendes-France flew in 75 minutes later in a plane sporting a tri-color of France from the pilot's window. He declared: "I am quite sure we will do very good and useful work at the conference."

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany will arrive tomorrow.

Dulles told reporters the United States will go into the momentous parley "hoping for good results because it is imperative that there should be good results."

The American secretary warned that the West must move rapidly in the crisis stemming from French rejection of the European army plan and added: "If we don't move rapidly things could fall apart rather badly."

Meanwhile, western Europe expressed cautious optimism that a France fearful of a powerful Germany and her western partners would get together at the conference on some kind of agreement to rearm the Germans. Newspapers reflected a deep dread of failure and the common feeling that the parley may decide "the fate of our generation."

The Kremlin's official newspaper, Izvestia, meanwhile, bitterly castigated the forthcoming conference as directed at reviving German militarism and predicted a sharp split among the western allies.

"The difference in views as to the method of arming Germany," Izvestia said, "is due to the fact that millions of people are against the revival of German militarism which would directly increase the danger of a new war."

DULLES, EDEN CONFER

Less than three hours after reaching London, Dulles met with foreign Secretary Eden of Britain to work out a common approach to the conference.

The American secretary also is ready to back Eden's German divisions on the line against Communist aggression through the speedy entry of West Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Both men are also set to urge Mendes-France to agree to the grant of full sovereignty to the German federal republic as the first act of business at the parley.

56 AMERICANS ABOARD; DEATH TOLL SWELLING

TOKYO, Sept. 27 (AP) — Nearly 1,000 persons were counted as missing and presumed drowned today after a rampant typhoon capsized a huge ocean ferry off the northern Japanese island of Hokkaido Sunday night.

The Japanese maritime safety board reported 442 bodies recovered, 544 missing and 155 survivors.

Kyodo news service reported there were 1,141 passengers —including 56 Americans aboard the 4,300-ton railroad ferry Toya Maru when it was flung on its side by giant wave in Hakodate harbor.

One of the missing is an American, Thomas M. West, 60, Japan agent for the Max Factor cosmetics firm.

Japan's maritime safety board reported 400 bodies had washed ashore and 42 were aboard the ship, possibly crushed when railroad cars aboard broke loose and plunged across the decks.

All or almost all the other Americans were servicemen or the.r storm in Tsugaro straits.

The death toll may be heavily swelled by other ship disasters. Four large Japanese freighters, were reported sunk in the violent the violent storm in Tsugaro straits.

Each carried a crew of about 75—a total of 300 or more still missing.

The typhoon, third to lash Japan within two weeks, also fanned a fierce fire which destroyed four-fifths of the coastal city of Iwanai on western Hokkaido. Iwanai has a population of 23,000.

Communications were tangled in the area, but the death toll was expected to mount when details of the fire are learned.

WORST IN HISTORY

The raging winds practically wiped out the ferry service that links the three million Japanese on Hokkaido with the rest of the empire, the newspaper Asahi said. Only two out of 14 were left in normal service.

Five of the big vessels were sunk: the Toya Maru, 4,337 tons; the Kitami Maru, 2,928 tons; the Hidaka Maru, 2,932 tons; the Tokachi Maru, 2,912 tons, and the Seikan Maru, 3,142 tons.

Two more were damaged so badly they could not put to sea: the Daisetsu Maru, 4,310 and the Aomori-Kakodate Ferry No. 6, 3,198 tons.

Four were busy in rescue work, and one other was docked for repairs.

The joint staff council, Japan's top military headquarters which is manned by former imperial army and navy officers, called the disaster Japan's worst sea tragedy in history.

The American LST-546 with 191 soldiers from the First Cavalry division aboard was also caught in the typhoon, and radioed an SOS Sunday night. The crew ran her ashore on a mudbank southwest of Hakodate about midnight, however, and all aboard were reported safe today by the Far East command.

The Toya Maru had just left Hakodate at 6:30 p.m., bound south for Aomori on Honshu, the main Japanese island. Several such big ferries, which carry whole trains, are the main link between Honshu and the northern island of Hokkaido across Tsugaru strait. The Toya Maru recently carried Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako on their trip to Hokkaido in August.

The typhoon hit Japan's southern island of Kyushu at 1 a.m. Sunday, raked most of the island empire, including Tokyo, and then crossed westward into the Japan sea.

Then, suddenly, it cut back just in time to lash Tsugaru strait with the full fury of 110-mile winds, piling water up in giant waves in Hokkaido's funnel-like bays.

ARMY CONFIRMS REPORT

U.S. army headquarters confirmed that bodies of five American soldiers were among 300 washed ashore at Hakodate harbor from the capsized 4,300-ton ferry Toya Maru and said 50 others were listed as missing.

National Railways, operators of the ferry, said there were 56 American soldiers and their families on board the ferry but army headquarters made no mention of families.

National railways said 30 foreigners perished in the ferry disaster.

The Toya Maru carried some 40 railway cars which shifted while the ferry was trying to find shelter outside Hakodate harbor. The shift abruptly plunged the hundreds of passengers into giant waves whipped up by the storm. Few had any chance of rescue.

The ferry carried 1,127 passengers. Just before it upset, the ferry had tried to unload passengers onto lifters. Breaking of an anchor chain halted that move. It then moved toward shore but the shift of the railway cars dumped the passengers before the craft could be beached.

Kyodo News Service said at 9:25 a.m. (Japan time) that 163 persons had been saved and that 350 bodies had been recovered.

Crippled communications yielded only the most meager details.

Senators Report On McCarthy Probe Today; Disciplinary Action Hinted

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—The Watkins committee report on censure charges against U.S. Sen. Joseph McCarthy, which will be made public tomorrow morning, was described by one authoritative source today as a firm document which contains "positive conclusions."

"It contains no straddling," this source, who declined to be quoted by name, said. But whether it will recommend specifically that the senate vote to censure McCarthy when it reconvenes Nov. 8 no one here in a position to know would say.

The Denver Post reported in a Washington dispatch that the committee will recommend that McCarthy be censured on three of the five main groups of charges against him, and that he will be criticized by the committee on a fourth.

Three charges on which a censure recommendation will be made, the Post said, are that McCarthy (1) was contemptuous of a senate subcommittee that investigated him in 1951-52; (2) used "vulgar and base language" in referring to a fellow senator, and (3) used abusive tactics in questioning Brig. Gen. Ralph Zwicker about army handling of an alleged subversive.

On the fourth charge, that McCarthy unlawfully obtained possession of confidential information from a FBI document, the Post said the committee will hold that the charge is not relevant as far as senate censure is concerned. McCarthy will be criticized for possessing the material, however, the Post said.

NEW RED ATTITUDE

NO one expects American reporters stationed in the Soviet Union to be able to report the truth of what they see—except now and then between the lines. What is anticipated is their return home, with the wraps off.

Such a moment is now at hand, with the return to America after five years of the New York Times' Moscow correspondent, Harrison Salisbury. His report is important reading for the whole free world.

His major observation, his principal message to all peoples outside Russia, is that the Soviet leaders have not in any way abandoned their goal of world conquest. They simply have changed their way of seeking it.

The late Joseph Stalin was a ruthless, buldgeoning, inflexible autocrat who ruled singlehandedly. At home he ground the faces of his people, and abroad his stubborn rigidity drove his country into many blind alleys from which it could not escape.

SALISBURY points out that the new rulers, Molotov, Malenkov, Khrushchev and Kaganovich, are employing more graceful tactics. They are displaying flexibility and adaptability. And they have made their approaches effective and even attractive in some ways.

Domestically, it is a story of less harsh police-state methods, though Salisbury stresses that the basic horrors still exist in shocking proportion. In addition, the new Soviet leaders have turned to production of greater volumes of consumer goods, to ease the strains for ordinary Russians long pressed down by military dictatorship.

So far, the average Soviet citizen seems not too greatly impressed by these apparent improvements. Suspicions long fed by Stalin's callousness cannot quickly be wiped away.

In foreign affairs it is a different matter. Russia clearly has scored notable successes at the Geneva conference and in the partitioning of Indo-China. Its policy of "sweetness and light" has enhanced neutralism in Europe and helped to create the climate in which a timid France could reject EDC, cornerstone of Western defense.

IN neutralist circles in Europe, men evidently believe that the United States, not Russia, is the troublemaker. But even though we may have more consistently appreciated the peril of the Communist aims, Salisbury seems to think that our own diplomats may not fully understand the dangers in the new Russian attitude.

He quotes a Western diplomat on the point:

"They (the Russians) speak so pleasantly, so apparently openly and with so much common sense that you must constantly remind yourself whom it is you are talking with. That's why, in a way, they are more dangerous than Stalin."

There is the essence of it. Stalin was a brutal line plunger. Malenkov and Co. are tricky forward passers. Obviously they are already too smart for the neutralists, whom they have beautifully fooled with their new offense. We had better make sure they are not too smart for us as well, or the free world will be lost.

Boat Capsizes, 1,000 Missing

Kyodo News Service gave this sketchy account on the ferry tragedy:

The 4,300-ton Toya Maru, which plies between northernmost Hokkaido and the main island of Honshu, was carrying 1,127 passengers and some 40 rail coaches.

On its 150-mile run between Aomori on Honshu and Hakodate on Hokkaido, the ferry took shelter outside Hakodate harbor.

The rail coaches slipped to one side and the ferry overturned. Huge wind-churned waves then battered it.

Asahi said 200 bodies were recovered and hundreds of others were feared dead. Radio station NHK, which has radio contact with Hokkaido, said only 40 persons from the ferry were definitely known to have made it safely to shore.

SHIPS SUNK

Asahi reported that these four ocean-going ships are known to have been sunk off Hokkaido:

Hidaka Maru, 3,000-ton passenger ship — number of passengers and crew not immediately known.

Dai Setsu Maru, passenger ship —number of passengers and crew not immediately known.

No. 6 Shinsei Maru, 5,000-ton freighter — number of crew unknown.

Tokachi Maru, 3,000-ton freighter with a crew of 75. Early reports said eight had been saved and the rest were missing.

The No. 16 Seikan Maru was reported sending out an SOS.

An American LST (Landing ship —tank) No. 546, was grounded intentionally on Hokkaido to save its load of American troops from the wild sea, maritime safety board headquarters informed the Associated Press.

It was not known immediately how many troops were aboard the 2,700 ton craft.

Prior to the Hokkaido fatalities, Japanese police had reported to Asahi that the typhoon's toll on islands to the south Sunday was: 43 dead, 82 missing, 371 injured, 1,572 houses destroyed, 511 boats and ships sunk and many other houses and ships damaged.

The typhoon had swept through south Japan Saturday and Sunday, then moved north over the Sea of Japan. It had slammed into the southern area from the Pacific swiftly, causing widespread destruction although only brushing Tokyo.

When it passed Honshu island, the typhoon was believed to be harmlessly dissipating. But it swung in toward Hokkaido and dealt a devastating blow Sunday night.

Because forecasters said this typhoon, the 15th of the year, was not as strong as earlier ones, the precautions taken had not been so extensive.

Two typhoons earlier this month killed 93.

Army Confirms Death

TOKYO, Sept. 27 (AP) — The U.S. Army said today at least 12 American military personnel were known dead in the capsizing of the ferry Toya Maru off Hokkaido Sunday night.

Nine were listed as soldiers, two as civilian women employes and one male civilian employe.

A total of 48 soldiers and four civilian workers were aboard the 4,300-ton ship — along with more than 1,000 Japanese passengers.

'Twas Like Hell On Earth, Survivor Says

TOKYO, Sept. 27 (AP) — A survivor of the Toya Maru typhoon disaster said today the wreck was "like a hell on earth."

The huge ocean-going ferry was three and a half hours out of Hakodate and floundering badly at 10 p.m., Daikichi Yamazaki, 48, told to the Yomiuri newspaper.

"About four minutes later I felt a terrific lurch and shock.

"The lights went out. It was pitch dark.

"I felt the floor listed about 45 degrees and water began pouring into the third class decks.

"I was by the dining room and groped my way to a window. In the dark everyone was tumbled together all at once. Some were rushed over and some were stepped on.

"The screams and shouting in the dark was like a hell on earth."

Yamazaki continued:

'About this time 10 or 12 third class passengers finally squirmed out the door into the dark outside. But I saw no one following.

"There must have been about 700 passengers in the third class section alone.

"I made it to the window near the door and had crawled about half out when a huge wave washed me out into the sea.

"I groped about in the dark and grab something that looked like a human head. It was a stray glass buoy from a fishnet.

"I hugged the bouy and tried to push away from the ship.

"I was lucky. I made it to the beach, rather, I was washed up ashore at Nanayehama."

ROPE DANCING RECORD

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 27 (AP) — Edward Voellter, a German-born restaurant worker, claimed the world record for tightrope dancing today — 31 hours, 30 minutes on a wire near his home in Lidingoe, a Stockholm suburb.

An old record of 31:04 was claimed by a Swede named Lundberg.

Voellter walked the rope in slippers. His legs were wrapped in bandage against the cold.

Mendes-France Suggests a New Look

PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Clare Boothe Luce, U. S. ambassador to Italy, thinks something ought to be done about women's handbags. They bother her.

By wearing flat-heeled shoes instead of spikes for her daily work, Mrs. Luce can keep up with the men, most of the time.

(She's usually considerably ahead of the boys.)

But whenever Mrs. Luce goes into a business session with males, she feels that she is handicapped by the handbag which fashion, custom, tradition or whatever you call it—even necessity—has decreed that all women must carry.

She sits down at a luncheon conference. First question on the agenda is, What shall she do with the handbag? She holds up a perfectly beautiful big patent leather job and calls it, "This."

Does she plump it on the table where she can get at it, but where it hides the flowers? Or does she put it under her chair where it is most inconvenient and almost ungettable? That is the top urgent issue.

MRS. LUCE HAS HAD MANY of her suits designed with pockets. They are not just little decorative patches, too small to hold a dime, or just barely big enough to catch one corner of a lace hanky. They are full size pockets that would make her great-grandmother green with envy.

What's more, Mrs. Luce says she puts things in her pockets and carries them there. But in spite of all the cargo she can possibly stow in her pockets, it still isn't enough space. So she must carry a handbag. "This." An albatross around her neck couldn't receive more scorn.

Mrs. Luce's new economic policy in re. handbags may be said to be still in the planning stage. What this really means is that she probably hasn't put her pretty mind to work on it. She is just protesting mildly, improvising from day to day and wishing that somebody else would do something about it.

But anyone who thinks this news in itself is not fraught with significance, just don't know from nothin'.

AMBASSADOR LUCE'S SKILL as a diplomat in keeping America's relations with Italy on an even keel and in trying to help settle the troublesome Trieste issue may make her more famous than she already is.

But if her ideas about women's handbags can be put across, the effect on civilization is going to be positively revolutionary. It will be more sensational than anything the Communists have thought up for changing the world. It will even be more sensational than anything Dior has thought up.

Millions—millions nothing, make it a billion and begin again. A billion women, now slaves to the relentless dictatorship of fashion, now spend 27.4639 per cent of their lives, according to the latest statistics from the UN Economic and Social Council, going through their handbags, looking for things that are there but can't be located.

IF FEMALES COULD BE liberated from this curse, think how much it would raise—or lower—the world average standards of living. Besides, men are so helpless and can only sit in silent suffering, when women go through handbags.

Manufacturers of handbags, the handbag designers association and the union of handbag makers, if there is one, will probably protest that any all inside-out reform in the handbag situation will cause widespread unemployment and social change.

But the idea hasn't gone that far, yet. This is just an aide memoire on the status quo, not a coup d'etat, as they say in the State Department.

There is another catch to this handbag reform idea. If handbags ever should be abolished, what in the world would men give their wives and best girls for Christmas, birthdays, anniversaries or on return from business trips, as souvenirs? Men should think this over carefully, and not do anything rash.

Peiping Swings To Action As Japan's Atom Furor Calms

TOKYO, Sept. 27 (AP) — Japanese press furor over the death of Aikichi Kuboyama, radioman of the atom-dusted fishing boat, Lucky Dragon, began moderating today but Peiping radio went into action.

Red China's propaganda mouthpiece said the death of Kuboyama "has created a wave of indignation in Japan" and brought "new demands to ban the United States from using the Pacific as an atomic bomb laboratory."

The Lucky Dragon was showered with ashes from the hydrogen bomb test blast at Bikini last March. Kuboyama died last Thursday.

Two leading Japanese newspapers Sunday continued editorial attacks on American officials for saying Kuboyama might have lived had American doctors been allowed to treat him.

But one, Asahi, Japan's largest national daily, also criticized Japanese doctors.

"For instance Tokyo University quickly analyzed components of the ashes collected from the Lucky Dragon, but extracted radioactive substances from the patient's urine only recently.

'The first urine analysis had to be made by American doctors."

"We fully understand that Japanese doctors are reluctant to learn from insolent and arrogant American doctors. But they ought to humbly acknowledge that American medical science is more advanced than that of the Japanese insofar as atomic sickness is concerned."

Tokyo Shimbun, the largest evening paper in Japan, toned down its comment and no longer used vitriolics.

"Some American news stories suggest the Americans seem to be worried some vicious riots may occur in Japan resulting from Kuboyama's death," Shimbun said.

No riots can revive Kuboyama. Nor do they expedite banning atomic weapons."

P.I. Paper Raps Afro-Asian Pact

MANILA, Sept. 27 (AP) — The Manila Daily Bulletin said today an Afro-Asian alliance contemplated by the prime ministers of India and Indonesia "is of course beyond comprehension."

The American-owned paper in an editorial "If the Indo-African conference results in any kind of agreement, it will serve to defeat partially one of the careful objectives of the Manila conference — to attract some neutralist nations into it."

The editorial was the first press reaction here to a New Delhi report that Prime Ministers Nehru and Sastroamidjojo had agreed to convene a conference in Jakarta of Asian and African countries to extend their neutral "peace area" from Cairo to the Philippines.

The bulletin said the new conference may serve as an ambitious plan to counteract the gain in prestige that came to Asian nations who joined the Manila pact."

Eight nations — Australia, France, New Zealand, Pakistan, Philippines, Thailand, United Kingdom and United States — signed the southeast Asia defense treaty and an accompanying Pacific charter Sept. 8. The Colombo powers — India, Indonesia, Ceylon and Burma, with the exception of Pakistan — refused to attend.

"An alliance of Asian nations with all Africans of course beyond comprehension," the Bulletin continued. "The diverse interests and allegiances existing in the dark continent are beyond gathering into one political bloc of any sort."

The paper said the Manila treaty did not take a belligerent attitude against anyone. "It was," it said, "in pure fact, a defensive arrangement which would have been necessary without the existence of the Communist threat."

Red Chiefs Asked To Visit Britain

SCARBOROUGH, England, Sept. 27 (AP) — Dr. Edith Summerskill, vice chairman of the Labor Party, disclosed tonight she has invited Premiers Georgi Malenkov of Russia and Chou En-Lai of Red China to visit Britain next year.

Neither declined the invitation, Dr. Summerskill said at a rally on the eve of the Labor Party's annual conference here. She recently toured Russia and Red China with a Labor Party delegation headed by former Prime Minister Clement Attlee.

"I was immodest enough to believe that I might be chairman of the party next year," she said, "and in that capacity I extended an invitation to Malenkov and Chou En-Lai to a return visit. I asked the British ambassador if he would issue a visa to Mr. Malenkov and he solemnly assured us that he would.

"This visit can only become a reality with the cooperation of the government. Let us hope the government will recognize the great contribution to mutual understanding which a visit of this nature would effect."

The widely-read Manila Times said the Colombo powers may disagree with the recently concluded Manila treaty but they have "no right to insist that their decisions are binding on those who do not think as they do."

Commenting on the current conference in New Delhi between the prime ministers of India and Indonesia, the Times said:

"When Mr. Sastroamidjojo and Mr. Nehru advocate that Asians solve the problems of Asia, their position is impeccable.

NOTES' PUBLICATION STIRS ATOM HOPES

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 27 (AP) — Publication of U.S.-Soviet notes on President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace program heightened a feeling here today that he United States will wind up with a resounding endorsement of its plan after some sharp questioning in the U.N. assembly.

The assembly's 60-nation main political committee plans to organize for work late in the week, after Russia's Andrei Vishinsky has set forth the Soviet bloc line in general policy debates.

The atom item will be up for a top place on the political committee calendar. It may lead off that committee's debates in the week following.

Although Vishinsky was reported preparing to speak tomorow morning in the general debates, there was still a possibility he may take the assembly rostrum late today.

He was expected to discuss two main Soviet conditions for setting up atom pool:

1. No international atomic agency without prior agreement to ban atomic weapons.

2. Final authority over any internatonal agency must rest in the U.N. security council where Russia has a veto it has already used 61 times on other questions.

The Soviet reserved the right to the veto in its latest memorandum handed to U.S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen in Moscow last Wednesday, only the day before U.S. Secretary of State Dulles outlined his four point atomic peace program in the assembly here.

It was in the same memorandum that the Soviet Union suggested publishing the notes exchanged between it and the United States this year, following Eisenhower's address to the U.N. general assembly on the subject last Dec. 8. Bohlen agreed in a note the next day and Dulles said the United States was willing. The notes were made public simultaneously in Washington and Moscow Saturday night.

ELABORATE MACHINERY

One contained elaborate machinery for international agency suggested last March 19 by Dulles to the Russians. A U.S. delegation spokesman said it was certainly the most complete description of such an agency published up to now. He was unable to say, however, whether the United States still intended to have that kind of agency, or would alter provisions to meet Soviet objections.

The plan called for a nuclear material bank to meet the needs of agriculture, medicine and other peaceful activities, including eventually power production. A treaty agency would be ruled by a 'board vote" and carried out by an executive officer and staff.

The proposed relationship to the U.N. was limited to making reports to the security council and assembly when requested, and consulting with other U.N. bodies. Members of the agency would be expected to contribute atomic information to the whole agency.

Final Suez Talks

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP) — The British foreign office is sending undersecretary Anthony Nutting to Cairo tomorrow for "what is hoped will be the last phase of the negotiations with the Egyptian government on the Suez Canal zone base."

The announcement said Nutting will take part with Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson in the talks to finalize the agreement, outlined in July, withdrawal of Britains 80,000-man garrison.

Ten days ago, certain points which arose during drafting of the treaty were referred by Stevenson to the foreign office for instructions.

Chiang Planes Beat Amoy Port Anew

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 27 (AP) — Nationalist warplanes rained fresh air blows yesterday on Red China's port of Amoy while conjecture increased over if and when Red planes will retaliate against Formosa.

The Amoy raids marked the 24th day of the little war revolving around the Nationalist island outpost of Quemoy, seven miles east of Amoy.

Before the fighting started with Red artillery shelling of Quemoy on Sept. 3, Formosan inhabitants had been almost complacent about possibility of air attacks. This is no longer the case.

Real estate dealers say property values in Taipeh have dipped 20 per cent since the Quemoy shelling. Housing costs in outlying areas have risen sharply, in some cases as much as six times.

A few people already have moved out of Taipeh.

Uneasiness was increased by rumors that Peiping had broadcast a warning of heavy bombings to start on Formosa tomorrow. Yesterday Premier O. K. Yui was quoted in Taipeh newspapers as saying there was no record of such broadcasts and that the rumors were "fabrications by irresponsible persons."

BEAUTIFICATION PROJECTS — Camp face-lifting geared towards the completion of comfortable and wholesome living environment are part of the vast program initiated by LUSTEVECO Project Manager Don Marshall. The Camp Roxas head said plans for more varied entertainment and socials among the company workere now are being implemented. Photos above show the "Banana Handlers Area" recently renovated, a general view of the camp and the Stevedore Area, (left) which has undergone general rehabilitation work.

Marshall Reveals New Camp Projects; Stresses Workers' Recreation Goals

A series of camp improvement projects underway and designed for the maximum comfort and geared to meet the entertainment demands of company personnel was announced by Luzon Stevedoring Company Project Manager Don Marshall. The projects followed the pattern of the vast reconstruction program initiated by Marshall upon his assumption of office several months ago.

Marshall revealed construction crews are on the job on the following projects:

Improvement of the Stevedore area. Located in Camp Roxas, the area has undergone general face-lifting and overhaul to provide the necessary living comforts.

Building of well ventilated huts with ample protection from accumulated constant rain water on the "Banana-Handlers Area." Marshall stated that hot water would be installed within those two vicinity.

Construction of a central barbecue area and two badminton indoor courts. Marshall declared special emphasis has been placed by the LUSTEVECO on wholesome entertainment for the Camp Roxas workers. He revealed construction on two bowling alleys built by Puyat, Inc. a well-known Manila firm, would be terminated this month. This would adequately meet the demands for diverse off-hour social and sport activities of the camp personnel, the project manager said.

The camp also proposes to hold bingo sessions, Marshall added. However, the plan has been held pending the arrival of the equipment ordered from the mainland, the LUSTEVECO official explained.

Since he assumed office, Marshall launched a bold program for a camp beautification and morale boosting among the Filipino employees. First among Marshall's sweeping reforms was the initiation of new and better contracts for the Philippine nationals. That new contract paved the way for the abolition of the CLUP.

It's Still Far From Being A Man's World - Women Showed It Isn't

By CHARLES MERCER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP) — Women showed last week that it's far from being a man's world.

A 64-year-old grandmother returned to New York after a 10,000 mile tour of Europe, 2,300 miles of it covered by bicycle.

Showing just as much calmness, though making a shorter trip, was an 82-year-old Philadelphia woman. In her ancient coupe she suddenly shut out of a service station and across a busy street, grazed several cars, scattered pedestrians and came to rest against smashed windows of another service station. Said she: "Gas pedal must have stuck."

In Dewey, Okla., a new pupil presented his teacher with a perfume bottle. She beamed, thanked him, and asked what it was. "Rat poison," he said. She sniffed. It was.

Despite such incidents, women continued to like men.

In Spartanburg, S.C., a young lady coaxed a young fellow into going shopping with her at a super-market. They collected about $25 worth of groceries in a basket but were detained by the manager when it came time to pay. The young lady was three years old, the young man just four.

In New York a slightly older lady, aged 30, decided to end it all and teetered on the edge of a 10th floor window while her husband pleaded with her not to jump. Into the apartment stepped a wise cop. Winking at the husband, he suddenly seized him and snarled, "It's all your fault. I'm going to lock you for this!" The wife swung away from the window, "No, it's not his fault!" end of the suicide attempt.

A new look is coming to the railroads in the form of a "Siesta" car that offers individual rooms to passengers at a coach rate plus a small charge to cover bed linen and towels.

Attlee Calls On U.S. Red China To Forget "Fears Of Each Other"

SCARBOROUGH, England, Sept. 27 (AP) — British Labor Leader Clement Attlee called on the United States and Communist China tonight to forget fears of each other and declared the "only alternative to co-existence is co-death."

Addressing a rally on the eve of the British Labor Party's annual conference here, Attlee said the hydrogen bomb would bring down civilization.

"We simply can not afford to have another war," he said.

Attlee returned last week from a tour of Russia and Red China which he made as the head of a Labor Party delegation. He defended the visits on the grounds that it had established contact for the West with the 600 million people of China and the 200 million people of the Soviet Union.

The 3,000 Labor delegates packed in a local movie theater cheered when Attlee declared: 'What hope is there of lasting peace if all of those millions of people are to be shut away and kept from any contacts?"

The conference opens today with a discussion of the Labor delegations trip to China. Attlee foreshadowed the main lines of the discussion in his speech tonight.

U.N. ADMISSION

He called for the admission of Communist China at once to the United Nations and asked that new efforts be made up to secure world-wide disarmament.

Attlee and his arch-rival Aneurin Bevan, are at odds on whether western Germany should make a military contribution to western defense. But on the subject of Communist China they are in broad agreement, as apparently is the entire membership of the Labor Party. Attlee and Bevan journeyed together to Peiping.

Dr. Edith Summerskill, a former member of Attlee's old government, presided at tonight's rally. She also made a visit to Russia and Red China.

Dr. Summerskill said that since she is scheduled to be the party chairman next year she extended an invitation to Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov and Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-Lai to visit Britain.

She expressed the hope that Prime Minister Churchill's Conservative government would grant visas for such a visit by the Communist leaders.

Attlee dwelt at length on his impression of Red China. He gave a picture of alternate light and dark tones. He said the present Chinese Communist regime is autocratic but is "a more honest rule" than the Chinese have known in the past.

"It is rather a Puritanical government — it is putting down vice," he added.

Sweeping away of the old landlord system, he declared, has given hope to the poor people of China. He also noted the Peiping regime is making advances in housing and the health services.

NO DEMOCRACY

On the unfavorable side Attlee declared.

"You won't find a vestige of democracy there. Their judicial system is also different from ours."

Despite the great pressure of population that exists the Chinese government wants an increased population. Attlee said his attitude didn't make any sense to him. In his plea for co-existence the former British prime minister said:

"The (Communist) Chinese are apprehensive of war. China is afraid of being attacked by America. America is afraid of being attacked by the Chinese. The Russians also are afraid. Surely it is worth while to make an effort to break down those fears."

The Chinese Communists, Attlee said, really should have Formosa because they won the civil war and "drove off the old gang — and a pretty corrupt gang it was — to that island."

His reference was to the Nationalist government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

Naturally, he continued, the Peiping regime was incensed that the Nationalists were being comforted and protected by another power—the United States. He gave this as an analogy: The United States would have been annoyed if after the American civil war the British had taken Jefferson, Davis and other leaders of the confederacy "and put them on an island and protected them with the British fleet."

Attlee also said: "I do not believe the (Communist- Chinese government is a puppet in the hands of Russia."

Will It Be Chou Or Liu?

TOKYO, Sept. 27 (AP) — Peiping radio said Red China's congress will pick its top rulers today under a newly adopted constitution.

It is a foregone conclusion that the chairman will be Mao Tze-Tung, the current Red boss. The new constitution reaffirms hi dictatorial powers.

But the big question is who will be chosen vice chairman, the man most likely to succeed Mao. Will it be Russian-trained Liu Shao-Chi, a stern party disciplinarian who leans toward blood purges?

Or will it be Chou En-Lai, the premier-foreign minister whose suave, serious manner once fooled nationalist President Chiang Kai-Shek into accepting him as an adviser because he seemed to be "a reasonable Communist?"

Chou appeared before the congress last week, giving a lengthy report on Red China under Communist rule. During the talk, Chou said peace in Asia cannot be secure until Formosa is "liberated" from Chiang and the guardian U.S. 7th Fleet has withdrawn.

Two Private Organization Launch 2-Year Study On Peacetime Atom Use

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Two private, non-profit organizations today announced the launching of a two-year study of the peacetime uses of atomic energy, with major emphasis on the economic problems raised.

The National Planning Assn. (NPA) will conduct the research with $200,000 provided by Resources for the Future, Inc. (RFF), which is supported by the Ford Foundation.

The inquiry will be devoted primarily to the development expectable in the next 5 to 20 years in obtaining electric power from nuclear reactors. Special attention will be given to relationships between industry and the U.S. government in this field, said H. Christian Sonne, board chairman of the NPA.

A preliminary survey by Gerhard Colm, NPA chief economist and former chief economist of the President's council of economic advisers, indicates that valuable research can be performed using only data available to the public and without recourse to information classed as secret by the Atomic Energy Commission, Sonne said.

Part of the survey will be devoted to an analysis of regions where, because of the high cost or scarcity of conventional power, atomic reactors might be economically feasible as a source of energy for homes and industry. New England and the Pacific northwest will get special attention, he said.

The first reports on the findings will begin appearing in about a year, Sonne said, and the entire study will be summarized when it is completed with a series of policy recommendations by a committee which will guide the survey.

The NPA is a research and planning organization of leaders in business, labor, education and agriculture, established in 1934. The resources organization, a younger group devoted to long-range policy of natural resources, holds a $3,410,000 (M) grant from the Ford Foundation in support of its operations over the next five years.

POLES ARREST ALLEGED U.S. SPIES

VIENNA, Austria, Sept. 7 (AP)—Warsaw radio said today three more persons have been arrested in the breakup of what it called a U.S.-financed spy ring in Communist-governed Poland.

This brought to nine those arrested in the case since Warsaw first announced the roundup yesterday.

The broadcast, heard here, said the alleged spies were working out of West Berlin, sought to learn Polish state secrets, and "confessed that American policies are aimed at war."

EL AZIG, Turkey, Sept. 27 (AP)—Prime Minister Adnan Menderes said today Germany should be rearmed for the defense of Europe within the community of free nations.

Menderes, who is on a speaking tour, said a rearmed Germany would add to Turkey's security.

Senate Committee To Hear Publisher On Peiping Views

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—The U.S. senate internal security subcommittee announced today that John W. Powell, publisher of a news magazine in Communist China for about five years, will testify at a public hearing here today.

Chairman William Jenner (R-Ind.), who will preside, said the subcommittee will ask Powell about the treatment of American prisoners of war, his experiences with Communist officials and his contacts with other Americans in Red China.

Powell, who returned to the United States a few months ago, is the son of John B. Powell, described by the subcommittee as an anti-Communist publisher whose sufferings as a Japanese prisoner in World War II caused his death in 1947.

In San Francisco, Powell said he would be glad to testify if the committee is "genuinely interested" in obtaining information about Red China.

"If, however, this hearing turned to be another attempt to pressure men, to penalize me for my views, then I certainly shall not cooperate with the committee," his statement said.

Powell was permitted to publish U.S. weekly English language magazine in Shanghai throughout the Korean war. He left China in August, 1953.

Gruenther Surveys NATO Exercises

SENNELAGER, Germany, Sept. 27 (AP) — U.S. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme commander allied forces in Europe, today splashed his way over the rain-drenched plain of north Germany to watch nearly 2,140,000 NATO troops on atomic maneuvers.

The supreme commander was spending two days seeing the final phases of Battle Royal, the biggest workout of atomic battle techniques ever held in Europe.

After five days, the "invading northland" British-Belgian army was on the banks of the river Lippe and a big tank battle was shaping up.

The outnumbered Belgian-Canadian defenders had withdrawn south of the river. The northland force dropped an imaginary A-bomb on Lippstadt, destroying the town, knocking out two bridges and trapping some of the Belgian corps on the wrong side of the river.

Five soldiers, four British and one Belgian, have been officially reported killed in accidents connected with the exercise.

"Shooting Star," a six-nation all jet air maneuver, was concluded at Trier today.

U.S. Maj. Gen. Robert M. Lee of Augusta, Me., commander of the fourth allied tactical air force, said the four-day exercise "showed that air elements of six NATO nations can operate without difficulty."

An undisclosed number of jet planes from France, Canada, Greece, Turkey, Italy and the United States took part in the maneuver.

Air raid sirens were sounded in Oslo, Norway's capital, this afternoon as Danish jet fighters "attacked" the big air base of Gardermoen during a NATO naval and air exercise called "nothern mist."

Filipino Community To Honor Avellana At Send-Off Party

Felix V. Avellana, representative of the San Miguel Brewery on Guam, will be given a send-off party tomorrow night at 7:30 at the Rabeth restaurant in Agana. The newly-organized Filipino Community on the island is taking charge of the farewell get-together. Avellana is leaving at the end of the month for a new assignment in Manila.

Avellana, president and one of the founders of the Marianas Lions Club, has been largely responsible for the activation of the Filipino Community on Guam. As chairman of the organization committee he pushed through the constitution and by-laws and the consolidation of the Filipino elements on the island.

During his term as Lions president, Avellana undertook various civic projects—among those is the purchase of children's playground equipment to be installed soon at the Paseo de Susana. Antonio Dimalanta, president of the Filipino community said a resolution of gratitude to Avellana will be presented during the party.

Jose Ros, formerly manager of the Philippine Air Lines branch here has been designated to replace Avellana as San Miguel representative here. Ros arrived recently to take over the post.

For reservations and details on the party, interested persons are requested to get in touch with Mrs. Carmen de la Cruz at the Gateway to Music in Agana. Her phone number is 12-315.

Ferrer, Hepburn On Honeymoon

BURGENSTOCK, Switzerland, Sept. 27 (AP) — Audrey Hepburn, stage and screen actress who has won wide acclaim for her pixie-like portrayals, and actor Mel Ferrer were off today on a honeymoon that will include a "Roman Holiday."

The couple were married yesterday in a Protestant religious ceremony in this mountain resort after a civil ceremony Friday at nearby Buochs. Yesterday night they slipped away in a taxi leaving piles of luggage behind at the villa where Miss Hepburn has been taking an extended rest. Her maid said she would send for the luggage later. Ferrer's sister, Miss Terry Ferrer of New York, said the newlyweds will make their way leisurely to Rome, then go to Sardinia, where Ferrer is working on a movie. Miss Ferrer said Miss Hepburn probably will stay in Sardinia while her husband finishes his film. They may return to Switzerland for a vacation in November or December before taking off in January for Hollywood, where Miss Hepburn will make another picture.

It was the fourth marriage for 37-year-old Ferrer and the first for Miss Hepburn, 24.

Last March Miss Hepburn received a top academy-award Oscar for her performance as a princess in the 1953 film "Roman Holiday." She won an Antoinette Perry award two days later for her role as a water creature in the Broadway fantasy "Ondine."

It was in the latter play that she met Ferrer, who played opposite her.

Ferrer was born in Elberon, N.J. Miss Hepburn was born in Brussels, Belgium.

First Two Reds Elected In Syrian Parliament Polls

DAMASCUS, Syria, Sept. 27 (AP) —Syrian voters have chosen two Communist deputies, the first elected in the nation's history in parliamentary elections, it was announced today. One of the Communists elected was Khalid Bakdash, leader of the Syrian party.

Casualties in the two-day voting Friday and Saturday mounted to three killed and 60 injured. Two persons were killed and 27 wounded in the city of Maara when 1,000 henchmen of the Hikmat Kiraki, a former deputy who lost his seat to a Socialist, attacked government house. The henchmen carried away a number of voting boxes, reports said.

With results from 97 of the 142 seats complete, it appeared that independents, under the leadership of former Premier Khalid El Adem, would form the largest bloc in the new parliament.

The Nationalists led the parties with 25 deputies, and the Populists trailed with 14, the Socialists 12 and the Syrian social nationalists 4.

Runoffs for three seats will be held Oct. 4.

World Bank Clamp Down On Czech's Fund Membership

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)— The international monetary funds committee of governors on organization has voted "overwhelmingly" to suspend Czechoslovakia, last Communist member in the fund, for refusing to open an information window through the iron curtain.

This was reported today by sources in a position to know the action taken at a long meeting of the fund committee late yesterday. No formal announcement was made after the meeting.

The boards of governors of the world bank and fund, made up of finance ministers and central bank leaders from 57 member nations, are holding their ninth annual meeting here.

The same sources, declining to permit use of their names, said it appeared certain that the governors of the montary fund would vote tomorrow to uphold the organization committee.

The committee voted on a resolution which came to it from the fund executive board, proposing that Czechoslovakia be suspended from the fund. Ejection from the fund would follow if the Czechs did not by Dec. 31 supply the fund required information about its internal economy and foreign trade.

The Czechs are already under suspension from the World Bank, twin institution of the monetary fund, and will be finally ousted from the bank unless they pay up the required portion of their capital subscription by Dec. 31.

Thus, the fund committees action, if upheld by the fund governors, would make Dec. 31 the deadline for continued membership by Czechoslovakia in both organizations. Membership in the bank and fund is identical.

Indians Protest Police Action On Goan March

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 27 (AP) — Shops and restaurants in India opposite the Portuguese-held island of Diu were closed today to protest action by Indian police today in breaking up an attempted non-violence march on the settlement. of the 150 demonstrators were injured when the police, welding steel-tipped sticks, broke up the demonstration. Officials of Saurashtra state said the crowd was Communist-led.

India has been trying unsuccessfully to negotiate Portugal's release of three small districts—Diu, Goa and Damao — at the west central edge of the subcontinent. Meanwhile, New Delhi is discouraging any violence such as occurred in the "liberation" marches last month on Goa. Several persons were killed in those clashes.

TAIPEH, Sept. 27 (AP) — A total of 23 Polish and 13 Soviet Russian seamen have so far granted political asylum in Formosa.

Twelve of the Poles belonged to the 8,207-ton tanker Praca seized Oct. 4 last year. The remaining 11 were the crew of the freighter President Gottwald, seized May 13.

Poland claims ownership of both the Praca and the President Gottwald.

Moscow Maps Another Korea In Japan

Pravda Confirms Secret Duclos Talk

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—(NEA)—Watch developments in Japan.

The Moscow-Peiping Axis, encouraged by the defeat of the European Army proposal and Red victory in Indo-China, is planning to make of Japan another Korea.

The evidence is there for all to see. When the Red fifth columns finally strike in Japan, no U. S. or Western politician will be in a position to claim that he has not been warned in advance.

U. S. intelligence officials have in their possession a copy of a speech made in Paris on July 26 by Jacques Duclos, chief of the French Communist Party.

The paunchy 58-year-old ex-pastry cook, who is widely regarded as Moscow's top agent in the West, addressed a secret conclave of high officials of the Cominform, the Kremlin's political arm and fifth column in the free world.

Here is what Duclos said:

"Communism is again on the march in Asia. The conquest of Asia is a necessity for us, Communists, but we must achieve our aim, if possible, without war. Russia's victory in Indo-China was only a beginning. Soon there will also be new and startling developments in Japan."

Duclos' ominous forecast is confirmed in detail by Moscow's Pravda of Sept. 3, a copy of which just reached the U. S.

The Kremlin's mouthpiece, in a long editorial on "Japan's National Interests," comes straight to the point:

It was, of course, "the military forces of the Soviet Union and China" who liberated Japan in World War II.

And it is "the U. S. that prevented occupied Japan—and this is also admitted by Japanese leaders of various political views —from developing along democratic lines."

Says Pravda: "As facts show, the American occupation is a national disaster for Japan. The ruling American circles seek to transform the country into a battlefield and a supplier of cannon fodder in order to realize their criminal adventures."

But the Kremlin bosses, as usual, do not despair, for "the Japanese people in trouble due to the U. S. occupation are not ready to make peace with the existing situation."

The contrary is true, according to Pravda: "The Japanese people struggle actively against the militarization of their country and demand the withdrawal of U. S. troops and liquidation of the numerous U. S. bases on Japanese soil."

Here, then, is a forecast of things to come as clear as daylight.

The Red mouthpiece, as usual, put in the mouth of the "people"—in this case the "Japanese people" —the plans that the Reds themselves aim to carry out in the near future.

The last part of the Red editorial diatribe against "American imperialism" deserves to be quoted in full if only because the free world, especially the U. S., will hear a great deal more about it in the days to come.

Pravda writes: "A powerful campaign for the ban of atomic and hydrogen weapons is developing in Japan. Already 18 million signatures have been collected."

The Red-inspired "peace" campaign also received the backing of 34 prefectures and 104 municipal councils "embracing 64 million Japanese."

All this, of course, is conclusive proof to the Moscow-Peiping Axis that "there are forces in Japan able to struggle against the policy of war and enslavement of Japan by American imperialism."

To anyone familiar with the typical Red double talk all this is plain enough. As though to clinch the argument, the August issue of the New Times, the Cominform's chief organ, adds:

"Developments in Asia, the mounting success of the national-liberation movement, convincingly show that nowadays the urge of its teeming millions for liberty and national independence cannot be crushed."

REDS ON THE MARCH IN JAPAN: For Tokyo's May Day, Communist paraders carry paper caricatures of President Eisenhower and a pro-American member of the Japanese cabinet as they demonstrate against United States influence in Japan's affairs.

Yoshida In Canada On 1st Lap Of Tour

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 27 (AP) — Prime Minister Yoshida of Japan, smiling and apparently in high spirits, arrived here by plane today from Tokyo for his first visit to Canada.

Canada is the first six western nations and the Vatican which the Japanese conservative leader will pass through on his 50-day goodwill tour.

Japanese dignitaries and a crowd of more than 20 Japanese-Canadians assembled at the Vancouver airport to greet the prime minister as he stepped off the Canadian Pacific Air Lines plane carrying his party. The 17-hour flight from Tokyo via the great circle route was without incident.

Police took special security precautions at the airport, just as was done at Tokyo, but Yoshida's arrival was uneventful.

The prime minister was greeted by the Japanese ambasador to Canada, K. Matsudaira, and other Japanese diplomatic officials. Afterward, Yoshida made a brief speech expressing his pleasure over the opportunity to visit Canada. But he declined any formal press conference until after he has met the Canadian heads of state at Ottawa.

This afternoon the Japanese government leader laid a wreath on a Vancouver memorial commemorating Japanese who fought for Canada in World War I. Tonight he was to dine with the retiring Canadian ambassador to Japan, Robert Mayhew.

The prime minister and his party, which includes his daughter, Mrs. Takiuchi Aso and her husband, a member of the Japanese Diet, will leave by plane toomrrow for Ottawa.

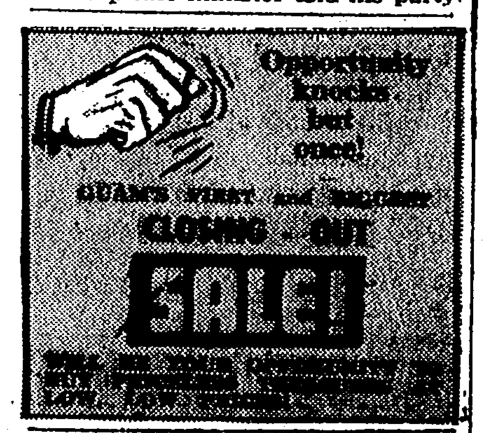
Office Moved

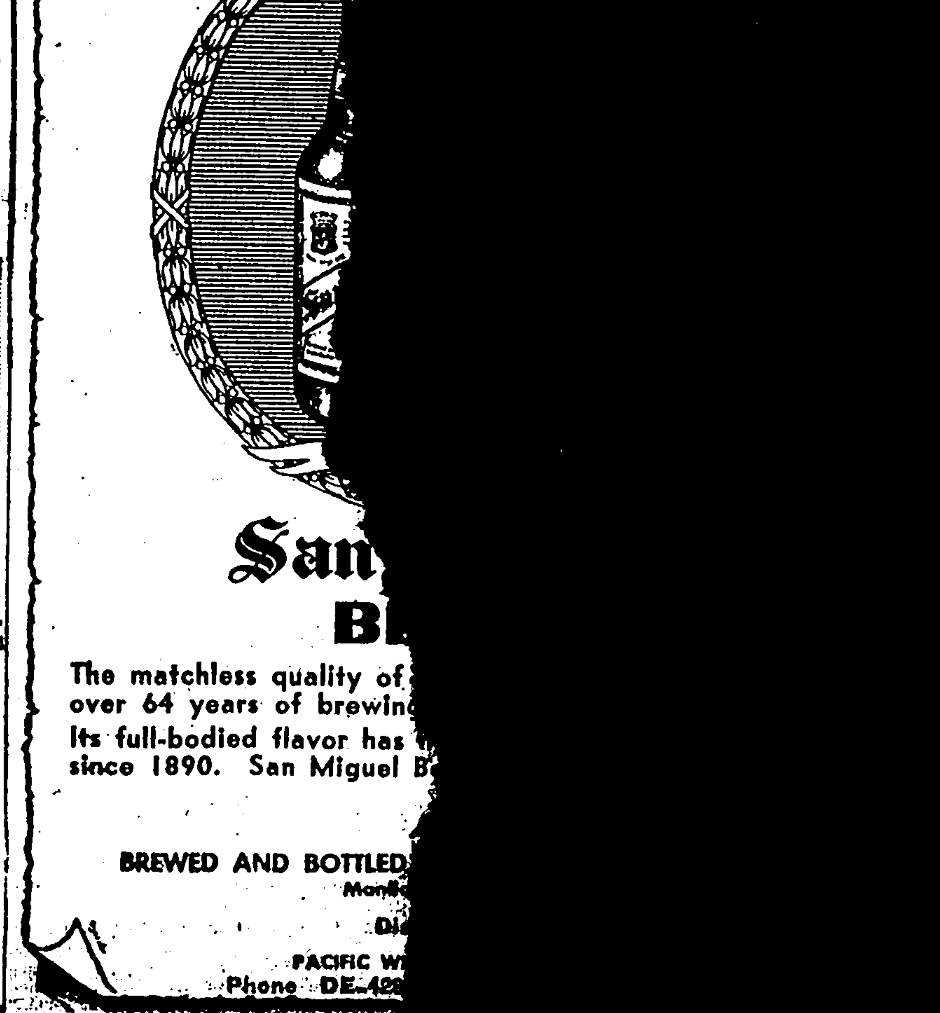
Civilian personnel payroll section transferred operation and office location to the wing comptroller office yesterday, Mrs. Vivian Phillips, time, leave and payroll supervisor, announced.

Part of an air force-wide action first announced in July, the move is the result of discussions concerning the dual role of payroll in relation to civilian personnel and comptroled offices since the two sections are directly involved in payroll activities.

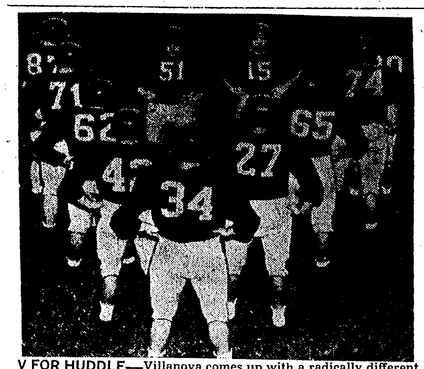
Hereafter civilian checks will be picked up at and time and attendance reports submitted to the new civilian payroll section in the comptroller section.

The anouncement said there will be no change in payroll section personnel.





Mays, Avila Win Batting Titles



V FOR HUDDLE—Villanova comes up with a radically different huddle. All save the quarterback and center stand straight up facing the line of scrimmage. This enables nine men to watch the defense as the quarterback calls the signal. (NEA)

KLUSZEWSKI, DOBY GARNER RBI, HOMER DIADEMS IN EACH LEAGUE

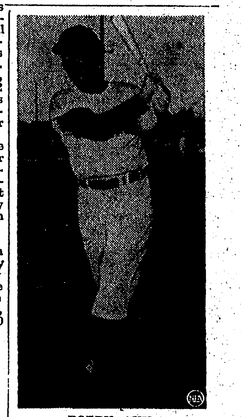
NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP)—Willie Mays, sparkplug of New York's National League champions, and Bobby Avila, 28-year-old second basemen of Cleveland's American League titleholders, carried off the major league batting honors as last year's champions finished far down the list.

Mays, connecting with three hits in four times at bat against Philadelphia yesterday, raised his final average to .345 to beat out teammate Don Mueller and Brooklyn's Duke Snider on the final day. Mueller, who went two for six, closed out the campaign with .342 and Snider blanked by Pittsburgh's Jake Thies, with .341. Carl Furillo of Brooklyn won last year with .344.

Avila took the American League batting crown by a much bigger margin with a .341 average. Minnie Minoso of Chicago took second with .320, one more point than teammate Nellie Fox. Mickey Vernon of Washington won in 1953 with .337.

WILLIAMS INELIGIBLE

Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox actually outhit Avila by four points but was at bat only 386 times. To be eligible for the batting title a player must have batted at least 400 times. Ted, who walked aproximately 150 times, finished fifth, a game back of Boston.



BOBBY AVILA
. . . won by 20 points

WILLIE MAYS
. . . came a long way

Karl Spooner, Brooklyn's brilliant 25-year-old lefthander continued his amazing strikeout pace, fanning 12 more batters to set a record of 27 for his first two starts. He struck out 15 New York Giants Thursday and whiffed 12 Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday. Gil Hodges' 42nd homer gave the Dodgers a 1-0 victory.

Mays had a single, double and triple in the Giants' extra inning triumph at Philadelphia. Joe Garagiola's double and Bill Gardner's single won for the Giants in the 11th, spoiling Robin Roberts' bid for a 24th victory.

Bob Rush held Cincinnati to six hits, ending the Reds' chances of tying for fourth place. It was Rush's fifth straight and 13th of the season.

St. Louis edged Milwaukee 2-0 in 11 innings on a two-run homer by Wally Moon. A crowd of 39,485 turned out at County Stadium, making the Milwaukee total 2,131,388, a league record.

Fred Hatfield's two-run homer in the 13th game gave Detroit the nod over Cleveland which finished with a 111-43 record, best in American League history.

Furgol Wins "World Series Of Golf"; Bests Wininger For $7,500 1st Prize

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Marty Furgol, wise cracking veteran from Lemont, Ill., stood off a spirited challenge by Bo Wininger yesterday to win the $40,000 "World Series of Golf" by a single stroke.

Furgol captured the $7,500 first prize, the biggest payoff in his golf history. He made it with a 72-hole score of 273—11 under par. Wininger, shooting a nifty 68 today to Furgol's 69, was in with 274.

Wininger's surge carried the tensely built-up dramatics down to the 18th hole, with the two golfers deadlocked for the lead at the end of 71.

The 31-year-old golfing newcomer from Oklahoma City was on the green in the regulation two strokes, 12 feet from the cup. But his putter deserted him when he needed it most and he muffed a three looter that would have given him a par.

Meanwhile, Furgol blasted his drive 299 yards onto the green.

Gambling, Furgol putted strongly, seeking an eagle 2, but had to settle for a par 4.

Rams, Lions Take NFL Inaugurals

Sept. 27 (AP)—The Los Angeles Rams went 80 yards to score on the first play of a new National Football League season with an old fashioned sleeper trick yesterday and then proceeded to slaughter the Baltimore Colts 48-0.

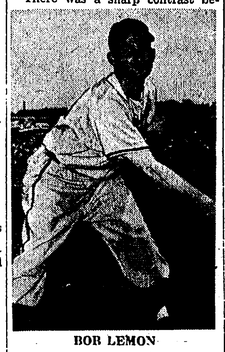
Rookie Bill Bowman, 210 pounds of fullback fury, combined with the versatile Doak Walker to lead the Detroit Lions to a 48-23 victory over the Chicago Bears in the season's league opener before 52,434 in Briggs Stadium.

Lemon Aad Maglie Probable Starter's In Series Opener

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP) — Cleveland remained a solid 17 to 10 favorite over the New York Giants for the World Series opening Thursday as the major leagues finished their regular seasons yesterday.

There was a sharp contrast between the way managers Leo Durocher and Al Lopez approached the Series. Durocher used his front line pitching with tender care while Lopez sent his "big three" all the way in their final tune-ups.



BOB LEMON

Sal Maglie, expected to be the Giants' starter, worked two innings Sunday night against the Phils and Ruben Gomez, who probably will be tapped for game No. 3, pitched three innings. Johnny Antonelli, the big winner of the staff with 21 victories, breezed two innings yesterday.

Lopez used Bob Lemon the full nine innings Saturday against Chicago and Early Wynn almost threw a no-hitter Sunday against the White Sox.

The two managers are playing it cute about naming their opening day starters. Lopez ... hell

WILLIAMS SAYS HE'S THROUGH

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox slugger, said farewell to baseball yesterday—or did he?

"I've already decided," he replied to a reporter's query on when he would make up his mind about playing another year.

The usually silent Williams was talking cheerfully to the in the Boston dressing room after the final game of the in which he had hit his 29th home run in an 11-2 v Washington.

"I talked to General Manager Joe Cronin brief say goodbye," Williams added.

"The game is getting tougher all the time that 25 or 30 percent of our schedule this year doubleheaders where the lights went on during t and that's not counting the night games.

"If you don't believe me, look at the averag prised to play 84 games in a row. I don't think Still, there was a note of doubt among those Ted's words. There were those who still believed h his mind and report for spring training with the March.

Williams, fifth ranked home run hitter in majo tory with 366, played in but 117 of Boston's 156 game He broke a collarbone in spring practice, keeping h until May 15 (second day back he got eight hits in in a doubleheader) and then was idled by a virus inf June 6 to June 23.

The amazing 36-year-old Williams finished a close sec American League batting race this year despite his fortunes. He finished with a .345 average in 386 at b bats shy of the mandatory 400 a player must have to qu the batting championship. Adding those 14 trips to t without a hit, Williams' average was .3325 while Clevelan Avila won the crown with a .341 average.

Williams lower average wasn't caused by illness a alone—opposing pitchers took the easy way against Ted occasions, walking him approximately 150 times. Those balls don't count as official trips to the plate.

About his plans, Ted said he'd be busier than ever h in his life.

"There's a million things I've wanted to do, never ha to do and I'm going to tackle some of them now."

He was scheduled to leave for Presque Isle, Maine, last where he will be flown to a couple of inaccessible lakes week's fishing.

McCarthy Censure Urged

GIVE FORMOSA TO SINO REDS, ATTLEE URGES

SCARBOROUGH, England, Sept. 28 (AP) — Former British Prime Minister Clement Attlee declared today Formosa should be turned over to Red China along with rank-and-file Chinese Nationalists there. He urged the transfer of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek to "some safe place."

The mild-mannered Laborite, just back from China and Russia, addressed the annual Labor Party conference, which promptly acted on several important resolutions in line with his views.

1. The conference, in which delegates cast blocks of ballots representing all members in the trade unions and other groups forming labor's backbone, voted 4,358,000 to 1,822,000 against asking the United States to withdraw its air forces from British bases as a menace to the civilian population. Attlee had warned against any hasty disarmament, saying "you have to deal with something in your own hand if you want to bargain."

2. The Laborites called for Eisenhower-Churchill-Malenkov talks, but rejected a resolution offer which sought to keep the British government from manufacturing or ever using nuclear weapons. Attlee had told the delegates there should be top-level East-West talks about the hydrogen bomb threat, which he called a "menace to everything we stand for."

3. The conference also rejected by votes of about 3-2 a pair of resolutions aimed at the new U.S.-sponsored Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO). Attlee had voiced indirect support for SEATO, but expressed hope all countries in the area, including Red China, eventually will be brought into some nonaggression pact.

Today's balloting appeared to bode well for Attlee and other moderate labor leaders in the big conference fight scheduled for tomorrow. The Moderates will attempt to pass a resolution supporting in principle West German rearmament with safeguards. Aneurin Bevan's leftwingers oppose German rearmament in any form.

Attlee's call for turning Formosa, stronghold of Chiang's Nationalists over to the Peiping regime "after a period" apparently went beyond his previous declarations on the subject. Heretofore he has suggested neutralizing the island—either under special mandate or as a United Nations trusteeship. He viewed his entire program, including Formosa, as a way of easing the "great fears" which he said exist in both the United States and China and renewed his call for admitting Communist China to the United Nations.

As the 3,000 conference delegates listened attentively, he turned to the U. S. attitude on Formosa, saying:

"I can quite understand United States feeling on this, but I do not think they are sufficiently realistic. As long as you have this thorn in the side of China, you will not get proper peace in that part of Asia."

Any Red Chinese thrust to seize Formosa by force would collide with the U. S. Seventh Fleet, now standing guard in the strait of Formosa.

Attlee said he learned on his recent trip the Peiping regime feels "very bitterly on the subject of Formosa, and I think they have a case." He continued:

"I believe the right thing to do would be that Chiang Kai-Shek and his immediate adherents—who are utterly discredited—should be retired away to some safe place to live their lives in peace."

Ferry Death Toll Soars To 1,600; Typhoon Is Jap's Worst Disaster

HAKODATE, Japan, Sept. 28 (AP)—Bodies and debris littered the beaches here today after a savage typhoon sank a huge ferry and killed possibly 1,600 persons, most of them in northern Japan.

The victims died in Japan's worst maritime disaster Sunday when the typhoon, which had been heading out across the Sea of Japan, turned and struck northern Japan with winds of 100 miles an hour.

The Toya Maru with an estimated 1,200 persons aboard, had anchored off Hakodate harbor when the rush of wind and water hit. It capsized and only 163 persons were known to have survived.

Among the dead were 17 Americans — soldiers, their dependents and civilians. Nearly 50 other Americans were listed as missing by the U.S. Army and Japan national railway headquarters.

Four other ferries from Hakodate were also caught in the unexpected lash of the storm and sank. The tides still were washing in bodies. Rescue workers searched the beaches and debris in the hope of finding more alive.

1,552 DEAD

The marine safety board said that throughout the storm area, 12 steamships, 25 motor schooners and 312 other vessels were sunk. It listed 1,552 persons dead or missing from sea disasters alone.

The board's figures cover an area from southern Japan, where the typhoon first struck, to northern Japan. It said never before in history had a typhoon wrought such damage in the seas around Japan.

Two U. S. Navy ships and planes from four U. S. bases in Japan launched a search for any other survivors but stiff winds and high waves kept rescue work at a minimum.

The typhoon's winds whipped up a great fire that within minutes destroyed 3,000 of 4,800 houses at Iwanai, a city of 23,000 population 90 miles north of Hakodate. Police said 32 were dead there and 56 were missing.

Police and coast guard officials estimated 600 bodies had been washed ashore by last night. About 500 bodies were believed caught in the hull of the Toya Maru, which sank only 150 yards from

Eden Sets 50-Day German Timetable

LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden proposed tonight the Western allies speed up their timetable to get an agreement within 50 days on freeing and rearming West Germany.

Eden's proposal was the latest in the behind-the-scenes maneuvering on the eve of the fateful nine-power conference opening here tomorrow to bring West Germany into the free world's defense setup.

U.S. Secretary of State Dulles, following a three-hour talk with Eden Sunday night and a 90-minute conference with French Premier Pierre Mendes-France yesterday, was reported insisting on "substantial progress in 1954."

But at the last minute, the French cast a new and disturbing element under Brussels pact auspices as a condition for their acceptance of West German rearmament.

Eden's new plan proposed postponing the meeting of the NATO council of foreign ministers, set for around Oct. 15, to give the Allies time to grant West Germany its sovereignty so it could become a partner in the Atlantic alliance.

EDEN'S POINTS

Diplomatic officials said Eden urged:

1. That the London conference opening tomorow conduct parallel talks. The foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany should arange for the restoration of German sovereignty. The full nine-power conference would concentrate on German rearmament.

2. Experts would be instructed to work out details of the general

BITTER SENATE DEBATE OVER REPORT SEEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP) — A public and official reprimand for Sen. Joseph McCarthy was recommended today by a U.S. senate committee of three Democrats and three Republicans.

The committee said the Wisconsin Republican should be censured for conduct it described as contemptuous, contumacious, denunciatory, unworthy, inexcusable and reprehensible.

The report, which surprised many by its vigor, set the stage for what promises to be a long and bitter debate in the special senate session convening Nov. 8 to consider the recommendations.

In voting unanimously for censure on two of five main categories of charges against McCarthy, the investigating committee headed by Sen. Arthur Watkins (R-Utah) held that:

McCarthy was "contemptuous, contumacious and denunciatory" toward a senate subcommittee which investigated his finances in 1952.

He made statements about fellow senators on the subcommittee that were "clearly intemperate, in bad taste and unworthy of a member of this body."

ZWICKER CASE

He treated Brig. Gen. W. Zwicker, when the general was a witness before him, in a manner that was "inexcusable and reprehensible."

The Watkins committee said other charges brought against the controversial senator "do not, under all the evidence, justify a resolution of censure."

These were that McCarthy had sought to incite federal employes to break the law to bring him government secrets, and that he had improperly received and used confidential information from executive files.

But while recommending against censure in these instances, the Watkins committee said the evidence in them did show McCarthy had "committed a grave error" and acted improperly, showing "a high degree of irresponsibility."

Whether the senate will vote censure remained very much in doubt tonight. When half of the senate's 96 members had been polled informally by the Associated Press, 29 of them were not saying how they might vote.

Eleven senators were apparently inclined to approve of censure and three inclined to oppose it.

Ten More Quit November Race

Ten more condidates have withdrawn from the November congressional race bringing the total withdrawals to 15, Election Commissioner V. U. Zafra announced yesterday. With the Popular Party's candidates trimmed down to 21, the total number of candidates was lowered to 53, 32 of whom are independents.

A reminder to all independent candidates still in the race was issued by the commissioner's office. Zafra said the deadline for the submission of the nominating petition has been set not later than midnight, October 2.

The nominating petition must be signed by not less than 50 registered voters, the commissioner explained. He said all independent candidates are required to submit this petition. Official candidates of the Popular Party are not required to submit individual nominating petitions, Zafra declared. The signature of the party secretary, acknowledging the candidates as the party's standard bearers, would be

Carney Notes Reds' Naval Strength; Urges US To Vitalize Own Program

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 28 (AP) — Adm. Robert B. Carney said tonight that if Soviet Russia continues to increase its naval strength at the present rate the United States must either accelerate its own program or risk falling behind.

The chief of U.S. naval operations added that the bulk of the swiftly expanding Red fleet is of ultramodern design while the majority of American warships are of World War II vintage.

In an address prepared for delivery to a joint meeting of the navy league and the Minneapolis Foreign Policy Assn., Carney said:

"The rise of the Soviet navy makes it crystal clear that the Soviet government is striving for a preeminent position in the maritime world. Already they have achieved second-ranking naval position in combat and merchant tonnage, can only lead one to believe that they are not content to remain a second-ranking naval power.

"Within the next five years or so, the sea-going vigor of the great majority of our smaller type anti-submarine and escort vessels will

DEFENSE DILEMMA

AN old and grave dilemma which faces our nation's military planners was once again brought into focus by two recent news reports.

In news report number one, the British Royal Air Force came out with its wartime history which blames the German air defeat on a blunder by Hitler's generals. It concludes that the Nazis had aircraft designs which were better than those of the Allies, but the Luftwaffe high command failed to press their development.

When World War II began, the Luftwaffe's stockpile of planes was the biggest and best in the world. But while Britain, the U. S. and Russia went on to newer designs, the Germans continued to fight with their mass supply of old ones. The planes which had won in 1940 were still expected to do so in 1943. And this, to the RAF, was Germany's fatal error.

NEWS report number two came from the U. S. Naval Department which warns that the U. S. fleet is in danger of "bloc obsolescence." A basic problem, the Navy declares, is that most of our present fighting ships were built during World War II and their useful lives will soon be over. An example is the U. S. S. Missouri, our best-known ship of the war, which only a few days ago was sent to our growing "mothball fleet."

At present rates of expansion, the naval power of Russia will begin outdating our own by 1958—and will rank supreme in the world in roughly another decade. To prevent this from taking place, we will have to build hundreds of ships in a massive 10-year program costing $28,000,000,000.

These reports, taken together, point up the vital question of just how far it is safe to go in building up stockpiles of weapons. The grave dilemma is this: A nation that's not well armed is an easy prey to aggression. But a nation which arms "to the teeth" and stays that way for years is flirting with serious hazards.

In building a massive arsenal, it may fatally strain its basic economy, or be lulled into false security. Then when the actual battle arrives, it may find that its piles of equipment are suddenly out of date.

THE problem has never been greater than it is in America today. It lies at the very core of debates over size of our Air Force and Navy. Should we take the planes of today and put them in mass production so our Air Force becomes the largest? Or would this result tomorrow in an oversupply of inferior weapons? And how should we rebuild our Navy en masse or a bit at a time?

The experts admit there are no safe answers. There also is no consolation in the fact that our possible enemies are faced with a similar problem. For if shooting starts, they will start it which means they can gear their arsenal building for definite times and locations.

The lesson learned from the Germans is clear and worthy of notice: that a stockpile which grows too large is loaded with hidden dangers.

But we seem to have no other choice but to keep our backlog of arms constantly even or ahead in relation to those of our possible foes. For it's better to have a gun that is old than it is to have no gun at all.

have waned," he said. "Already many of them are kept operating Six praised the work of the committee or spoke well of its members, but went no further.

MCCARTHY TO FIGHT

The Chicago Tribune quoted McCarthy as saying:

"If the senate upholds this report and all its implications, it will have gone a long way toward abdication of its constitutional right to investigate wrongdoings in the executive departments.

"I do not care whether I am censured or not but I will fight against establishing a precedent which will curb investigative power and assist any administration in power to cover up its misdeeds."

Edward Bennett Williams, McCarthy's lawyer in the Watkins committee hearings, said the senator will make a vigorous defense on the senate floor that will require "quite a considerable time."

The White House kept out of the picture. Murray Snyder, President Eisenhower's assistant press secretary, said at Denver: "That's strictly senate business. The White House will have no comment."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—History shows that only three senators have been censured by the U.S. senate.

In 1902 the senate adopted 54-12 a resolution censuring its South Carolina members, John L. McLaurin and Benjamin R. Tillman who were engaged in a fist fight on the senate floor.

In 1929 Sen. Hiram Bingham of Connecticut was censured for having brought into a closed meeting of the senate finance committee on a tariff bill the assistant to the president of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association. The vote was 54-22.

The report of the special senate committee to consider censure of Sen. Joseph McCarthy said it found no precedents that were particularly helpful in tackling his job.

A censure vote carried no penalties other than the indirect effects a rebuke from fellow senators might bring about.

Bingham was defeated when he ran for re-election in 1932 after the vote to censure him.

Tillman was reelected twice after he was censured.

McLaurin did not run again.

Urges Fleet Buildup

only by intense maintenance and repair and their equipment is obsolete.

"Our reserve ships of this type are in the same category with respect to equipment. The point is this: ships and machinery grow old just like people grow old; new glands and technical vitamins can be effective just so long, and then a new generation must take over. Specifically, more emphasis must be given to the building of destroyer and escort types and submarines in order to avoid the penalty of bloc obsolescence."

Carney said "no stone is being left unturned to improve what we already have, not just in terms of today, but tomorrow and after tomorrow." As an example, he reported, guided missiles and new electronic developments are being added "to our older hulls where weight and space factors permit."

Zafra said the commissioner's office will be opened the whole day Saturday and until midnight to receive the nominating petitions. The 30th day before the November 2 elections has been set by law as the deadline for the submission of nominating petitions, he stated. Independent candidates who fail to muster the required 50 signatures are automatically dropped out of the list of candidates, Zafra added.

Meanwhile the election commissioner released the list of 24 precincts for the November elections together with the areas covered by each polling place.

They are: Precinct No. 1, Agana school, Agana city; No. 2, Asan school, Asan municipality excluding Maina district; No. 3, Maina social hall, Maina district; No. 4, Piti school, Piti municipality; No. 5, Agat school, Agat municipality excluding Santa Rita district; No. 6, Santa Rita school, Santa Rita district; No. 7, former Umatac school, Umatac municipality; No. 8, Merizo school, Merizo municipality; No. 9, Inarajan school, Inarajan municipality; No. 10, Talofofo school, Talofofo municipality; No. 11, former Yona school, Yona municipality; No. 12, Chalan Pago school, Chalan Pago and Ordot districts; No. 13, former GWHS auditorium, districts of Didigue, Afame, Chalan Pepato and Block 8 to 15 (Sinajana); No. 14, Sinajana Elementary school, Blocks 1 to 7, 21, 22, 18, 19 and 16 (Sinajana); No. 15, Sinajana Elementary School, Blocks 23 to 31 inclusive and Block 17 (Sinajana); No. 16, Agana Heights school, Agana Heights district; No. 17, Mongmong school, Mongmong and Toto districts; No. 18, GWHS auditorium, Maite and Jalaguac districts; No. 19, Barrigada school, Barrigada village (proper); No. 20, Barrigada school, Barrigada municipality (outside the village); No. 21, Mangilao school, Mangilao municipality; No. 22, Tamuning school, district of Tamuning and Tumon; No. 23, Dededo school, municipality of Dededo; No. 24, Yigo school, Yigo municipality and Machanao.

agreements reached for the consideration of a second nine-power conference to be held within one month, presumably in London.

3. If the ministers agree on the details at their second meeting, they would jointly report to a special meeting of the NATO council to be held not later than mid-November.

4. The NATO council then would formally admit Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's West German federal republic as the 15th member of the inter-continental military alliance.

The agreement, involving changes in each country's political and military commitments, then would have to go through the mill of national parliaments for final ratification.

Mendes-France, whose parliament is most wary about seeing the Germans march again, has told Eden privately he will stake the life of his government on getting an agreed plan through the French chamber this year.

Eden circulated his plan presumably with the clear aim of emphasizing the "now or never" urgency which London and Washington attach to quick German rearmament.

the shore.

Some of the bodies probably came from the four other ferries, which carried about 300 crewmen. Police said only about 45 were known to have survived from the sinking of the four.

A U.S. tank landing ship, carrying 101 soldiers of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division, ran aground during the big blow but all aboard were reported safe.

80 JAPS DEAD

About 80 Japanese were killed, according to police estimates, by the typhoon Sunday when it roared across the main islands of Kyushu and Honshu. It then moved on north into the Sea of Japan.

Instead of heading for Siberia, as expected, the typhoon began generating 100-mile winds. It then turned and struck the 40-mile wide Tsugaru Strait, which separates the northern island of Hokkaido from the main home island of Honshu.

Hakodate, principal city of Hokkaido, lies on the north side of the strait about 400 miles north of Tokyo.

The Toya Maru had set out from Hakodate for Aomori, on the northern shore of Honshu. With the hoisting of storm warnings, it anchored outside the harbor.

Then the great seas swept in, the anchor chain broke, engines went dead and several dozen railway cars in the hold apparently broke loose, causing the ferry to capsize.

"Suddenly the ship tipped over until the left (port) side of the ship became the ceiling and water started pouring in from the bottom," said Emiko Champagne, who said she is the wife of Sgt. Charles Champagne of Houma, La., a member of the 7th Cavalry Regiment who was listed as missing.

"Everyone was trying to get out. It was hell. I could not swim and my husband stayed beside me shouting 'keep your head out of the water!'"

She said she lost consciousness and the next she knew she was in the sea, tossed by the waves which washed her ashore.

Pfc. Frank Goedken, 21, Dubuque, Iowa, the lone soldier listed as a survivor, said he got out through a port hole.

Daikichi Yamazaki, a Japanese survivor, described the ordeal as "hell on earth."

Police officials said they believe the ferry still held the bodies of about 500 persons.

Activities Of PI Reds Increasing, Officer Reports

MANILA, Sept. 28 (AP) — Army intelligence officials last night said the Communists are stepping up their activities in the Philippines:

The report was made to Lt. Gen. Jesus Vargas, army chef of staff, by Colonel Ismael Lapuz, military intelligence service chief.

Lapuz said:

1. Three Filipinos sent by Filipino and Chinese Communist organizations to Moscow and Peiping for study have returned to the Philippines. Twelve others still are undergoing training in these Red capitals.

2. Three "Chinese Communist advisers" recently slipped out of the country, presumably for consultation in Peiping.

3. Communist leaders confined to the state prison at Muntinglupa have taken advantage of crowded conditions to establish closely knit "Red cells" and indoctrinating other prisoners to Communism.

4. Nearly 600,000 Chinese, "heavily infiltrated" with Communists, are not registered with the government. Official records show there are only 200,000 registered in the country.

General Vargas expressed concern over Lapuz' report in view of the increased military activities of Red China against Nationalist China and the threat to "liberate" Formosa.

Vargas said the large number of unregistered Reds in the Philippines "constitute a grave threat to national security."

Lapuz said the three Filipinos recently returned from Peiping and Moscow may attempt to reactivate the Philippine Communist party and the local Chinese Red organization.

The Chinese Communist bureau was broken in the Philippines in December, 1952, when the army made mass arrests throughout the islands. Most of the 122 detained were confined to Muntinglupa.

Meanwhile, congressional investigation will begin this week into reports of a one million dollar underground trade with Red China through Hong Kong.

Rep. Ferdinand E. Marcos has charged a group of Chinese traders in the Philippines are doing business with the Reds through the British crown colony. The probe will be conducted by a subcommittee of the anti-Filipino activities.

Ex-US Envoy To China Says Taipeh Sparks Asian Anti-Red Resistance

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP) — John Leighton Stuart, former U.S. ambassador to China, says the Nationalist Chinese regime of Chiang Kai-Shek can be counted on to "persevere in its resistance to communism."

In a copyrighted book printed serially in the weekly magazine U.S. News & World Report, Stuart said the regime has shortcomings but that it "sparks the spirit of resistance among the peoples of eastern Asia . . . makes common cause with the United States."

Stuart, a veteran of 50 years of missionary, educational and diplomatic work in China, said this country cannot afford to recognize the Red Chinese government.

He criticized what he termed hesitant or wavering American policy during the final phases of the Communist campaign to drive Chiang from the Chinese mainland.

A white paper issued by the state department in 1949 disclaiming responsibility for the Nationalist debacle, Stuart said, was indicative of "confused thinking in the department of state as of Aug. 1949" under then Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

But Stuart argued that despite the mistakes of the past, the United States cannot afford to take any action that would result in strengthening the communist world or diminishing the strength of the free world.

He said recognition of Communist China by the United States would lead to the liquidation of Chiang's Nationalist government and open the door of the United Nations to the Chinese Reds.

Stuart was ambassador to China from 1946 until his return to Washington in 1949. He served as chief adviser to Gen. George C. Marshall who headed a special mission which sought but failed to create a coalition government in China after World War II.

Refugees Prefer Reds

BANGKOK, Sept. 28 (AP) — Most Vietnamese refugees in Thailand have told authorities here they would prefer returning to the northern Communist-controlled Viet Nam rather than the free south, the Bangkok Post reported today.

Quoting Thai police sources, the Post said orders had been issued to collect such refugees in a camp at Roi-Et in northeastern Thailand, where plans will be made to send them to North Viet Nam.

Repentant Japan Wooing Canada

OTTAWA, Sept. 28 (AP) — Shigeru Yoshida, prime minister of Japan, today asked Canadians to accept his word that his country wants to be a "good neighbor."

Yoshida made the statement at a news conference following his arrival in the capital by air from Vancouver for a two-day visit.

Yoshida, first Japanese prime minister to visit this country, said he hopes Canada will accept more immigrants from his country, that Japanese-Canadian trade will increase and that Japan will be invited to enter the 14-country Colombo plan conference opening here Oct. 4.

Speaking English with some difficulty, Yoshida told reporters the past record of his country, one of Canada's World War II enemies, had not been happy. However, Japan now wanted to be a good neighbor of Canada.

Aussie Fears U.S. Subsidized Exports

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP) — Sir Arthur Fadden, governor for Australia in the international monetary fund, said today that the U.S. policies have "revived in our minds the ugly spectre of subsidized exports" which he said are "a threat to the livelihood of thousands of agricultural producers in other parts of the world."

"I say earnestly but without rancor," Sir Arthur told the 57-nation meeting of the World Bank and Monetary Fund, "that such policies may do the world a great disservice."

He said Australia 'in common with any others, lacks the power with which to withstand such overwhelming competition," without the use of discriminatory training systems.

Sir Arthur was speaking, he said, of the "growing surplus of agricultural products in the western world, many of them stimulated by economic subsidies."

He said the U.S. Congress has "provided funds and taken other steps", in connection with the sale of agricultural surpluses which recalled the "ugly spectre" of subsidized exports.

Past experience, he said, "leaves us to fear the disruptive effect on our traditional markets of overeager efforts to liquidate the fruits of past domestic policies in the U.S."

U.S. To Set Up 3rd Radar Chain Across Canada

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP) — The United States and Canada today announced plans to build a fence of radar stations across the top of the continent as far north as practicable in the Arctic.

This new, northernmost network will be designed to give as early warning as possible of the approach of any enemy planes across the polar icecap and thus to help intercept a possible hydrogen or atomic bomb attack on America's big cities.

It will be the third radar chain stretched across Canada.

The "pinetree" chain, started four years ago, extends across the populated southern part of the dominion, generally along the 54th parallel. This was a joint Canadian-U.S. project. Last spring, Canada undertook to finance, construct and operate the "mid-Canada line" of radar stations across the broad center of the country.

Announcement of the new chain, made simultaneously here and in Ottawa said Canada and the United States had agreed in principle that "there is a need for the establishment of a distant early warning line across the far northern part of North America."

U.S. Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson, discussing the radar defenses at a new conference, declined to pinpoint the location of the new chain except to say it is "well within the Arctic circle."

Wilson said the northern chain, like the mid-Canada line, will be primarily a radar system, unlike the more intricate and costly "pinetree" chain which is tied in with control of anti-aircraft and guided missiles defenses.

World Bank Told Of Asian Loan Disparity

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP) — Japanese Finance Minister Ogasawara, speaking in the capacity as Japanese governor of the World Bank, told the bank's annual meeting today that less developed areas of the world need more attention than they are getting now.

Ogasawara said bank loans to Asia thus far comprise 233 million dollars, or about 11.5 per cent of all bank loans, whereas the population of Asian countries that have received loans is about 700 million persons or about 48 per cent of the population represented by bank and fund member countries.

Russian Mars Trip?

LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP) — Moscow radio says Soviet scientists are confident they will be able to send a rocket to the moon "in the near future."

A weekend broadcast said Russian experts already have fired rockets to an altitude of "around 400 kilometers" — nearly 250 miles.

They are so sure they will be able to reach the moon, and later Mars and Venus, that they are now working on ways to protect their space ships from collisions with meteors, the broadcast said. It added that a Soviet engineer named Shternfeld has already mapped out "the most suitable trajectories along which ships will be able to make flights to the moon and Mars."

Romulo Demands Greater Asian Role In UN; Bats For Int'l Atom Agency

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 27 (AP) — Blunt-speaking Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, chairman of the Philippine delegate at the U.N., demanded a greater role for Asia in the world organization today.

Coupling his call for making the U.N. stronger in the atomic age with that demand, Romulo also insisted that the United States make clear its proposed international agency for peaceful use of atomic power should be organized under the U.N. and not as a national agency.

Romulo resumed leadership of the delegation after a weekend in Washington on other Philippine business.

He has been writing articles and making speeches warning that the U.N. was growing weaker and some way would have to be found to make it live up to its early promise.

After noting in his prepared policy address to the assembly that the United Nations completed its organization before the first A-bomb was dropped, Romulo said "the United Nations was not built to the scale of the atomic age in which we live.

'In the short space of nine years, the charter of the United Nations has become dangerously obsolete to the degree that under its existing provisions the organization is powerless to act effectively to forestall universal catastrophe.

Discussing what he called weakness of the security council, Romulo went on:

"There is another weakness. . . . it is the anomaly that Asia is not represented among the non-permanent members in the security council and it is injustice to the people of Asia who have achieved independence since the drafting of our charter. . . .

"At San Francisco the great powers arrived at an understanding according to which Latin America was awarded two non-permanent seats; West Europe, East Europe, the Middle East, the British Commonwealth one seat each.

NO PLACE FOR ASIA

"No place was reserved for Asia. Indeed Asia, at that time, in the eyes of the delegates in San Francisco, did not exist as a separate geopolitical entity.

"Times have changed and a new Asia has risen, but this misunderstanding remains unchanged. Today, we the peoples of Asia are disenfranchised in the security council and only those of us who belong to another so-called geographic region, namely the British commonwealth, can be elected to the security council.

Neither Indonesia, nor Burma, nor Thailand, nor my own country has the right to be represented in this organ of the United Nations which according to the charter has the primary responsibility for the maintenance of peace.

"Important groups of citizens in Asia, veterans who have helped to create the United Nations and those who fought under our blue flag in Korea have called upon the United Nations to revise the understanding of San Francisco.

"This call of Asian veterans has been endorsed by 18 million ex-servicemen representing 25 countries, including my own, united in the World Veterans Federation.

"In associating myself with my former comrade-in-arms I feel that I do not only speak in the name of the people of the Philippines but also in the name of all Asia. We want the United Nations to give our rightful place in so important a council of the organization."

U.N. TOO FRAIL"

Gen. Romulo also mourned the fact that funds for technical assistance and economic development were dwindling. He said progress in the trusteeship field also had been arrested.

On the atoms-for-peace proposal, Romulo said the world welcomed America's determination to change emphasis on the atom from war to peace since "a fellow human being, an innocent Asian fisherman, died a few days ago as a result of the atom tests."

He said weakness of the U.N. showed up in the fact that it was not able to move faster in coping with President Eisenhower's proposal of last December.

He said "suddenly we realize that no political instrument exist today which could cope with so great a need. Somewhat sadly we realize that the United Nations has become a vessel too frail to be the repository of humanity's hopes and fears in the atomic age.

"It is not enough to say that the United Nations is better than nothing. We shall find before long that the United Nations is not good enough unless it is the best that human ingenuity can fashion

"The alternative is to let the world drift willy-nilly toward disaster, borne on the ancient tides of power politics and war."

Dulles Intervenes In Yugo-Italy Row; Trieste Accord Due

LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles personally intervened today in the dispute between Italy and Yugoslavia over Trieste and prospects brightened for a settlement within a matter of days.

Dulles called on Italian Foreign Minister Gaetano Martino at the Italian embassy and threw high weight behind the American-British drive to end the nine-year-old feud.

A responsible diplomat said after the 25-minute talk that the Trieste situation now looks "very encouraging." Another top official said there was an excellent chance of agreement within the next three or four days.

The free territory at the head of the Adriatic where Italy and Yugoslavia meet apparently is to be divided — roughly along the present zones of occupation. Zone A, held by a British-American garrison, will go to Italy. Yugoslavia-occupied Zone B will stay under the control of Marshal Tito's government.

Yugoslavia is expected to get special rights for the use of the port of Trieste, which is part of the zone coming under Italian administration. Slav and Italian minority groups are to be protected by specific protocols.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden also is believed to have expressed for a Trieste settlement when called briefly on Martino this morning.

An agreement would pave the way for association between Italy and the Balkan pact organization: Yugoslavia, Turkey and Greece. An agreement also would allow the transfer of about 4,000 British and American troops of the Zone A occupation, which dates back to the end of World War II.

Taylor Visits Taipeh

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 28 (AP) — Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor flew here today from the 8th Army command in Korea for high level talks on the 25th straight day of Nationalist attacks on the Red China coast.

Taylor met with Chiang Kai-Shek and it was presumed they discussed the warfare around Quemoy, Nationalist island outpost just of the Red mainland 120 miles across Formosa strait from Formosa.

As Taylor conferred, the defense ministry in a communique claimed Nationalist planes flew through bad weather and destroyed 35 small Communist craft in air blows both north and south of Quemoy.

The communique said 18 large and 6 small motorized junks were sunk. The 11 other Red craft were small wooden ships.

Aging Mao Retains Red China Helm

TOKYO, Sept. 28 (AP) — The Peoples' Congress yesterday renamed Mao Tze-Tung No. 1 man in Communist China and handed the No. 2 post to aging Gen. Chuh Teh, Red army commander.

Peiping radio said the elections were unanimous. But it seemed obvious that Mao had hand-picked his old comrade-in-arms for the position which would make Chuh top man should Mao die. Mao's health supposedly is bad.

Passed over were the two Chinese Communist leaders most often mentioned as possible successors to Mao — Premier Chou En-Lai and Liu Shao-Chi, the party's theoretician.

Chou retained his position as premier. Liu was made chairman of the standing committee of the Peoples' Congress.

Mao's title under the new constitution will be chairman of the Peoples' Republic of China. Chuh is vice chairman. Both served for four-year terms.

Mao is granted broad, dictatorial powers, and these can be wielded by the vice chairman should the chairman die or become incapacitated by illness.

Peiping radio said "a stormy standing ovation swept over the hall" when Mao's election was announced and there were shouts of "Long live Chairman Mao."

Chuh is 68. Both Liu and Chou are 58.

There have been rumors out of Red China that Liu and Chou were in a struggle for power as Mao's health waned. It is possible Mao selected Chuh as a compromise if these reports are true.

However, in any battle for power after Mao's death, neither Chou nor Liu could be counted out.

Russia Qualified For UN Ouster, Nationalist China Delegate Says

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 28 (AP)—Nationalist China's foreign minister today struck at what he called the growing tendency of some U.N. members to negotiate outside the U.N. with Red China.

In strong words, the minister, George K.C. Yeh, denounced the Geneva conference and repeated his long-standing contention that the Soviet Union has qualified for expulsion from the U.N.

In other speeches in the continuing assembly general debate, the Philippines, Australia and the Netherlands lined up in warm support of President Eisenhower's "atoms for peace" proposals. Carlos P. Romulo, former president of the U.N. assembly and now delegate from Manila, said the time has come for the United States to state how much nuclear material it will contribute and what funds it will allow for the proposed international pool.

Yeh told the delegates that the Soviet Union talks of peaceful coexistence but Moscow actually wants to incapacitate the United Nations for major political decisions. He lashed at the Russians for vetoing membership applications and said that on the contrary the Soviet Union has shown its full qualification for expulsion. He did not make a formal move, however.

Yeh was particularly bitter in talking about the Geneva conference, where Red China gained its first international platform after coming into power. Yeh said the conference permitted the "Communist aggressors" to "chalk up another victory in their program of world conquest."

He said the Geneva conference legalized the fruits of aggression and brought about the dismemberment of Indo-China against the wishes of the people.

More Liberal Bank Policies For Small Nations Proposed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—The drive for industrialization in the world's underdeveloped lands crystallized today into a demand that the world bank liberalize its conservative lending policies.

Delegates from the smaller nations which produce raw materials for the factories of the great powers carried into the annual meeting of the world bank and international monetary fund proposals that the bank:

1. Set up a subsidiary "international finance corporation" (IFC), which would lend and invest money in private factory projects in less developed countries. Unlike the bank itself, it would not require the governments concerned to guarantee the repayment.

2. Lend money to build nuclear reactors which would produce electric energy in areas where scarce or costly power is a deterrent to industrialization.

3. Make borrowing easier by reducing or eliminating the 1 per cent charge on bank loans. The bank, speakers pointed out, now has accumulated 147 million dollars in reserves, a sum which they contended is ample to justify lowering the fee levied on borrowers.

The entire Latin American bloc of countries voted unanimously to support the proposal for IFC, in a closed caucus yesterday. The Latin republic supported Dr. Luis Machado of Cuba in his formal appeal for the subsidiary corporation today.

Jewish New Year Starts

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP) — Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, began at sundown tonight and Jews throughout the world celebrated the arrival of the year 5715.

The observance, marked by the sounding of the ancient Ram's horn, lasts two days, although some reform congregations limit themselves to one.

Rosh Hashanah is the first of two high holy days within a 10-day period. The other is Yom Kippur, the day of atonement, which lasts from Sunday Oct. 6 to sundown the next day.

Aussie Reports On Problems Of Red, U.S. Coexistence

KYOTO, Japan, Sept. 28 (AP)—Red China's man in the street believes America wants to conquer the whole world, an Australian scholar who toured Asia with the British Labor Party delegation said tonight.

"The Chinese people and to some extent the American people must see the facts" about each other before peaceful coexistence is feasible, said Lord Michael Lindsay, international relations researcher for the Australian National University.

Lindsay told a reporter that was the gist of his report to a closed session of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

Some 80 private citizens from 11 nations are here for the two-week meeting on Asian problems.

"The American belief that a majority of the Chinese are behind Chiang Kai-Shek is like saying that the majority of Americans support the Communist party" said Lindsay who has visited China intermittently since 1938.

Lindsay said in talking to acquaintances in China he found "the Red regime is doing an extremely good job where Marxian theory doesn't interfere with common sense. It seems to have strong support from educated opinion.

"But he added that the false view of America which the Reds have given their people is a major obstacle to peaceful co-existence," a theme sounded earlier by British and Indian delegates to the conference.

The only Filipino delegate to arrive so far, Quirino Gregorio, Manila businessman and former educator, said he reported on President Ramon Magsaysay's new policies. Stress was laid on "social amelioration" in the villages, land reform, sanitation and development of industry, Gregorio said. He said he did not mention the reparations or retail trade nationalization issues.

Seiichi Takahata, trading and mining executive from Osaka, reported pessimistically on Japan using the theme of his recent book which describes Japan as the land of the setting sun, because of serious foreign trade and overpopulation problems. He predicted things will get much worse as American military orders drop off.

Magsaysay Meets Reparations Panel For Policy On Japanese Relations

MANILA, Sept. 28 (AP)—President Ramon Magsaysay met with his special reparations committee early today to formulate a definite policy on resumption of the long-snarled negotiations with Japan.

The President held a "breakfast conference" at Malacanan Palace with Minister Felino Neri, chairman of the Philippine reparations panel, and Sen. Claro M. Recto, head of a special committee appointed by the council of leaders.

No immediate statement was issued after the critical meeting which may determine the future course of postwar relations between the Philippines and Japan.

Magsaysay mentioned apparent advantages of reaching a reparations and peace settlement with Japan in an informal interview with Manila newsmen Monday night.

He said the reparations question "is so vital and so delicate" that both countries should exercise caution before reaching any decisions. He said any drastic action should be "considered carefully."

Magsaysay made the statement as a result of recent press editorials here urging a break with Japan if she persisted in sticking to her 400 million dollar offer. Reparations talks broke down in Manila last April when Japan refused to increase her payment and the Philippines insisted on one billion (B) dollars as a starting point for formal negotiations.

The President, who is known to favor a compromise with the Japanese, said the Philippines currently is enjoying a favorable trade balance in her barter agreement with Japan. He stressed the importance of this trade to Philippine economy.

Leo Takes Back Seat

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP)—Leo Durocher modestly took a back seat as New York City acclaimed his New York Giants.

Leo was scheduled to ride the lead car up Broadway in a parade for the team. But he declined. He pointed to Willie Mays and Alvin Dark and declared:

"Those two boys won the pennant for us. They deserve to be up there leading the parade."

So Mays, the league batting champ, and Dark, the team captain, rode in the first car of the 17-car motorcade. Durocher rode in the eighth.

STILL NO COMMENT FROM LOPEZ OR LEO ON DEFINITE STARTERS

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP) — The jubilant New York Giants rode up Broadway in a ticker tape shower yesterday as New York City began to heat up for another World Series, opening Thursday at the Polo Grounds.

Tickets were extra hard to get because of the limited capacity of the Giant's home park. Hotels were jammed.

The two managers still refused to make it official that Sal Maglie (14-6), the Giants' veteran righthander, will oppose Bob Lemon (23-7) of the Tribe in the opener.

Manager Leo Durocher is expected to name Maglie after the Giants' final workout today. He also will pick his starting lineup with left field the only debated position. The "hunch" players think Durocher may start Dusty Rhodes, a left handed hitter, instead of Monte Irvin, a righthander.

With Durocher, nothing ever is certain. He opened with Dave Koslo against the Yankees in 1951 and might try to pull another one out of the hat. Those who expect him to pitch Maglie, point out the "barber" can't come back again unless he has a three or four-day rest. Some think he might name Lefty Johnny Antonelli (21-7) on the theory the strong youngster then could be counted upon for three starts if it goes the seventh-game maximum.

Lopez probably will go with Lemon if Maglie pitches, for Bob is a lefthanded hitter. If Durocher uses Antonelli, he might switch to Early Wynn (23-11), a switch hitter who could bat right against a southpaw.

The fact Lemon lost his last start and was wild while Wynn almost pitched a no-hitter Sunday might influence Lopez. He said in Cleveland he wouldn't decide until he knew about the Giant starter.

Saddler KO's Ortiz In Third Round Of Venezuelan Scrap

CARACAS, Venezuela, Sept. 28 (AP)—World Featherweight Champion Sandy Saddler, last night knocked out Baby Ortiz of Mexico in one minute, four seconds of the third round of a scheduled 10-round non-title bout.

Saddler, who had knocked the Mexican through the ropes at the end of the second round, floored him again immediately after the start of the third round with a hard right. Ortiz took a count of eight and got up to take more punishment from Saddler's hammering rights and lefts.

The Mexican went down again and this time the count went to ten.

Ortiz took the offensive against the champion in the first round, dancing about Saddler and delivering short jabs which Sandy shook off. Saddler boxed carefully throughout the first round, apparently figuring out Ortiz' style.

When Ortiz again started jabbing in the second, Saddler began fighting back and brought blood from Ortiz' mouth with a series of hard smashes.

NATS SIGN CHUCK FOR TWO YEARS AT $40,000 PER

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP) — Charlie Dressen was appointed manager of the Washington Senators yesterday for a two-year term.

The announcement came as no surprise. It had been rumored for some time the 55-year-old veteran was going to replace Bucky Harris at the helm of the Senators.

No salary was announced, but it was estimated to be about $40,000 a year plus a bonus based on attendance.

Dressen's return to the big leagues came only one year after he relinquished the reins of the National League Champion Brooklyn Dodgers for a managerial post with Oakland of the Pacific Coast League.

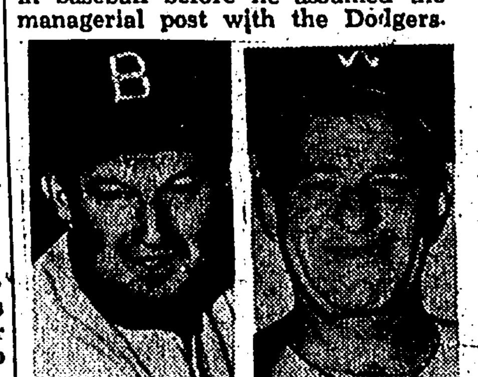
The veteran Californian did right well with the Acorns. He took a seventh place club and raised it to third. He then won the PCL's playoff championship.

Dressen's parting with the Dodgers after winning two straight National League pennants was one of the major news stories and surprises of 1953.

After losing to the Yankees in the world series for the second straight year, Dressen insisted on a long-term contract of two or three years. President Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers stood pat on a one-year offer. They couldn't agree and Dressen quit the club on Oct 14.

In his first year as manager with the Brooks in 1951, Dressen barely lost the pennant to the Giants on Bobby Thomson's homer in the post-season playoffs.

Dressen did a lot of travelling in baseball before he assumed the managerial post with the Dodgers.



Chuck DRESSEN Bucky HARRIS
The New and The Old

An infielder, he played with Cincinnati and the New York Giants. He was signed in 1934 by Larry MacPhail to manage the Reds. After four successive finishes in the second division, Dressen returned to the minors to manage Nashville of the Southern Association, a club he led in 1932-34.

For the next 10 years, Dressen served as a big league coach — first with the Dodgers and later with the New York Yankees. In 1950, he went to the coast as manager of Oakland.

Dressen was asked if he would have a pitching coach at Washington. He had been criticized for not having one at Brooklyn.

"They (Brooklyn) did very good with one this year, didn't they?" he commented.

Dressen said he had four propositions during the year from major league clubs and finally settled on the Senator Sunday. He didn't say who the others were.

Calvin Griffith said Clark Griffith would be in New York and the three will sit down and talk over plans for the team.

U.N. MONETARY BODY EXPELS RED MEMBER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP) — The 57-nation international monetary fund today provisionally expelled Czechoslovakia, its only Soviet member, because the Czechs refuse to give the free world a peek behind the Iron Curtain.

The Czechs already have been suspended from the monetary fund's sister organization, the world bank, for failure to pay the required portion of its capital subscription.

Secretary Humphrey, of the United States Treasury, who is U. S. governor of the boards of both the bank and the fund, sparked the ouster action, and was responsible for throwing the record open to the public today.

The fund's governors put the Czechs on the skids today by approving a resolution of the fund's executive directors to oust the Czechs from the fund unless, by Dec. 31, they supply information required of all members on their national income, foreign trade, and similar economic data.

The Czechs have refused to open this informational window through the iron curtain, where, economic statistics are closely guarded secrets.

Dec. 31 also is the deadline for the Czechs to pay up in the bank, or be finally expelled.

The Red nation will therefore be automatically ousted from both institutions on Jan. 1 unless it reverses its position in the next three months.

Julius Hajek, governor for Czechoslovakia on the fund board, accused the United States, in a long speech before today's vote was taken, of being "hostile" to his and other "Socialist" countries.

In a shorter speech after the vote, which he read from a prepared text, Hajek declared that the vote was an arbitrary act of the United States against Czechoslovakia. The United States delegation did not speak in answer to the Czech.

The vote on the ouster action was 42 nations against Czechoslovakia, two in her favor, nine abstentions and four nations absent, or not responding.

India was the only nation to join Czechoslovakia in opposing

McCarran Dies Of Heart Ailment

HAWTHORNE, Nev., Sept. 29 (AP) — Sen. Pat McCarran, for 22 years a Democratic senator from Nevada and a foe of the the Roosevelt and Truman administrations, died suddenly tonight just after addressing a Democratic rally. He was 78.

The white-haired veteran collapsed as he was walking down a side aisle after addressing some 125 persons at the civic center in this western Nevada town.

Firemen worked over the senator for 30 minutes with a respirator without success.

The senator for many years had had a heart condition and physicians said he apparently had died of a sudden attack.

The body was taken to a Hawthorne funeral parlor pending further instructions from his family in Reno.

Only yesterday, McCarran, a strong supporter of Sen. Joseph McCarthy had vigorously assailed the Watkins committee for recommending censure of the Wisconsin senator.

Child With Two Heads Reported 'Doing Well'

CIDADE DA (PRAIA, Cape Verde Islands, Sept. 29 (AP) — A two-headed baby girl was born Sept. 26 and still was doing well today.

The baby has two hearts, two necks, two spinal columns joined halfway down. The rest of the body appears normal. Each head apparently commands half of the body. One head cries while the other sleeps.

Editor Denounced For 'Spreading' Red Propaganda To POWs In Korea

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—John W. Powell, former American editor of the China Monthly Review, yesterday heard himself denounced as a "murderer" deserving punitive action for publishing a magazine distributed as Communist propaganda to prisoners of war in Red China.

Under subpoena, the 35-year-old newspaperman and son of the late J.P. Powell, noted Shanghai editor imprisoned by the Japanese, refused to tell the Jenner subcommittee on internal security whether he was a member of the Communist party.

Powell refused to answer the questions of Sen. William Jenner (R-Ind.) on the constitutional grounds of self-incrimination.

Jenner said a record of the subcommittee's hearings would be turned over to the justice departuled tomorrow at 1 p.m. EST.

Powell was denounced by Carroll Wright, Jr., an Arlington, Va., realtor who testified that he had been a prisoner in Korea for 34 months.

Wright said Powell's magazine, published in Shanghai, had been distributed by Chinese Communist political commissars in two prison camps where he was held.

He said "great quantities" of the magazine were distributed and became "must" reading for Communist indoctrination.

"If the space devoted to shipment of that rag were devoted to medicine and supplies a great many of our men would have come home instead of perishing there," Wright said.

"This man is responsible for physical injury to some of the prisoners who refused to accept his propaganda. He must bear some of the stains of their blood on his hands."

ALLIES DIFFER ON GERMAN ARMS CONTROL ISSUE

LONDON, Sept. 29 (AP)—France and her Western allies disagreed tonight on how to prevent any runaway German rearmament. The question emerged as the key issue before the nine-power conference meeting to free and rearm West Germany in the Atlantic alliance.

French Premier Mendes-France called for a seven-nation European armaments authority to control the production and supply of weapons in West Germany, France, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and Italy.

German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer proposed instead that controls be exercised by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) over all of its continental European members. West Germany would become NATO's 15th member nation.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden backed Adenauer's proposal. It appeared that support also would come from the other nations participating—Italy, Canada, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

Although difficulties arose, key delegations voiced a cautious optimism that agreements in principle on freeing and rearming the West Germans would be reached this week.

"Prospects are good," an official British spokesman said.

Experts worked far into the night in search of a compromise between the French and other delegations' views. Some delegations suggested a solution may lie in letting NATO and the seven-nation group share controls.

Adenauer suggested giving NATO more powers to insure effective controls.

Herman Leaves For Pacific Meet

Secretary R. S. Herman left this morning aboard a Pan American Airways plane to attend the 13th session of the South Pacific Commission at Noumea, New Caledonia which will open on October 11. Herman will pass through Manila and Australia and is expected to be away for three to four weeks.

Herman's appointment was made by the department of state upon the recommendation of Gov. Ford Q. Elvidge. He will serve as United States alternate commissioner to the session. Herman was the first representative of Guam during the first session of the Commission in 1952.

The commission, composed of 12 representatives of six participating nations—Australia, France, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Britain and the United States, advises the various governments and assists in the promotion of economic aid and social welfare advancement of the people of the territories in the South Pacific area.

During Herman's absence, assistant director of lands Manuel F. L. Guerrero will act as secretary of Guam. Previous island delegates to the commission were Dr. John S. Haitema who attended this year's sixth meeting of the commission's research council, and Manuel F. L. Guerrero and Cong. B. J. Bordallo who were island delegates at the second conference.

2 Men, Woman Hurt In Route 4 Car Collision

Three persons were injured in a collision on Route 4 near the Pacific Laundry at 10:05 Tuesday evening. The casualties were rushed by ambulance to the Naval hospital where they still are confined.

Injured were: Joseph L. Bash, of Sinajana, driver of one of the vehicles for head wounds; Jack A. Lally of Tamuning, a passenger in Bash's car, who sustained fractured ribs, scalp wounds and lacerations in his left hand, and Dorothy Kenyon, who was injured in the forehead, thigh and arms. She was a passenger in a car driven by William H. Kenyon of PWC, Naval Base.

Police report said Kenyon was driving towards Sinajana when the car driven by Bash came speeding downhill on "the wrong travel portion."

Bash's vehicle could not make the downhill curve, police said, and hit Kenyon's car on the right front. After the impact, Bash's car careened and overturned coming to a halt completely, on its four wheels 220 feet from the point of impact. The car stopped after hitting the concrete base and the wooden wall of the Pacific Laundry, police investigation disclosed.

No charges has been filed, police said.

Navy To Expand Subic Bay Base

MANILA, Sept. 29 (AP) — The Philippine government has given the U.S. Navy permission to expand strategic Subic Bay base, near Manila.

But it reserved the right to retain ownership of lands to be acquired under the project.

Favorable endorsement of the U.S. project by Philippine President Ramon Magsaysay was given yesterday.

Ownership of the lands was a ticklish issue that held up the project. The issue still will be subject to further top-level talks.

The Philippine government claims the United States hold properties for establishment and development of bases here on a 99-year lease.

U.S. Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell, Jr., rendered a legal opinion in August, 1953, claiming the United States has title to naval and military bases in the Philippines.

Naval facilities at Subic, about 50 miles northeast of Manila, are being expanded to service and repair warships. A task force will be comfortably accommodated when present construction is completed. Subic has drydock facilities equal to 18,000 tons

Expansion plans include a powerful radar communications base which will force another vital link on the chain of U.S. island defenses in the Far East.

LOCAL WORKERS TO BE HIRED TO FILL VACANCIES

The transfer of the Trust Territory headquarters from Honolulu to Guam started yesterday with the arrival here of Delmas H. Nucker, deputy high commissioner for the Trust islands. Moveover is expected to be completed by late October.

An immediate effect of the transfer as announced by Alfred Hurt, executive officer, is that some office personnel will be hired locally to fill vacancies caused by resignations of employees at the Honolulu headquarters. Hurt said nine staff personnel would arrive in October. Shipment of office equipment also would be completed by late next month, the executive officer stated.

Involved in the transfer are the high commissioner's staff, the legal, contracts and program, personnel and budget offices. Being rushed presently here is the construction of an additional office building near the present Trust Territory offices. Staff houses also are being built to accommodate incoming personnel.

The merger of all headquarters' offices would provide for a "concentration of forces" on Guam and would pave the way for an effective supervision over the six district offices scattered in the various Trust islands, Hurt stated. Presently there are district offices in Koror, Ponape, Yap, Truk, Majuro and West Carolines, the executive officer declared. The central

7th Fleet 'Moved' To Defend Formosa

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 29 (AP) — The U.S. Navy disclosed today that ships and planes of the U.S. Seventh Fleet moved to defend Formosa early this month against invasion from Communist China.

Disclosure was in a dispatch from the flagship of Carrier Division 1, which was released here by the Pacific Fleet Air Command.

It said the carriers Hornet, Boxer and Yorktown took position southeast of Formosa "as the possibility of an invasion appeared imminent" and sent planes "ready" for combat over Formosa strait," separating the Chinese Nationalist stronghold from the mainland.

The carriers were joined by the U.S. heavy cruiser St. Paul, flagship of Vice Adm. A. M. Pride, the Seventh Fleet's commander, and supporting detsroyers.

This force maneuvered to give F9F6 jet fighters and Skyraider dive bombers from the carriers opportunity to scout the area thoroughly in 2,000 sorties.

The entire force made one night passage through the strait.

Occasion for the demonstration that the Seventh Fleet was prepared to defend Formosa, the dispatch said, was the Communist bombardment starting Sept. 3, of the Nationalist-held island of Quemoy in Amoy harbor. Quemoy is 119 miles west of Formosa.

The fleet units have since returned to Manila, the dispatch said.

A SUB FOR EDC

IT is good news that the series of hurried "round robin" meetings involving Secretary of State Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Eden, German Chancellor Adenauer and others has resulted in a call for a nine-power conference to find a way to bring West Germany into the Atlantic alliance.

The invitations go to the United States, Canada, Britain, and the six nations originally marked for inclusion in the now defunct EDC plan—West Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, Holland, and Luxembourg.

In addition to this conference, the 14 members of NATO will meet around mid-October to study the matter of German rearmament.

The urgency in the situation stems from realization that pro-Western political forces in Germany are in shaky condition as result of French rejection of EDC. Adenauer had built his European policy on that defensive plan.

THERE is no tendency any more to show special deference to France in working out a suitable EDC substitute. The initiative has passed to other hands, if indeed it can be said "initiative" ever really rested with the French.

On the other hand, Dulles, Eden and Adenauer recognize the value of having French agreement on some new plan if it can be gained without acceptance of crippling amendments.

Diplomatic sources say France has agreed in principle to linking Germany with NATO. If that is so, the impending London conference could get down to practical ways of developing that alliance.

The French rebuffed EDC, a plan that would have placed German armed units under international control. France felt the control would be insufficient to check a resurgent Germany.

PRESUMABLY a Germany allied with NATO would have an independent national army. Offhand, this sounds like the thing the French fear most. But evidently France feels that such an army tied to NATO, with such powerful nations as Britain and America in formal association, would be under somewhat better control despite its "independence."

Furthermore, the French are said to be demanding guarantees that British and U. S. troops stay indefinitely on the European continent, and that German rearmament be kept within sane bounds.

How far the other nations will now be willing to go in satisfying reported French conditions cannot be guessed. But it appears definite that the West is determined to develop speedily an effective plan for drawing Germany closer.

The price of failure, or even delay, could be to see Germany swing toward the Soviet orbit—at least to the point of adopting a neutrality which would only benefit the Russians.

Telescopically Yours

The people of Monmong and Toto are very disappointed village folks. Here is the story they related to us:

"At the Mongmong-Toto area we have very inadequate water supply, and island power is only served a few houses at the entrance of Mongmong, and those occupied by military dependents further into the rural community.

"We have been clamoring for these necessities and the only answer we have received so far — "no funds available."

"We know for a fact that four remote communities on the island are currently in the process of being furnished power. Needless to talk about their water suply because that is well taken care of by our government. These places are Talofofo, Inarajan, Merizo and Umatac. Funds certainly must have been available for the project to be undergoing progress. We feel that we have been by-passed. We are right in the area where one of the biggest power plants on the island is located. Yet we are like the Ancient Mariner who could see "water, water everywhere, but not a drop to drink."

"Much less funds are needed to install adequate power and water in our area, but probably we are the forgotten children of the powers that be, and most likely we have to continue to be wanting for years to come those modern essentials and conveniences — water and power.

"We don't begrudge our southern fellowmen, but we have been sadly overlooked."

Anti-Communism Brewing In Red Satellite Nations

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—An escapee from behind the iron Curtain, a top ranking Polish security officer, turned up in Washington today. He reported resistance to Communist regimes is widespread through the Soviet satellite countries.

The official is Jozef Swiatlo, who was No. 2 man in Communist Poland's security program. The U.S. government had given him sanctuary in Washington for eight months, and lifted the veil of secrecy only today.

His story brought into the open an account of the hitherto unexplained European disappearance five years ago of Noel and Hermann Field, American brothers, and Noel's wife, Herta.

Swiatlo, a stocky, ruddy-faced man of 39, talked with newsmen at far-ranging press conference at which he said:

1. Active revolt against the Communists in Iron Curtain countries is a virtual impossibility now because "the Red army is everywhere." But the United States "should do everything it can to bolster the spirit of resistance."

2. "There is a great movement for resistance" against the Moscow-directed Red leaders in Poland. This resistance shows up "among all classes." He said it was likely that a central body was organizing the resistance.

3. He "knows the great majority of Poles are convinced" that the Polish victims of World War II Katyn massacre were "ordered by the Soviets" rather than the Germans.

4. He fled Poland because of his "great ideological disappointments" with Communism.

5. He intends to devote the rest of his life "to help the west in its battle against the Communists."

Swiatlo said the Communist leaders in his country are "devoted to the Soviet government and not to Poland."

Reds Alarm Thailand

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 29 (AP) — Thailand's foreign minister charged today the Communists are preparing large-scale infiltrations from Red China through Communist Viet Minh into Thailand to subvert the Thai government. He said he is gravely concerned about the situation.

The minister, Prince Wan Waithayakon, indicated in a speech to the U.N. assembly that Thailand may raise in the assembly a request for U.N. peace observers to go to southeast Asia and report on the situation. Such a request to the security council was vetoed last June by Russia.

the ouster outright. The nine nations abstaining were Burma, Ceylon, Finland, Iceland, Indonesia, Iran, Jordan, Lebanon, and Yugoslavia. The four nations absent or not responding at the roll call were Ecuador, El Salvador, Greece and Guatemala.

The provisional ouster of Czechoslovakia took place as the annual meeting of the bank and fund governors neared its end after nearly a week's examination of free world economic conditions. The meeting winds up tomorrow.

Earlier today Secretary Humphrey said in a penal discussion of foreign investment sponsored by the bank that underdeveloped countries wishing to attract investment dollars should inspire confidence in businessmen that their investment would be safe and would earn an "attractive return."

Trust Island Headquarters Here

office here, Hurt explained, would be maintaining contact with them through the office radio and through the weekly plane that visits the island.

Pending the appointment of a high commissioner, Nucker will take over the office. For all intents and purposes he would be acting in the capacity of a high commissioner, it was learned. Nucker arrived here Monday and his family will join him shortly. He was executive officer for the office of the territories prior to his appointment as deputy high commissioner.

Frank Midkiff, former high commissoiner, and William Arnold, assistant director of territories in the interior department, are expected here tomorrow from Kwajalein, Hurt stated. Midkiff, who resigned this month has been going on a "farewell tour of the Trust islands and at the same time introducing Arnold to the inhabitants," the executive officer said. For Arnold, it is sort of a "familiarization trip," Hurt disclosed.

Hurt said a few office equipment from Honolulu will be brought over. Furnitures from the hotel operated by the Trust Territory in Honolulu also will be shipped here. The present office building here also will be partitioned to accommodate other personnel, he explained.

Asked if the transfer would affect the offices here, Hurt said a "few additional clerks and personnel" would be hired locally to fill in the resignations caused by the transfer. The merger of the offices resulted in a "slight reorganization," Hurt said, but the vacancies to be filled in are those caused by resignations of employees who did not want to leave Honolulu. Hurt did not state how many vacancies are to be filled.

Many employees with the Honolulu offices reportedly declined to move to Guam and their positions would be filled in by local hire, the Trust Territory official announced. The "slight reorganization" also had broadened the scope of Hurt's office. As executive officer in charge of administration, Hurt will be in charge of the activities covering all the islands under the trust group.

Another official, Joseph C. Putram, legal counsel, came in with the deputy high commissioner Those expected later in October are: Nat Logan-Smith, personnel director; John Spivey, contract and program officer; Allan Smith, staff anthropologist; Emil Strench, budget officer; William McIlhenny, assistant personnel director; William Williams, Mae Naugle and Ray Uehara, staff employees.

Search Continues For Typhoon Dead

HAKODATE, Japan, Sept. 29 (AP) — Japanese divers today searched the murky compartments of the capsized ferry Toya Maru for hundreds of bodies — possibly 40 of them Americans — believed trapped there.

The ocean ferry overturned Sunday night under the great lash of a typhoon. National police headquarters estimated that 1,168 persons perished on the Toya Maru. This included 62 foreigners, most of them U.S. soldiers.

Divers yesterday recovered 20 Japanese bodies from the ferry, which lies keel up in Hakodate's harbor only 150 yards from shore. The bodies of 17 Americans washed ashore and 40 more are believed inside the hull. There were only 178 known survivors from the 1,341 passengers and crew.

While the divers probed inside the red hull, several survivors questioned whether the ferry ever should have put out from Hakodate. They said they tried to get off when the storm rose but the crew refused to drop the tamp.

The cabinet scheduled a special meeting for tomorrow to inquire into the wreck, the worst sea disaster ever to occur in peace time.

Emperor Hirohito is "deeply concerned," the Japan press reported. This was expected to spur the investigation.

Kyoji Abe, second mate of the ferry, told police the ship's officers considered landing the passengers but changed their minds because they thought the force of the storm was falling off.

National police headquarters estimated that in all 1,567 persons died in ship sinkings, fires, floods and landslides when the typhoon smashed Japan Sunday from south to north.

TRUMAN-M'ARTHUR 'DIFFERENCES'

"The chief of staff of the army, General (J. Lawton) Collins, and the chief of naval operations, Admiral (Forrest P.) Sherman, had flown on a special trip to Tokyo for the express purpose of persuading MacArthur against this operation."

Willoughby says the "failure through inertia of our diplomacy to utilize the victory of Inchon and the destruction of the North Korean armies . . . was one of the great contribution causes to the subsequent new war into which we were soon to be plunged by Red China."

Willoughby characterizes former President Harry S. Truman's conference with MacArthur on Wake Island in September, 1952, as a political maneuver.

"With an eye to the coming election, it was expedient for the President to smooth over the differences. It was equally expedient to exploit politically the smashing victory of Inchon and directly link the administration with this impressive success," he says.

MacArthur was hampered by restrictive orders after the Chinese Reds entered the war, Willoughby says.

"We missed a military opportunity that may never return when we failed to capitalize on the slow deteriorization of the Communist troops because of our successful offensives and the concurrent scourge of epidemic disease brought in by them.

"Instead we gave them a truce which they used for physical recovery. And in order to explain their failure to their own troops, they launched the flimsy lie that we had engaged in germ warfare."

At another point, Willoughby says, "with President Truman already planning his dismissal, MacArthur courageously set his eyes on greater goals: to salvage the reputation of Allied arms, to bring into sharper focus the colossal threat of imperialist Mongoloid-Pan-Slavism under the guise of Communism, and to smash its current challenge in one great blow."

Of Truman's dismissal of MacArthur, Willoughby says "he (Truman) suddenly, without warning, relieved MacArthur of his command in a most savage and brutal way. The peremptory order did not permit him even to bid goodby to his troop."

When he received the news, Willoughby says, "not a flicker of emotion stirred MacArthur's face . . . he turned to his wife and said serenely, "Jean, we're going home at last."

"To the press, Gen. Courtney Whitney said: I have just left the general. He received the word magnificently. He never turned a hair. His soldierly qualities were never more pronounced. I think this has been his finest hour."

Eisenhower Signs Stiff AWOL Bill

DENVER, Sept. 29 (AP) —President Eisenhower today ordered stiffer penalties for all members of the United States armed forces who are absent without leave.

The President signed an executive order providing for the changes.

If a serviceman is found guilty of an offense for which dishonorable discharge is not authorized, he nevertheless may be so discharged if proof of three or more convictions during the preceding year can be provided.

Another change provides for confinement at hard labor not to exceed one month and forefeiture of two-thirds of a month's pay over a period not to exceed one month in case of absence without leave for not more than three days.

Heretofore, the penalty for such absence was maximum confinement of three days for each day of absence, and two days loss of pay for each day's absence.

TRUMAN-M'ARTHUR 'DIFFERENCES' ON KOREA BARED BY WILLOUGHBY

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur ordered the Yalu River bridges bombed when the Chinese Communists entered the Korean war, "but within hours his orders were countermanded from Washington," MacArthur's chief of intelligence said today in a new book.

Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, who worked with MacArthur from 1941 to 1951, quoted the general as saying, "I realized for the first time that I had actually been denied the use of my full military power to safeguard the lives of my soldiers and the safety of my army."

"To me it clearly foreshadowed a future tragic situation in Korea and left me with a sense of inexpressible shock," MacArthur added.

Willoughby's book, "MacArthur: 1941-51," written with John Chamberlain, will be published tomorrow by McGraw-Hill.

Willoughby says the outbreak of the Korean war was clearly predicted by more than 1,000 intelligence reports from G-2 in Tokyo, between June, 1949, and June, 1950.

"In spite of all the warnings from G-2 Tokyo, the invasion of South Korea came as a jolt to Washington," he writes.

"When the Reds struck, General (Brig. Gen. William L.) Roberts, who was the military advisor to South Korea, happened to be on transfer on the high seas, and the South Korean army did the best it could without high-level advice. Furthermore, their armament was light compared with the Russian-equipped North Koreans."

The book says MacArthur alone developed the general plan and decision to make the Inchon landing, and it was opposed by powerful influences in Washington.

Mass Exodus From Red Zone Going On, State Dept. Says

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—The U.S. state department said today refugees continued to leave the Soviet Zone of Germany at the rate of about 20,000 a month.

The ranks of the refugees are kept full by an exodus of uranium mine workers and others who fear being assigned to the uranium mines, a spokesman said.

He said there has been a high accident rate in those mines — not illnesses from atomic radiation but ordinary mine accidents such as collapse of pits, caused by hasty methods. In a recent two week period, the spokesman said, out of 2,600 east Germans who took refuge in the western sector of Berlin, 1,087 were laborers and most of these were men who either worked or expected soon to be working in the uranium mines.

The accidents, he said, have been especially noticeable in the area of Saxony.

Another large class of refugees, the department spokesman told a news conference, consists of school teachers who apparently felt an obligation to finish the academic year but fled the country during the summer before the beginning of a new one.

He said that since 1950 close to 2 million people in all have fled westward from the Soviet zone, a far larger number than have moved in the opposite direction. Among prominent personalities among the refugees, he said, were 15 members of the East German parliament, cabinet members, 13 members of parliaments of individual German states and about 30 other officials of the central government. Against these totals, he said, defections from the west to the east included only one member of the west German parliament, no cabinet members, one member of a state parliament, and one leading official.

New Zealand Juveniles

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Sept. 29 (AP)—Shocked by a committee report of widespread juvenile immorality among New Zealand teenagers, lawmakers introduced a series of bills in parliament designed to cope with the problem.

The proposed measures include the suppression of publications "tending to deprave persons of any class or age or unduly emphasizing sex, horror, crime and violence."

The bills follow the recommendations of a special committee appointed by Prime Minister Sidney Holland to inquire into charges of vice among New Zealand adolescents.

Need For Continued US Arms Aid Stressed

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 29 (AP)—Japanese and Korean military leaders said here today their armed forces were getting stronger but would need continued help from the United States.

Gen. Keizo Hayashi, chief of staff of Japan's 150,000-man army and navy, said in an interview while visiting navy facilities here on his tour of the United States that: "We are slowly building our forces up."

Maj. Gen. Kim Suk Bum, commandant of the Korean marine corps, told interviewers that the corps was now the second largest amphibious fighting force in the world but would continue to need equipment from this country.

Pravda, Izvestia Blast Opening Of 9-Power Parley

MOSCOW, Sept. 29 (AP)—The Soviet newspapers Pravda and Izvestia both blasted the opening Monday of the nine-power western conference in London as evidence that British and American leaders aim at overriding French fears to revive German militarism.

Izvestia, official organ of the Moscow government, entitled an editorial: "Threat Hanging Over France." Pravda, the Communist party's chief publication, asked: "Why are the ministers of the nine (western) states gathering in London?"

The two papers thereby continued this country's unrelenting campaign against the inclusion of West Germany in western defense plans.

One of the chief features of this campaign consists of reminding France of its old difficulties with Germany and keeping old wounds open.

Pravda concentrated more on British-American difficulties. The paper said: "British diplomacy decided to use the situation to take away from its American partner the initiative and strengthen its own position in west Germany."

"Trying to keep the initiative," Pravda said, "Eden (British foreign secretary) went to the western European capitals to carry out negotiations. This activity of British diplomacy caused sharp anxiety in Washington. Following Eden like a fire wagon came a high state department official (assistant U.S. Secretary of State Robert D. Murphy) and later (U.S. Secretary of State) Dulles also came to Europe.

"The only practical agreement reached in numerous negotiations during this time in western Europe is the agreement to convene one (London) conference."

Pravda also carried a cartoon showing Uncle Sam and John Bull conducting a chicken breeding experiment. Uncle Sam is standing passively while a little John Bull carries in a basket eggs each bearing a swastika. Uncle Sam is at an old incubator marked "NATO."

John Bull is at one marked "new, modernized variety Brussels type." The title of the cartoon is: "Different models for the same aim."

PI-US Commerce Chamber Supports Trade Review Aims

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—Solid backing of the Philippine-American chamber of commerce to trade revision objectives now under negotiation was expressed today by Paul Parette, president of the chamber and a Philippine manufacturing company, before his departure for Manila.

"The chamber's board of directors are anxious to do all they possibly can to help the Philippines establish a stable economy, to increase the efficiency of their agricultural production and to expand their industrial self sufficiency," Parette told a newsman.

He said this position had been explained to James M. Langley, head of the United States trade revision delegation.

Parette left for Manila by way of San Francisco, after a three day visit in Washington.

He told an interviewer he was impressed with the great dignity and businesslike approach of the Philippine mission in preparing for the negotiations. He also said he was happy to learn of the warm reception the Philippine group had been accorded in Washington.

Paris Economy Revamp To Shut Off US Aid

ANNECY, France, Sept. 28 (AP)—Premier Pierre Mendes-France says his proposed overhaul of the French economy should eliminate the need for U.S. economic aid by next year, but military assistance still will be necessary.

Speaking at the annual Annecy industrial fair, the premier said: "By 1955 France should re-establish the equilibrium of its foreign exchange and its balance of payments without foreign aid." He opened the fair just prior to leaving for the London nine-power conference on German rearmament.

Mendes-France said his government would take drastic measures within the next four months to make good its economic goals.

Storm Sweeps Red Ships

HELSINKI, Finland, Sept. 29 (AP)—Five Russian warships were swept into Finnish waters near Helsinki by a raging storm today.

The Russian squadron, one minesweeper and four motor torpedo boats, was sighted in Finnish waters near the Roenn Skerries, a few miles west of Helsinki, on its way to the Russian Porkkala base near the capital.

First Chamber of Commerce was organized in Marseilles, France, in 1599.

Gimo Planes Sink 5 Red Motorboats In 27th Day Raid

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 29 (AP)—Nationalist pilots yesterday claimed five motorized junks sunk and six damaged in attacks along the Red China coast which an army spokesman predicted would continue until "something bigger happens!"

Lt. Gen. Chang Yi-Ting, the spokesman, declined to be more specific but conceded at a news conference the possibility of the attacks emerging eventually into a Nationalist invasion of the mainland.

The attacks by air and sea were in their 27th day today with no sign of a let-up.

A defense ministry communique said the junk fleet was attacked in Shenhu Bay, 17 miles northeast of the nationalist island of Quemoy, which is 120 miles across Formosa strait from Formosa

Propeller driven Thunderbolts launched the attack with rockets in bad weather. Pilots reported they sighted 31 motorized junks and 150 wooden craft in the bay.

The communique also reported a brief flareup in the Tachen islands, northern anchor of the string of Nationalist island bases off the Chinese coast 200 miles north of Formosa.

It said Red guns from nearby island fired 11 shells at nationalist Yikiangshan island but caused no damaged.

Meanwhile, a subcommittee of the nationalist cabinet was at work on plans for the dispersal of government agencies to safer areas if Taipeh is bombed by the Communists.

Chiang said that if the Communists tried to bomb Formosa the Red mainland would be bombed.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, here for a three-day visit saw something of Chiang Kai-Shek's army. The 8th Army commander in Korea inspected an armored division and was due in southern Formosa today to visit military establishments.

Demonstration Flare Up Over US Pullout

SEOUL, Sept. 29 (AP) — Thousands of South Korean organized laborers and disabled war veterans today staged demonstrations against the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Korea.

Some 200 crippled veterans staged a sitdown strike in front of the American embassy while another 100 were shouting anti withdrawal slogans at the gate of the foreign correspondents billets.

Their slogans were: "Give the weapons to the Korean army to prevent Communist aggression," "Strengthen the R.O.K. army and increase economic and military aid," and "The U.S. should repel the Communist aggressors before their withdrawal."

Leaders of the demonstrating veterans said the purpose of their sitdown strikes was to get answers from the Americans "whether they will withdraw from Korea despite our opposition or will they leave us weapons."

They said 50,000 Korean war veterans will join 200,000 labor unionists who are demonstrating today against the American troop pullout in South Korea's major cities.

Leaders of the national assembly and civic groups are leading the organized demonstrations throughout the country.

Jap Now Tougher To Deal With On Reparation Issue

KYOTO, Japan, Sept. 29 (AP) — Japan's attitude on World War II reparations has "hardened" over the weekend as a result of an agreement with Burma, and the Philippines will find her more difficult to deal with, the lone Filipino delegate to the Institute of Pacific Relations meeting said today.

Quirino Gregorio, Manila businessman and former University of the Philippines professor, also suggested in an interview a unique plan for a multilateral roundtable meeting of Japan officials and delegates from remaining reparations claimant nations.

Gregorio said if the occasion presents itself he might suggest this plan to Japanese attending the IPR, a meeting of 80 private citizens to discuss problems of Asia.

Gregorio said under his plan Japan should tell the maximum total it feels it can afford to atone for World War 11 damage. Then nations, he said, such as the Philippines, Indonesia, Malaya and South Korea should make their demands and try to come to settlement.

Gregorio emphasized that Japan should take the initiative in calling such a conference. He said it was "unfortunate" if Japan insists on using, as a model in future reparations talks, its agreement last Saturday to pay Burma a total of $250,000,000 (M) in capital goods and investments in a period of ten years.

"Burma was not a battlefield" such as the Philippines, Gregorio said. He said the Philippines regards as only a starting point the $400,000,000 figure discussed in now-deadlocked reparations talks between the two nations.

Gregorio said that four other Filipinos who had intended to participate in the IPR conference had been delayed for various reasons, including visas delays, and probably may not now come. They were M. Elizalde, president of Elizalde and Co., of Manila; Amado R. Brinas, Philippine government finance department economist; Santiago F. de la Cruz, dean of the college of commerce, University of the East, Manila, and Amando M. Dalisay, executive director of the Philippines national economic council.

More Manpower Needed By Atom War - Ridgway

DENVER, Sept. 29 (AP) — Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said after a conference with President Eisenhower today that there is "a very definite possibility" an atomic war would require more combat manpower rather than less.

The army chief of staff told a news conference "the stakes in the next world war are survival — it is not something you can play with."

Ridgway and Secretary of the Army Stevens came to the President's vacation headquarters to make what Stevens called a routine report on army matters.

The secretary said that, among other things, they told Eisenhower that progress was being made with respect to the army's "continuing effort to maximize its combat strength."

Ridgway was asked, in that connection, whether an atomic war would require more American combat strength, or less.

"We see a very definie possibility that a war in which atomic weapon are freely used may result in increased manpower, rather than decreased," Ridgway replied.

He added that in atomic conflict, the U.S. — as well as any enemy force — would face "elimination of entire units." For that reason, he added, "You've got to be able to replace an entire unit."

The potential situation means, Ridgway went on, "that we are not going to be able to build up huge concentrations (of supplies) against an enemy with atomic weapons."

The need, the general said, will be for much greater dispersal of combat strength and supply depots.

Man For Man....

Tribe Has Edge

By Shelton Sakowitz

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP) — The crack pitching staffs of the Cleveland Indians and New York Giants could easily steal the show in the World Series opening today in New York.

Both clubs are well fortified in both the starting and relieving departments.

The Indians, in Bob Lemon, Early Wynn and Mike Garcia, have a trio of moundsmen who have accounted for 64 victories against 25 losses this season. Lemon has 23-6 won-lost record, Wynn 22-11 and Garcia 19-8. The "big three" also have posted formidable earned run averages. Garcia owns the lowest of the trio, 2.55, followed by Lemon 2.60 and Wynn 2.78.

Bob Feller (13-3) and Art Houtteman (15-7) have had brilliant seasons and are ready for possible starting assignments. Hal Newhouser (7-2) and rookies Don Mossi (6-1) and Ray Narleski (3-2) comprise the Tribe bullpen .

The Giants' pitching crew has been effective all season and they, too, present two top front-liners in Sal Maglie and Johnny Antonelli.

Don Liddle (8-4) and Jim Hearn (8-8) may be used as spot starts. The relief chores will be taken care of by Hoyt Wilhelm (12-4) and Marv Grissom (10-7), both of whom have been inavaluable assets all season

The Celeveland staff has accounted for 75 complete games as compared to 44 full-route performances by Giants' moundsmen. The New Yorkers have recorded 16 shutouts. Tribe hurlers have blanked the opposition 12 times.

Credit for handling the rival pitching staffs must be accorded to catchers Jim Hegan of the Indians and Wes Westrum of the Giants. Both are fine, durable receivers and possesses strong throwing arms.

Overall, it looks like a toss-up between the two infields, but the Indians appear to have an edge at bat. The Giants seem stronger defensively.

At first base there's little to choose between Vic Wertz of the Indians and Whitey Lockman of the Giants, both of whom are former outfielders. Wertz hit .258, compared to Lockman's .255. Their fielding averages are the same, .988, and each has hit 16 homers.

Wertz, a distance-swinger, was acquired from Baltimore in early June and almost immediately was installed at first base. Lockman, in his seventh full season with the Giants, has developed into a polished fielder and can be counted on to deliver timely hits.

Cleveland boasts an advantage at second base with Bobby Avila getting the vote over the Giants' Davey Williams. The peppy Avila, led the American League in batting with .341, has been a vital cog in the success of the Indians this season. Williams hit only .225 but has been a tower of strength defensively.

Avila got off to a sizzling start at bat, went into a mid-season slump, but then came on with a flurry in the stretch. An improved fielder, Avila was hampered by an injured hand in mid-June and sidelined for two weeks.

Williams suffered no recurrence of last year's back ailment and his steady fielding at second base aided the Giants' pennant drive immeasurably.

Alvin Dark ,an all-round performer, gives the Giants a substantial edge at shortstop over Cleveland's George Strickland. Dark's steadiness at bat, smooth fielding and inspirational value make him one of the foremost shortstops in the game.

STRICKLAND SLUMPS

Strickland, a National League castoff, was out of action from Aug.. 23 to Sept. 5 with a fractured jaw, but Sam Dente filled in adequately. After a good season in 1953, Strickland slumped to .215 this year.

Al Rosen of the Indians, last year's most valuable player in the American League, has tailed off after his spectacular 1953 season, but still ranks ahead of Hank Thompson of the Giants for third base laurels.

The Cleveland slugger hit .300 his fielding mark is .957. He has hit 24 homers, but his production has dipped since he fractured a finger in early June and was out of the lineup for two weeks. The finger apparently has mended, but now it is reported he is resting up from muscular disorders in his back and thigh and also from a foot ailment.

Thompson's .267 batting average belies his value to the Giants. He is a long ball threat, as his 26 homers attest, and is a good clutch -performer. Thompson also is an impressive fielder despite his .942 defensive average.

TRIBE BALANCED

Normally Cleveland has a good balance in power between left and right but third baseman Al Rosen, the right-handed home run man, has been hampered by injuries. He may not be up to par for the big test. Center Fielder Larry Doby and first baseman Vic Wertz two lefties, are the other long ball hitters in the Tribe lineup. Bobby Avila, left fielder Al Smith, switch-hitting right fielder Dave Philley and catcher Jim Hegan are only an occasional home run therat.

The Giants' long distance leans to the right side with center fielder Mays, left hander Monte Irvin and shortstop Al Dark. Third baseman Hank Thompson and first baseman Whitey Lockman, especially in the Polo Grounds with its short foul lines, form the left-handed home run power. Second Baseman Davey Williams and catcher Wes Westrum, both right-hand hitters, occasionally sock the long ball and right fielder Don Mueller ,a lefty, used to hit homers before he changed his batting style and upped his average. For pinch hitting, Leo has Dusty Rhodes, Bill Taylor and Bobby Hofman, who came through often.

NEW YORK, CLEVELAND SET TO GO WITH ACES

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP) — The Cleveland Indians and New York Giants will meet in the first game of the 1954 World Series today at the Polo Grounds with Bob Lemon scheduled to pitch of the American League champions and Sal Maglie for the National League pennant winners.

It was perfect Indian summer weather but the forecaster looks for increasing cloudiness followed by rain in the evening. That wouldn't affect the crowd of 55,000 expected for the cry 'play ball" at 1800 GMT. The weatherman said the temperature would be about 70-75 this afternoon.

The second game of the series also is scheduled for the Polo Grounds, with the teams going to Cleveland's Municipal Stadium for the third, fourth and fifth (if necessary) games Saturday, Sunday and Monday. If the Series goes the full seven games, the team would be back in New York Tuesday and Wednesday.

All games start at 1800 GMT.

LEMON VS. MAGLIE

Managers Al Lopez of Cleveland and Leo Durocher of New York did what was expected in picking two right-handers for the opener. Lemon has a 23-7 season record and Maglie 14-7. For the second game the Giants will use Johnny Antonelli (21-game winner) against Early Wynn (23-11).

This will be the third series for Cleveland, and the Indians are the 9-5 favorites to make it three world championships without defeat. The Indians are the 6-5 choice in the opening game.

The Giants will be playing in their 14th World Series, but the Polo Grounders haven't won the fall classic since 1933, when they polished off the Washington Senators 4 games to 1.

This is the first time in six years that the Yankees are missing from the series scene. Under Casey Stengel the Yankees won five straight world championships.

The winning team this year may split up around $10,000 per man and the losers about $6,000. Last year each Yankee got a record of $8,280.68 and the losing Brooklyn players received a record $6,178.42. The player pool comes only from the first four games.

The TV rights were sold for $1,000,000 with radio adding another $200,000. This goes into the central fund out of which the player pension program is supported.

With all reserve seats gone here — and at Cleveland as well — the Giants will sell 3,600 bleacher seats at $2.10 this morning. They will also sell an undetermined number of standee tickets at $4.20.

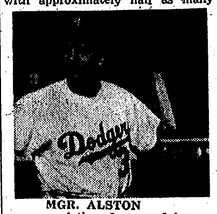
Both teams had batting practice at the Polo Grounds yesterday in sunny weather and the temperature near 80 degrees.

EXPERTS BLAME BROOKS' FAILURE ON SLOW-DOWN

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP) — Specialists who have examined the Brooklyn Dodgers in an effort to discover what hapened to their internal machinery this season are able now to report that the defending league champions simply came down with the slows under the direction of their new manager, Walt Alston.

The Brooks finished the season with approximately half as many



MGR. ALSTON
.... victim of poor advice

stolen bases as they racked up for aggressive Chuck Dressen last year — 43 against 90.

They grounded into about 25 more double plays than the 115 that were chalked up against them when Dressen was signalling for the hit and run. Their opponents over the season commited some 35 fewer errors than they did last year, when they were jittery under the pressure of the Dodgers running game.

There is no disposition to blame Alston. He inherited a club which had aged one year, and he probably was told that he could sit back and let his veterans drive the runs across. If so, he was a victim of poor advice.

Kluszewski Reds' First Home Run King Since 1905

CINCINNATI—(NEA) — Ted Kluszewski gives the Reds their first National League home run king since Fred Odwell hit nine in 1905.

The Reds have had three other homer kings since 1876, but Sam Crawford's 16 was the top figure.

Kluszewski figures to wind up with at least five more than the total hung up by the other Cincinnati long-ball kings.

TRY FOR DOUBLE

Goshen, N. Y.—(NEA)—If Princess Rodney or Stenographer can win this year's Hambletonian trotting classic, it will mark the first time since 1936-37 that fillies have taken the event in two consecutive years. Helicopter, another filly, won last year.

Nine Allies Reach Accord On German Armaments Issue

PARIS, Oct. 22 (AP) — Nine Allied nations last night negotiated complete agreement for rearming and locking a free West Germany within their defense system—but under tight control for the rest of this century.

Thrice-invaded France won the approval of her partners for a far-flung pattern of control that will bar the Germans from raising unlimited forces or making the deadliest weapons without French consent until 1998 A.D.

Building on their own 18-day-old London agreements, foreign ministers of the United States, Canada, Britain and six West European countries cleared the way for their national parliaments to approve:

1. West Germany's restoration as a virtually independent nation.

2. The admission of West Germany and Italy—both ex-enemy countries — into a strengthened Western European Union.

The other members of the Western European Union — better known as the Brussels Alliance of 1948 — are Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. It has been reshaped to replace the ill-fated European Defense Community (EDC). Britain's involvement makes it stronger than EDC, however, especially because the Churchill government has promised to keep four divisions and a tactical air force on the continent for the remaining 44 years of the 50-year pact.

3. West Germany's entry into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) as the 15th member of the alliance against Communism that girdles most of the northern hemisphere. The NATO council meets today formally to take that decision.

ARBOR DAY PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, the people of Guam have long recognized the necessity for conservation of the flora indigenous to Guam, both for aesthetic and economic reasons; and

WHEREAS, they have adopted methods of conservation and restoration for such flora; and

WHEREAS, it is deemed necessary that the government of Guam do all within its resources to foster and encourage such methods; and

WHEREAS, the month of October is considered favorable, due to weather conditions generally prevailing, for the planting and propagation of endemic and exotic trees, shrubs and flowers;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Ford Q. Elvidge, Governor of Guam, by virtue of the authority vested in me as Chief Executive of this Territory by the Organic Act of Guam, do hereby proclaim Friday, the 29th day of October 1954, as Arbor Day in Guam.

I call upon all schools, both public and private, all offices and employees of the government of Guam, and all civic organizations to observe this day with appropriate ceremonies and exercises; I further call upon the people of the Territory of Guam to celebrate Arbor Day by planting such trees, shrubs, and flowers as will enhance and preserve the natural beauty and economic resources of our Territory.

Given under my hand this 21st day of October, 1954.

HOLBROOK TAX SUIT DISMISSED; SHRIVER RULES FOR GOV-GUAM

The authority of the Government of Guam to levy, assess and collect income taxes on earnings made in Guam was upheld yesterday by the District Court in a 10-page decision dismissing the Holbrook tax case for lack of jurisdiction.

Gene Holbrook, local golf professional, has been assessed the amount of $306,763.56 for income taxes for the year 1951, 1952, 1953 and 1954. Holbrook filed a suit last Aug. 31 protesting the jeopardy assessment" and questioning the authority of the local government to collect income taxes.

The decision, penned by Judge Paul D. Shriver, served notice that the court will deal strongly with tax cases. It said:

"This court has no jurisdiction to intervene when the taxpayer-plaintiff is in open defiance of the Government of Guam as regards its authority to require him to pay income tax on income earned in Guam."

Noting that the points raised by Holbrook in his complaints "have been raised and passed upon by this court," Judge Shriver, in his decision, traced the legislative provisions that were discussed in the Laguana vs. Ansell tax case.

The decision in the Laguana case "held in effect that Section 31 of the Organic Act of Guam makes the United States income tax laws, present and future, likewise in force in Guam and creates a territorial tax to be collected by the proper Government of Guam officials."

Holbrook alleged, through his attorneys, E.R. Crain and Finton J. Phelan, that the "Legislature of the unincorporated territory of Japanese Minister To Confer With Top U.S. Officials

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP) — Japanese Foreign Minister Katsuo Okazaki will hold informal discussions with State and Defense Department officials this weekend on his way back to Tokyo from a good-will tour to Brazil. He is due to arrive today at 12:45 p.m. EST

Officials indicate yesterday the longest business session probably would take place tomorrow when Okazaki confers with Walter Robertson, assistant secretary of state for Far East affairs. The talks were expected to be exploratory rather than policy-making in scope.

He will see Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Army chief of staff, today during a courtesy call at the Pentagon. The two are old friends whose acquaintance dates back to Ridgway's service as U.N. Commander for the Far East.

U.N. Assembly Upholds Seats Of Taipeh Delegates

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 22 (AP) — In a sudden vote, the U.N. assembly today approved 35-9 the credentials of delegates of Nationalist China. Three countries abstained.

The vote was taken quickly after the assembly convened and before. India's V.K. Krishna Menon could get the floor to protest the report of the credentials committee recommending approval of the Nationalist China delegation.

In explaining his vote against approving the credentials, Menon said the report was out of order because the assembly already had decided not to consider the question of Nationalist China's place here during this assembly. Menon repeated India's view that the Communist Peiping regime is the rightful government of China and not the government of Chiang Kai-Shek.

Polio Researchers To Share $35,066 Award In Medicine

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 22 (AP) — Three American scientists were awarded the 1954 Nobel Prize in medicine and physiology last night for developing new weapons in the fight against polio.

Sharing the $35,066 prize are Dr. John E. Enders of the Harvard medical school; Dr. Thomas H. Weller of the Harvard school of public health; and a former associate, Dr. Frederick C. Robbins, now at Western Reserve medical school in Cleveland, Ohio. They were cited for their test tube discovery of "the ability of poliomyelitis to multiply in tissue from primates" — that is apes and man.

Sixteen Americans previously had won medical prizes from the nine million dollar fund set up in 1901 under the will of Alfred Nobel, the inventor of dynamite, to reward those judged contributing most to the benefit of mankind. The medical prize is voted by the Caroline Institute of Medicine.

Enders, Weller and Robbins won out for their investigations in the research division of infectious diseases of the Children's Medical Center, Boston, Mass. Enders is director of the division and Weller is assistant director.

Under the 57-year-old director's leadership, the three developed in 1949 a method of growing polio virus in cultures composed of non-nervous human tissue in a nutrient bath. This development made the growth of sufficient polio virus — of the three known strains — so that the 1954 polio vaccine program could be carried out in the United States. Results of that program are still being compiled.

Previous to 1948, attempt to grow the polio virus in nerve tissue were rarely successful and it had never been cultivated in cells of extraneural origin.

Hoover Commission Ignores Ike's Board Findings In Probe Of CIA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Hoover Commission, which is investigating the super-secret Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), yesterday publicly refused to have anything to do with the work of an Eisenhower board which has just reported the CIA is doing "a creditable job."

Despite findings of the group headed by Lt. Gen. James N. Doolittle, the Hoover Commission will proceed with a "top-to-bottom investigation," John B Hollister emphasized in a statement.

Hollister is executive director of the commission on organization of the executive branch of the government, which is headed by former Republican Pres. Herbert Hoover. His statement said a Hoover Commission task force, headed by Gen. Mark W. Clark, would not only comb through the CIA but would also investigate the intelligence services of the State Department, the armed services "and of any other department or agency dealing with intelligence."

Hollister did not pass judgment on the report of the Doolittle group, which praised the work of the CIA generally while finding that the agency can and should be improved in "important areas." He said only that the commission's task force "has no connection" with the Doolittle group.

"Our commission is an arm of the Legislative branch of the government and is set up for the purpose of investigating the Executive branch," Hollister added. "It will report to Congress, and to it only."

The Doolittle group made its report to the White House. White House aides said President Eisenhower had "the only copy in existence."

CIA was set up after World War II to coordinate American espionage, counter-espionage and other intelligence activities around the world. Last June, Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) said Communists have infiltrated the CIA, a charge which CIA chief Allen W. Dulles promptly called "false."

McCarthy remarked that "Communist infiltration of the CIA . . . disturbs me beyond words." He said it would be difficult to probe into the activities of the agency "because Dulles has ordered his people not to testify." Later McCarthy offered to make information in his files available to Clark's group . . . and Clark said that if there are any subversives in the CIA he expects to get them out.

Sailor Drowned

James R. Ward, fireman, USN, assigned to the YOG-79, drowned on the night of October 19, the Navy disclosed today. A Navy spokesman said that Ward apparently slipped off a wharf while returning to his ship. A routine investigation is being conducted, however, to determine the exact cause of his death. Ward was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe N. Ward of Falls Route, Ky., and husband of Mrs. Joyce Faye Ward of 625 17th St., Corbin, Ky.

'Review' Features Tour Attractions In Pacific Islands -- Except Guam

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP) — The SATURDAY REVIEW, a U.S. literary magazine, gave the cover and 22 pages of its current issue to reports on the Pacific and its people. As its editorial, the periodical reprinted part of a speech by Gen. Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines calling for improvements in the United Nations organization.

The magazine had a color photograph of kimono-dressed Japanese girls on its cover plus the slogan "The Pacific—a New World for the Traveller."

Inside, it said that: "A new world, a world of water 70 million square miles of it, floating with palmy islands, strange lands, and whole continents, a world inhabited by exotic races, a world once available only to the adventurous and the intrepid is about to unfold for that tireless gadabout, (roamer) the American traveler."

It told of strides being made in air and sea transport to bring that American tourist to those Pacific lands. There's a story by James Michener, who tells what an inspiration the Pacific has been to writers and explorers. Said Michener: "I really do not understand how a man could wander about the Pacific for long without becoming something of a philosopher."

Stan Delphlane writes a story about how Chinese have come to San Francisco, built curved-roof houses, worked on the railroads, as houseboys, laundrymen and detectives, how Filipinos started there as "stoop-laborers" in the lettuce fields and "graduated to the skilled labor class."

Leonard Lyons writes of the music, dancers and leis of Hawaii and the fishing off Waikiki. There's a story by Frank B. Gibney on "the far side of Fuji," urging traveler to visit Japan "in some depth to see" its beauties as well as its defects," to take note of Japanese tight "national family relationship" and see the cities, the highroads and the inland sea. Gibney says the tourist will find the Japanese "very polite people, good professional hosts and very interesting people."

Irving Hoffman reminds the readers that "Hong Kong is a state of never mind" — a gay place despite its more than a million poor folk, "alive with ancient Chinese temples which contribute a great deal to much needed charities." He tells of people he met there, a tailor, medicine men and merchants

'STATE OF NEVER MIND'

A front page feature today has to do with a group of articles on the "exotic" appeal of Pacific islands to the American tourist. We note that the islands mentioned are Pacific stepping stones for airlines. Guam, somehow, was excluded, and it probably was because the territory is not considered "exotic." We won't split hairs on that point. The jungles of Agana should prove not only that our lovely isle is "exotic" but that it also is unique.

We realize that the island isn't quite ready to absorb its share of the tourist bonanza. No adequate hotel accommodation has been completed, although we understand one may be ready in the near future. Village roads are more of a challenge than thoroughfares, and the tour through the communities—while probably unforgettable for the tourist—isn't one the traveller would want to try again.

To be sure, there are at least a dozen spots throughout Guam that are just what the tourist ordered, especially one who likes ocean views, sunsets and the like. There are also good and respectable dining places that have brought much of the States and Honolulu to Guam. There are relics of the past, dating back to the beginnings of Spanish colonization, especially in the southern regions. The ultimate problem is: where will the tourist stay?

But we were hoping that the Saturday Review would at least mention Guam as one of the Pacific stepping stones to the Orient, good for one day only, just so more folks would know the island exists . . . and an American island, at that. Which reminds us of "Mr. Dooley" who, back in the Spanish-American war days, remarked something like this: "Now, Hinnisy, there's Uncle George burning up Manila and the boys in Washington don't even know whether the Philippines are islands or canned goods." Or the newly-rich deb who, upon returning from Europe, was asked: "Did you see the Dardanelles?" "Oh, yes, my deah; I had dinner with them," said she.

It probably will be sometime before we can advertise Guam as a tourist attraction, exotic or common. One worthwhile preparation is to make the capital city attractive and free from excess flora. Arbor Day might be a good day to launch the project of beautifying the city. We're sure no one would like to hear Guam referred to—in a different sense—as the "State of Never Mind" which Hong Kong, for flattering reasons, is now known to the tourist.

The Mature Parent

By Mrs. MURIEL LAWRENCE

You all know the news just made by the comic book industry. It has pledged itself to a new, self-regulating code of ethics that promises to remove all offensive material from its magazines.

But you may not all know that the comic, Classics Illustrated has refused to join in this self-reforming adventure. This is the dialogue that took place when I telephoned its publishers to ask "Why?"

Classic Ill.: We haven't joined because we don't consider ourselves part of the comics industry. We use the comic technique to introduce youngsters to literary classics.

Mrs. L.: Is that your only reason for not joining?

C. I.: No, we have another. We believe that teaching children to judge between good and evil, truth and sensationalism, clearness and uncleanness is principally their parents' responsibility, not the comic book industry's.

Mrs. L.: Hurray! How glad I am someone is saying so! I am not at all sure that the American parent is to be congratulated because some people he doesn't know are going to protect his children against moral contamination for him. I expect it is part of this queer "Do it for me" trend. However, I'm no perfectionist. If some of us really have found it too strenuous to say "No" to Johnny's "terror-horror" comic books, I suppose somebody has to say it for us. Do you think that this code of ethics will really work?

C. I.: We'd like to think so. But the need for parents and children to work out their own meaningful code of ethics seems to remain.

Mrs. L.: Sooner or later, it's going to have to be done, too. If this move by the comics industry stimulates us to realize how dependent we are coming to be, that will be its real service in my opinion.

C. I.: Look, about the formal statement you wanted on our refusal to climb on the band wagon. It's this: Before we celebrate the comic industry's new code of ethics as the panacea, we'd like to ask American parents how they are applying their own. We'd like to know what they are doing to guide their most precious charges—their children—to understand and choose the good that life has to offer in all their activities, as well as their reading of books and magazines.

Mrs. L.: If you don't mind, I think that I'll let this conversation stand as my comment on the comic book industry's code of ethics.

I THINK it's all right the way it is. The wets have their liquor and the drys have their laws.

THE next war is likely to explode all in a big smash. Cities may be all but obliterated. Who knows where Congress will be? If this standby legislation (for emergency economic controls) is not enacted, and the day of the big smash comes, there will not be a person alive who will not bitterly rue this tragic, needless neglect.

Case History

Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON.—President Eisenhower has been so anxious to patch up our sagging relations with India that he has tried to persuade Paul Hoffman, former administrator for the Marshall Plan, to take the post as U.S. ambassador to India.

It will probably be denied, but the State Department has even considered the idea of asking Chester Bowles, the Democract who was removed as envoy to India, to go back again.

Unfortunately, it has been impossible to persuade Hoffman to accept. His problems with the Studebaker Motor Company which he heads, plus his negotiations with Nash-Hudson aimed at keeping small auto companies from being swallowed by the Big Three, make any foreign assignment impossible.

Also, State Department advisers are doubtful that Bowles would be palatable to the hard core of GOP advisers round Eisenhower even though acceptable to Ike himself.

Bowles, a former Democratic Governor of Connecticut and head of the Price Control Agency during the war, was a sensational success in India. He became a close personal friend of Prime Minister Nehru and was hailed by the Indian masses as their champion. Following Eisenhower's inauguration, however, he was pulled out of India and replaced by career Diplomat George Allen.

Allen has now been recalled to Washington and will not return to India. He is expected to replace Henry Byroade as assistant secretary of state for near Eastern affairs.

Note—Allen was an excellent envoy to Yugoslavia, put our relations with Tito on an even keel. But handling dictator Tito and Aesthete Nehru are two different things, and Allen was not a success in India.

SUDDEN SILENCE IN NEW JERSEY

If you want to know why a sudden hush has settled down over squabbling Republicans in New Jersey you won't have far to go. The answer is the Republic Steel Corporation, which in cooperation with the White House, pulled one of the neatest bits of pressure politics witnessed in the current campaign.

For over a month Jim Selvage, public relations counsel and former vice-president of the National Association of manufacturers, had been bombarding New Jersey voters with a steady stream of denunciation against GOP senatorial candidates Clifford Case, all because case was opposed to Senator McCarthy.

Also snapping at Case's heels were ex-congressman Fred Hartley, the man who co-authored the Taft-Hartley Act and who is extremely close to the National Retail Dry Goods Association; together with ex-Senator Albert Hawkes, former president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. The rift they caused in the Republican Party made it almost certain that a Democrat, Congressman Charles Howell, would win.

However, Jim Selvage has now suddenly clammed up. Simultaneously, Fred Hartley, who talked about jumping into the race against Case, has departed to fill some speaking engagements. And ex-Senator Hawkes has gone on a vacation.

Reason: Republic Steel, which is strong in the councils of big business and which feeds public relations business into the firm of Selvage, Lee and Chase, did a little quiet talking to the New Jersey Rebels.

The Astute maneuver was engineered primarily by Bernard Shanley of the White House staff, who checked with Mark Trice, Secretary of the Senate, and with Ex-Gov. Walter Edge of New Jersey to see who were the chief clients of the Selvage public relations firm. The next moves were made by James Black, a vice-president of the Republic Steel, who goes in and out of the White House side door as one of Ike's best anonymous friends; and by Charley White, head of Republic Steel.

Selvage immediately took the hint, decided that Republic Steel business was more important than Jersey politics. And that is why everything is so quiet along the Jersey banks of the Delaware.

Note—The idea of using the steel companies to pressure key politicians was developed by Governor Dewey during Ike's nominating race. When Governor John Fine of Pennsylvania suddenly switched from Taft to Eisenhower there was just one reason: the influence of U. S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel, which pack powerful weight in Pennsylvania.

POLITICAL PIPELINE—Vice-President Nixon got quite irked the other day when he couldn't even half fill the hall for his major speech in Bergen County, New Jersey, normally the showpiece of GOP strength in that State [illegible]. Less than 600 people were sprinkled through Teaneck High School auditorium—capacity 1,200—to hear the Vice-President of the United States . . . What got his goal was that about 200 of the crowd were chil

Working Groups Speed Up U.S., PI Trade Talks

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP) — A speedup in Philippine-United States trade revision negotiations was reported today as the result of small working groups tackling free trade and sovereignty issues.

Sen. Lorenzo Tanada, head of a Philippine subcommittee working toward agreement on the tough parity question, said "the friendly atmosphere and good will being shown on both sides indicates the problem can be solved."

"We expect to reach an agreement in time," he said.

The small delegations on parity are looking for a formula to make economic rights for exploiting natural resources mutually available to citizens of both countries. At present parity gives Americans in the Philippines the same right as Filipinos to develop natural resources and operate public utilities.

The Philippines rejected the first American proposal to alter the parity provision on the grounds that special U.S. reservations would increase rather than eliminate inequities.

The United States has rejected selective free trade proposals from Sen. Gil Puyat and Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno. One of the main objections, it was learned, was the opinion that the U.S. Congress would not approve the items listed for tariff exemption.

2 Guamanians In Hawaii With '25th'

Two Guamanian soldiers are with the 25th Infantry Division which recently was pulled out from Korea and assigned to Schofield Barracks in Hawaii, the Army Home Town News Center announced.

They are Pfc. George Cepeda Cruz and Pvt. Baltazar San Nicolas. Pfc. Cruz is the son of Mr. and Mrs Juan Nauta of Chalan Pago. Pvt. San Nicolas, 19, is the son of Mrs. Rosa D. San Nicolas of Tamuning.

Cruz entered the Army in January 1954 and was assigned to Korea last July. Pvt. San Nicolas joined the armed forces last November. He arrived in Korea also last July.

The 25th "Tropic Lightning" Division landed in the peninsula in July 1950, shortly after the Communist invasion. It has seen more combat in Korea than any other U.S. unit, the Army dispatch said.

Meanwhile, a Fort Riley, Kan., dispatch said Pvt. Ramon Q. Quinene, 23, of Merizo, presently is serving with the 10th Infantry Division there.

Pvt. Quinene's wife, Mrs. Remedios Quinene, lives in Merizo. A rifleman with Company "I" of the division's 86th Regiment, Pvt Quinene enlisted with the Army last January. His mother, Mrs. Josefa Espinosa also lives in Merizo.

NAS Marian Rally Group Selects Two Committees

Representatives from NAS Agana, the Naval Station, Orote, Tipalao and Apra Heights areas met last Tuesday to select the initial working committees for the forthcoming Marian Rally scheduled for October 31 at the enlisted men's mess hall, NAS Agana.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. E.A. Dewey.

Two committees were formed. Mrs. James O'Connell of Naval Station was selected to head the flower committee. Three ladies from NAS Agana — Mrs. Bellino, Mrs. Moran and Mrs. Wood — will direct the drapes and altar committee.

The Rally is especially for residents—military and civilian—who are connected with the military commands in the territory and will be the first of its kind here. It is being held in connection with the observance of Marian Year which began December 8 last year.

World Religious Vigil On 4th Day

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—For the fourth consecutive day today the small, simply furnished meditation room at the U.N. was the scene of an inter-religious vigil of prayer for peace.

The week-long vigil, sponsored quietly and without fanfare by the Layman's Movement for a Christian world, today featured a half-hour sermon by Dr. Theodore Speers of the Central Presbyterian Church. A Moslem will speak tomorrow and a rabbi on Sunday. Representatives of the Buddhist, Hindu and Catholic faiths offered prayers earlier this week.

One of the purposes of this week is to emphasize the universal language of prayer. In the past only one day was designated for the vigil.

Marianas Lions Skeds All-Day Outing

Final preparations for the outing were made at the Lions weekly meeting Thursday evening at the Rabeth Restaurant.

The whole-day affair will be under the supervision of Lion Ely Somera, Schnabel said. Lions and their guests are requested to check up with the committee for proper accommodation, the president stated.

Tito Sees Peaceful Co-Existence Thru 'Real Tolerance'

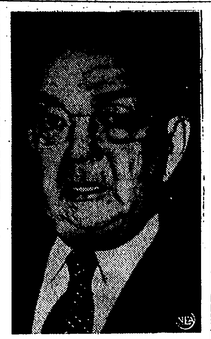
BELGRADE, Oct. 22 (AP) —Marshal Josip Broz Tito said last night that optimism and hope in the world have increased because of "certain successes in finding ways to settle international problems."

In a United Nations Day statement, Tito said the United Nations organization, though praiseworthy, lacked "the necessary universality' which would make possible "far greater successes."

He said it was not enough to speak about the need of co-existence of different systems but that cooperation among United Nations member countries should be developed.

Such cooperation, he said, can be achieved if the "principle of real tolerance is upheld" in international affairs."

Tito said he believed that fear for the future would be removed if cooperation really would be universal and close.



COURT BATTLE — U. S. District Attorney Leo Rover (left) has asked Judge Luther Youngdahl (right) to disqualify himself for Owen Lattimore's coming trial. Rover charged the judge has a "fixed personal bias and prejudice in favor" of Lattimore. Youngdahl previously threw out four of seven counts of perjury against Lattimore.

Chile Reveals Subversive Plot For Conference

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 22 (AP) —The Chilean government Wednesday night disclosed what it termed a Communist plan for "anti-imperialistic movement" to be launched at the forthcoming inter-American conference in Rio de Janeiro.

Justice Minister Osvaldo Koch presented the plan to the chamber of deputies and said it was released to explain the government's reason for imposing a state of emergency during the recent mine strike. He said the plan was prepared by Soviet-Latin-American experts and sent to the political committee of the outlawed Chilean Communist party.

Koch said the document, using the recent suicide of Brazilian President Getulio Vargas as a base, listed projects through which the Communists hoped to weaken the Latin-American governments.

The inter-American conference will be held in Rio de Janeiro next month.

South Korean Admiral Visits Naval Academy

ANNAPOLIS, Maryland, Oct. 22 (AP) — Vice Adm. Ok-Kyu Pak, the Korean Republic's chief of naval operation, visited the U.S. Naval Academy here today to observe instruction of midshipmen.

The Korean navy head and his party arrived this morning and was greeted by Rear Adm. Walter F. Boone, academy superintendent, and was rendered traditional honors, including a 15-gun salute.

The academy station ship, Reina Mercedes, flew the Korean national ensign during the ceremony.

The admiral and his group were luncheon guests of the 3,600-member brigade of midshipmen, after watching the noon meal formation.

The afternoon was devoted to visits to the academy lecture halls, laboratories and other training facilities.

U.N. Official Says A-Bomb Has No Effect On Weather

VIENNA, Oct. 22 (AP)—The head of the United Nations world organization for meteorology said yesterday there are no indications that explosions of atomic bombs have any influence on the weather.

Dr. Gustav Svoboda of Switzerland, head of the United Nations world organization for meteorology, also said he believed most of the "flying saucers" presently reported were actually weather balloons.

He added that the executive council of the world organizations requested all observatories in its 86 member countries to gather information whether, contrary to present belief, atomic explosions do influence the weather.

Svoboda said about 76 per cent of all "flying saucers" allegedly seen were weather balloons while about 24 per cent were not yet investigated. He indicated that these, too, probably were no "flying saucers."

Isle Tax Collection Authority Upheld

Guam has not enacted any enabling legislation to implement the assessment, levy or collection of an income tax by officials of the said territory."

The plaintiff states he "prepared income tax returns and reported thereon the entire gross income and has filed said returns with the Collector of Internal Revenue at San Francisco, Calif., and the Director of Internal Revenue at Baltimore, Maryland."

Holbrook said if the defendants —Director of Finance Richard Taitano, Revenue and Taxation Commissioner Harry L. Mangerich and Deputy Commissioner Ricardo G. Salas — are not "restrained" in their attempts to "compel him to comply with their demands," he (Holbrook) will be "subject to great pains and irreparable damages."

However, the decision recalled that the court has held that provisions of the United States Revenue Code regarding the enforcement of payment of income taxes are "within the meaning of Section 31 of the Organic Act of Guam" and are available to the director of finance.

Shriver said it has been the practice of the U.S. Congress that when it "levied income taxes in United States territories and unincorporated territories," such taxes "must be paid into the local treasury."

The availability of the provisions of the U.S. Revenue Code to the director of finance necessarily raised the question as to whether the court has any jurisdiction on the case, the decision stated.

Shriver acknowledged in his decision that the court is "dealing with a tax imposed by the U.S. Congress. The District Court of Guam is created by the Congress and only in certain exceptions, the courts are prohibited to maintain a suit for the purpose of restraining assessment or collecting collection of taxes."

The court, however, noted that Holbrook still can remedy the situation through administrative procedures with the tax collection officials.

The motion for the dismissal was filed by Attorney General Howard D. Porter, Louis A. Otto, Jr., deputy attorney general, Island Attorney Leon D. Flores and Richard Rosenberry, deputy island attorney.

The government moved for a dismissal of the case on the ground that:

1. The complaint failed to state a claim against the defendants upon which relief can be granted.

2. The complaint and affidavits show the defendants are entitled to judgment as a matter of law and, on that basis, they asked that the court enter a summary judgment.

3. The court does not have jurisdiction over the subject matter.

NY Times Says Tito May Not Go To Reds

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP) —The New York Times takes editorial note today of "the growing rapproachment between Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union," and asks:

"Has Tito switched allegiance again and returned to the Communist camp.....?"

The Times says: "For the moment the answer would seem to be in the negative. Tito has certainly made some changes because of this rapproachment, but his independence was too hard won, and his pride in his achievements is probably too great, to make it likely he would consent to becoming Moscow's vassal again. The Yugoslav leader, more likely, will attempt to pursue his own national interests so as to derive as much benefit as possible from the competitive wooing in his direction by East and West."

Saxton, New Welter Champ, Wins Again As Court Drops Boxer's Jail Sentence

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP) — Johnny Saxton, who won the world's welterweight championship from Kid Gavilan Thursday night, gained another victory Friday when he was given a suspended sentence on a 15-day jail sentence which had been given him for failure to answer traffic summonses.

The court granted Saxton the suspension in consideration of an "eloquent plea" by his attorney.

Saxton, who previously had paid $600 in fines, paid another $50 Friday on a speeding charge.

The original sentence of $600 in fines and 15 days in jail was imposed Oct 4 by Chief Magistrate Murtagh after Saxton had pleaded guilty to various traffic charges He had ignored a dozen tickets and appeared in court only after Chairman Christenberry of the New York State Athletic Commission had told him the commission would not recognize the title fight if he did not go to court.

At that time Saxton asked for and received a stay of execution of the jail term in order that he could go through with the twice-postponed fight against Gavilan.

Indiana Ringmen Now Required To Take Loyalty Oath

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 22 (AP) — Professional boxers and wrestlers must take a non-Communist oath hereafter before they can appear in Indiana rings.

This was decreed Friday by Arch Hindman, executive secretary o the State Athletic Commission. He said new license application forms now being printed will carry this question:

"Are you now or have you ever been a member of the Communist party or any organization which advocates the overthrow of the American form of government?"

Hindman said he did not feel a state government department should further the livelihood of a Communist.

QUESTION: A receiver goes to the corner of the end zone, turns to catch a pass. As he does, one foot slides out of the end zone. The other is firmly in it, and so is the ball as he catches it. Does this count as a score?—Jack Beaudouin.

Answer: The ball must be caught and held by a player completely in the end zone.

Q. A receiver goes downfield, sees the ball is above his head. The defender squares himself to catch it. Just as he reaches up to intercept—the ball just touching his finger-tips—he is hit by the receiver and cut out from under the ball. Is this legal?—Bert Shephard.

A. You are allowed to hit a player catching a pass the instant he touches the ball.

Unbeaten Bombers Take On Improved Middies Tonight

The undefeated Andersen Bombers close out the first round of Coral Bowl Football League play tonight as they meet the Mid-Islanders at NAS Stadium. Game time is 7:30.

A Bomber victory would give the first round title to the league-leading Andersen eleven and would establish hem as odds-on favorites to win the loop crown.

The Middies, however, have greatly improved since their opening 26-0 loss to the second place Sou'Westers. Since that game they have scored wins over the Sun Devils and Flyers and have been pointing for the Bomber tilt since early in the season.

Sparked by the running of their twin dynamos, halfbacks Leon Gafford and Bobby Claiborne, coach Al Jones' blue-clad Bombers have rolled up a total of 1,100 yards rushing in their first five games. While using the air lanes infrequently, the Andersenites have hit for 429 yards passing, making a total of 1,529 yards gained in five games, an average of 306 per game.

On the defensive side the Bombers have perhaps the strongest defensive platoon in the league. Time and time again they have used their power and speed to turn opponents' errors into Bomber scores. In their games to date the defense has limited the opposition to an average total offense of 88 yards.

Gafford is the leading Bomber ground-gainer with 363 yards to his credit. Switched from fullback to half after the second game of the season, the 195-pound powerhouse has lugged the leather 43 times for an average gain of 8.4 yards.

Claiborne, who averaged a fantastic 19.5 yards per carry in the Sou'Wester tilt, has a season average of 10.8 yards a carry. The speedy halfback has scored five touchdowns, three on runs of 85, 70 and 60 yards.

Fuentes Gets Nod Over Graham In Los Angeles Bout

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22 (AP) — Ramon Fuentes of Los Angeles defeated veteran Billy Graham of New York by a one-sided margin in 10 rounds Friday night. Each weighed 150 pounds.

Fuentes, No. 3 ranking welterweight in the United States, won as he pleased in a strong bid to earn a chance at the new world champion, Johnny Saxon.

There were no knockdowns but the fight before an estimated 8,000 in the Olympic Auditorium, bristled with action from start to finish.

Senate Fireworks Readied For Meet On McCarthy Issue

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP) — The United States Senate meets in extraordinary session Monday to consider censuring Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

And the defiant McCarthy, calling the whole procedure a "lynching bee," predicts a combination of Democrats and "so-called Liberal" Republicans will carry the day against him.

"They have plenty of votes — enough," he said in a televised interview in which he blamed campaign tactics of President Eisenhower among other Republican leaders, for the loss of Congress to the Democrats in last Tuesday's election.

The Senate, in recess since mid-August, comes back at noon Monday for the express purpose of considering charges that McCarthy is guilty of contempt of the Senate and of abusive treatment of an Army general who appeared before his investigations subcommittee.

This is the first such session the Senate ever held. It also marks the first time in 25 years that a Senator has been brought up before his colleagues on censure charges. In the nation's history, only three Senators have been formally censured.

The Senate does not expect to start actual debate on the censure move until Wednesday.

IT'S STILL CASE

NEWARK, N.J., Nov. 9 (AP) — First reports from official canvass by county clerks in seven of New Jersey's 21 counties yesterday raised Republican Clifford P. Case's U.S. Senate lead to 3,780 votes. The readjusted vote totals based on the unofficial returns from 14 counties and the official returns from the seven counties gave Case 861,774 and Howell 857,994 votes. The official canvass by county clerks got under way as ballots in last Tuesday's election were under legal seizure in all but one of the state's counties.

GUAM TO LEAD VETS' DAY EVENT TOMORROW

Nation-wide special naturalization ceremonies on the first observance of Veterans Day tomorrow will start in Guam when the first of some 50,000 aliens are sworned in as citizens of the United States at the Plaza de Espana, Agana, at 10 a.m.

District Court Judge Paul D. Shriver, who has been selected grand marshal for the parade preceding the ceremony, will officiate at the naturalization of some 80 aliens who have arrived here during the past few days.

Because of Guam's location in the international dateline, the ceremonies here will be 13 hours ahead of the first in the mainland, in New York City. Hawaii, with more than 500 aliens on its list of prospective citizens tomorrow, will be the last in the nation-wide event.

John Kelleher, special inquiry officer of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Honolulu, will present the aliens for naturalization.

The parade will start at 9:30 a.m. from the Paseo de Susana and wind up at the plaza where Radm. M.E. Murphy, ComNavMarianas, will be the principal speaker. Military contingents, veterans organizations and auxiliaries, the Guam Militia and Boy Scouts will march in the parade.

Russians Charge RB-29 Fired First Shots At Red Migs

MOSCOW, Nov. 9 (AP)—The Soviet government has charged that the U.S. RB-29 photo-mapping bomber shot down by Soviet jet fighters Sunday had opened fire first.

While flying over Soviet territory, a protest note said, "the American aircraft was intercepted by Soviet fighters which wanted to show the American aircraft that it was within the boundaries of the U.S.S.R. and to request it to leave immediately."

When the Soviet fighters approached," it said, "the American aircraft opened fire on them. In view of this unprovoked action of the American intruder, the Soviet aircraft were compelled to retaliate the fire after which the American aircraft left the air space of the Soviet Union and flew off in a southerly direction."

The Moscow radio broadcast the Soviet protest and Tas published the Soviet version tonight. It was learned, however, that the Soviet note and an American note denouncing the shooting were exchanged Sunday.

'RUBY' LEAVES P. I.

MANILA, Nov. 9 (AP)—Typhoon winds of 120-mile-an-hour headed headed toward the South China Sea today after leaving thousands homeless on Luzon Island but sparing Manila's 1,000,000 from other than heavy rains and wind gusts. There was as yet no official report of deaths.

COLLINS IN SAIGON

SAIGON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Gen. J. Lawton Collins, President Eisenhower's special envoy to Indochina, arrived yesterday to coordinate American aid activities here. He is former Army chief of staff. Arriving in his personal plane from Tokyo, Collins said he came to Indochina "to render maximum help to the Vietnamese people in solving their problems." He said that although he had devoted considerable study to the situation here, he came with "no preconceived notions."

Plane's Captain Gives Version Of Attack By Migs

TOKYO, Nov. 9 (AP)—The captain of a U.S. Air Force RB-29 shot down Sunday by two Russian-built Migs said yesterday the plane was "never closer than 15 miles" to Russian-held territory north of Japan.

"I was approximately 9 miles off Hokkaido and was never closer than 15 miles to the area the Russians consider their own," Capt. Anthony Francis Feith, told a press conference here.

Feith said his distances were based on his studies of maps.

"When fired upon we were even further away (than 15 miles). We were headed back toward land."

Captain Feith said the Reds attacked when his photo-mapping plane had finished the first of three scheduled runs over northern Hokkaido and was over the Pacific ocean southwest of the easternmost tip of the Nemuro isthmus. That would put it well to the south and west of the Japanese side of the narrow, 4.5-mile-wide strait which separates Hokkaido from Russian-held islands.

He said the plane was over a reef called Tasuminose, about half way between the Nemuro isthmus of Hokkaido and the demarcation line marking Russian held territory. The pilot said the plane did not fire back at the Migs — "much as I would have liked to — for one reason: we did not get our mission accomplished and either myself or someone else was going to get those pictures."

Feith told a news conference the plane had finished the first mapping pass and circled north. The plane was south and east of the coast at the end of the run. It then turned north.

"Then we spotted the two fighters on our right. Perhaps it was just a premonition," Feith said, but he ordered the Superfort then to head straight west — away from the Russian territory.

"A member of the crew informed me that a pass was being made, and in almost the same breath, that it was a firing pass and that we were hit."

Feith said: "It was the No. 1 outboard engine and I decided the

Vishinsky Lashes At U.N. Delegates; Charges 'Pillory' Attempt On Atom Plan

UNITED NATIONS, New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky says Moscow is willing to continue talks with the United States on President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan.

Speaking Monday in the U.N. assembly's political committee, Vishinsky charged an attempt is being made to pillory the Soviet Union by representing the Russians as against the Eisenhower plan.

He spoke out specifically against a claim by U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Friday that Russia's replies were "essentially negative." He also lashed at Western delegates and others who said Russia had taken the position it would cooperate only if the United States agreed in advance to ban atomic bombs.

This was the third time since September that Vishinsky has taken pains to deny, and with some heat, that Russia has rejected the Eisenhower proposals.

Last week the White House announced a note to Russia asking resumption of negotiations. President Eisenhower and Lodge have said the United States will go ahead with plans for the peaceful pool regardless of Russia's decision.

Vishinsky observed that the United States had asked for ideas. He said the Russians replied with their long-standing view that atomic weapons should be prohibited; pending that there was little hope of progress with peaceful uses of atomic energy.

"Where do you find any inkling that we refuse to engage in negotiations in regard to the proposal

New York Judge To Succeed Late Justice Jackson

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP) — President Eisenhower yesterday picked U.S. Circuit Judge John Marshal Harlan of New York to be an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court.

Harlan would succeed the late Justice Robert Jackson.

The White House announced the President will send the nomination to the Senate Tuesday, and at the same time will nominate Joseph Campbell, now a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, to be comptroller general.

The comptroller general's office has been vacant since Lindsay Warren retired last spring because of ill health.

The comptroller general is the watchdog for Congress over Federal spending.

U.S. Demands Reparations For RB-29; Soviets Accused Of 'Piratical' Action

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—The United States demanded reparations from Russia yesterday for the shooting down of an American photo-mapping bomber. The Reds countered with charges that the U.S. plane had violated Russian territory and opened fire.

As on earlier occasions of this sort, the American and Russian versions were exactly opposite. The U.S. Air Force claimed the shooting was all done by the Russians, with the American bomber not replying, and stressed that the scene was over Japanese territory. It said the American plane was never within 15 miles of Soviet territory.

A note which said "the United States strongly protests" and wants "moral and material reparations"—that is, an apology, disciplining of the Red airmen responsible and money to pay for the destroyed plane and to compensate the family of the lone airman lost — was handed to the Soviet foreign office by Ambassador Charles N. Bohlen.

However, the line taken by the Russians in their note was one of absolute innocence. Moscow said its fighter planes intercepted the American ship to ask it to leave Soviet territory but "the American aircraft opened fire on them.'

"In view of this unprovoked action of the American intruder," the Russian note said, the Soviet aircraft were compelled to retaliate the fire, after which the American aircraft left the air space of the Soviet Union and flew off in a southerly direction."

AT HOME ABROAD

The warm welcome accorded 22-year-old Felipe Ybanez in Honolulu recently by some of his fellow Guamanians in that city speaks well of the Guam Society of Hawaii. If young Ybanez—who arrived in the Paradise of the Pacific on a stretcher because of his crippled condition—was hopeful of recovery when he left the Island, he must feel greatly encouraged by the unexpected reception to muster greater strength in facing the future. No doubt, he felt very much at home.

Organizations like the Honolulu group can accomplish a great deal towards giving our territory and our people some very favorable publicity and worthy recognition in far and strange lands, especially among those who know so little of the Island. The Ybanez welcome also is a sign that there is unity and enterprise among Islanders abroad; that their remoteness from us does not necessarily mean estrangement among themselves in other climes and places.

Such a group—and there are at least two others, in San Diego and in Washington, D.C.—offers a sharp contrast, it seems to the individual actions of some Islanders who have been reported to be aloof to the idea of associating with, or even recognizing fellow Guamanians whom they meet abroad. Some were even known to deny that they are Guamanians, fearing they might be socially ostracized by newly-found friends who—if that is the way they feel about—aren't worth having as friends in the first place.

Admittedly, there are a few who are undesirable company among any people anywhere, because of their disgraceful conduct and the bad reputation they have earned for themselves. But the refusal to associate because this chap's father is only a farmer in Guam, or that girl's mother earns her living with a washing-machine, is a little hard to understand. And anyone who refuses to be truthful about his origin, who despises his own people, certainly has stooped lower than a rattlesnake's belly.

We hope to see more organizations like the groups mentioned so that, like the Englishman—in a humbler sense, however—wherever there is a Guamanian, there would be a good part of Guam there.

The Mature Parent

By Mrs. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Mary R., says her mother, has always fretted over school examinations. This year, since her final exams will affect her high school graduation, she's especially apprehensive.

Though she's a conscientious student who receives fair marks, she's plunged herself into anxious cramming and overstudy.

She's become so irritable at home that her mother writes to me: "Isn't this neurotic behavior? What can I do?"

I do not make psychiatric diagnoses. I can only tell Mrs. R. what I would do. That would be to open my daughter's eyes to an aspect of this world that she should know about. And tell her how to deal with disinterested, impersonal suspicion of her competence.

A school examination faces her with just that kind of suspicion.

An examination paper does not love Mary. It is not in the least interested in her as a human being. It is interested only in her skill in conjugating French verbs and recalling Macbeth's soliloquies. It exists only to demand proof of those skills.

That is why it offers valuable experience to Mary. It provides her with practice in dealing with this disinterested, impersonal world that often regards our competence suspiciously until we can prove it.

We ourselves fear this cold and unloving aspect of the world. Maybe that's why we don't discuss it with children. We let them grow into it, blind, expecting the same personal interest from the world as they have found among those who love them.

So when they come up against it in the form of a school examination, they are frightened, instead of saying to themselves as they approach school examinations, "Oh, this is just the world wanting me to prove myself again."

So I suggest that parents whose children have done their best in school throughout the year say to them, "My dears, preparation for your examinations is moral work, not book work."

Why do we say this? What, pray, does a school examination examine in Mary? Her moral character, or the abilities derived from human teachers? And which is important to Mary and us, as moral persons?

If the abilities derived from human teachers are far less valuable to us than the unfailing character Mary derives from God, we are not concerned with human judgment of less valuable abilities.

We teach her to approach the worldly suspiciousness of school examinations with tolerance and no awe whatever.

Could Kill the Optimism

Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON.—Now that the President has the elections and his Denver vacation out of the way, there is a problem right inside his own cabinet which will require expert and immediate attention. Otherwise, he's likely to have a cabinet resignation blow up in his face.

Only the phenomenal patience of Secretary of Labor James Mitchell has prevented such a blow-up before this. All summer he has been turning the other cheek to the roughhouse tactics of his colleague, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, but how long it will continue is uncertain.

This, of course, may be officially denied, but nevertheless here are some of the inside facts regarding this cabinet friction:

The chief current issue between the two men is the fact that Secretary of Commerce Weeks wants labor put under the antitrust laws. Secretary of Labor Mitchell does not. However, the issue actually goes even deeper, to the fact that Weeks, reared in a conservative Boston business background, considers it his job to champion every form of business, even to the extent of barging into the preserve of his cabinet colleague who handles the problems of labor.

Weeks' father, a Bay State blue-blood, was Secretary of War under President Harding. And Weeks himself was head of the United Carr Manufacturing Company; Reed and Barton, Silversmiths; director of Gillette Safety Razor, Pacific Mills, First National Bank, Rand Pullman Co., Atlas Plymouth, and so on.

Mitchell, too, has represented business a good part of his life but his chief job was to represent it in dealing with labor. He was hand-picked by Governor Dewey for Ike's labor post because he knew how to deal with labor, and in a short period of the time he has done a creditable job. Labor leaders, though disliking the Eisenhower administration, like Mitchell.

The Weeks-Mitchell cabinet squabble probably would be no worse than the personality tiffs that have occurred in most cabinets in the past were it not for the fact that Weeks seems so determined to prevail on the question of the antitrust laws.

He doesn't seem to care who is Secretary of Labor just so long as his views dominate. He fought Eisenhower's first Labor Secretary, Martin Durkin, and finally induced his resignation over the Taft-Hartley Act. Now, if Ike doesn't step in and stick to his cabinet knitting he may find himself looking for a new Secretary of Labor quicker than he thinks.

FOA STALLS—There's a big difference between the way the American Red Cross operates and the Foreign Operations Administration when it comes to relieving human suffering. After the disastrous flash flood that killed more than 200 people at Salerno, Italy, the Red Cross was most cooperative in informing this column about the operation of its international organization in Geneva and just what steps were being taken to help alleviate the tragic disaster.

It was further suggested that since President Eisenhower had set a public policy of using American farm surpluses to relieve distress abroad, the Foreign Operations Administration also might tell us what it was doing to help at Salerno.

"Miss Evelyn Ripps in Room 804 at FOA is handling the Italian flood problem," explained Mr. William Breyer of the Red Cross.

The door of 804 was open, and Miss Ripps, a lady of about 30, was seated at her desk.

"I'd like to get any information available on what FOA is doing in connection with the recent flood in Italy," she was asked.

Miss Ripps made no immediate reply. Instead she began turning over all the papers on her desk so that the blank backs stared up.

"When you people come strolling around here, we just turn everything over," she remarked. "And as far as what we are doing in Italy is concerned, you read the papers, don't you?

"I just thought there might be some recent development that I hadn't heard about, or something that the papers had overlooked," was the reply.

"Well, I'll tell you," confided Miss Ripps, "the first thing you find after a flood is that a good many bodies are missing. Does that answer your question?"

By this time she had turned all her papers over, and was looking in an FOA telephone directory.

"Have I done anything to antagonize you? I didn't mean to, but I'm sorry if I did."

Miss Ripps was not appeased.

"I don't think that has anything to do with the case," she snapped, and returned to her phone book.

New Phone System For Island Soon

With the island-wide telephone system less than a month away, the modification and installation of dialing equipment is reaching its final stages, the Navy announced yesterday.

The new system, effecting all telephone users on the island, is expected to be completed by December 4.

A major concern to telephone customers are the new telephone numbers now being distributed. After the conversion telephone exchange numbers such as 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16, will no longer exist. All present numbers will be changed and will begin with the digits 3, 4, 5, 6 or 7. Some numbers will have five digits but the majority will contain six, all of which will have to be dialed. But not until after Dec. 4.

Telephone directories, now being published, will be in effect after midnight, Dec. 4, and should be consulted for new numbers. Modifications and installations at Andersen Air Force Base still are to be done.

The conversion is being accomplished under a "cross service" agreement with Team One of the Signal Service Detachment, 8051st Army Unit, doing the central office changes. The telephone division of the Navy's Public Works Center's utilities department is accomplishing necessary changes in records and field line portions of the conversion.

Guam To Atsugi: A First Navy Marriage

The first warrant officers to be married in the Navy were wed last month at the Naval Air Station, Atsugi, chapel. They are Chief Ship's Clerk Alma H. Piakke, USN, of NAS Agana and Chief Machinist Harry Baker, NAS, Atsugi.

The two met while Baker was attached to NAS Agana, as refueling officer. They had previously planned to wed on Guam.

Baker, presently attached to FASRON 11, NAS, Atsugi as air frames officer, has served in the Navy for 25 years.

The new Mrs. Baker, one of two WAVES on Guam, is serving as assistant administrative officer at NAS Agana.

Nation's Dental Health Improving, ADA Head Says

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 9 (AP) — Dr. Leslie M. Fitzgerald, president of the American Dental Association (ADA), says "the nation's dental health, will be substantially improved" in the future by the fluoridation of public water supplies. He spoke at the opening session of the group's 95th annual convention.

Fitzgerald said fluoridation is now in operation in 1,020 cities, with a combined population of more than 20 million. He called it a "major step in the dental profession's continuing fight to prevent and control disease."

Some 12,000 persons were here for the four-day convention, representing about 72,000 U.S. dentists. Delegates were from all 48 states and territories and many foreign countries.

Foreign visitors included Dr. B. B. Erana, Manila, president of the Philippine Dental Association; Dr. James Dyce, London, representing the International Dental Federation from Britain and Dr. Aiji Kaneda, Osaka, representing the Japanese Dental Association.

Pan Am Protests Examiner's Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Pan American World Airways complained today that a new service pattern in Europe, as proposed by Trans World Airlines, would give TWA a "dominant position over the London gateway as well as the Paris gateway to Europe."

Pan American filed an exception to an Oct. 27 recommendation by a Civil Aeronautics Board examiner that TWA be authorized to operate between Frankfurt, Germany, and Zurich, Switzerland. Such a link between two TWA routes would enable the airline to operate from the United States through London and Frankfurt and on, by way of Zurich, to Rome, Athens and other cities on TWA's route.

Examiner Barron Fredricks also recommended that Pan American be granted new routes between Frankfurt and Rome, and between Rome and Istanbul.

Pan American said TWA's application should be denied as being "inconsistent with the public interest."

U.S. Indebted To Jewish People, Ambassador Says

NEWARK, NJ., Nov. 9 (AP) — James G. McDonald, first U.S. ambassador to Israel, said yesterday the American people were indebted to the Jews for their contribution to a variety of professions.

McDonald, in his prepared talk to the Rutgers University convocation in recognition of the tercentenary of Jewish culture in North America, said the Jewish people have left a heritage of accomplishments in religion, ethics, philosophy, literature, law, science and business.

Some 900 persons attended the ceremony in the Mutual Benefit auditorium here. The 65-voice Rutgers Men's College glee club sang two Jewish songs of cultural character.

The diplomat told the audience: "We must seek to learn, at least a little, of Jewish history, and of the Jews' creative and civilizing role through the ages. Then and only then shall we be in a position to appreciate the Jews' manifold gifts of the spirit."

Netherlands Claims Indon 'Infiltration'

THE HAGUE, Nov. 9 (AP) — The Netherlands government has made a strong protest to the Indonesia government over renewed violations of Dutch held New Guinea territory, committed Oct 21 by a 48-man strong Indonesian army group.

In a communique yesterday the Dutch foreign minister said the Netherlands government has also asked the Indonesian government to release Dutch police Chief Van Krieken, taken prisoner on that occasion.

Documents and photos left behind by the Indonesians show they belong to the Indonesian 25th infantry regiment stationed on Dobo island off the Indonesian-held Aroe group and also prove that the "infiltration," was well prepared, the Netherlands protest said.

'Times' Proposes Preservation Of Dewey's Flagship

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP) —The Olympia, Admiral Dewey's flagship at the Battle of Manila Bay "can and ought to be a national monument for both the United States and the Philippines," the New York Times said editorially today, noting that the U.S. Navy Department has said funds must be raised if the ship is to be preserved.

The Times declared that "preserving the Olympia is much, much more than reminiscently gloating over some jingoistic triumph. If it were not only that, the ship should be scrapped tomorrow."

"But the battle of Manila Bay marked the turning point in the history of the Far East," the Times eventual thinking of a great many it spelled the end of 300 years of Spanish rule in the Philippines.

"It inaugurated a period of half a century in which we and the Filipinos were able to build up a new sort of international and inter-racial relationship and to bring it to a happy, social and personal consummation. Dewey's victory changed the course of history in Asia. It also changed the eventual thinking of a great many Filipinos and a great many Americans."

Reds Might Drum Up Nazi Leader's Release

STUTTGART, Germany, Nov. 9 (AP) — Former Nazi foreign minister Konstantin Von Neurath, arriving home from Spandau war crimes prison yesterday night, suggested the Soviets might try to gain propaganda value from his release.

The four occupation powers paroled 81-year-old Von Neurath Saturday on humane grounds because of his age and failing health. Hitler's first foreign minister and Nazi "protector" of Czechoslovakia was the first of the major Nazi war criminals convicted at Nuernberg to be freed. He had served 8 years of a 15-year term.

Doctor Complains Danny Kaye Beat Him Up In L.A.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9 (AP) — A doctor complained to police that he was beaten by Actor Danny Kaye and another man during an argument yesterday night outside the Los Angeles International airport terminal.

A battery report was signed at a police station by Dr. Roland Marks, 51, an ear and throat specialist. The physician complained that Kaye gringed him with a headlock while the actor's business manager, Edward Dukoff, 45, struck him in the ribs. No arrests were made.

Dr. Marks was at the airport to catch a plane. Kaye and Dukoff had just arrived from New York City. Officer G. P. Hobson said Dr. Marks complained that as he was kissing his wife, Elizabeth, goodbye Dukoff approached and ordered him to move his car to make room for an automobile waiting to pick up Kaye and Dukoff.

The officer said an argument and fight ensued. Hobson said Kaye and Dukoff told him the physician became "insulting" when they asked him to move his car.

Dukoff said "the whole thing is silly, ridiculous and nothing warranted this type of action. We just had a few words." He said Kaye was not available and they did not believe the incident was important enough to make a statement.

Mendes Woos Support Of Socialist Party

PARIS, Nov. 9 (AP) — Premier Pierre Mendes-France conferred more than an hour last night th Guy Mollet, secretary-general of the French Socialist party, on the premier's bid to bolster his coalition with Socialist membership.

On leaving the premier's office, Mollet told newsmen that the decision on entering the government could only be made by the special Socialist national convention which opens here tomorrow.

The interview followed weekend meetings of Socialist departmental (county) federations whose members voted strongly, in nearly every case, for participation in the cabinet but, also in nearly every case, tied this recommendation with certain conditions as to the premier's economic and social program.

Japanese Repatriation

KYOTO, Japan, Nov. 9 (AP) — The Japanese ship Koan Maru will repatriate about 300 Japanese civilians now held in Red China and 74 others from Vietnam late this month, it was reported here today.

The boat will bring the repatriates to Maizuru about Nov. 25, under plans agreed upon by Japanese and Chinese Communist Red Cross officials.

Indon Official Denies Dutch Charges

JAKARTA, Nov. 9 (AP) — Dutch charges that Indonesian troops had recently landed in New Guinea were denied today by S. Papare, executive member of the government's "Irian Bureau."

Papare said if there had been any such landings they must have been made from the island of Ceram by troops belonging to the Republic of South Moloccas who were trying to make contact with the Dutch on New Guinea.

Papare claimed that the Dutch were fabricating rumors about Indonesian infiltration of west New Guinea.

He also said that Dr. Soumokil, "leader of the Rebel Republica of South Moluccas," was at present in New Guinea, under Dutch protection."

Plaza Ceremonies To Highlight Vets' Day Celebrations

By BILL LUJAN

Staff Sgt. Francisco Santos Aguon, USA, attached to the 29th Inf. Tank Company (Med.) at Okinawa, is at home on temporary duty assignment. He is here to witness the naturalization papers of one of his buddies who will be sworn in tomorrow morning as an American citizen.

Sgt. AGUON

Sgt. Santos entered the service in April, 1951, and obtained his basic training at Schofield Barracks, Honolulu. He was assigned to 23rd Reg. 2nd Div. at Korea where he served in the battlefront for seven months without a scratch.

"I experienced many a weary day at Heartbreak Ridge during the fighting in Korea. Fortunately, I got out of it without a scratch," the tough-looking Guamanian soldier remarked. He received his present rank in the Army after completing two years of service.

Sgt. Aguon is the son of Francisco Aguon of Piti.

KUAM PRESIDENT LEAVES

Harry Engel, president of the local radio station KUAM, departed for Honolulu and the mainland Monday morning by PAA on a business trip. Engel also will visit his family now residing at Los Angeles, Calif.

TRUST ISLE PERSONNEL DIRECTOR ARRIVES

Nat Smith, personnel director for the Trust Territory arrived last Saturday night from Honolulu. He was greeted at the airport by Acting High Commissioner D. Nucker and other officials of the Trust Territory office here.

MILK REPRESENTATIVE HERE

Al Miller, of the California Milk Producers Association, is here on a periodic trip in connection with Modesto Milk which Atkins, Kroll & Co. is distributing on the island. He was greeted at the airport by Jack Ehrhart, general manager of Atkins, Kroll Co.

MISS CORN TO MANILA

Miss Josephine Corn, daughter of Charlie Corn, local businessman, is on a brief vacation visit to her mother in Manila. Her father saw her off at the airport.

Kelleher arrived several days ago from Honolulu specifically to "speed up the naturalization hearings and to pave the way for the special proceedings." He said the group of prospective citizens is "characteristic of the island population—a cosmopolitan one."

Kelleher revealed these aliens, many of them in the armed forces were flown in from Okinawa, the Philippines and other points in the Far East for the proceedings. He said this particular ceremony "is doubly significant in the light of United States international goodwill policy."

"The long arm of American friendship and readiness to admit within its fold peoples from other parts of the world seeking haven in the United States has been extended into this far-flung island," Kelleher declared.

Kelleher, who hails from Brockton, Mass., has been in the immigration service since 1929 and with the Honolulu office since June, 1946. He has made several tours of Japan and Okinawa on military naturalization missions.

Judge Shriver said the group of aliens is "double the previous largest alien group naturalized in Guam."

New Harriman Lead

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—Democrat Averell Harrimm's lead in the New York governorship race jumped to 11.803 votes on the basis of official recanvass of some state figures and a recheck of election inspectors' reports in New York City. The new totals were:

Harriman, 2,557,905; Sen. Irving M. Ives, 2,546,102.

Soviet Church Matters

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP)—A group of British churchmen, including an Anglican chaplain to Queen Elizabeth II, has accepted an invitation by the Russian Orthodox Church to visit Moscow and Leningrad to discuss church matters.

The queen's chaplain is Canon C.E. Raven, warden of Madingley Hall, Cambridge.

Japanese Premier Embarrassed During 15-Minute Visit To Pentagon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP) — Prime Minister Yoshida had a 15-minute talk with Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and about as many minutes of embarrassment during his visit to the Pentagon yesterday afternoon.

The prime minister and his party arrived in Wilson's ante-room five minutes ahead of schedule and after a short wait were ushered into the Defense Secretary's office by a three-star admiral in the style reserved for visiting dignitaries.

After posing for photographers, Wilson said he liked the practice he encountered on his visit to Japan when the photographers were placed on a truck which drove by the visitors at an appointed moment, took their pictures and then were driven away. "You have good organization in your country, Mr. Prime Minister," Wilson added, smiling.

Yoshida talked with Wilson for about 15 minutes. Then the door opened and the Japanese party backed out, but without any high American functionary to guide them.

When one of the members of the Japanese party said they wanted to call on Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, a sailor said he would show them the way. He ushered the Japanese into Radford's office, but the admiral was out of town.

The perplexed Japanese backed out into the Pentagon corridor and stood for some minutes wondering what to do next. They decided to go back to town.

Yoshida, accustomed through long years of public life, to saying goodbye to somebody after an official visit but finding no Defense personality with whom to perform the formalities, shook hands with a reporter and then took his leave.

Bishop Notes Low Moral Level In U.S. German Zone

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 9 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Ryan, chief of U.S. Army chaplains, reported today that Bishop Otto Dibelius considers moral standards in two areas of the American zone of Germany inferior.

Ryan, on a tour of U.S. bases in Europe, told a news conference that Bishop Dibelius, head of the German Evangelical Church, had "suggested that we cooperate to raise the moral tone of those two areas." Ryan declined to identify the areas because it "might reflect on the commanders."

Several West German cities have recently been under fire as "sin cities," among them Munich, Kaiserslautern, and Fuerth, just outside Nuernberg.

The city center of Fuerth was placed off-limits to U.S. soldiers because of brawling. In Kaiserslautern, special German police squads rounded up scores of prostitutes for checkups.

Questioned on what had caused moral standards to drop in the two areas mentioned by Dibelius, Ryan, a Roman Catholic, would say only: "Original sin."

U.S. Demands RB-29 Reparations

gulo was drowned in the shooting when he became ensnarled in his parachute, and 10 others parachuted to safety.

President Eisenhower broke into a speech at Boston to take note of the incident. Departing from his prepared text, the President told the National Conference of Catholic Women that free world strength was growing in the Pacific despite such incidents.

The formal U.S. note of protest took less than 100 words. It promised that the Kremlin would hear again from Washington after investigation had pinned down all the facts "regarding human and material losses."

A protest already had been leveled by Gen. John E. Hull, U.S. Far East commander in Tokyo. He accused the Russians of a "piratical" attack which he said could not possibly be excused.

"Any claim by the Soviet attackers that our plane was over what they consider their territory is completely negated by the fall of the plane and of the survivors who parachuted from it on Hokkaido soil," he said.

Sen. William Knowland of California, the Republican Senate leader, said the US 7th Fleet should take steps to insure that U.S. flights have adequate protection.

Sen. William Purtell (R-Conn.) said in a statement the Russians are "defying us to do something about their ruthless, arrogant and contentious attitude toward American forces."

"We must have some guarantee that there will be no repetition of such incidents," he said.

"I decided for the safety of the crew we should leave," Feith said.

Asked why his plane did not fire back he said that at the moment his plane was hit "I thought we might be able to finish the mission if we found out how badly damaged we were."

The big Superfort was armed, he said.

The Air Force, he said, has left it "to the aircraft commander's direction" whether to open fire when attacked.

of the United States?" he asked. The Soviet government never made the adoption of our proposal a condition for the continuance of negotiations with the United States.

"We merely said that during negotiations it might be appropriate to enter into some agreement, that the state's party to the agreement really should undertake not to use the atomic weapons. This was subsequently construed as a refusal to continue negotiations. This is distorted in such a manner as to pillory the Soviet Union as an opponent of the negotiations."

Vishinsky said negotiations should continue because the subject is far from exhausted.

France, Belgium and the Netherlands spoke in favor of the broad purposes of the program and of a resolution sponsored by the United States, Britain, Canada, France, Belgium, Australia and South Africa.

The resolution proposes setting up an international atomic agency similar to specialized agencies of the U.N. It also proposed an international conference to which interested agencies would be invited to send representatives.

AMERICAN LEAGUE OWNERS APPROVE A'S SHIFT TO KC

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—The American League yesterday approved the shift of the Philadelphia Athletics baseball club to Kansas City under the ownership of Arnold Johnson of Chicago.

After listening to Johnson and his attorney, Edward L. Vollers, for 40 minutes, the American League executives then conferred privately for 45 minutes before the decision was announced by Earl Hilligan, public relations director of the league.

Hilligan said the vote was unanimous approving the sale of the stock by Connie Mack and his sons to Johnson. The vote was 6-2 for shifting the franchise

It was the third shift of a major league fanchise in 20 months. The Boston Braves switched to Milwaukee in March of 1953 and in September of 1953 the St. Louis Browns were transferred to Baltimore.

Philippine Cagers, On Way Home Nix Stateside Games

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP) — Fourteen members of the Philippines' basketball team arrived here by air last night from Rio de Janeiro after participating in the World Basketball tournament.

Herminio Silva, coach of the team, said the squad would not meet any American basketball team before returning to Manila as had been planned. Previously it was announced that the Philippine squad would meet the Union Temple Club of New York and perhaps play a game in Seattle.

Silva said the team had played 16 games on the road and now were interested only in returning home.

Grid Expert Claims Best Defense For T Is 7-Man Line

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Former coach and scout Reggie Brown, still a defensive football genius at 78, maintains a seven-man line is the best way to stop T-formations.

One of the greatest living authorities on grid defenses, Brown points to Holy Cross' 14-13 victory over Boston University for proof. B. U. is noted for its quick-opening T-attack.

"Did you notice Anderson (Coach Eddie Anderson of Holy Cross) employed a seven-man line all through the game?" asked Brown.

"A seven-man line is the logical defense to use against the T. The trick is to know how to work out the spacing and alignments."

Brown maintains there never has or never will be a football offense which is foolproof.

He won't give away any of his secrets, but Brown says a 7-3-1 is the best defense against the T, 6-3-2 against single and double wings, 6-2-2-1 against short kick formations and a man-to-man against spreads.

Brown, who tosses off a couple of 100 and 220 yard dashes daily because, he says, he has no need for the endurance he used to strive for in mile jogs in the morning, remembers with some pride a record he had as a Harvard assistant.

"I was a strategy coach under Percy Haughton from 1908 through 1916 and not until the last year did Yale cross the Harvard goal line. That was a fluke, too, but as I told Percy, what could we expect with a bunch of tennis players for a line. That's just what they were that year—tennis players."

Yale scored by kick and by safety in 1909 and 1913 but got only one touchdown in the nine years.

He started his coaching career in 1892 at Newton High School where as the captain in his junior year, he had to coach as well. As late as last year he helped Newton High set up defenses to beat Brookline, its ancient rival.

After scouting at Army from 1919 through 1921, Brown was head coach at Brown University 1922-1925 and Boston University 1926-29. He was an assistant at Holy Cross in the early 1930's, spent a year as line coach of the professional Washington Redskins and later scouted for Denny Meyers at Boston College.

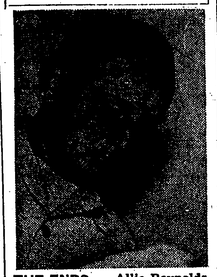
Today he's an informal consultant for coaches.

Fullmer Upsets La Bua

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—Undefeated Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, last night outclassed favored Jackie La Bua of New York in a lively 10-round boxing bout at Eastern Parkway Arena.

Fullmer weighed 154¼ pounds, La Bua 158¾.

An 8-5 underdog despite his perfect record, Fullmer displayed a wide variety of punches in piling up his lop-sided margin.



THE END? — Allie Reynolds, who has been considering leaving baseball, inspects bandaged hand after operation. The Yankee hurler suffered a bone-deep gash in an accident with a glass door.

No Stoppin' Willie

SAN JUAN, Nov. 9 (AP) — Willie Mays, who led the National League in batting last season with a .345 average, is showing signs that he plans to do the same in the Puerto Rican winter league where he is playing with the Santurce club.

The New York Giants' centerfielder has a .640 average after 14 games. He did no get his first home run until Sunday oft Brooklyn's Tom Lasorda but he leads the league in triples, 3; doubles, 6; runs, 18, and total hits, 26.

Toweel Decisions Highly Regarded Valignat In Ten

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Nov. 9 (AP) — Willie Toweel, South African bantam and featherweight champion, outpointed Andre Valignat, world ranked French bantamweight in a 10-round bout here last night.

Toweel dropped Valignat for a count of six in round eight and was a clear winner on points.

The first three rounds were fairly even with the Frenchman slipping Toweel's punches and bobbing spryly out of range. Valignat also used an overarm right and a left to advantage.

In the fourth round Toweel sorted out his opponent's furious style and punching cooly to the body took the round. He was just ahead until the eighth round when he caught Valignat with a straight right to the chin, putting the Frenchman on his knees for a count of six.

When he rose Toweel rushed him to the ropes with a battery of blows, but Valignat saved himself by clinching.

Valignat came up fresh for the ninth round and in the tenth and last threw everything into the fight. He missed with a wild swing and the impetus carried him half through the ropes. As he recovered Toweel caught him with an uppercut. Valignat went through the ropes and got up at the count of three.

Iwo Monument Honors Marines On 179th Birthday

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP) — While a backstage battle over its future status boils in the Pentagon, the U.S. Marine Corps celebrates its 179th birthday today with official dedication of a new monument on the banks of the Potomac river.

The White House said President Eisenhower would be among those attending the ceremonies as the monument, largest bronze casting ever made, is formally presented to the nation by Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., Marine Corps commandant. Deputy Secretary of Defense Robert B. Anderson was listed as the principal speaker.

The $850,000 statue, which took nine years to create, depicts the celebrated World War II flag-raising scene in Iwo Jima's Mt. Suribachi. Paid for principally by contributions of Marine and Navy servicemen and veterans, it honors all marines of all this country's armed conflicts.

But while they gloried in their past history, Marine Corps leaders reportedly were battling to strengthen the corps' future against what they consider too close control by Navy admirals.

At issue, informants said, is whether the corps is to be under the jurisdiction of the chief of naval operations, Adm. Robert B. Carney, or responsible directly to Secretary of the Navy Charles Thomas. Pro-Marine sources said an order which would put the corps under Carney's general supervision has been prepared for Thomas' signature.

Such action, if approved, they said, would give Carney greater leeway in using appropriations and might tend to chip away the Marine's own semi-independent status. Thomas himself is now in Europe and official spokesmen at the Pentagon declined to comment.

The monument which will be dedicated today is the work of Felix de Weldon, noted Austrian sculptor. The scene is based on the photograph snapped by Joe Rosen-

Adenauer Ready To Face Showdown On Saar Dispute

BONN, Germany, Nov. 10 (AP)—A senior West German official said yesterday Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will fight to the finish for parliamentary approval of the controversial French-German Saar agreement.

The official, who is close to Adenauer and asked not to be identified by name, said the chancellor and his top advisers had decided in strategy conferences they could push through parliament the plan to Europeanize the industrially rich Saar, despite a revolt by two of the four government coalition parties.

The decision was viewed as one of the most crucial the 78-year-old Adenauer has had to make in his political career. It is a calculated gamble that he can win despite demands by the two coalition partners — the Free Democrats and the Refugee Party — that the Saar question be renegotiated with France in an effort to win a more favorable settlement for Germany.

Under the pact — which was one of France's basic conditions for agreeing to the Paris agreements to free and rearm West Germany — the Saar will have a neutral commissioner responsible to the Western European Union. The territory, German before World War II, will remain tied economically to France.

The Free Democrats claimed Monday they had forced Adenauer to seek new talks with France on the Saar. But the official informant said yesterday the future discussions with Paris will be confined to filling in details of some provisions expressed in general terms and will not be a wholesale revision of the pact. For instance, he added, the authority and duties of the neutral commissioner must be spelled out.

Leaders of the Free Democrats and the Refugees have announced they will join the opposition Socialists in fighting the Saar pact

Gov-Guam Files Suit To Collect $314,428.85 In Taxes From Golfer

The Government of Guam has initiated a court action involving $306,763.56 income tax and $7,665.29 business privilege tax claims against Y. Gene Holbrook and Mrs. Dorothy Holbrook of Radio Barrigada. The government's action came in the wake of a recent District Court decision dismissing the Holbrook tax suit and sustaining the right of the Government of Guam to assess, levy and collect income taxes.

Holbrook, a local golf professional, filed a suit last Aug. 31 protesting the tax assessment and questioning the authority of the local government to collect income taxes.

Noting that the Holbrooks "presently are liquidating business assets and concealing or depositing the proceeds in such manner as to make it inaccessible to the government for payment of tax obligations," the Government of Guam asked the court that:

1. Judgment be entered in favor of the Government of Guam against the defendant in the sum of $306,763.56 for income tax, penalties and interest and another $7,665.29 business privilege taxes, penalties and interest. The business privilege tax was based upon gross income from Holbrook's business activities from July 1950 to July 21, 1953.

2. The court order the property, subject to the liens of the Government of Guam, be seized and sold and the proceeds be distributed according to the order of the court, and

3. Holbrook be restrained from disposing of his assets or from removing assets from beyond court jurisdiction unless they furnish adequate protection by way of security of payment of tax liabilities.

Adm. Murphy Main Speaker At Plaza Ceremonies At 10

The first Veterans Day observance—which is being celebrated throughout the nation and in U.S. territories and possessions—will start here this morning in Agana with a colorful parade of military contingents, veterans organizations and Boy Scout troops starting from the Paseo De Susana at 9:30 o'clock.

Paraders, led by Grand Marshall Paul D. Shriver, judge of the District Court, and police cars in V-formation, will march eastward on Marine Drive toward Leary Junction, then turn right and proceed down toward the Plaza De Espana after turning right again in front of the Calvo Building.

Guests of honor assembled at the plaza kiosko will review the paraders shortly before the ceremonies begin at about 10 o'clock.

Highlight of the day's events will be the swearing in of 81 aliens who will become United States citizens. Radm. M.E. Murphy, ComNavMarianas, will be the principal speaker.

Judge Shriver will officiate during the swearing in ceremonies conferring citizenship on the aliens who arrived here a few days ago especially for the occasion. John J. Kelleher of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service will introduce the applicants for citizenship.

The plaza ceremonies will begin with an invocation by Lcdr. E.L. Wade, Naval Station Chaplain. Following Admiral Murphy's address, Air Force Chaplain (Lt. Col.) W.

Compromise Formula On All-Korean Elections Opposed By ROK's Delegate

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 10 (AP)—A compromise formula on all-Korean elections advanced by Britain and Canada was reported to be gaining support last night among the U.N. countries which fought the Communists in Korea. The United States was said to have agreed reluctantly.

South Korea's ambassador, You Chang Yang, was reported to have protested strongly at a meeting of the 15 U.N. members and South Korea yesterday. Another of the U.N. allies, South Africa, is not taking part in the Korean peace discussions.

At Geneva, the 16 countries sitting on the U.N. side of the conference on Korea last spring issued a statement calling for free elections in Korea under U.N. auspices. Britain and Canada did not fully agree with that formula at the time but the United States and South Korea insisted the elections must be under U.N. watchcare.

Now, diplomatic sources said, Canada and Britain were pushing a compromise formula calling for free elections in Korea under "appropriate auspices." This could mean, these sources added, elections supervised by a mixed commission made up of South Korea, a Communist representative and a neutral country.

The British and Canadians were represented as feeling this formulation might have a better chance of acceptance by the Communists and that elections might be held.

In Geneva, the 16 also said in their statement that the U.N. was fully empowered to take collective action to repel aggression and to seek solution of the problem (which means unification) by peaceful measures.

Diplomats said that Ambassador Yang protested that the reference to peaceful measures would bind South Korea's hands in the event of future trouble in Asia. He was reported as feeling that if war broke out in other areas of Asia, this stand by the U.N. would prevent the Republic of Korea from taking military measures on its own.

Mendes Accorded Confidence Vote

PARIS, Nov. 10 (AP) — Premier Pierre Mendes-France won a vote of confidence yesterday from the French national assembly, opening the way to what may be a long, hard battle over the budget for 1955.

The vote was 320 to 207, the smallest he has received, but it was another victory for Mendes-France before he leaves on a trip to the United States in four days for talks with President Eisenhower. The main opposition consisted of an unusual and largely accidental alliance of the Communists and Catholic Popular Republican Movement (MRP).

The budget amounts to about $9.5 billion. This is $1,220,000,000 less than the estimate for the current year, but many of the deputies want greater spending — not less. They particularly want more spent on wage increases and pensions in the communications ministry, the subject of yesterday's vote.

Elvidge To Leave Soon For Honolulu For Conference With FHA Officials

Gov. Ford Q. Elvidge announced yesterday he will leave for Honolulu on Wednesday to "explain the overall housing problems which affect the housing program" to the Hawaii office of the Federal Housing Administration.

Elvidge said he was invited by Robert Carson, newly-appointed director of the FHA for the Pacific Area. Carson arrived here Monday to study and become familiar with the housing problems of the island. He left for Honolulu yesterday after a conference Tuesday morning with island officials and business leaders.

Elvidge said FHA officials in Honolulu are anxious to discuss with him the broad picture of Guam's housing problems. With the approval by President Eisenhower of $15 million for homes here, he said, the FHA director has indicated the desire "to work out the problems incidental to expediting adequate housing for the island."

"They also want my assurances that we will do everything we can to accelerate housing projects here," Elvidge added. The governor will attend meetings with FHA officials on Nov. 19 and 22. He said Carson also wanted to confer with Winston Cooper of public utilities agency on the various utility problems here. Elvidge said he cabled Cooper, presently in the mainland on official trip, to confer with Carson in Honolulu on his way back to Guam.

Elvidge also expressed official anticipation that the Navy will continue to allot additional power for civilian consumption. The increase in civilian power use was eyed in view of the approval of the $15 million Federal aid for home construction in Guam.

There were some fears expressed in construction business quarters that increasing civilian power needs brought about by an accelerated housing program may not be adequately met by the present power allotment to the civilian population.

Gov. Elvidge said the "Navy' has

McCarthy Fires Pre-Censure Shot At Watkins Group

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP)—A revised resolution of censure and condemnation — aimed at Sen. Joseph McCarthy — was filed in the Senate yesterday. McCarthy counterattacked immediately with a charge that the Senate committee which drafted it was an "unwitting handmaiden" of the Communist Party.

The resolution was offered by an investigating committee headed by Sen. Arthur Watkins (R-Utah). It is based on the Wisconsin Republican's alleged defiance of a Senate elections subcommittee in 1951-52 and his denunciation of Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Swicker during an anti-Red investigation last fall.

What threatens to be a long and angry debate on the resolution is scheduled to open in the Senate Wednesday.

Without waiting, however, McCarthy released the text of a speech he intends to make on the Senate floor. He suggested in it that the Communists would be the winners if he is censured. He charged that the Watkins committee "has done the work of the Communist party."

During the course of the debate, he said in his prepared speech, he will demonstrate that the committee "not only cooperated in achievement of Communist goals, but that in writing its report it imitated Communist methods — that it distorted, misrepresented and omitted in its effort to manufacture a plausible rationalization for advising the Senate to accede to the clamor for my scalp."

Government Sues Holbrook Couple

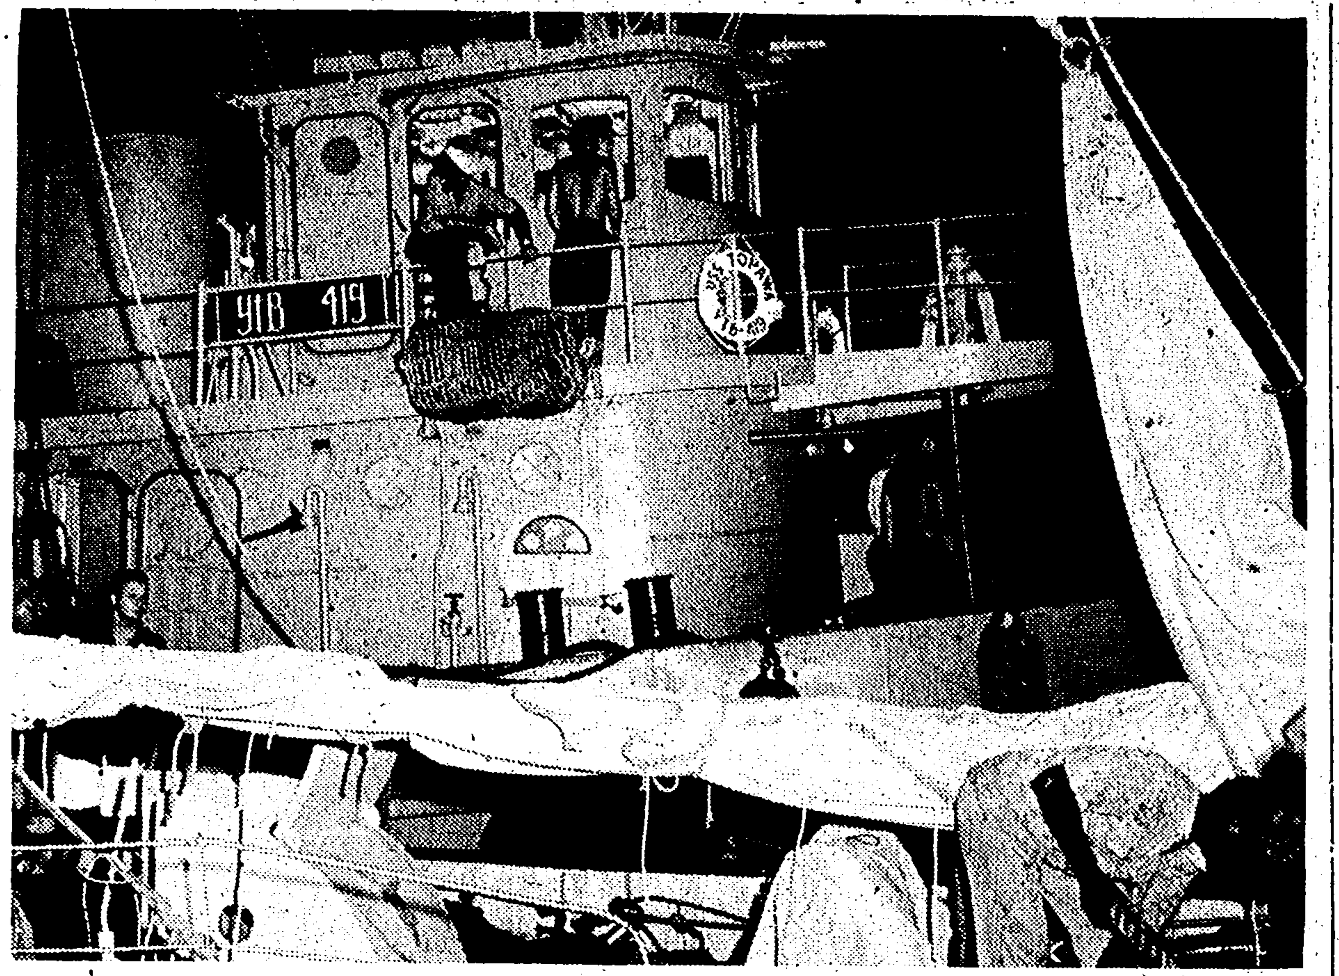
The government suit, filed Oct. 26, claimed that "at no time has either defendant, individually or jointly, filed income tax returns or declarations of estimated income tax returns or any business privilege tax returns with the Government of Guam."

The government suit declared Holbrook "repeatedly has failed" to heed the summons of the Department of Finance for payment of taxes due the government. It said Holbrook's contract with the Armed Forces golf course expired Oct. 26, 1954.

The government further claimed Holbrook "has declined to inform the commissioner of revenue and taxation of the disposition and whereabouts of the money withdrawn from his account and from the account of Dorothy Holbrook from the Bank of America."

Judge Paul D. Shriver, in his decision dismissing the Holbrook suit against the government declared that "the court has no jurisdiction to intervene when the tax-payer-plaintiff is in open defiance of the Government of Guam as regards its authority to require him to pay income tax on income earned in Guam."



TOWED TO PORT — Crew members of the motor vessel Frela tie her down at the Commercial Harbor, after being towed from Ritidian Point by the Navy tug USS Topawa Monday evening. The Navy tug was sent to assist the Frela, approximately 15 miles northwest of Ritidian Point. A Rescue Coordination Center aircraft earlier reported the Frela unsuccessfully was attempting to sail into port. The tug was sent out by the Port Control Office at the Naval Station by authority of Captain E. W. Armentrout, Jr., assistant for Naval Base matters, ComNavMarianas. — (Navy photo) been very cooperative and mindful of our needs." He added he figures that as the Navy production and facilities increase "we will receive additional allotment for our use."

"I feel the Navy will increase our supply just as fast as they have the capacity to do so," Elvidge remarked.

The governor said during the past 18 months the allotment of power for civilian use has increased from 2250 kva to over 11,000 kva. He said the island "simply is growing so fast — like a young boy who has suddenly overgrown his pants."

In this connection, he said that "I have shown the people of this territory that my administration not only will do everything it can but has done a pretty good job in getting cooperation from Washington, D.C."

Elvidge said Carson was briefed by island officials and business leaders during the conference Tuesday which was attended by Congressman E. T. Calvo, Secretary R. S. Herman, department heads and local FHA Administrator Lemuel Nelson.

Businessmen present were Publisher Joseph Flores representing the Guam Savings and Loan Association and the Marianas Financing Corporation, Albert Carbullido of the GSLA and Jose Perez, assistant manager, Bank of America.

Press Comments On Romulo, Yoshida Views

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP) — The Washington Post and Times Herald said today two authoritative Asian leaders — Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida of Japan and Carlos Romulo, special envoy of the Philippines — were in agreement that Asia must be made strong to save it from further Communist conquest.

"They have presented to American policy makers a disturbing picture," the newspaper said in an editorial. "The appraisal and ultimate decision on what is to be done demand the most thoughtful — and perhaps agonizing — consideration."

The editorial's conclusions were based on a speech by Yoshida to the National Press Club and a magazine article by Romulo."

"The theory that economic development, or rehabilitation, of an area is a vitally important defense against Communism is not new," the newspaper said. "It was, as Mr. Yoshida said, tested in western Europe and surely it has played some major part in holding off greater Communist conquests.

"There are few today who would minimize the threat or the stakes be many who would question the involved in Asia but there may capacity or the willingness of the United States to underwrite a new foreign aid program of the magnitude suggested by Mr. Yoshida and General Romulo."

Red Persecution Takes Heavy Toll Of Catholic Priests

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 10 (AP) — Communist persecution has reduced the number of Catholic priests in Iron Curtain countries from 40,000 to 20,000 in the past eight years, a leading Catholic expert on eastern Europe says.

Monsignor Alfred Kindermann, director of the Albertus Magnus Seminary at Koenigstein near here, says that if the present pace of persecution continues the Catholic clergy will be exterminated behind the Iron Curtain within 10 or 20 years.

The Albertus Magnus seminary is western Europe's largest religious college for refugee priests from Communist ruled countries.

Monsignor Kindermann himself formerly headed a German priests' seminary at Prague University in Czechoslovakia and was imprisoned and expelled in 1945. Re-arrested on his return in 1946, he escaped shortly before he was to be sent to Siberia.

The aim in the east, Monsignor Kindermann said in an interview, is complete separation of the clergy and Church members. To accomplish this priests are executed, imprisoned, expelled or subjected to other punishments, he said. Seminaries and convents have been either closed or taken over by the Communists, he stated.

He said no Catholic-trained priests have been ordained in Communist-ruled satellite countries in the past six years, and that almost 3,500 east European priests have escaped to the west since the end of the war.

Kindermann has received many reports of religious persecution. He cited the case of Albanian Archbishop Vinzens Prennushi of Durazzo, nearly 70 years of age, who was placed in a wooden cage studded with iron points. The cage was pushed and rolled until the bishop died.

In Poland, Kindermann said, about 2,880 priests have been taken away from their congregations through killings, imprisonment and exile.

In Slovakia he said all priests are in prison or concentration camps.

All 10 bishops and most of the 3,000 priests in the Ukraine are in concentration camps while most of the 160 Bulgarian priests are either dead or in slave labor camps, he said.

in its present form when it comes up for ratification.

However, the informant said Adenauer believes the Free Democrats' 47-member delegation in the Bundestag, lower and stronger house of parliament, will split in a showdown vote. With most of the 244 deputies of the chancellor's own Christian Democratic party expected to support him, he and his lieutenants hope to beat their opponents on the final tally.

Dimalanta Appeals For Donations To Christmas Drive

A general appeal for support of the Christmas package drive of the Filipino Community yesterday was sounded by Antonio S. Dimalanta, president of the Filipino Community of Guam. Dimalanta said boxes where donations may be placed are located in the three major camps, and in leading island stores.

Dimalanta directed his appeal particularly to the Filipinos on the island. He said old clothings, shoes, magazines and usable personal items are particularly welcome. The donations will be shipped by the Community to Manila for distribution to the needy there on Christmas.

Meanwhile, the semi-annual general membership meeting of the FCG will be held on Saturday, Mrs. C. de la Cruz, executive-secretary announced yesterday. The board of directors will meet Sunday noon at the Panciteria Far East in Tamuning, Mrs. De la Cruz said. Lady members of the Community will meet 4 p.m. Sunday for important matters concerning the Community's welfare projects.

Brando's Best: March

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10 (AP) — Fredric March, considered by many to be the finest actor on stage or screen, believes Marlon Brando is the best.

"I think he's the greatest," asserts March. "I've seen everything he's ever done. He's the best since John Barrymore."

March, of course, is not the run-of-mill movie actor. That's why his appraisal of Brando rings with sincerity.

Sykes Family Leaving For Mainland Soon

Mr. and Mrs. James Sykes will be leaving next week for an indefinite vacation period in the mainland after two and a half years stay on the island. Sykes is with the Office of Naval Intelligence. Mrs. Sykes is the all-Island Choir director.

Mrs. Sykes announced she will turn over the choral group to Don Aguilar of the Public Works Center. Mrs. Sykes has, on various civic programs, directed the choral program. She also is a church organist and vocalist and has been active in religious, social and civic activities here.

The couple said: "It is with great regret that we part with the charming and hospitable people of Guam. Having known and associated with them for two and one half years we have come to understand, respect and appreciate their problems and progress. We would like to give our sincerest thanks to Gov. and Mrs. Elvidge, Consul and Mrs. Umayam, government officials and to all the citizens of this most hospitable island."

The Sykes family plans a lengthy vacation and a visit with friends and relatives in the mainland.

Marine Barracks Celebrates 179th Corps' Birthday

Marine Barracks yesterday joined hands with Marine Units around the world in the celebrations of the 179th anniversary of the Marine Corps. Its Guards and Headquarters companies featured events which added a new twist to the historic event.

Instead of the usual "pomp and circumstance" ceremonies, Guard company and two sections of the Headquarters company participated in five "field day" events, ranging from the back-breaking "tug-of-war" to the stomach-filling "pie-eating contest."

Late yesterday, final tabulation of the contests was not available yet. The two groups are edging for the honor of making the long trek down Marine Drive during the Veteran's Day parade this morning. Several prizes also are at stake for the groups.

Col. Jesse S. Cooke, Jr., commanding officer, started the festivities with the reading of the traditional message commemorating the Marine Corps birthday.

The judging staff was composed of Capt. V. E. Patrick, Capt. C. McLean, Second Lt. Dale E. Watts, Second Lt. R. N. Gratan and M/Sgt. Sidney E. Drake.

NEW CITIZENS

Several years ago, we were privileged to witness one of the most touching events we've seen in the mainland. The occasion was a post-war observance of "I Am An American Day" in New York's Central Park where several hundreds of Displaced Persons were about to realize a long-cherished dream: to become citizens of the United States.

They had come a long way from the land of their birth to where Liberty lifts her lamp "beside the golden door," beckoning the poor, the wretched, the homeless. Behind them were the blood-stained lands of Europe, the uncertainties of the Middle East. But in their faces—of the young and the old—one could tell that the memories of the ugly past would never be forgotten . . . the secret police, the storm troopers, the horrors of the concentration camps. And when Lily Pons sang the Star-Spangled Banner, they wept openly, perhaps certain for the first time since they came to America that they really were in the land of free men and women.

Today, on the first observance of Veterans Day, something like the Central Park event will take place at the Plaza de Espana. Today, we welcome into the fold of freedom some eighty aliens who also, perhaps, will be realizing a dream of many years. They will become Americans; they will assume the rights of Americans; they will also assume the responsibilities that citizenship imposes on all of us.

We hope they fully realize that our way of life is not perfect, because no human institution is perfect. We hope they do not judge all of us by the actions of the few who tend to give others unfavorable impressions of the many. After they have been sworned in as citizens, they, too, should take heed of a common saying we hear so often: "What other people think about your country depends on you."

MAY your golf scores be under 80, and the fish you catch be as big as the ones that got away.

The Mature Parent

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Why do we endure chronic defiance from children?

I put this question to a Mrs. R. who has been enduring it from her 12-year-old daughter. She tells me that Grace can accept no direction without attacking her.

"My mother recently visited us during a scene with Grace," Mrs. R. writes "She and my sister urged me to spank her. Certainly as a child I never dared to speak to my mother as this girl speaks to me. I got a slap across my mouth for "answering back."

Mrs. R. learned her lesson well, didn't she? The slaps for "backtalk" have ended all backtalk.

Just as Mrs. R. used to accept the slaps to avoid more hurt and humiliation by her mother, she now endures insolence from her daughter to avoid them, too.

Let's look back. Does Mrs. R. herself believe that those slaps? Or did someone else tell her that she deserved them? For sometimes, as children, we have not deserved slaps for "backtalk. Our motives for a protest have been misunderstood by impatient parents.

Because we were young and inexperienced in knowledge of our motives. we've allowed slappers to tell us we were bad when we were actually defending our sense of justice.

We could not say, 'But Brother has no right to use my new school pen without asking my permission.' Our experience with words and motives drove us to say, 'I think you're mean and unfair to let Brother take my pen."

And the slappers, concerned with words instead of motives slapped us for the "backtalk."

Under such treatment, we can gradually lose sight of our good motives for protest. We begin to agree with the impatient people we have to live with. We agree that our motives were bad and deserved the slaps.

Such submission to misjudgment took place without our knowledge. It is responsible for Mrs. R.'s acceptance of Grace's insolence.

To bring herself to fully realize it won't be a pleasant task.

Sometimes we need the support of a skilled person to reassure us in our struggle to rid ourselves of the anger we feel at those who trained us in such submission.

Mrs. R. may need such support in her fight to connect her youthful submission to slaps with today's submission to insolence. It will take courage to see them as one and the same thing.

WASHINGTON. — Don't blame the Secret Service for the beating given the San Mateo heckler who asked Nixon: "Tell us a dog story, Dick." The Secret Service keeps out of such brawls. Nixon has carried his own goon squad with him for some time.... Gov. Dewey ghost-wrote most of Senator Ives' speeches. At first, Ives wanted to keep Dewey on the side lines, in the end hardly made a move without calling Tom.....Labor leaders claim Ike got his re-employment figure of 400,000 from the fact that students have now gone back to college.

PROBE OF BUSINESS MERGERS — Here's the inside story behind the Federal Trade Commission's sudden move to investigate business mergers and combines.

Actually, Chairman "Wild Bill" Langer of the Senate Judiciary Committee is responsible. He wrote a sharp letter to Attorney General Brownell threatening to investigate mergers. Alarmed over the way mergers always seemed to come just before a depression, Langer pointed out that in 1920 the number of mergers jumped from 411 to 749—just before the depression following World War I. Again, in 1928 and 1929, the number of mergers shot up to the highest in history—more than a thousand each year. The big depression followed.

In recent years, mergers jumped from 200 in 1950 to 822 in 1952. Last year was another high year with 793 mergers. So, when Langer asked Brownell the reason why so many mergers were being permitted, the attorney general got worried. He decided that if Langer was going to probe mergers he had better cut the ground out from under Langer by getting the trade commission to start an investigation first.

WASHINGTON PIPELINE — Stanley Barnes, the Justice Department's antitrust chief, has flatly refused to waive the antitrust laws so manufacturers can exchange information on how to make guided missiles. This has made Secretary of Defense Wilson so mad he has threatened to take it up in cabinet meeting . . . The big aircraft companies are rushing to get special tax write-offs for building their new plants in labor surplus areas. Curtiss-Wright, Boeing, Glenn Martin, Rohr Aircraft and Aviation have already applied for big tax write-offs . . . A drastic speed-up has been ordered to produce an atomic-powered bombing plane. Five companies have been assigned to push the bomber—General Electric, Consolidated Vultee, Boeing, Lockheed, and Pratt & Whitney. Meanwhile, Russia has gone all out to put the first atomic-powered plane in the sky.

STRINGFELLOW HOAX—Harold G. Stagg, the Army Times editor who exposed the war-record hoax of GOP Cong. Douglas Stringfellow of Utah, is in hot water with both political parties since breaking his big scoop.

The Republicans are furious at Stagg for breaking the Stringfellow story before the elections. Democrats also are irked that he didn't hold his expose a week longer, when the political impact would have been greater.

However, Stagg was so anxious to be fair and non-political that he neglected to mention one important item in his story. This is the interesting fact that White House aides knew about the Stringfellow hoax six months before the Army Times publication, but failed to do anything about it. Whether these White House aides advised the President is not known. But they themselves were content to keep the American public in the dark about Stringfellow's hoax until after the election.

MERRY-GO-ROUND—Columnist Joe Alsop, a bachelor, passes out the best "treats," according to halloween youngters . . . Speaking of halloween, Ambassadress Clare Boothe Luce swears she saw a flying saucer over Rome . . . Not phantom, but a dream come true, was the new uranium strike by the Penn-Texas corporation in Arizona. Biggest so far in that state . . . Congratulations to Goerge Delacorte for publishing the largest number of comics in the U.S. and keeping them all out of the horror class . . . Judge Charles F. Murphy, the new comic-book czar, looks like he really means business. Senators probing juvenile delinquency are impressed . . . Also congratulations to the nonsked airlines for carrying supplies to hurricane-stricken Haiti so efficiently. They got 122,000 pounds of rice, 21,800 pounds of dried milk, 2,000 pounds of paper bags (to distribute the food in) to Haiti in no time . . . National citizens for educational television are now doing a real job. After a slow start they have seven TV stations on the air and five more scheduled to open this year . . . Tax Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews was so excited over his television debut that he sent a directive to internal revenue employees to watch the show.

McCarthy Fires Back At Watkins Senate Committee

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP)—Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis) declared today that "Communists" managed to have him investigated five times and suggested the Reds would be the winners if the senate censures him.

McCarthy said in an address prepared for tomorrow's senate session — but which he released today—that many of his colleagues already have made up their minds how they are going to vote on the recommendations. The McCarthy committee headed by Sen. Arthur Watkins (R-Utah), had formally asked the Senate to condemn and censure the Wisconsin senator for his treatment of a senate subcommittee and an army general.

Firing back, McCarthy called the Watkins committee the "unwitting handmaiden" of the Communist party.

He said he knew this would be regarded as "an unpalatable proposition," but went on:

"I shall demonstrate that the Watkins committee has done the work on the Communist Party, that it not only co-operated in the achievement of Communist goals, but that in writing its report it imitated Communist methods—that it distorted, misrepresented and omitted in its effort to manufacture a plausible rationalization for advising the Senate to accede to the clamor for my scalp."

Fugitive Slain

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 9 (AP) — Three fugitives wanted for questioning in connection with an $80,600 holdup shot it out with federal agents in Oaxaca state yesterday and killed two officers before they themselves were slain.

The leader of the group, Marciano Vazquez, had been the object of a three-month manhunt in connection with the Aug. 6 robbery in the home of Ramon Beteta, Mexico's ambassador to Rome.

Medley Of Stage Favorites Opens 70th Met Season

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP) — The Metropolitan Opera opened yesterday night with a medley of old favorites on stage and the glittering, furwrapped, audience in formal evening clothes.

The presentation of excerpts from four different operas was only one of the innovations as the Metropolitan opened its 70th season.

And the audience provided a big show of fashion and glamor furs, jewels, brocade and satin — with a little farce thrown in.

For example, there was the gentleman in full Scottish costume, kilts and all, a lady in a mask with feathers drooping from her coiffure, and a turbaned and bearded man who certainly looked like the Indian prince he claimed to be.

There also was probably the biggest cast ever assembled for an opening night, because each excerpt had a full complement of singers, dancers and choruses.

Another opening night innovation was a television closed circuit carrying the season's premier to more than 30 theaters across the country.

Among stars on stage were Leonard Warren in "Pagliacci;" Victoria de los Angeles and Richard Tucker in "La Boheme; "Roberta Peters and her ex-husband, Robert Merrill, in "Barber of Seville," and Zinka Milanov, Blanche Thebom and Warren in "Aida."

Mia Slavenska, Yugoslavian-born former prima ballerina of the ballet russe, made her debut with the Met, yesterday night and will be prima ballerina all season.

State Luncheon Leave Impression Of Good Relations

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP) — An impression of good will prevailed after a state luncheon given by President Eisenhower today for Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida of Japan.

The luncheon was attended by 20 persons, including members of Eisenhower's cabinet, congressional leaders and Japanese guests.

The state lunch lasted about one hour twenty minutes. Sen. M. Alexander Smith of the foreign relations committee said it was a "delightful social occasion" but no business was discussed.

He said Yoshida was at his wittiest and "full of good cheer."

"He left the impression he liked the American people a lot. We did our best to assure him the American people liked the Japanese people," Smith said.

Rep. Walter H. Judd, Minnesota Republican, said after lunch "there is no question the people of the United States appreciate the importance of a free, prosperous and friendly Japan to the security of the Pacific.

"There is every reason to expect that the good relations will continue to benefit their country and ours."

Judd, who has called on Yoshida in Tokyo, said the prime minister was in fine fettle.

He said the economic situation in Japan is definitely better and that the nation is showing the benefits of its current belt-tightening policy.

Stock Market Steadies Post-Election Boom

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP) — The stock market continued its post election boom today with the fifth advance in six sessions, but the vigor of the rise diminished.

Today's market ran into profit-taking several times, but on each occasion the offerings were absorbed promptly without upsetting the market.

Gains went to around 2 points at the best in key sections while losses occasionally got past a point.

Several records were established by the market's action. First, the market established another new 25-year high as it did yesterday.

The market was the broadest on record. Volume has been exceeded only three times this year. Selling congestion that developed in the first hour was one of the worst of the year.

And volume today at 3,240,000 shares crossed the two million mark for the 116th time this year. In all of 1938 there were only 116 days when volume hit two million or better. You have to go back to 1929 to get a topper — 267 days of two million or over.

Teachers Union Charged Pro-Red

TOKYO, Nov. 10 (AP) — Two officials of the powerful Japan teachers union (JTU) yesterday charged it with "pro-Soviet and anti-American' political bias and misuse of funds and said they were getting out.

Akira Imamura, vice-chairman of the union, said the charges were groundless.

Ichiro Ishii, former editor of the magazine published by the member union, and Yutaka Sato, former busines manager of the JTU's newspaper, issued a joint statement the union engaged in "extreme assessment from each member to support Japan's Socialist parties.

The pair maintained the JTU had an organized "pro-Soviet and anti-American' education drive under way and was using the Japanese educational union as a means of class struggle."

Ex-Red Says Russians Reject Present Regime

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP)— A leader of the Russian underground movement and a former Soviet intelligence officer agree that most of the Russian people reject the Soviet regime and that only another revolution in Russia can settle the world's problems.

They said another world war was not the answer.

George S. Okolovich, a leader of the anti-Communist "national Alliance of Russian Solidarists," and Nikolai E. Khokhlov, the former intelligence officer, spoke at a rally held here Sunday by the alliance.

Khokhlov recently escaped to the West, saying he left after being ordered to assassinate Okolovich.

Okolovich said the alliance, known as the NTS (Natsionalno Trudovoy Soyuz) is sending leaflets and newspapers into Iron Curtain countries via balloons and other devices.

P.I. May Reject Entire Shipment Of 10,000 Tons Of Pakistan Rice

MANILA, NOV. 10 (AP) — A government grain corporation official said Monday night the Philippines may reject an entire shipment of 10,000 tons of rice from Pakistan because "part of it contains worms and weevils."

Juan O. Chioco, head of the National Rice and Corn Corp. in Manila, said: "of 3,420 bags of rice unloaded so far, 273 bags were found infested with worms and weevils."

Chioco said he would report to President Ramon Magsaysay with samples of the "rotten rice," and that he would call a board meeting today to decide on whether to reject only the spoiled portion or the entire shipment.

The shipment, first part of a 50,000 ton purchase from Pakistan to ease a shortage here, arrived recently aboard the S.S. Harpagon from Karachi.

Chioco, who headed a rice buying mission to Thailand, Burma and Pakistan, said previously he had found "several sacks of rotting rice" in Karachi in a shipment bound for the Philippines.

A Pakistan rice dealer, Suleman Bayat, flew to Manila last month to protest Chioco's statement, calling it "entirely false."

Indon-Chinese Status Up At Peiping Talks

JAKARTA, Nov. 10 (AP) — The current Peiping talks on dual citizenship of Chinese in Indonesia are still continuing in a cordial atmosphere here and are making progress, Justice Minister Djody Gondokisumo said yesterday

Since last fall Indonesia has been urging Red China to agree Indonesia-born Chinese should have only one nationality—Indonesian or Chinese.

Historian Sees World Peace For Next Five Years

BALTIMORE, Nov. 10 (AP) — Dr. Arnold J. Toynbee, a British historian who predicted the beginning of World War II in 1939, says he foresees no general war during the next five years and possibly none at all.

"A missionary war, or — as you say — cold war, yes," he said. "But not the other kind."

Toynbee said, "war is based upon the idea that it is better to be victor than the vanquished. If the victor suffers just as much as the vanquished, why then there is no sense out of the whole thing."

He said that although the whole philosophy of the Axis powers during the 1930's was based upon the idea of a war which would win them more territory, the Russians have no need to expand.

Dr. Toynbee also said the Russian leaders are less hysterical than were Hitler and Mussolini.

Dr. Toynbee made his views known in an interview following an address to some 1,600 persons on the Johns Hopkins University campus. The 65-year-old international affairs expert is making a short tour of universities in this country in connection with the recent publication of the last four volumes of his 10-volume book, "Study of History."

Senator Denies Rift With Mission Members

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP) — Senator Lorenzo Sumulong, Democratic Party member of the Philippine trade revision mission, today denied Manila reports that he was bolting the economic delegation.

He said he had asked President Magsaysay that he be replaced by another member of the Democratic Party in order to take care of some problems of his constituents in Rizal province.

However, Magsaysay asked him to remain with the delegation and Sumulong acceded to the President's request.

"I have not resigned," he said in an interview. "We are working as a team to put forward our point of view.

"It is true that I asked to be replaced by another member of my party because of local problems at home. But Magsaysay asked me to stay here and I yielded to the President's wish.

"I consider the work we are doing very important."

Sumulong said he wanted to emphasize that he had no differences with any other members of the Philippine mission.

500 Police Battle Mau Mau Terrorists

NAIROBI, Kenya, No. 10 (AP) — Five hundred African police and British troops fought a pitched battle last night against 120 Mau Mau terrorist 40 miles from Nairobi.

Radio reports from the area said security forces killed 12 terrorists and captured or injured many more.

The troops went into action shortly after African farm workers spotted the gang this afternoon.

Police forces were expected to chase the gang along the moonlit banks of the Tana river away from Nairobi. Such big gangs are seldom seen outside the forest area.

Churchill Voices Optimistic World Peace Outlook

LONDON, Nov. 10 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill said last night the world may enjoy peace and plenty in a few years "instead of roaming and peering round on the rim of hell."

Churchill, resplendent in his trappings as a Knight of the Garter, spoke optimistically of the world outlook in an address at the annual banquet of the Lord Mayor of London. The new Lord Mayor, Seymour Howard, introduced him as the "greatest personality of our times."

The prime minister voiced the hope that western unity can "create that peace through strength that will allow time to play its healing part" in bringing peace to the world.

"We might even find ourselves in a few years moving along a broad, smooth causeway, of peace and plenty, instead of roaming and peering round on the rim of hell," he said.

He described himself as "one of those who believed that the powers of the West and the East ought to try to live in a friendly and peaceful way with each other."

He said the foundation of Britain's existence stands "on our alliance, friendship, and an increasing sense of brotherhood with the United States ..... we are also developing increasingly intimate ties with France, Germany, Italy and the low countries."

Recent achievements which he mentioned as good omens included the London and Paris agreements which might end the 'ancient antagonism of France and Germany;" settlement of the British-Iranian oil dispute; ending the Italian-Yugoslav dispute over Trieste; and the British-Egyptian agreement on removing 83,000 British troops from the Suez Canal zone.

You Think He's Better Off? Hear This One

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP) —Dr. Albert Einstein says that if he had to do it over again " I would not try to become a scientist or scholar or teacher."

"I would rather choose to be a plumber or a peddler," he says, "in the hope to find that modest degree of independence still available under present circumstances."

The world famed, 75-year-old German-born physicist expressed this attitude in Reporter magazine.

He had been asked for his comment on a recent article relating to the present situation of American scientists.

Einstein, who has bitterly opposed congressional inquiries into the political beliefs of scientists and educators, replied:

"Instead of trying to analyze the problem I may express my feeling in a short remark: If I would be a young man again and had to decide how to make my living, I wouldn't try to become a scientist or scholar or teacher."

Then he added that, instead, we would seek to be a plumber or a peddler.

8th Army Pays Korean Employes With Goods

SEOUL, Nov. 10 (AP) — The U.S Eighth Army is paying some of its 100,000 Korean employes with merchandise instead of Korean currency, an army spokesman said yesterday.

The Koreans are offered such items as cigarettes, candy, soap, toilet articles, army blankets and canned Korean food such as squid, fish and rice.

The workers can take all or any part of their salaries in commodities rather than money.

The plan is another facet of the continuing dispute between the Army and the South Korean government over the exchange rate between the dollar and the Korean hwan.

The Army wants the legal rate changed from 180 hwan to $1 to about 500 to $1. When the army refused to pay back advances at the 180-rate, the Koreans stopped the advances Oct. 1.

1.) It has initiated the first and only locally owned insurance company in Guam.

It has obtained strong reinsurance treaties from the world's largest reinsurance company, who is on the United States Treasury's list of approved reinsurers, with cash assets alone in the United States in excess of $200,000,000.00. This reinsurance company has given us complete authority to bind it for millions of dollars in insurance commitments monthly. This is concrete evidence of our reinsurers' implicit confidence and faith in us and in our abitlity to underwrite and process all types of insurance.

3.) It has finalized arrangements for representation in a great number of countries by the firms indicated at right, that have accepted our appointments as settling agents for the American Global Insurance Co., Inc.

4.) It has underwritten the largest volume of insurance in Guam- more than any other insurance company in Guam! It has retained for the benefit of the territory a large volume of needed dollars—dollars that previously had been going to off-island firms. These dollars have been put in circulation to enhance the economy of Guam.

5.) It has had a highly successful financial year and has the ability to pay dividends to stockholders in excess of six percentum (6%).

6.) It has acquired an outstanding reputation for prompt settlement of all just and legitimate claims.

ACCORDING TO POLICE

INFORMATION PLEASE — Police said yesterday they are looking for a statesider who took Nemesio D. Delin — a Filipino injured in an accident last October 5 on Route 10 near the Father Duenas Memorial School — to the Guam Memorial Hospital. They said the statesider "is believed to be from BPM." Police said the unidentified person may contact the traffic division by phone, 12-463, or the desk sergeant, 12-261. The statesider, police said, will be requested to furnish them information regarding the accident.

ABANDONED VEHICLE — vehicle which was believed abandoned "for one month" was found by police at 9:15 am. Tuesday on Route 1 near the Manila Trading Company. The vehicle — described only as bearing plate No. 8566 — was impounded at the central station in Agana.

JEEP HITS COW — Sgt. J. S. Bukikosa reported that a jeep driven by Juan N. Cruz of Chalan Pago struck a cow on the middle of the highway on Route 4 near the former Ordot cockpit Monday evening. He said the animal was injured so critically "it had to be shot." Bukikosa did not identify the owner of the cow.

PHONEY — Investigator M. S. Cepeda said yesterday he had found the complaint made by Miss Ruth T. Thomas that a statesider and a Guamanian "tried to dishonor her" last October 24 in Barrigada "was unfounded." He said Miss Thomas' injuries were sustained after she fought with another woman, identified as Ursula SA Afisgue, 27, of Barrigada, at Ursula's Cafe.

PUNCHED — Miss Maria Salas of Paradise Grill in Mangilao complained to police at 1:30 p.m. Monday that a Filipino civilian struck her with his fist inside the grill. She did not identify the assailant. Police W. S. Combado was assigned to the case.

CITED — Police said yesterday that Jesus M. Cruz of Dededo was cited for following a vehicle too closely after the sedan he was driving hit a Buick coupe which was making a left turn near the Burgervilla in Tamuning at 6:20 a.m. Monday. Damages to both vehicles were placed at $200 each. Police reported no injuries. The driver of the Buick was identified as Jarrett M. Merrett of BPM Camp No. 1

OVERTURNED—Photo shows a U.S. Naval Hospital panel truck about to be towed away after it had overturned on Route 7 between the Governor's Mansion and Cliff Drive at 7:20 a.m. yesterday. Police said the vehicle was going downhill from the hospital when it skidded and swerved to the right shoulder of the highway. Its driver, Robert E. Conway of the Naval Hospital, escaped injury. There were no passengers in the vehicle, police said. Damage was placed at $150.—(NEWS photo)

Airman Injured In Accident On Rt. 1, Tamuning

Abraham Daniel of Andersen Air Force Base Tuesday afternoon sustained "slight injuries" and was taken to the Guam Memorial Hospital and later to the U.S. Naval Hospital "for observation." Police said Daniel was injured after he "jumped and hung on the grill of a traveling vehicle" on Route 1 near Tommy's Soda Fountain.

According to Sgt. J. C. Baleto, Daniel was "refused drinks at the Casino Garden." He left the bar and crossed the highway toward the Food City. Baleto said "upon reaching the extreme right of a Navy pickup near the Tamuning traffic lights," Daniel leaped and clung to the vehicle's grill, his "feet resting on the front bumper."

When the driver halted the pickup, Baleto said, Daniel "fell off and lay on his back in front of the vehicle." Nature of injuries was not disclosed.

Police identified the pickup driver as Geronimo C. Reyes, of the Naval Air Station, who was on his way to Sake Bernardo S. Aboro, a Filipino messboy, to Marbo. Aboro was a passenger in the pickup.

2 Caught After Escaping Stockade; 3rd At-Large

Still-at-large yesterday after escaping with two other prisoners from the Andersen Air Force Base stockade late Tuesday night is Pvt. William R. Monroe, 18, of the 822nd Aviation Engineer Battalion.

Monroe, a native of Baltimore, Md., was in the stockade awaiting trial on an absent without leave charge. He and two others escaped about 10:30 Tuesday night.

Picked up less than an hour later in Dededo were Pvt. George F. Fournier, 20, Baltimore, also of the 822nd and awaiting trial on an AWOL charge, and Airman Victor J. Hallstead, 19, Pensacola, Fla., of the 54th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron.

The design of the Christmas Seals sold to raise money for the fight against tuberculosis changes every year. This year a sheet of Christmas Seals shows rows of children holding hands among brightly lighted Christmas trees.

Brakeless Sedan Overturns, Woman Driver Injured

A woman residing at Agana Heights sustained a "cut on the lower lip and abrasion on the left knee" after the sedan she was driving overturned and rested on its left side on Route 7 near the Governor's Mansion at 12:15 p.m. Tuesday, police reported yesterday. Identified as Agnes A. Pascua, 23, she was taken to the Guam Memorial Hospital.

Police said the Agana Heights woman was heading for Agana from the direction of the Naval Hospital. As she neared the Governor's Mansion she applied the brakes, but the brakes did not function. She then pulled the handbrakes and the vehicle swerved to the right, hit a culvert (a protruding water drain) and overturned.

Sgt. R. C. Leon Guerrero said after the accident he had the brakes checked by Francisco Reyes, Guam Police mechanic. He said that Reyes found the brakes to have no fluid and that the car was in high gear when it overturned.

The traffic section said no charges will be filed against the woman as "the accident was the result of mechanical failure and inexperience of the driver." Damage to the vehicle was placed at approximately $200.

Christmas Seals produced by the National Tuberculosis Association are important items in many stamp collections. No issue has ever been reprinted, and each year the plates are destroyed.

Basketball Season Starts Minus Mikan

Boudreau May Be Named A's Pilot

Mikan Insists His Uniform Is Hung Up For 'Keeps'

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

NEW YORK — (NEA) — For the first time in half a life span of 30 years, a basketball season (you mean you thought it was still football?) started without George Mikan in uniform.

For Mr. Basketball, it was like going through the withdrawal agonies of a drunk on the wagon. He came to New York crotchety and cranky for the National Basketball Association opener. But this time he sported blue serge in the stands while his Minneapolis Lakers toiled futilely against the Knickerbockers.

Big George keeps saying he's not going to play any more, and at least in the east they keep writing that when the Lakers go bad he'll discard Minneapolis long handles for basketball's shorts.

* * *

"What do I have to do to make them believe me?" he snapped. "I reached a point in life where I had to decide whether I was going to be a basketball player or a lawyer. Law is a jealous mistress. She decrees all your time."

If that's the case, why did he re-associate himself with the Lakers as a one-third owner and general manager, not to mention executive vice-president?

"General managing a basketball team," he said, "requires only two hours a day. All I have to do is set policy and let the operation take care of itself.

"I got three little boys. I got a little tired of my boy asking me, 'Why don't you stay home like other daddies?'"

You can't discount the Mikan pride as a factor in his retirement. He was like DiMaggio. He didn't want to be pointed out as a has-been, and last season there were insinuations he was slipping.

"Listen," he argued, "my doctor told me I had five more years at my physical peak ahead of me. My scoring average for the time I played was just as high as it ever was. I just played less.

"Was my stamina poorer? No, they had Clyde Lovellette, and they had to use him, which is only right."

What pushed Mikan into retirement, an official close to the Lakers confides, was a pre-season salary squabble. Discouraged and disgusted, he quit. Then, ironically, he bought out the very men with whom he'd been talking salary.

It was through Ben Berger, president and another one-third owner of the team, that this came about.

"He was associated in the fans' minds as Mr. Basketball," says Berger. "I felt there should always be a place in the game for him. So I called him the next day and offered him this chance."

Contrast this with the treatment Babe Ruth and Joe DiMaggio got from baseball.

Mikan's jump from the field of endeavor to the front office is comparable to the leap Hank Greenberg made in baseball from slugger to general manager of the Cleveland Indians.

Only Hank wasn't hitting the long ball when he hung them up. And the first order of business facing George when he became general manager of the Lakers was a visit from Jim Pollard, Dugie Martin and Vern Mikkelsen, the veteran backbone of the club.

They all asked him to reconsider his decision not to play again. No soap, said Mikan. He was the boss man.

JOHNSON DELAYS ANNOUNCING A'S NEW MANAGER

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP) — Arnold Johnson said today he plans to wait another week or 10 days before naming a general manager and playing manager for his new Kansas City Athletics.

Johnson, still elated with the successful completion of his purchase of the team from the Mack family and the stamp of approval by the American League, told a news conference his selections would be announced from his Chicago office.

He declined to say who was under consideration for either job but added he believed an experienced man who knows the American League would prove the most valuable on the field.

This apparently pointed to Lou Boudreau, formerly boss of the Boston Red Sox and currently unemployed.

SHANTZ LOOKING FORWARD TO KANSAS CITY

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10 (AP)—Bobby Shantz, star left hand pitcher of Philadelphia Athletics, said today he was looking forward to pitching in Kansas City and that he thought the enthusiasm of baseball's newest major league town would help improve the place A's.

Philippine Cagers Relax And Take In New York Sights

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP)—The Philippines' basketball team was "taking it easy" in New York today.

Team Manager Ambrosio Padilla said the 14 players had earned a well-deserved rest. Padilla is also the Solicitor General in the Philippines.

The team has played 16 games since it left Manila, including competition in the World Basketball tournament in Rio De Janeiro.

Members of the team will spend the rest of this week in New York, but "mostly taking it easy," Padilla said. He added there would be some sight-seeing, including the United Nations and some shows.

Two U.S. Players Selected On World Basketball Tourney All-Star Team

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 10 (AP)—The newspaper Tribuna Da Imprensa today named a world All-Star basketball team on the basis of showings made in the recently held World Basketball tournament. It included three players from the U.S. team, and one each from Uruguay and Brazil.

Ike Sends Asian Security Pact To 'Lame Duck' Senate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP) — The free world's answer to Communist victories in Indochina, the Southeast Asia collective security pact, was sent to the Senate yesterday for its approval as "an important link" in free world defenses.

President Eisenhower so de- cribed it in a special message companying the treaty, which he id is designed "to promote se- rity and peace in Southeast Asia d the southwest Pacific by de- ring Communist and other ag- ssion in that area."

13 'OLD-TIMERS' HERE BEGIN NEW LIFE AS U.S. CITIZENS

Eighty aliens from virtually every corner of the globe yesterday renounced their allegiance to all foreign powers and pledged loyalty to and support of the United States at the mass naturalization ceremony at the Plaza de Espana. District Court Judge Paul D. Shriver officiated.

Naturalization of the new American citizens here yesterday morning was the first of a series of a nation-wide observance of the first Veterans Day in the mainland and overseas territories and possessions.

Among the 80 were 13 Island residents who came many years ago, long before Guam took the first step towards civil government. One is of Guamanian-English descent born in England who first came here in 1920. Another was a Japanese subject whose residence in the Island began just seven years after the beginning of American colonization. A third, who came in 1908 as a mere boy, is of Filipino descent but was born in Borneo. His father was a retired Filipino musician of the United States Navy. The 13 are (year indicates arrival in Guam):

Brigido Aquino Arroyo (Philippines), retired Navy veteran, 1924; Mariano Leon Guerrero Borja and daughter, Maria (Chamorros born in Palau); Jose Bodestin Damian (Philippines), born in Borneo, 1908; Riye Dejima and daughter, Ritsuko (Japan), 1930; Juan Alcaide Elatico (Philippines), 1920; Irineo Adamos (Philippines), retired Navy veteran, 1925; Jose Shintaro Okada (Japan), 1907; Joseph Drennan Manibusan (Chamorro-English born in England), 1920; Candido Sablan Pangelinan (Chamorro born in Saipan), 1929; Simon Guerrero Velarde (Philippines), ex-Navy, 1920, and Jose S. Santos (Saipan), 1923.

About 2,000 paraders defied the threats of an early morning cloud-blanketed sky and the intermittent showers. Massing at the Paseo de Susana, military contingents, veterans organizations and lady auxiliaries and Scout troops marched to the plaza led by Grand Marshal Paul D. Shriver and the U.S. Navy band. Directly behind, in the order named, were the Marine detachment, Navy platoon, the Air Force band and Air Force contingent, the Guam Militia band and troops, the veterans organizations and auxiliaries and a long line of Boy Scouts and Sea Scouts from virtually every troop in the territory.

As the paraders reached the plaza, the heavy clouds thinned out and the warm rays of the morning sun stabbed their way through. The paraders came to a halt around the old bandstand where dignitaries of the territory were gathered, among them, Gov. Ford Q. Elvidge, Radm. M.E. Murphy, ComNavMarianas, Brig. Gen. Joseph D. Caldara, USAF, commanding SAC 3rd Air Division, Col. Richard I. Dugan, USAF, commanding Andersen Air Force Base, Island Court Judge Jose C. Manibusan. The Guam Legislature was not represented.

Admiral Murphy, principal speaker for the occasion, stressed the significance of Veterans Day, pointing out that hundreds of thou-

Iran Firing Squad Executes Former Foreign Minister

TEHRAN, Iran, Nov. 11 (AP) — They lashed Hossein Fatemi to a stake before a mud wall yesterday and riddled him with 16 bullets for being a traitor to the shah.

Thus ended on a wind-swept barracks rifle range the life of the fiery ex-foreign minister who had been the right-hand man of former Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

He was executed in secret by a four-man squad just before dawn. Gen. Teimour Bakhtiar, Tehran's military governor, a witness, said the blindfolded Fatemi shouted as he stood tied at the stake:

"May God protect you!"

Other army witnesses said he cried out: "This is Britain's work!" And "The British are murdering me!" before four volleys crumpled him to the ground.

Fatemi was an uncompromising supporter of Mossadegh's extreme nationalist policy under which the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. (AIOC) was nationalized in 1951.

The 40-year-old ex-foreign minister was sentenced to death by a military court a month ago for his part in plotting to overthrow Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi in August, 1953. His old boss, the aged and ailing Mossadegh, now is serving three years in solitary confinement for the same offense.

Strong elements among the armed forces and the populace were said to feel that executions were too heavy-handed a method for silencing the opposition in a country where politics long has been considered a game. But any effort to unseat the American-supported regime of Premier Fazollah Zahedi as other Iranian governments have been toppled in the past would lead almost certainly to a major blood-bath throughout the country. The government appears to

State Dept. Clears 9,500 Employes; 1,100 More Face Loyalty Probers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP) — The Eisenhower administration has virtually completed a sweeping new loyalty and security check of the U.S. State Department's 10,600 employes.

Informed officials reported yesterday that 90 per cent of the total, about 9,500, have been cleared. Investigations of the remaining 10 per cent are nearly over with prospects their cases will be completed by the end of the year.

R. W. Scott McLeod, the department's security chief, has directed the review into the loyalty and security of all diplomats and civil service employes.

For the past 18 months, McLeod's security agents have examined the background of all present employes and job applicants to make certain they qualify under the Eisenhower administration's new loyalty and security standards.

McLeod, former aid to Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N.H.) and friend of Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) is reported satisfied his investigations have been thorough and fair.

A frequent target of Democratic criticism, McLeod is reported ready to give an accounting to the Democratic-controlled 84th Congress in the event it demands an investigation of his security activities. He is reported resolved to stay on the job despite any new criticism which may be leveled at him.

Meanwhile, it was learned that a special committee named by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to survey the foreign service has renewed its recommendation that he transfer from McLeod to the undersecretary for administration the duties of inspecting foreign service installations.

And noting that that undersecretary's post expires Dec. 31, it urged Dulles to find a "properly qualified man who can come prepared to stay" as his principal administrative assistant to take over those duties.

PARTY ON TRIAL: ADLAI

LIBERTYVILLE, Illinois, Nov. 11 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said yesterday that "winning control of Congress has put the Democratic party on trial."

Stevenson, the 1952 presidential candidate, told an interviewer he has no fears as to the outcome of that trial as it will be determined by the 1956 elections.

McCarthy Tangles With Watkins Group On Senate's Opening Day For Debates

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)— A member of the Watkins committee, which has been accused by Sen. Joseph McCarthy of being a tool of Communists, hit back yesterday with a declaration that senators doing their duty should not be subjected to "personal abuse."

Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.), a member of the committee which recommended censure of McCarthy, spoke out near the end of the Senate's first day of debate on the controversial censure question.

The day also saw McCarthy (R-Wis.) exchange accusations with Sen. Arthur Watkins (R-Utah), committee chairman. McCarthy accused Watkins of twisting facts and the Utah legislator countered with a charge that McCarthy has violated his obligation—if not his oath—as a senator.

Watkins was referring to McCarthy's failure to appear before an investigating committee which looked into his affairs in 1952. This is the basis for one of the censure counts against him. The other charges he abused Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker when the general appeared before McCarthy's investigations subcommittee.

From an opponent of the censure resolution, Sen. John Marshall Butler (R-Md.), came a plea to the Senate not to do anything which would unduly hamper its members in the future. He said legislators probing subversion are subject to much abuse and ought to be excused if they lose temper occasionally.

Case, in cautioning against "personal abuse" of senators, was replying to McCarthy's statement that the Watkins committee acted as the "unwitting handmaiden" of the Communist party in making its censure recommendations.

The first count in the two-count censure recommendation of the Watkins committee is that McCarthy showed contempt for another committee.

Case said the Watkins group is trying to make it possible for senators to accept committee assignments in the future without laying themselves open to "personal abuse."

"We hope," he declared, "to preserve for the Senate of the United States the right to serve on a committee, go into the facts and make a report without having (their) motives impugned."

13 Oldtimers Here Among 80 Granted American Citizenship Yesterday

sands of Americans have given their lives in the great wars to preserve freedom. He declared:

"It is up to us who remain to accept as a challenge our present-day role. To do this, we must display vigor and integrity in the way we govern ourselves . . . in fulfilling our destiny in this contentious world. Industry and a willingness to serve must tower above indolence and greed. We must be strong as a nation, both in muscle and in moral fiber. Weakness and a disposition to temporize can only increase the chances of atomic war. In short, we must effectively discharge the responsibility of world leadership that has fallen on our shoulders —a responsibility that our new citizens now begin to share.

"In pursuing this resolute course, we shall render lasting service to ourselves and to mankind. By it we shall pay our debt of gratitude to the veterans who have gone before us. The cause for which they fought, the example they set, and the memory they left behind should inspire us to our best efforts. We cannot afford to give any less."

Earlier in his speech, the admiral paid tribute to the loyalty and endurance of Guamanians who suffered under Japanese occupation during World War II. He said:

"There are in this assemblage today many who are not enrolled in veterans' organizations, but who are 'veterans' of World War II in a real sense of the word. I refer to the people of Guam—who lived here during the Japanese occupation and the subsequent liberation. These Guamanians are among the relatively few United States civilians who witnessed enemy bombs and shells falling on U.S. soil, and who lived under conditions of enemy occupation. We are profoundly respectful of the fortitude and loyalty exhibited by Guamanians in those trying times."

The nation's Armed Forces "are called upon to win wars," Murphy asserted, adding that it is the responsibility of all citizens "to win the peace." Peace, he said, is "composed of many elements," and is not easily defined.

"The more obvious elements," he explained, "are full employment, higher standards of living, and security. These are intangible objectives, and are perhaps different in the abstract from those of Soviet Russia. It is in the field of the intangible that we find a great difference."

Admiral Murphy continued: "The intangible goal of peace can be summed up in the word 'freedom', which . . . has no valid meaning within the Communist orbit. Our freedom is something we inherited, is a natural possession, and is often-times taken for granted. It resides in our institutions, our beliefs, and in our way of life. It could be taken away. Therefore, the guarding of this heritage requires our greatest sacrifices. In the interest of this freedom we endure high taxation; our armed forces are deployed at danger spots throughout the world, sometimes at the expense of morale; our nation is kept economically, militarily and diplomatically alert, at the sacrifice of a more easy tempo of living."

At 11 a.m., two Marine buglers sounded the traditional "Taps" with echoes, followed by three volleys by a Marine squad, then a moment of silence to honor the nation's war dead. Prayers for the occasion were said by Lcdr. E.L. Wade, Naval Station Chaplain, Air Force Chaplain (Lt. Col.) W. B. Woods, and Rev. Felixberto Flores, Chancellor of the Vicariate of Guam.

have things well under control.

Fatemi probably was the person most hated by political and court figures surrounding the Shah. He once denounced the Shah as a "robber" and called the court a "brothel."

Fatemi had served as deputy premier before taking over the foreign ministry in October, 1952. He was an oratorical spell-binder who swayed large crowds and also attracted some bitter enemies. His power appeared to be at its peak when the Mossadegh forces, supported by the outlawed Communists, forced the Shah into exile in August, 1953. But Zahedi rallied the monarch's supporters, overthrew the Mossadegh regime, and brought the Shah back in triumph.

Marine Corps Dedicates 'Giant Memorial Of Devotion To Country'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—The United States Marines, proud possessors of a heroic past, gave to the nation yesterday a giant memorial of devotion to their country, from the revolutionary war to Korea.

Vice-President Richard Nixon said in dedicating the memorial on the banks of the Potomac that it stands as "a great challenge" to Americans to find a way to peace and freedom that will require no further sacrifices on the field of battle.

Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd Jr., Marine Corps commandant, said in presenting the memorial to the people of the country that it is not "just a monument to a departed past. It is a graphic message to the future . . . .

"May it stand for ages yet to come as a symbol of American courage and determination of indestructible faith and unity of purpose."

The memorial, which was dedicated on the 179th anniversary of the birth of the Marine Corps, depicts one of the most glorious moments in the history of the Marines: the raising of the Stars and Stripes above the World War II Pacific battleground of Iwo Jima.

The scene was recorded for posterity in February, 1945, in a photograph by Joe Rosenthal, then of the Associated Press, and now of the San Francisco Chronicle. It was recreated by Felix De Weldon, an Austrian-born sculptor.

Nixon recalled to the audience of 5,000 that the casualty rate among the six flag-raisers was 50 per cent and said the monument is a tribute to "the tremendous sacrifices" of the Marines as well as to their "esprit de corps and great history."

The monument, which stands a few hundred yards from the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, is the largest bronze casting ever created. The figures of the six straining flag-raisers are each 32 feet high and are raised above a 40-foot block of black Swedish granite.

Around the girth of the base is carved a chronological list of Marine Corps military engagements since the birth of the country. Below them is inscribed the corps' motto, "Semper Fidelis," and the salute Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz gave them for their fighting at Iwo Jima:

"Uncommon valor was a common virtue."

Sen. Wiley Predicts Early OK Of SE Asia Treaty

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) today forecast quick Senate foreign relations committee approval of the Southeast Asia Defense Treaty but hoisted a caution signal on the new German sovereignty and rearmament agreements.

Wiley is chairman of the committee. Neither he nor Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) foresaw any major obstacle to a committee recommendation that the Senate ratify the Asia defense alliance treaty first thing in January.

Secretary of State Dulles was scheduled to go before the committee today (1430 GMT) with an appeal from President Eisenhower that committee study be completed during the current special Senate session so that the treaty could be taken up by the Senate itself soon after the new Congress convenes Jan. 5. Senate leaders hope to confine the present session to the issue for which it was called—the move to censure Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Don't Insult Clerics, Red Disciples Warned

MOSCOW, Nov. 11 (AP) — The Soviet Communist Party central committee ordered Red propagandists yesterday to stop persecuting and insulting Soviet churchgoers and clergymen and confine themselves to "painstaking and systematic atheistic propaganda."

A decree, signed by Communist party Chief Nikita S. Khruschev and published in the party's official newspaper Pravda, warned overzealous anti-religious workers that "insulting attacks against believers and the clergy can only lead to strengthening and even intensification of religious prejudices among the people."

Parents' Fear Of Atom War Worsens Youth Problems, Health Man Claims

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 11 (AP) — Parental fear of atomic warfare are contributing to the "nation's problem number 1" — juvenile delinquency—Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, public health director for the District of Columbia, said today.

While he declared there are many other contributing factors — including maladjusted homes, substandard health, welfare and recreational conditions in certain areas, and lack of proper job opportunities for teen-agers — Dr. Seckinger told the 46th annual meeting of the Southern Medical Association:

"The atomic blasts, aggression overseas, the threat of war, the (military) draft, the facility of mobility, and other factors have tended to accentuate our national problem No. 1.

"With the development of the atom and hydrogen bombs we have become the first generation in history which, we can realistically say, is living under the threat of total annihilation.

"This threat is reflected in the anxieties and uncertainites of parents who in turn impart them to their children."

He added "in this period of uncertainty and aggression it is exceedingly difficult to influence our junior citizens to exert control over their aggressive behavior."

"The draft," he declared, "involving the possibility of actual participation in war, makes it even more difficult for our boys and girls to plan constructive, productive lives. This is reflected in their don't care attitude and accentuates their feelings of hostility toward society."

As a possible antidote for delinquency tendencies accentuated by the threat of war, Dr. Seckinger said, doctors "must use our influence to help both adults and young people to adapt better to these conditions."

Seckinger declared that out of 19 million adolescents between the ages of 10 and 18 in the United States, "each year more than a million are in some sort of trouble with the police."

Among overall measures designed to attack this epidemic of delinquency, he listed the following as necessary:

1. Efforts to seek out and combat "predelinquent behavior manifestations."

2. Control of "predisposing environmental factors."

Andersen's AACS Joins Brother Outfits In 16th Anniversary Monday

The 1958th Airways and Air Communications Service (AACS) Squadron at Andersen AFB — along with its brother outfits in the worldwide organization — will observe its sixteenth anniversary on Monday.

The occasion will be marked here with a small informal observation by Maj. William D. Reeder, 1958th commander, and members of his squadron.

AACS is part of the Military Air Transport Service (MATS).

Also charged with providing safe, expeditious and orderly flow of military aircraft — a service that has contributed directly to the safety and efficiency of modern aviation — AACS came into being on November 15, 1938.

In 1938 the still small Army Air Corps was undergoing a gradual expansion which created tough problems in communications if more and faster aircraft were to be handled efficiently and safely. Formation of a rapid syeem of communications became a must.

This mission of centralized control of communications was assigned to a small, select group of officers and airmen 16 years ago this Monday — thus forming the AACS.

From this handful of men using simple code circuits, AACS grew through the years to keep pace with the demands of a fast moving Air Force until today it is an efficient and speedy communications system employing direct voice communications between the pilot and ground stations along the route of flight, code circuits circling the world, teletype hookups and navigational aids that include instruments landing system, ground controlled approach, long range aid to navigation, direction finders, radio ranges and radio and radar beacons.

AACS personnel also operate aircraft control towers at virtually every airport in the world where USAF aircraft are based. World War II placed tremendous requirements on the organization, then barely three years of age, but AACS met the challenge.

Experience gained during the war in the operation, installation and maintenance of communications equipment, coupled with the problems of relocating installations, were to prove invaluable during the Korean conflict. Air traffic in Korea mushroomed overnight at the start of hostilities — control towers had to be manned, radio beacons installed, GCA units activated, radio stations set up and operated. Speed was the keyword.

That AACS fulfilled its responsibilities was mirrored in the statement of a high-ranking AF officer who said, "Services performed by the Airways & Air Communications Service during the Korean conflict must surely stand as a tribute to AACS personnel. The efficiency, know-how and ingenuity displayed were outstanding."

One base in Korea had a sign above the control tower, reading: "So you think you were here first? We had to be here first to land you."

Much of the success of the Berlin airlift in 1948 also can be attributed to the AACS. Thousands of aircraft loaded with needed supplies for isolated Berlin were "talked down" and landed safely by AACS GCA operators. Bad weather would have seriously hampered the "lift" had it not been for AACS GCA operators working around the clock.

Miss Pangelinan, who is also the GTA's public relations officer, said various committees were named to take charge of the association's activities.

ANOTHER COMEDY?

The special Senate session called specifically for action on the censure resolution on Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin has begun with enough cross-fire to indicate that old animosities are going to be revived in the debates to follow.

Senator McCarthy's conduct during his Red-hunting investigations and his alleged defiance of a Senate committee are the two main points of the resolution, whittled down from many more originally presented by his Senate foes.

What the Senate expects to accomplish that will benefit the American people is hard to see at this time. If the upper house intends to make an example of the Republican Senator—take him out to the woodshed, as it were, for a sound thrashing—we doubt that such action is going to make God-fearing men of those who hold the whip.

It is not going to be easy for the Senate to convince people abroad—many of whom we are trying to win to our side in the struggle against Communism—that the real motive behind the McCarthy censureship move can be boiled down to the two items on the resolution. The Wisconsin lawmaker is too closely identified with anti-Communism and there is serious danger, aggravated by his recent criticisms of the Watkins Committee, that the outsider might interpret the Senate action as contrary in spirit to the objectives of the Senator.

If the Senate is of the opinion that it must scold Senator McCarthy because it feels his attitude towards an Army general is contrary to our way of life, and therefore has made a mockery of American democracy, then we hope it would not stop with the McCarthy case.

For there still are many circumstances—such as the defiance of the Supreme Court by anti-Negro elements in some states—that have given America and Americans more cause to be embarrassed and ashamed of; that have pointed the finger of hypocrisy towards the champion of human rights.

The current session may well transform the Senate into just another stage whereon is enacted another comedy of errors to delight the Communists and fellow-travellers who know just how to take advantage of such goings-on.

THE full sovereignty of the (German) Federal Republic can no longer be delayed.
—German parliamentary leader Hans Joachim von Merkatz.

UNTIL we bring some sense of justice and decency into these (Communist) investigations, they cannot be considered as operating on a judicial basis.
—Lawyer Charles Parlin.

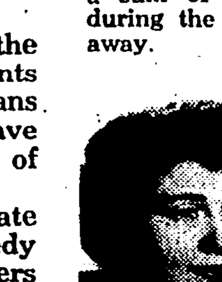
The Mature Parent

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Modern institutions for delinquent children maintain them in what they call "cottage homes." Over these homes preside married couples — the "cottage parents," one of whose jobs it is to check on children's coming and goings.

Mrs. B. was the "cottage mother" of a freckled-faced 10-year-old named Harry. I knew her. She possessed the poise required by her work.

But one mornng I saw this poise quite shattered. Harry had stolen a sum of money and some time during the previous night had run away.



Quietly, Harry's social worker listened to her social approaches of the boy. Then to Mrs. B., who was terrified of criticism for laxity on her job, he said gently: "Take better care of yourself. You're too valuable to us to have you upset like this."

By the tired look around his eyes, I knew his own distress. So after we left Mrs. B. restored and comforted, I sought for words to comfort the comforter. For Harry's social worker was a friend of mine.

I knew that he had seen Harry cry for his dead mother and had heard him curse his drunken father.

I knew that the name of the social worker had been one Harry called when he emerged from anesthetic after an appendectomy six months before. I knew what patience, hope and intelligence had been invested in the failure that had so agitated Mrs. B.

But this comforter of others did not need others' comfort. As I stared to give it to him he interrupted me. He said, "I'm fine. It's all right. I have worked out self-reproach."

At the end of three days, Harry returned to the man who had "worked out" self-reproach. He returned because he knew that he would not receive reproach.

In recount this memory for a mother who has not worked out self-reproach. For the letter she has sent me is filled with the most bitter reproaches of a 17-year-old daughter who has just left home to find a job.

Perhaps, like Mrs. B., she is afraid of charges of laxity. Maybe she too is so worried about what others will think of her failure that her self-reproach comes out crooked in the form of reproaches of that daughter.

If so, let's face it, so that we can take better care of ourselves. And so that there will be value in us for our child to see and return to.

That's When the Honeymoon Will Be Over

Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON. — POLITICAL PREDICTIONS — FDR Jr. is through . . . Ike is indispensable for the Republicans for 1956. The pressure on him to run will be terrific . . . Ike will do no quickie barnstorming again. Of the four states he touched on that airborne campaign, three were lost despite his visits—Kentucky, Michigan, Delaware. Only Ohio came through....Sen. Homer Ferguson will get his choice of new jobs in the Ike administration. Ike considers Fergy abler than Knowland and, if re-elected, had planned to make Fergy his Senate leader......There'll be a new drive to recall McCarthy. If he'd been running last week he would have lost. His best friend in the House, Cong. Charles Kersten, was defeated, while GOP Governor Kohrer squeaked through with only 51 per cent of the vote. This was the biggest Democratic vote in 22 years . . . McCarthy is finished as a political campaigner. In Illinois where his tactics were used, Senator Douglas rolled up one of the biggest leads in the country. In New Jersey where McCarthy attacked Clifford Case, Case looks to be the winner . . . Nixon is not finished as a McCarthyite campaigner. He used exactly McCarthy's tactics, but he's smoother and handsomer.

PREDICTIONS FOR 84TH CONGRESS — Senators Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Price Daniel of Texas, Republicrats, will be invited to dine at the White House repeatedly. They supported Ike in 1952, and the White House wants to continue their support . . . Others to be wooed are: Sen. Allan Bible, new Democrat from Nevada, replacing Republicrat Pat McCarran. Ikemen hope he'll split his vote as Pat did; also Cong. Thurman Chatham of North Carolina (manufacturer of Chatham blankets) who frequently votes with the GOP . . . One of the most important men in the new Congress will be a Negro—Cong. William Dawson, Chicago Democrat. In the House of Representatives he will take over the job Senator McCarthy was supposed to do in the Senate—investigate government operations . . . Dawson will not concentrate on Communism but on inefficiency. (That was Mcarthy's job also.) . . . Dawson could cause plenty of problems for Eisenhower . . . but he's an easygoing congressman who defers to colleagues and allocates most of the investigating work to Congressman Holifield of California, Hardy of Virginia, and Karsten of Missouri. With the Senate so evenly split between Democrats and Republicans, Dawson's committee will be one of the most important investigating agencies in Washington.

POLICIES OF THE 84TH CONGRESS—Cong. Carl Vinson of Georgia, who heads up the Armed Services Committee, believes Ike neglected national defense, will push for Army, Navy increases. So will another Georgian, Sen. Dick Russell in the Senate Armed Services.

TAXES — Little change. New Ways and Means Committee Chairman Jere Cooper of Tennessee will push for greater relief for small taxpayers; will also try to increase dependency exemptions from $600 to $700. But he won't get far. Both the Senate and the White House will keep taxes as is.

FARM PROBLEMS — Little change. Democrats in the House will not be able to reverse Secretary Benson's policies, though they'll try. They may be able to stop Benson from reducing the price of milk products by 5 per cent on January 1, but that will be about all. Eisenhower will continue to support Benson 100 per cent.

APPROPRIATIONS — This will bring headaches to Ike's furrowed brow. Chairman Clarence Cannon of Missouri, head of House appropriations, is a tight-fisted Democrat who will knock spots into Ike's Dixon-Yates contract and any other money used to favor private utilities.

PUBLIC HOUSING — The public housing program which the Congress pretty much buried will be resurrected. Ike wants a modified program, and the Dems, led by Brent Spence of Kentucky, want to go even further. The real-estate lobby may have its hands full.

SCHOOLS — Cong. Graham Barden of North Carolina, an ex-schoolteacher, will push the school-construction bill which the Eisenhower administration held back.

HEALTH — A modified public-health bill providing for Federally-sponsored hospitals is fairly sure to pass the House, perhaps the Senate. It will be pushed by Cong. Percy Priest of Tennessee, new head of the Interstate Commerce Committee; will also get modified support from the Eisenhower administration.

LABOR — There will be no change in the Taft-Hartley Act. Conservative Democrats who will boss the House Labor and Education Committee are just as much opposed to any change as the Republicans.

CONFERENCE DELEGATES—Photo above shows delegates of six countries to the thirteenth session of the South Pacific Commission held at Noumea, New Caledonia, Oct. 11-28. Front row (l-r) are Senior Commissioners: Dr. F. M. Keesing (U.S.), R. Lassalle-Sere (France), J. R. Halligan (Australia), C.G.R. McKay (New Zealand), Sir Ronald Garvey (Britain) and Dr. H. J. Levelt (Netherlands). Standing at back row are (l-r): A.C. Jouanin, commissioner for France; Miss E. Barr, adviser for U.S.; J.A. Van Bouge, commissioner for Netherlands; H.H. Vaskess, commissioner for Britain; Dr. A. Leesjes, alternate commissioner for Netherlands; J. H. Jones, acting commissioner for Australia; Daniel W. Montenegro, American consul for New Caledonia and adviser for the U.S.; J. Ryan, alternate commissioner for Australia; R. S. Herman, Secretary of Guam, alternate commissioner for the U.S.; D. S. Reid, adviser, New Zealand; and C. W. T. Johnson, alternate commissioner for Britain. Secretary R. S. Herman was sent by the State Department to represent the U.S. as alternate commissioner during the conference.

Atomic Energy Show-Compliments Of U.S.

United Nations, New York, Nov. 11 (AP) — The United States invited all the 60 United Nations to a special show today on peaceful uses of atomic energy. The Russians were expected to be among those attending.

The show was scheduled for 2400 GMT in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel. On the program were two films, some exhibits and three explanatory lectures. None of the information involved is secret.

Invitations went out yesterday night to the leaders and political committee representatives of all delegations to the U.N. general assembly's current ninth session, and to selected correspondents. Soviet sources said the Russians would go to the show. The U.S. delegation arranged the program with the help of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Mendes Appears Gaining Socialists' Support Of Vital Agreements

PARIS, Nov. 11 (AP) — Speakers representing about two-thirds of the French Socialist party came out today in favor of the Paris treaties on rearming West Germany in the alliance against Communism.

The party, holding a special national convention, will vote tomorrow. There seemed little doubt that it would be favorable. Today's speeches appeared to guarantee ratification for the treaties when Premier Pierre Mendes-France brings them before the national assembly in mid-December.

Also due tomorrow is a vote on Mendes-France's invitation to the Socialists to join his coalition cabinet. Opinion among the delegates last night was running against acceptance unless Mendes-France will agree to a minimum program of wage increases and tax reform.

Although the premier and the Socialists agree on many points, it was considered unlikely he would consent to be tied down by a written agreement.

The Socialists joined almost everyone in the assembly today in handing Mendes-France a minor defeat on the budget. It was the first adverse vote he had suffered since he took office in June. By a vote of 58-23, the assembly decided to consider separately a chapter in the budget dealing with bonuses for employes of the communications ministry—an indication they consider the bonus too small.

Since Mendes-France had not made this point an issue of confidence in his cabinet, there was no call for him to quit. He was not present when the vote was taken.

Extra Duty For Sewing Machines

AP Newsfeatures

The old family sewing machine is learning new tricks.

Not only does it now darn, embroider, monogram, buttonhole, pleat, bind and ruffle. It also leads a multiple life when closed up and put away.

New sewing machine cabinets previewed recently in New York may be used as desks, tables or bars. Designed by Vittorio Necchi, of Italy, the cabinets come in walnut, mahogany or blond finish wood, and make useful pieces of furniture when the sewing machine is stowed away.

One is designed to be used as a combination typewriter desk and sewing machine, with storage space for both machine and typewriter. The top of the cabinet opens to double size to make a cutting table— or even a dining table.

Another conceals a sewing machine behind sliding doors, and has a formica topped tray which can be used as a bar. This one is expected to be particularly popular with apartment dwellers.

The new bath towels are so gay and lovely, you'd like to wear them. If you want, they'd make a wonderful tunic-poncho to keep at the back of the bathroom door. Answer the phone, put on the coffee wearing it. Sew together on three sides, leaving space for arms, head.

DOUBLE LIFE . . . This new sewing machine, shown in action at left, slides out of sight so that the lady of the house can use the cabinet as a bar (right).

Lunch Important To Child's Health, Stamina

With the opening of school, lunch for youngsters becomes vitally important to health and stamina. It should supply about a third of the child's daily nutritional needs. That's the standard required of schools serving Type A lunches under the government's National School Lunch Program.

An adequate milk-fortified lunch, whether served at school, at home or carried in a lunch box, should contain not less than ½ pint of milk for drinking; 2 ounces lean meat, poultry, fish, or cheese or 1 egg, or ½ cup cooked dry beans or peas, or 4 tablespoons peanut butter.

Also ¾ cup of vegetables or fruit or both, one or more portions of bread or muffins or other bread made of whole grain cereal or enriched flour, 2 teaspoons butter.

GROOMING WILL REAP REWARDS

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

"She was an attractive woman in her middle forties" is a very common description of the woman who takes the trouble to make a good impression.

In order to create that very important good impression, it's necessary to have a neat, extremely well-groomed appearance.

And, of course, this means time and effort on the part of the would-be attractive woman. But time spent on improving oneself, either mentally or physically, has tremendous rewards.

It means being able to walk into a restaurant or meeting new friends with poise and confidence. Then, too, the well-groomed woman can banish self-consciousness and know that she can feel triumphant in that her grooming passes even the most critical test.

Planning for personal grooming is as necessary as planning for any important project. Artful make-up takes practice. Some women use powder for years without ever knowing that the excess powder must be brushed off the face after application.

But, it is in practicing and experimenting with makeup that any woman can master it. By learning your good and bad facial points, you can emphasize and minimize with make-up.

Frenchmen Think Milk Drive Good For Mendes Only

PARIS, Nov. 11 (AP) — Premier Pierre Mendes-France managed to end the war in Indochina and break the deadlock on German rearmament, but this week he's tangling with a more stubborn problem. He wants to persuade Frenchmen to drink less wine, brandy and other alcoholic beverages.

What the milk-drinking premier wants to do is decrease bottlegging and put some extra taxes on wine. Making wine more expensive might cut down consumption of the French workingmen, who think nothing of putting away a quart or more at each meal. That costs about 70 francs (20 cents).

Mendes-France, moving at his usual fast pace, would like to get something done this week before he starts on his trip to the United States and Canada. His staff has decided that if he can get cabinet agreement to enforce even some of the laws already on the books, new legislation may not be needed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP) — As far as 800 French seamen are concerned, Premier Mendes-France's campaign to get Frenchmen to drink more milk and less wine is okay —for the premier.

Crewmen interviewed at random yesterday upon arrival of the French liner Ile de France — they consume 10,000 bottles of wine on each round trip between Le Havre and New York — viewed such a suggestion with something akin to horror.

"Wine is the national drink of France," declared Gaston Thevenet, chief wine steward of the vessel."

He asserted that he personally hasn't tasted milk in 30 years.

Another crew member, who declined to identify himself, put it this way:

"Some men like blondes, some like brunettes. Some like wine, some like milk. I like blonde, brunettes and wine."

'Great Disaster' In Japan Averted: Dulles

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles said last night that liquidation of Japan's royal dynasty after World War II would have been a "great disaster." He toasted Emperor Hirohito as the symbol of a nation with a great destiny.

At a formal dinner honoring Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida, Dulles said Japan's militarists had misunderstood that country's role in attempting to enforce their will on others.

"I am convinced the day will come when Japan will be counted one of the world's truly great nations and contribute to the peace and freedom and security of the world," he said.

Dulles lauded Yoshida for his "wisdom, courage and vision" and expressed appreciation "for all you have done to make our work fruitful."

Dulles said in proposing a champagne toast to the emperor that "we avoided in victory what could have been a great disaster — and effort to liquidate the royal dynasty." Yoshida responded with a toast to President Eisenhower.

Greek Ministers Resign

ATHENS, Nov. 11 (AP) — Greek Finance Minister Constantine Papayannis and Coordination Minister Thanos Kapsalis resigned last night following disclosures that two German firms have been given the job of operating and reorganizing Greece's telephone and radio services, according to sources close to the government. The German firms concerned are Seimens and Telefunken.

P.I. Government Receives 'World Peace Through World Trade' Award

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP) —Two Philippine officials, acting on behalf of their government, accepted the "world peace through world trade" award at a luncheon given in their honor today by the American Arbitration Association.

Raul T. Leuterio, Philippine minister plenipotentiary, and Quentin Paredes, member of the Philippine Senate, were commended during the luncheon for the part they played in their government's adoption of a modern arbitration statute, which encourages private, voluntary arbitration of commercial disputes. This statute was the basis on which the award was made.

Thomas K. Watson, chairman of the board of International Business Machines Corp., and a director of the AAA, called the adoption of this statute "a giant step forward" and said it may "be a model for others to follow."

Watson said Leuterio and Paredes, through their efforts in making the arbitration principle law in the Philippines, "have helped put their country in the forefront of the movement for peace, goodwill and cooperation between nations."

The inscription of the plaque presented to the Philippines at the affair reads:

"Presented to the Republic of the Philippines by the American Arbitration Association in recognition of the strengthening of historic ties between our countries by the passage of modern arbitration laws for speedy determination of disputes."

Watson said the state of affairs between the Philippines and the United States "might well be emulated by other countries in the world."

"The thing that makes us so happy about relations between the (two countries)," he said, "is that ..... differences are being thrashed out in a climate of good will which permits honest discussion of current problems and mutually constructive solutions."

Paredes, in the United States as a member of a Philippine delegation seeking revision of trade agreement with the United States, was president of the senate and sponsor of the bill which became arbitration law in 1953. Leuterio, then majority leader of the house of representative, guided passage of the bill through the lower chamber.

The AAA award previously has been presented to the French Supply Mission (1953); The International Chamber of Commerce's court of arbitration (1951), and Thomas J. Watson (1950).

Atom-For-Peace Plan Up At UNESCO Meet

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Nov. 11 (AP) — The executive board of UNESCO today passed to the 72-country general conference meeting for Saturday an Indian resolution inviting governments to devote their atomic efforts to peaceful uses.

The board acted after French Professor Pierre Auger, director of UNESCO's natural sciences department, explained that the United Nations in New York is now considering similar plans.

Both countries suggested that UNESCO Director General Luther Evans of the United States should offer full UNESCO cooperation to the draft and implement a practical scheme for peaceful uses of atomic energy. UNESCO already has a sponsored 12-nation center for nuclear investigations in Switzerland.

Complaint To U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 11 (AP) — Alexandre Bikbaijinear Eseka, French Cameroons, has written a letter to the U.N. trusteeship council, complaining that the French were mismanaging that trust territory. "Elephants," it says in part, "kill people, uproot fields and destroy houses unchecked by the authorities."

Japanese Oldtime Leaders Join In Oust-Yoshida Plan

BY GENE KRAMER

TOKYO, Nov. 11 (AP) — Two oldtime Japanese leaders purged by the Allied occupation formally decided today to launch a new Conservative party to oust the often pro-American Yoshida government.

Mamoru Shigemitsu, peglegged World War II foreign minister who signed Japans surrender and Ichiro Hatoyama, wartime education minister, agreed to form the new party Nov. 23.

Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida is scheduled to return from the United States Nov. 17.

Shigemitsu and Hatoyama have big followings in the Diet, increasing the possibility the government will lose a vote of confidence planned by opposition Conservatives and Socialists. That would mean a new Diet election.

Shigemitsu, 67, agreed to disband his Progressive Party — Japan's No. 2 conservative group — and urged members to sign up with the new anti-Yoshida movement.

Hatoyama, 71, founder of Yoshida's Liberal (Conservative) party, is expected to lead into the new group 30 or 40 Liberals disgruntled by Yoshida's six-year rule.

Anti-Yoshida Liberals and Progressives plus 147 Socialists would be enough to carry a no-confidence vote in the 466 seat lower house.

Yoshida with 223 Liberals plus minor party support, barely survived a confidence vote earlier this year, when 20 Progressives abstained.

Shigemitsu and Hatoyama, like Yoshida are pro-western But they and their followers consider the 76-year-old Yoshida arrogant and feel that as occupation prime minister he should step down now that Japan is sovereign.

The Socialists want Japan to establish closer relations with Red China and Russia and, like India, to play a neutral role in the cold war.

The anti-Yoshida moves are being timed to offset any new popularity the government may win by Yoshida's success at getting loans and other concessions during his trip to Europe and the United States.

French Troops Clash With Algiers Rebels

ALGIERS, Nov. 11 (AP) — Rebels firing automatic weapons from mountain caves wounded three French paratroopers yesterday in a clash in the wild Aures Mountains of southeastern Algeria.

The fight broke out when two companies of parachutists were suddenly swept by automatic fire from rebels hiding in grottos and caves on the Djebel Ichmoul south of the mountain village from Foum Toub.

No other clashes were reported yesterday in the 12,000 square kilometer sparsely settled region where nearly 5,000 French troops are trying to stamp out a rebellion launched Nov. 1.

Japan's Reds Friendly With Cops These Days

OSAKA, Japan, Nov. 11 (AP) — Japanese Communists are real friendly with the police these days.

A 10 man Red Cross delegation from Communist China, now touring Japan, has been carefully guarded by Communist "storm troopers" working virtually arm in arm with Japanese police and soldiers.

There have been rumors of possible violence against the Chinese, so police are protecting them as they would any foreign visitor. Japanese Reds have moved in to help.

One policeman told newsmen he can't quite get used to hearing Japanese Reds politely say, "Thank you for your trouble."

Red Court Sentences 12 'Agents' To Death

LONDON, Nov. 11 (AP) — A Red Chinese People's Court in Fukien province which faces Formosa has sentenced 12 "U.S. Chiang agents" to death for sabotage, Peiping radio reported last night.

The court gave 12 others varying sentences on conviction for gathering intelligence and carrying out acts of sabotage on the mainland, the broadcast said. Two "minor accomplices" were released.

The 26 were captured in nine groups along the coastal areas by Fukien public security organizations, the Communist radio said.

Two-thirds of Canada's 6,000-man brigade now is either en route home or preparng to leave.

Lodge Brushes Off Transfer Reports, Points To Improving World Situation

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 11 (AP) — Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., said today "there is nothing to it at all" when asked about published reports that he would leave his post as chief U.S. delegate at the United Nations to take a high advisory post in Washington.

Lodge told newsmen the world is getting along quite well at this time and point out several recent developments contributing to this improved outlook. These included the London and Paris agreements on Western Germany, settlement on the Suez Canal squabble between Egypt and Britain, the Iranian oil agreement, security arrangements with Iraq and Pakistan and the Southeast Asia Pact in Manila.

Ike Dedicates Own Memorial Museum On Veterans Day

ABILENE, Kansas, Nov. 12 (AP) — President Eisenhower today dedicated the $325,000 Eisenhower Memorial Museum "to the future citizens of a great and glorious America."

Speaking informally to a hometown audience at Veterans Day ceremonies at the new museum, the President expressed "humble pride" at being able to participate in the dedication ceremonies.

The museum houses many of the President's World War II trophies and other mementos.

The day was bright and the sun warm as the President told his audience—including many of his old neighbors from the days of his boyhood in Abilene—of "a feeling deeply imbedded in my heart . . . for the priceless gift of American citizenship."

Other Veterans Day speakers added the thought, expressed also by Eisenhower on previous occasions, that America's future in this age of A-bombs and H-bombs will be in peril unless the people maintain a strong and vigilant guard.

For 35 years, November 11 has been celebrated as Armistice Day, commemorating the end of the first World War, "the war to end all wars." But the United States has gone to war twice more and Congress decided this year to change the name of the holiday and to have it honor veterans of all wars. Veterans groups back the change.

Eisenhower also reviewed a Veterans Day parade under bright and sunny skies.

In the principal address at Abilene, President Milton S. Eisenhower of Pennsylvania State University, the President's youngest brother, touched on the grim change that came to America with development of weapons of mass destruction. He said:

MOSLEM WITNESS ACCUSES NAGUIB OF PLOT TO ASSASSINATE PREMIER

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 12 (AP)—A Moslem Brotherhood witness yesterday linked President Mohamed Naguib with the plot last month to assassinate Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The witness, Hindawi Duweir, chief of the Brotherhood branch in a Cairo suburb, testified that Naguib had promised to make a broadcast to "calm the population," if the plot succeeded.

Well-informed sources expressed confidence last night that no measures would be taken against the president as a result of the testimony, but observers pointed out that it appeared to mark another step in the steady decline of Naguib in the government.

Naguib and Nasser were the rivals in a struggle for power within Egypt's government last spring. The struggle was finally resolved when Naguib was relegated to be a figurehead president, while Nasser took over the active role of actually running the government.

The plot against Nasser erupted October 26 when eight shots were fired at him as he was addressing a mass meeting.

Duweir gave his testimony in the trial of Mahmoud Abdel Latif, a tinsmith who is accused of being the trigger man in the attempted assassination of October 26.

Latif has admitted being a member of the fanatical Moslem Brotherhood which has attacked the government for making concessions in the agreement with Britain for evacuation of the Suez Canal Zone.

The government has charged that the plotters had a list of all the key men in the government, except Naguib, marked for assassination. The list included 160 members of the Free Officers Committee, the army organization which overthrew King Farouk in 1952.

Duweir admitted yesterday he supplied Latif with the pistol used to attack Nasser. The premier was not injured, but two officials sitting nearby were wounded.

Ultimate Victory Over Commies Certain – Chiang

TAIPEH, Formosa, Nov. 12 (AP)—Confidence of ultimate victory for Nationalist China's "resist Russian and anti-Communist war" policy was expressed today by President Chiang Kai-Shek in an anniversary statement.

The statement marked the 89th anniversary of the birth of Sun Yat-Sen and the 60th anniversary of the Kuomintang, originally the Hsing Chung Hui (regenerate China society). Dr. Sun formed the party with a few dozen sympathizers in Mecao.

Chiang's statement today said that, if an enslaved China behind the Iron Curtain has been the ceuse of aggressive wars in Asia, a free independent China will be the key to world peace and security.

"As Asia today forms the chief object of Russian and Chinese Communist agression, China has perforce to be the pivot to the solution of world problems," Chiang said.

Storms, Floods Lash Through Europe, Britain

LONDON, Nov. 12 (AP)—Storms and floods lashed parts of Europe and the British Isles yesterday. Gale winds up to 103 miles an hour swept Britain, endangering shipping. Italy was hard hit again. Only one death was reported, but damage was heavy.

Winds forced the 1,465-ton American cargo ship Magnolia to seek shelter in Moelfre Bay, Anglesey Island, off northwestern Wales. The ship had come from Liverpool.

A mail and passenger steamer trying to make inland of northern Scotland from the Orkney Islands was forced back by the gale. The Bridlington lifeboat escorted 11 fishing boats back to their Yorkshire harbor when they were caught in the North Sea. Residents along the Kent River at Kendal, in Cumberland, gathered their belongings and moved to upper floors as flood waters swirled into their homes.

Snow fell in the Scottish highlands, and many roads in Scotland and northern England were flooded.

Forty-eight hours of rain in southern Italy and Sicily sent mountain streams over their banks and flash floods down the valleys. Dozens of families were driven from their homes. Houses collapsed at Palermo and Trapani, on Sicily.

In Austraia, farmland and roads were under three feet of water in the eastern province of Burgenland. Several villages were marooned.

'Proper Burial' Sought For Old 'Oregon' Here

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 12 (AP)—The battleship Oregon commission wants to see the old warship buried at sea, instead of being sold.

There have been some recent proposals to move the ship from Guam, where it has been a stowage barge, and try to restore it as a memorial in Oregon.

The cost would be excessive, said the commission, in a letter Thursday to Gov. Paul Patterson.

The commission suggested "a proper military burial in the Pacific Ocean with all possible honors and publicity" instead of undergoing "the disgrace of being sold for scrap."

The Oregon, whose dash around the Horn in 1898 centered public attention on need for the Panama Canal, was a floating museum here until World War II when she was taken by the Navy and stripped for use as a barge.

Constitution Hall Scene Of Censure Protest Gathering

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy got a roaring, whistling ovation last night from a mass meeting held to back him in his fight against Senate censure charges.

And the Wisconsin Republican, his eyes brimming with tears, vowed that regardless of the censure vote, his fight against Communism will "go on and on and on."

McCarthy and his wife, Jean, made an unscheduled appearance at the rally, held at Constitution Hall, while the main speaker, Sen. Herman Welker (R-Idaho) was praising the Senator as "one of the greatest living foes of Communist slavery."

The crowd of more than 3,000 went wild, staging a long flag-waving demonstration as the McCarthys came down the middle aisle—helped by police in their struggle to get through the crowd—and proceeded to the stage.

In a brief talk, which also was loudly cheered, McCarthy declared the Senate debate on the censure motion "makes me sick way down deep inside."

He devoted most of his talks, however, to American policy on servicemen still held by the Chinese Communists — and in the course of this, tears appeared in his eyes and his voice broke.

A group of wives and mothers of missing-in-action servicemen seated on the stage and dressed in black, also wept when McCarthy told them:

"You are the victims of a massive appeasement — one that has been going on year after year and that knows no political bounds."

Earlier in the Senate, McCarthy raked the Watkins committee with a series of challenges yesterday

Dulles Seeks Implementation Of Asia Pact Before Ratification By Senate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles disclosed yesterday he is trying to get the Southeast Asia defense treaty in action against Communist subversion even before ratification.

In testimony in which he listed evidences of "aggressive intent" by Communist China, Dulles told the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee:

"I think we should quickly put our heads together."

He meant, he said, that the United States, Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, Thailand and the Philippines — all signers of the pact — should assemble representatives to map ways and means of blocking Red infiltration in the Pacific.

He said he hoped such a meeting of the Manila pact council could take place in a few weeks. It was learned Bangkok, capital of Communist-threatened Thailand, was being considered as the possible meeting site. The Senate is not expected to act on the treaty until its regular session opening in January.

The treaty commits the signers to consult on ways "to meet the common danger" in case the treaty area is threatened by attack or subversion.

Dulles took a half-hour to outline the intent and effect of the agreement, signed September 8 at Manila. He then was questioned for an hour and a half by committee members, among them Senate Republican Leader William Knowland (California) who asked for "full information" of how the Communists were complying with the Korea and Indochina truce agreements.

Knowland said he wanted answers in secret at a closed session of the committee. Sources indicated such a meeting might be held tomorrow. Chairman Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) has said he wants to to get a report approving the pact out as quickly as possible. Already something of a record has been set: the treaty was sent to the Senate Wednesday and received hearings yesterday. Dulles called such speed "without precedent."

Dulles told the committee he would discuss Indochina — "the situation is by no means satisfactory" — with French Premier Pierre Mendes-France after his arrival for talks next Wednesday. The secretary indicated he expects to have by then a report from Gen. J. Lawton Collins, former Army chief of staff, sent to Indochina by President Eisenhower to see what and how much American aid the French and Vietnamese need there.

Shriver Turns Down Injunction Filed Against Tax Officials Of Gov-Guam

District Court Judge Paul D. Shriver yesterday denied a motion for temporary injunction against Government of Guam tax officials filed by Attorneys Finton J. Phelan Jr. and E.R. Crain, who promptly filed an appeal.

Phelan and Crain sought the injunction against Director of Finance Richard Taitano and Commissioner of Revenue and Taxation Harry L. Mangerich "for damages and other relief resulting from illegal acts done under claim of authority and in excess of actual authority and without any warrant in law either in the statutes of the United States or the territorial government."

The plaintiffs asked the court that:

1. Judgment be entered against the defendants in the sum of $311.39 in favor of Phelan and $882.94 in favor of Crain, together with interests.

2. Assessment, levies and warrants of distraint and notices of tax liens against the plaintiffs be declared null and void, and

3. A preliminary and temporary injunction be issued restraining the government officials from further attempt to levy, income tax and to seize or confiscate the property of the plaintiffs.

In a strongly-worded decision, Judge Shriver said that, in effect the motion, like those previous tax suits, contend that "we defy these government officials and allege that we are not responsible to the Government of Guam to assist in its support."

"The court has held previously that the effect of Sec. 31 of the Organic Act of Guam is to create a territorial income tax to be paid to the Government of Guam," Shriver said. He added that it has been the "historical policy of the United States Congress to attempt to make territories and possessions financially independent by making available to its government taxes which otherwise will go to the Federal government."

"The affidavits of the plaintiffs are not completely sufficient to show they have performed all administrative means available" to assuage their complaint, the judge noted. He said they should "file their returns, make their payments and then object to the assessment" if there is "an abuse of discretion on the part of the collectors."

Citing again the court's opinion in dismissing the Holbrook tax case—which also has been appealed—Shriver strongly emphasized that "the court has no jurisdiction to intervene when the taxpayer-plaintiff is in open defiance of the Government of Guam' as regards its authority to pay in-

Ike Dedicates Own Memorial Museum On Veterans Day

ABILENE, Kansas, Nov. 12 (AP) — President Eisenhower today dedicated the $325,000 Eisenhower Memorial Museum "to the future citizens of a great and glorious America."

Speaking informally to a hometown audience at Veterans Day ceremonies at the new museum, the President expressed "humble pride" at being able to participate in the dedication ceremonies.

The museum houses many of the President's World War II trophies and other mementos.

The day was bright and the sun warm as the President told his audience—including many of his old neighbors from the days of his boyhood in Abilene—of "a feeling deeply imbedded in my heart . . . for the priceless gift of American citizenship."

Other Veterans Day speakers added the thought, expressed also by Eisenhower on previous occasions, that America's future in this age of A-bombs and H-bombs will be in peril unless the people maintain a strong and vigilant guard.

For 35 years, November 11 has been celebrated as Armistice Day, commemorating the end of the first World War, "the war to end all wars." But the United States has gone to war twice more and Congress decided this year to change the name of the holiday and to have it honor veterans of all wars. Veterans groups back the change.

Eisenhower also reviewed a Veterans Day parade under bright and sunny skies.

In the principal address at Abilene, President Milton S. Eisenhower of Pennsylvania State University, the President's youngest brother, touched on the grim change that came to America with development of weapons of mass destruction. He said:

MOSLEM WITNESS ACCUSES NAGUIB OF PLOT TO ASSASSINATE PREMIER

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 12 (AP)—A Moslem Brotherhood witness yesterday linked President Mohamed Naguib with the plot last month to assassinate Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The witness, Hindawi Duweir, chief of the Brotherhood branch in a Cairo suburb, testified that Naguib had promised to make a broadcast to "calm the population," if the plot succeeded.

Well-informed sources expressed confidence last night that no measures would be taken against the president as a result of the testimony, but observers pointed out that it appeared to mark another step in the steady decline of Naguib in the government.

Naguib and Nasser were the rivals in a struggle for power within Egypt's government last spring. The struggle was finally resolved when Naguib was relegated to be a figurehead president, while Nasser took over the active role of actually running the government.

The plot against Nasser erupted October 26 when eight shots were fired at him as he was addressing a mass meeting.

Duweir gave his testimony in the trial of Mahmoud Abdel Latif, a tinsmith who is accused of being the trigger man in the attempted assassination of October 26.

Latif has admitted being a member of the fanatical Moslem Brotherhood which has attacked the government for making concessions in the agreement with Britain for evacuation of the Suez Canal Zone.

The government has charged that the plotters had a list of all the key men in the government, except Naguib, marked for assassination. The list included 160 members of the Free Officers Committee, the army organization which overthrew King Farouk in 1952.

Duweir admitted yesterday he supplied Latif with the pistol used to attack Nasser. The premier was not injured, but two officials sitting nearby were wounded.

Ultimate Victory Over Commies Certain – Chiang

TAIPEH, Formosa, Nov. 12 (AP)—Confidence of ultimate victory for Nationalist China's "resist Russian and anti-Communist war" policy was expressed today by President Chiang Kai-Shek in an anniversary statement.

The statement marked the 89th anniversary of the birth of Sun Yat-Sen and the 60th anniversary of the Kuomintang, originally the Hsing Chung Hui (regenerate China society). Dr. Sun formed the party with a few dozen sympathizers in Mecao.

Chiang's statement today said that, if an enslaved China behind the Iron Curtain has been the cause of aggressive wars in Asia, a free independent China will be the key to world peace and security.

As Asia today forms the chief object of Russian and Chinese Communist agression, China has perforce to be the pivot to the solution of world problems," Chiang said.

Storms, Floods Lash Through Europe, Britain

LONDON, Nov. 12 (AP)—Storms and floods lashed parts of Europe and the British Isles yesterday. Gale winds up to 103 miles an hour swept Britain, endangering shipping. Italy was hard hit again. Only one death was reported, but damage was heavy.

Winds forced the 1,465-ton American cargo ship Magnolia to seek shelter in Moelfre Bay, Anglesey Island, off northwestern Wales. The ship had come from Liverpool.

A mail and passenger steamer trying to make inland of northern Scotland from the Orkney Islands was forced back by the gale. The Bridlington lifeboat escorted 11 fishing boats back to their Yorkshire harbor when they were caught in the North Sea. Residents along the Kent River at Kendal, in Cumberland, gathered their belongings and moved to upper floors as flood waters swirled into their homes.

Snow fell in the Scottish highlands, and many roads in Scotland and northern England were flooded.

Forty-eight hours of rain in southern Italy and Sicily sent mountain streams over their banks and flash floods down the valleys. Dozens of families were driven from their homes. Houses collapsed at Palermo and Trapani, on Sicily.

In Austria, farmland and roads were under three feet of water in the eastern province of Burgenland. Several villages were marooned.

'Proper Burial' Sought For Old 'Oregon' Here

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 12 (AP)—The battleship Oregon commission wants to see the old warship buried at sea, instead of being sold.

There have been some recent proposals to move the ship from Guam, where it has been a stowage barge, and try to restore it as a memorial in Oregon.

The cost would be excessive, said the commission, in a letter Thursday to Gov. Paul Patterson.

The commission suggested "a proper military burial in the Pacific Ocean with all possible honors and publicity" instead of undergoing "the disgrace of being sold for scrap."

The Oregon, whose dash around the Horn in 1898 centered public attention on need for the Panama Canal, was a floating museum here until World War II when she was taken by the Navy and stripped for use as a barge.

Shriver Turns Down Injunction Filed Against Tax Officials Of Gov-Guam

WHAT'S BEHIND IT?

For all its impressiveness and color, the first observance of Veterans Day here was somewhat disappointing in just one respect.

No member of the Guam Legislature, which represents the people in the government, was among the dozen or so official guests at the Plaza de Espana ceremony.

A check with top officials of the law-making body revealed that they received no invitation or request to be present at such an important occasion. Consequently, no lawmaker appeared. As some congressmen put it: "We don't beg for invitations."

We hope this incident was caused by nothing more than an unintentional oversight on the part of the sponsors of Veterans Day. Occasions such as this have full and deep meaning to every loyal American, and we like to think that our representatives—the members in our Legislature—are accorded the honor that is due them, regardless of any personal dislike towards them.

It is true that Speaker Won-Pat's name was on the list of official guests. But it certainly has been widely known that the Speaker is abroad. Neither the vice-speaker nor the third man in rank, the chairman of the Rules Committee, was invited to represent the people.

Ironically, it was noted plainly that Rear Admiral Murphy devoted a part of his speech to recognizing the loyalty of Guamanians to the United States during World War II, especially during the difficult times under Japanese occupation. All this is apart from the fact that Guamanians have fought and died in the recent conflicts in which the United States contributed her share in the cause of freedom.

We aren't fanning a glow into a conflagration here. But we know as a matter of fact that certain quarters seem to think the Guam Legislature is only a minor appendage in the government because of the peculiar language of the Organic Act that—in effect—makes the lawmaking body subservient to the President of the United States. Still, it has at least the dignity accorded it by its very nature and it should be recognized by all.

THE Manila pact—which I refer to as the eight-power treaty — has built the situation much more solidly in Southeast Asia.

The Mature Parent

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Mark started going into his skid of misbehavior as soon as he got home from school.

Told that his father was bringing a guest home for dinner, he protested doing an errand until his mother had to turn her pie into a pudding.

Then, learning that the guest's presence would make it impossible for him to watch his favorite TV adventure, he gave vent to a defiant "Dammit!" And rebuked, he kept insisting that this forbidden word was justified.

Next, asked to wash, he dried himself with a guest towel that had to be replaced. Finally when she found him sprawled in litter of magazines spilled from her carefully arranged rack, his mother lost her temper.

She said, "Get up from that sofa — and get out to the yard! Goodness, what's got into you this afternoon! If ever a boy had a talent for housewrecking, it's you! Hurry up! Get out of this room so I can get it back into one piece again!"

As she spoke, she gave him a little push. Stumbling, he toppled over the end table beside him—and with it its china container of after-dinner mints. And suddenly, as he looked from the rolling candies back to his mother in dismay, she knew what was wrong with Mark.

Irritation went out of her like a fever dropping. She said, "All right, darling. Pick them up. Put them back. Then pick up the magazines and arrange them the way you found them."

And the skid was over.

It was over because Mark had found the traction he needed to regain his self-respect. Finally, after an afternoon of mistakes corrected for him, he had been given his chance to put one right himself.

Every parent experiences these "skids" occasionally. For every parent gets preoccupied occasionally. And in this state, they start children off on their "skids" by resentfully correcting some mistakes they have made for them.

They begin as they began with Mark.

Under the momentum of his rapidly draining self-respect, he's sped helplessly from one bad performance to another until it looks as though the very demon of contrariness has taken him over.

The real Demon's name was "I'll do it for you." The instant Mark's mother realized this, she could brake his "skid" by arranging for him to correct his last mistake himself.

Upon Closer Examination

Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON. — Last week's election did two things as far as candidates for the Presidency of the United States are concerned.

1. It focused more attention on the Republican demand, sure to roll up, for Eisenhower to run again. No one real leader emerged on the Republican horizon during the campaign who might take his place. On the contrary, Dewey's star was dimmed by the Ives battle in New York, while Nixon, the most vigorous campaigner of all, came off only moderately well.

Therefore, whether right wing Republicans like it or not, and they are already huddling heatedly, they have no one of prominence to replace Ike in '56. Taft is gone; they never liked Dewey; Bricker couldn't make any real dent on the nation; and Dirksen has been too close to McCarthy. So Eisenhower will have to make up his mind sooner or later—and it may be sooner—whether to run or not to run.

2. The stable of Demoratic candidates has now increased and has some promising potentialities. It includes: GOV. MENNEN "SOAPY" WILLIAMS, four times governor of Michigan, which is oftener than any man in history, Republican or Democrat, has been elected in that state. Soapy is young, efficient, handsome, a good governor and an expert campaigner. Harry Truman thinks Williams may be the man for '56.

GOV. FRANK LAUSCHE, five times governor of Ohio, which is another world's record. Extremely popular, with support from Republicans as well as Democrats, Lausche has only one political handicap: the precedent, which, however, must eventually be broken, that no Catholic becomes President.

SEN. ESTES KEFAUVER, who walked home to re-election in Tennessee after dire predictions that he would be defeated, and who was in great demand around the nation as a campaign speaker.

ADLAI STEVENSON, who bore the greatest brunt of the campaign and is still the most popular figure in the Democratic party. Southern Democrats, however, led by Sen. Lyndon Johnson Texas would like to undercut him.

Meanwhile, two other Democratic dark horses have developed. One is Averell Harriman of New York, who, however, says he is for Stevenson and says it as if he means it; also Governor-elect George Leader of Pennsylvania. Leader is young and can afford to wait. But any Democrat who can get elected to the powerful Republican state of Pennsylvania must necessarily command weight in political circles. Leader will be a man to watch.

NOTE — 1956 may seem far off but actually it's only a year and a half before the national conventions meet to pick the next possible President of the United States.

BALANCING OUT BETHLEHEM—Secretary of the Navy Thomas may be called on the Congressional carpet to explain the sudden flow of lush Navy contracts to Bethlehem Steel. Inside story is that he has been favoring Bethlehem—at over $1,500,000 extra cost to the taxpayers—in order to make amends for a broken promise.

Thomas gave his word privately to Bethlehem Steel boss Arthur Homer that his company would get contracts for the third and fourth super-aircraft carriers being built for the Navy. Later, it was discovered that this would have added so much to the cost that Thomas was forced to renege. Now he is trying to make up to Bethlehem for it—at the taxpayers' expense.

First, Thomas gave Bethlehem's shipyard at Quincy, Mass., a contract to build two destroyer escorts for $16,250,000. This is a generous $758,000 more than the Navy is paying the Bath Iron Works in Maine to build two identical ships.

Then, the Navy awarded Bethlehem's San Francisco yard another contract to build two destroyers for $15,400,000 apiece. Yet, the Navy is paying the Puget Sound Bridge and Dredging Co. in Seattle only $14,941,376 apiece for building identical destroyers. In other words, Bethlehem is charging the Navy almost half a million dollars extra for each ship. Yet, naval experts claim that Bethlehem, which produces its own steel plate, should be able to build destroyers cheaper than the Seattle company.

This may have saved Thomas' face for welching on the super-carriers, but it is costing the taxpayers.

AIR-NAVY SQUABBLE—It looks like there'd be more significant hasseling inside the Pentagon over the vital question of Air vs. Army-Navy expenditure.

For the Defense Department's Budget Chief, W. J. McNeil, is circulating a secret memo aimed at cutting the Air Force budget. McNeil has long been pro Navy and anti-Air Force, and his secret memo claims that the Air Force is now getting 45 per cent of the defense dollar.

Andersen Offers New Courses For Next Study Class

Six new courses will be included in the 67th term of group study classes beginning November 15 at Andersen Air Force Base, the Andersen Education Center announced today.

New courses will be personnel management, academic German, conversational Spanish, speech and history of Latin America. Registrations for the next term of group study classes will be accepted at the education center through November 17.

Other courses in the next term will be English grammar, typing, accounting, business law, United States history, photography, freehand drawing, mechanical drawing and sociology. Classes will be held both at Andersen and at the Marbo-3D Air Division area. Most courses run one term—five weeks—though some run several terms.

Police Notes

STABBED — A member of the 822nd M&S Squadron, Andersen AFB, was stabbed by another serviceman in front of the Casino Garden in Tamuning at 1:30 a.m. Thursday, police reported. He was identified as Bobby W. Peeks. Police said the suspect is Robert L. Johnson, 21, of the "C" company, 822nd Engineer Aviation Battalion. Details of the incident were not given.

STRUCK — Miguel R. Misa of Camp Quezon complained that at 6:20 p.m. Thursday, he was hit on the head with a steel chair at the Cock of the Walk restaurant in Mangilao He said the assailant was Santos Tolania, 29, also of Camp Quezon. Sgt. A. D. Respicio is investigating the case.

"FALLS ASLEEP" — A Navy Public Works Center man "apparently fell asleep" while driving a panel truck and was injured when the vehicle struck the right side of the Chorito bridge in Asan yesterday morning.

Child Hurt In Yona Accident

Ofemia Delgado Ogo, two-year-old girl from Yona, was hit by a Buick sedan Tuesday morning, police said. She was taken to the Guam Memorial Hospital. A medical report stated she sustained "lacerations on the forehead, scalp and left foot, and excoriations on the face, knees and legs." Police said she was confined "for observation."

Police identified the driver of the sedan as Miss Maria Ulloa Lujan, 33, a school teacher at Sinajana. Miss Lujan, after notifying the child's parents of the accident, took Ofemia to the hospital.

Investigation disclosed that Miss Lujan was driving her cousin Miss Lucy Ulloa, to the Yona School. About 125 feet from the intersection of Route 4 and the public school road, she "heard a sound like hitting a rock." Miss Lujan alighted from the car to investigate and found the child "lying on the ground."

Police said the car was traveling "at a low rate of speed." Miss Lujan, in her statement, said she was cruising at 10 miles an hour.

Sgt. R. C. Leon Guerrero said in his report the case was "closed as a matter of record only due to the age of the child and the obsence of any evidence of negligence on the part of Miss Lujan." He did not identify the child's parents.

2 Women Injured As Sedan Rams Jeep Near NAS

Two women were taken by ambulance to the Guam Memorial Hospital at 2 p.m. Thursday after the Chevrolet sedan they were riding rammed a jeep on Route 8, some 400 yards east of the main gate to the Naval Air Station, police said. They were identified as Miss Corazon A. Libunao, teacher at the Guam Academy of Music, and Salud A. Paniasigui of Barrigada.

Miss Libunao, according to the medical report, sustained a "small cut on the upper lip." Another report said Miss Paniasigui suffered "an abrasion on the left leg and a bruise on the chin." Both were released after treatment.

The driver of the jeep, according to police, was Antonio P. Aurello, 27, of Andersen Air Force Base. Aurello was not injured. Police said he was cited for driving without a license.

Pol. J. C. Quitugua, who conducted the investigation, reported that the jeep was coming from the direction of Barrigada when it stalled on the first lane near the NAS main gate "due to the heavy rain." The sedan driven by Miss Libunao also was going in the same direction.

Quitugua said as the sedan neared the jeep, Miss Libunao's "vision was obscured by the rain." She said her car brakes failed to work. In her written statement, Miss Libunao said she tried to avoid hitting the jeep "but it was too late."

Police placed the damage to the jeep at $250 and $450 to the sedan.

Malaya Leader Proposes Amnesty For Red Guerrillas

JOHORE BAHRU, Malaya, Nov. 12 (AP)—One of Malaya's foremost politicians today advocated granting amnesty to 5,000 Chinese Communist guerrillas who have been fighting British security forces in the jungles for six years.

Tengku Abdul Rahouk, president of the United Malay's National Organization (UMNO), also called for transfer of power by Britain before the emergency yarkscght to an end.

Should the emergency still be on when Britain grants Malaya independence, Rahman said in an interview, Malayans would themselves take up the fight against Communist guerrillas.

There is no fear, he added, of a parallel being drawn across the peninsula as in the case of Korea and Indochina.

$8.5 Million U.S. Aid OK'd For P.I.

MANILA, Nov. 12 (AP) — The United States is sending 8½ million dollars worth of engineering equipment to the Philippines to strengthen this country's armed forces.

Maj. Gen. Robert M. Cannon, head of the joint U.S. Military Advisory Group to the Philippines, advised President Ramon Magsaysay Wednesday that the military aid shipment had been approved in Washington.

The equipment, mainly bulldozers, truck, power shovels and floating bridges, will be used to develop the Philippine Army's engineering corps.

This is the first military aid to the Philippines since the two countries agreed to implement their mutual defense pact.

Shriver Denies Preliminary Isle Tax Injunction come tax on income earned in Guam."

Charging that the local tax officials have "usurped the power of the United States Congress and have violated the "constitutional rights of the plaintiffs," Phelan and Crain held that Chapter 8A, Title 48 USCA, which is the Organic Act of Guam:

1. Contains no standards for administration or collection of alleged income tax.

2. Lacks definiteness and certainty—a prerequisite in a taxing statute.

3. Is vague, ambiguous and does not set forth which sections of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code are in effect in Guam, which are not and which are altered, modified, deleted, or changed, and

4. Contains no government authority or direction to any person, office, or agency of the United States or the Government of Guam for the administration or collection of territorial tax.

The plaintiffs alleged they would be "irreparably harmed" by the actions of the defendants and that their livelihood will be destroyed and the interests of their clients will be adversely affected in the event that the government tax officials are allowed to proceed with their actions.

Attys. Phelan and Crain stated in their suit that the Government of Guam has filed purported notice of Guam tax liens in the District Court upon all their real and personal property.

Pro-McCarthy Rally Staged

and drew from its chairman, Sen. Arthur Watkins (R-Utah), the exasperated retort:

"I wonder sometimes if I'm on trial."

The 67-year-old Watkins declared McCarthy, recommended for censure on two counts by the Watkins committee, always manages to turn his own trials into trials of somebody else.

This exchange came near the end of the second day of Senate debate on the censure charges—a day that possibly opened a way for McCarthy to escape at least one of them if he chose.

Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.), a member of the Watkins committee, said the whole censure now "could end very quickly" if McCarthy would retract what he has said about the 1952 Gillette committee and, in particular, his "no-brains-no-guts" crack about one member of it. That member was Sen. Robert C. Hendrickson (R-N.J.).

Case told reporters:

"If Senator McCarthy indicated any regret he had uttered those words, it would be very easy for the Senate to accept them and then to table (knock out) that portion of the censure resolution."

And if that happened, Case said, the Senate might also "wash out" a proposed censure of McCarthy on the ground he abused Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker when the general appeared before the McCarthy investigations subcommittee.

Case, elaborating on what he had implied in a floor speech, told newsmen the Senate might get around a direct censure of McCarthy on this second count by simply dissociating itself from McCarthy's remarks to Zwicker.

McCarthy showed no inclination to back down on his charge that the Gillette committee acted illegally and improperly—but whether he would tone down his statement that Hendrickson was "a living miracle . . . without brains or guts" remained to be seen.

A Right To Die?

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 12 (AP) —A 48-year-old man who attempted suicide today threatened to sue the doctors who saved his life.

Jesus Castilleja Parra angrily denounced the doctors, hospital attendants, and even Mexico itself.

"There are no human rights here," said the man, who explained he had attempted suicide because of poor business. "You can't even die if you want to in Mexico."

"With the completeness and awesomeness of modern thermonuclear action, the safe little world my brothers and I knew here as youngsters burst and vanished in the clouds of global war, economic interdependence and ideological strife."

Much the same solemn note was sounded at Arlington National Cemetery near Washington, where Secretary of the Air Force Harold Talbott spoke at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. He said:

"The weapons which claimed the brave young men and lie here were formidable enough. And yet they were puny compared with the weapons that human beings can bring to bear against each other in this nuclear age. These are weapons of great destruction.

"They can lay waste an entire continent—men, women, children, even the beasts and the vegetation. They can abolish in a single night not only an army, not only a nation, but a whole civilization."

Talbott said efforts to keep these weapons from being used can succeed only by seeking the help of God.

"We can keep the peace only if we seek His help," Talbott said, "not to destroy our enemies, but to help us summon the patience, the courage, and if need be, the sterness that will be needed to prevent a war which would destroy us both."

At Fort Worth, Texas, Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens said the nation's security depends on a trained, organized military reserve "ready to go—before war comes."

Stevens said this is true because the nature of atomic war makes it unlikely that the United States "will never again have the time to create a great army from scratch after war breaks out."

In New York, James H. Smith Jr., assistant secretary of the Navy for air, stressed the importance naval striking forces would have in counter-attacking in the event any of the dread weapons hit the United States.

Caroline, Like Any All-American, Needs Help Of Winning Team To Gain Laurels

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A player requires vastly more than extraordinary talent to be an All-America.

Frequently more than a five-yard average against the most formidable opposition fails to earn the athlete the call.

An All-America needs the help of an unbeaten, or seldom defeated team. He comes with accomplished over-all personnel.

Occasionally there is an exception, but they just prove the rule. Jay Berwanger, for example, couldn't have had too much going for him when this remarkable back made it in 1934-35, as Chicago was preparing to kick the football bucket. Paul Larson and George Shaw of the California and Oregon varsities, respectively, are current striking illustrations of stickout allaround backs lost on losing sides.

It's impossible for an All-America selector to please everybody, so he doesn't neglect the big teams. That way, he reduces the screams to a minimum. It's as simple as that.

J. C. Caroline, on everybody's lips a year ago, probably will be passed up this trip.

Reason: Going into the Michigan match, Illinois had copped only a single game because of a mediocre line. Yet Caroline had averaged 5.1 yards in contrast to the 6.5 with a potent bunch of monsters in front of him last year.

Five yards per crack is phenomenal for a back, say, at UCLA, Ohio State or Notre Dame.

Ray Eliot would be first to testify that the present Caroline, sound, is even superior to the back who in 1953 led the nation in rushing and broke the immortal Red Grange's seasonal record for total offense. Slippery J. C., a junior, is a year older, heavier, stronger.

Coach Eliot insists that Caroline is the only back he ever saw who can run under a lineman.

Leroy Bolden suffers like Caroline because Michigan State hasn't mopped up everything in sight. Duffy Daugherty doesn't have to tell you that his breakaway flyer is a bigger threat than he was on the Rose Bowl team of last New Year's Day. He's been hurt and the Spartans have been hurtin'.

Chances are that Alan Ameche will be given the go-by by some All-America pickers because Wisconsin dipped at bit.

This despite the fact that those who know best still rate Ameche the top kick among college fullbacks, offensively and defensively. The Horse rushed the ball for 117 yards against Iowa, but lost, 13-7.

Forest Evashevski called Ameche the greatest fullback he had even seen. Someone asked the Iowa coach if that included his career, both has a player and coach.

"As a player, coach, spectator and any other way you want to include, replied the handsome fellow who blocked for Tom Harmon at Michigan.

WASN'T EASY — Catalino Diangson of San Francisco displays the eight-foot, five-inch 277-pound sturgeon he brought in off Fort Chicago, Calif. It took an hour and 20 minutes to land the catch, which makes about two of Diangson. (NEA)

The rejuvenated Mid-Islanders put their four-game win streak on the line tonight as they battle the Sun Devils at NavBase Field.

Game time is 7:30.

Currently a half game behind the league leading Bombers the Middies have a chance to gain a tie for the top rung by beating the Devils. In the first meeting beween the two clubs the Middies edged out a narrow 14-13 win.

The Bombers did not see league action this weekend. The Air Force team was host to the Clark Field Wildcats last night.

Marksmen Prime For 36th World Shooting Tourney

CARACAS, Venezuela, Nov. 11 (AP)—Some 500 international marksmen will start shooting for individual championship badges Sunday in the 36th World Shooting Tournament.

Shooters are permitted two tries in each event if desired. Scores are not counted for official world championship records or titles.

All teams practiced Thursday on the White Rabbit firing range. Many shooters complained variable winds and drifting clouds threw changing shadows across the targets.

On the Running Deer range Olaf Brude of Norway produced the day's best score with 86 out of a possible 100 with 20 shots. Birder Buhring Anderson said the Norwegians were having trouble getting used to this target, which is operated by an electric motor. The speed of which apparently was still varying.

The best trials scored so far on the skeet range were made by five Swedish shooters, who had a total of only 12 misses in 500 shots each.

Andrews Gets Split Nod Over Varona Decision Razzed

CHICAGO, Nov. 12 (AP) — Al Andrews, his nose bleeding freely from the fifth round on, last night pounded out a 10-round split decision over Chico Varona of Havana, Cuba, in a boxing bout at Chicago Stadium.

The crowd booed the decision lustily.

Andrews was making his first start since knocking out Gil Turner in the third round at Chicago Stadium six week ago.

The durable Varona had scored 40 knockouts in piling up 63 victories in 84 bouts.

QUESTION: In the Yale game, Colgate was penalized 15 yards late in the game because a tackle hit the end too often on a pass play. I noted that the tackle did not hold or otherwise foul the end. He did, however, slam into the man four times with his hands in an obvious attempt to check the end from going out to catch a pass. What was wrong here?—Ed Antun.

Answer: Officials call this penalty—it is for illegal use of the hands—when it involves an end because the end, as far as they are concerned, is entitled to go out. The defensive man is given a chance at him—but he must make good with his primary charge. If he knocks the end down with his first show of hands—or gets him on the rebound with his second—most officials okay it. But if he stands there and keeps hitting the end, it's a penalty.

Reds Block Armistice Probe

U.S. Tags Soviet's Security Meet Plan As Red Propaganda

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—U.S. officials yesterday branded as insincere Russia's proposal for a great European security conference to be held in Moscow or Paris November 29. They said it had the marks of a propaganda appeal to European people, especially the French, to block German rearmament.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles laid down the policy some time ago that there can be no successful negotiations with the Soviets on great European issues until West Germany's partnership in the Atlantic alliance is finally and officially determined.

The official Washington attitude left no doubt that some time in the next two weeks the United States will reject the Soviet proposal, made yesterday in a note from Moscow.

Meanwhile, Dulles will discuss it with French Premier Mendes-France who is due here next Wednesday for top level conferences. Consultations wil also be held with Britain, West Germany and other allied Eurcpean countries, and probably with countries like Sweden and Yugoslavia, Spain and Portugal which are not allies but are free of Soviet links.

The Soviet invitations envisioned a conference of about 30 countries, including Communist China as an observer.

U.S. officials expect a united turndown by the Western allies but they are not sure what the Soviets will do then. Possibly they may call a conference of Russia and satellite countries at Moscow which could produce some kind of a treaty that Moscow could claim to be a start on European security but which in fact might be a kind of Eastern rival of the Atlantic alliance.

Vietminh Officials Refuse Entry Of Commission Team

PARIS, Nov. 14 (AP)—Local officials of the Communist-led Vietminh regime in north Indochina turned back an armistice commission team seeking to investigate the plight of apparently stranded Catholics, the semi-official French news agency reported last night.

The dispatch from Hanoi said the team saw what appeared to be 100 refugees waving in distress from a sandy island off the Communist-dominated country, but was not allowed to approach.

From 20,000 to 40,000 Catholics in the north are reported trying to escape to south Vietnam from Communist domination. The French say there is little they can do about them, however.

The French navy rescued 4,000 Catholic refugees from areas around Phat Diem and Bui Chu before the Communists demanded that the French ships stay outside a three-mile limit of territorial waters. A spokesman in Saigon has acknowledged the ships were instructed to observe the three-mile limit.

The French now accuse the Vietminh of reneging on the Geneva agreement which says all people of Vietnam are free to choose whether they will live north or south of the dividing line.

The French dispatch from Hanoi yesterday said the latest incident occurred in the region of the island of Tra Ly.

The mobile team was one of 12 operated by the International Armistice Commission formed by Poles, Indians, and Canadians to enforce the Geneva armistice. The team was in motor launch manned by Vietminh. It approached Tra Ly, where a large number of persons could be seen waving from the beach. The Vietminh did not let the boat get near enough to the island to talk with the people.

Proceeding farther along the coast, the team was able to get close enough to a sandy island to see about 100 persons who ap-

Sablan Denies Responsibility For Telesco Statement

Cong. James T. Sablan of Agana Heights, in an unsolicited statement to the DAILY NEWS, has denied rumors he said he had heard that he was responsible for the Telesco statement quoted in an Associated Press dispatch from Manila recently regarding the Filipino labor situation here. Sablan told a NEWS reporter: "I don't even know the man."

Col. Leo Telesco, vice president of the Philippine Air Lines, who sojourned in the Island earlier this month, issued a statement to the AP in Manila in which he said "Guam government officials are fed up" with the Filipinos' clamor for higher wages here.

Governor Elvidge and Rear Admiral Murphy both have denied any connection of the government and the Navy to the Telesco statement.

Sablan also denied there is a move in the Guam Legislature to "legislate Filipinos out of the Island." Asked if he contemplates such a move, he smiled and said: "There is no such plan." He added that such matters are purely within the Navy jurisdiction. He summarized his position in this statement:

"I am always for any measure that would provide that local citizens be given top priority in employment opportunities. I recognize the need for alien services, but where the job vacancy can be filled by Guamanians, that position should be given to him before an alien is hired."

He added that he still is behind the purpose of the bill confining the issuance of business licenses to citizens. The bill he referred to was Bill No. 154 which was voted down during the latter portion of the regular session of the Second Guam Legislature this year.

Sablan also came out openly in favor of applying the Federal Fair Wage Act to Guam "because it also will benefit Guamanians, many of whom still underpaid." He said that as long "as the move will benefit everyone in the Island, I am for it."

1,500 Applaud As McCarthy Blasts Censure

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 14 (AP)—Fifteen hundred home state supporters of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) heard him say "we are in the midst of a movement of massive appeasement."

"It is a movement of people who are not loyal to our country," the Wisconsin senator told his admirers at a testimonial dinner in his honer last night.

The senator's talk was interrupted frequently by applause and shouts of "We Want Joe."

"A great many of my Republicen friends say do not expose anything wrong in your own party," McCarthy said, "but I do not subscribe to that theory."

The Senate presently is considering a censure motion against McCarthy.

Magsaysay Nixes Release Of Pro-Red's Answer To U.S. Newspaper's Queries

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Nov. 14 (AP) — The Philippine government has declined to relay to the Rochester Times-Union some statements from William J. Pomeroy, an American imprisoned in the Philippines for allegedly fighting with the Red-inspired Huk guerrillas.

A spokesman for President Ramon Mgasysay's administration said Pomeroy's replies to question asked by the Times-Union were being withheld because they "grossly maligned the government."

Pomeroy, a 37-year-old former GI from Rochester, and his Filipina wife, Celin, were taken into custody by Philippine troops in 1952. Both were sentenced to life imprisonment after allegedly pleading guilty to charges of rebellion.

Last January 14, the Times-Union wrote Magsaysay asking that he present a series of questions to Pomeroy. The newspaper yesterday published a reply from Fred Ruiz Castro, executive secretary of Magsaysay's administration.

The letter said Pomeroy and his wife "willingly" answered the newspaper's questions.

"However," the letter continues, "while the president wishes to send you the answers, he deeply regrets that he cannot do so in view of the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Pomeroy grossly maligned the government in which he represents.

"In other words, they are still the same die-hard Communists that they were when they took to the field to join the Huk dissidents."

The letter said the answers would serve only to "lubricate" the Communist propaganda machine.

The Times-Union said the questions dealt with Pomeroy's health, his views on Communism, his prospects for release, and aspects of his prison life.

Pomeroy was with the U.S. Army in the Pacific theater during World War II. After the war, he returned to Rochester and worked briefly as a free-lance writer. He then returned to the Philippines, married, and allegedly took up with the Huks.

At the time of the capture of the Pomeroys, Magsaysay, then defense secretary of the Philippines said Pomeroy had renounced Communism and might be freed in one to four years if he "played ball" against the Huks.

Stock Market Rise Indicates Steady Ascent Toward 1929 Big Crash Peak

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP) —The stock market this week maintained a record-breaking pace that shoved it ever higher toward the fateful all-time peak of 1929.

For the past 14 months, the market has been climbing at a dizzy pace seldom interrupted by a reaction. In mid-year it got back to the old levels of 1929, the October days when the stock market was in convulsions that only ended with the deep depression in 1932.

Last week, it was poised around the highest point in 25 years when it recessed for election day. The election returns touched off a rally that scarcely paused for breath in a headlong rise that hasn't been matched since the troubled days before the start of World War II.

Brokers feel that the election is not the sole cause for the current trade surge by any means. In the process of advancing, the market passed through critical technical barriers without hesitancy into new high ground for the year. That was the signal for a renewal of the bull market boom.

Every day this week, the market established new 25-year high marks with the Associated Press average ending the week at $143.50, highest since October 15, 1929.

Since the first of this year, the average has gone up $35.40, and it now stands $14.20 away from the alltime high established Sept. 3, 1929. Volume on the rise was impressive The total for the week was 16,157,000 shares greatest since the third week in January of 1951.

The daily average of trading this week was 3,231,000 shares. It was the 119th time this year that business has passed the two million mark. There has been no such showing since 1929 when there were 267 days when business came to two million shares or better.

There was still another record. On Tuesday, 1,261 individual issues were traded out of the 1,529 issues listed on the New York stock exchange. It was the highest number traded on a single day in the history of the exchange.

FAITH AND COURAGE

For eighteen and a half years, Fred B. Snite Jr. lived in an iron lung. He was a young man of twenty-six when the dreaded infantile paralysis struck him down. There was little hope at the time that he would live long.

Last Saturday, an Associated Press dispatch from Miami Beach, Florida, reported that Fred Snite Jr., at 44, had died quietly in his sleep in the artificial respirator that had been his home for nearly two decades.

The passing of the courageous polio victim is more than just the death of another paralytic, another man. For Fred Snite Jr. was no common mortal. To the thousands of polio victims all over the world, he was a symbol of hope, of faith—truly tried and tested in the crucible of human experience. Few have faced the tribulations of man's sufferings with so much fortitude, the kind that is found only in a man whose spiritual strength is deeply imbedded in his being.

No doubt, there were moments during his difficult existence when human weakness tended to sap the source of his strength and make him rebel against the will of God. But it obviously was within his power to rally against hopelessness and rise again to the need of the hour.

The scores of thousands of paralytics in the mainland —the young and the old—who have seen Fred Snite's pictures in the papers will not forget the ready smile with which he greeted his countless admirers and sympathizers wherever he went. Many of them must have wondered how anyone imprisoned in an iron case could find any pleasantness in a world that for many years had known nothing but gloom and pessimism.

Fred Snite Jr. is dead, but he will live on in the memories of his fellow sufferers to whom he always will be an example of a man with deep faith and extraordinary courage. They can face life with bright hopes for a better day, for he also has shown them how to live.

THERE is nobody who can work with a Communist. He is a liar, a thief, a murderer and a saboteur.

There'll Probably Be a Slight Delay, Folks

The Mature Parent

By Mrs. MURIEL LAWRENCE

On Mrs. D.'s bedside table is a child guidance book that contains a chapter titled "Jealousy in Your Child."

It has told her that when her Bobby runs off with his little sister's rag doll, pushes her away or otherwise hurts her, he is returning hurt for the hurt Janey did him by getting born.

So, though his jealous behavior often irritates her, his mother tries to give Bobby the "reassuring" love the book says he needs.

It is not producing. Privately Mrs. D. wonders just when Bobby will have received enough "reassuring" love to make it safe to leave her children alone for five minutes.

Mrs. D. has been misled by the chapter title in her child-guidance book. Let me say this to her:

Jealousy in your child is no different from jealousy in you. To try to treat it as a childhood phenemonon can get you nowhere. Your book's implication that it can is your real problem. It makes it impossible for you to feel Bobby's need for reassuring love through your own experience of jealousy. It alienates you from your little human being who is suffering as you have suffered.

So, instead of reading any more about Bobby's jealousy, let's see if we can't begin to feel it.

What happened in Mrs D. last week when Bobby's father complained about the grocery bill? When he said, "Why can't you manage this house on the money my mother can manage on. I don't understand," how did she feel?

How did she reply? Didn't she say angrily, "Will you please stop praising your mother's housekeeping to me? All that scrimping she does to save a nickel! Why the children never get enough to eat in her house! If you admire that kind of stingy housekeeping. . ."

Isn't this an attempt to push away her mother-in-law's housekeeping reputation just like Bobby's pushing Jane? Back of both, isn't there the same scared, lonely doubt of real appreciation?

If Mrs. D. can examine what was back of her attack last week, Bobby's jealousy will suddenly stop irritating her. The bad behavior will begin to dissolve like a mist, exposing the pain she has not understood.

And the "reassurance" her book burst from her so spontaneously has been preaching about will that her little boy will begin to really believe in it.

For jealousy is suffering, no matter what age we are.

WASHINGTON. — New York newspapers last month featured front-page stories calling attention to the fact that it was exactly 25 years since the tragic 1929 stock--market crash that precipitated the Hoover depression. After recalling the billions lost to big and little investors all over the U.S.A., they noted that the stock market had climbed back to the same high peak of 1929 and speculated whether another crash could happen.

Here in Washington, meanwhile, a Senate subcommittee has been digging out some possible answers to that question.

Given not one cent of funds by Senator Jenner of Indiana who holds the purse strings on Senate probes, the Langer-Kefauver committee has pieced together an amazing story of how some of the safeguards erected to prevent another stock-market crash have been ignored. These safeguards included:

1. Creation of the Securities and Exchange Commission to police the stock market and protect the investor.

2. The public holding corporation act which required big utilities to ditch the rule of Wall Street. Electric light and power companies, under the holding corporation act, were to be bossed by the local people who bought the power and paid the electric light bills.

However, here is what the Langer-Kefauver committee found:

WALL STREET RULE—The Securities and Exchange Commission, supposed to police Wall Street, now appears to be working, in part, with Wall Street. Significantly, the SEC chairman appointed by President Eisenhower is Ralph Demmler, Pittsburgh partner of the Dave Reed law firm.

Just how Eisenhower picked him to head up the vital agency supposed to protect the investing public remains a mystery. For his senior partner, the late Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, fought the SEC, also battled against the holding corporation act which the SEC is supposed to enforce.

The Reed-Demmler law firm has represented the Mellon interests plus various Pittsburgh banks and it's difficult to understand how a man picked from this background could enforce the SEC laws with any great enthusiasm.

At any rate, here is how the SEC operated in regard to the Mississippi Power and Light Co., which is part of the Dixon-Yates combine now being awarded a lush government power contract by direct authority of Eisenhower himself, despite the opposition of the TVA and a majority of the Atomic Energy Commission.

"UNTRUTH"-IN-SECURITIES — On September 22, J. D. Stientenroth, long-time secretary-treasurer of the Mississippi Power and Light Co., telegraphed the SEC that a statement filed wih the SEC regarding the Mississippi Power and Light and its parent company, Middle South Utilities, was false.

"I desire," he warned the SEC, "to withdraw each and every financial figure and any and all data which are included in both registration statements."

This should have been a red light to the SEC to hold up the sale of stock proposed by Middle South Utilities and Mississippi Power and Light. The name of the law establishing the Securities and Exchange Commission is "The Truth-In-Securities Act" which requires registration of bond and stock sales to the public to be truthful.

Yet, here was a telegram from the secretary-treasurer of Mississippi Power and Light that the registration statements were not truthful. Despite this, the SEC did absolutely nothing. The stock flotation was OK'd next day.

Quizzed about this by the Langer-Kefauver Committee, SEC officials admitted that they sent no one to Mississippi to probe the charges made by Stientenroth. Instead, they ignored his telegram and let the allegedy "false" stock flotation be issued.

SEC ON THE GRIDDLE—Cross-examined as to whether it was not the job of the SEC to prevent false statements regarding the flotation of stock and bond issues, here is how Chairman Demmler of the SEC ducked:

Mr. Sidney Davis, counsel for the Langer-Kefauver Committee: "Is it fair to say, Mr. Chairman, that one purpose of the Securities Exchange Act is to protect investors by requiring that a full and accurate disclosure be made in a prospectus to the public before shares can be issued?"

DEMMLER: I think the statute speaks for itself, Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Is my statement correct, sir?

DEMMLER: I think perhaps we had better read from the statute.

DAVIS: Can you tell me without the statute, sir, whether this is correct?

DEMMLER: I say, sir, that the statute speaks for itself.

FCG To Step Up Drive For More Members, Parcels

An intensified membership drive to be pushed through in time with the campaign for Christmas package donations was mapped out during the first semi-annual general membership meeting of the Filipino Community of Guam Saturday night in Tamuning.

In line with this plan — unanimously approved by the directors and members — every active member of the organization should get in touch with at least five nonmembers, "each to be briefed on the cardinal aims and objectives of the FCG."

The brain of the suggestion, who declined to be identified, shifted it into a motion and said before the next meeting of the Community, "more than one half of the total Filipino population on Guam can be expected" to affiliate themselves with the organization. On motion by Vice Consul Jose Q. Tabora, the assembly declared November 29 to December 6 as "membership week."

Antonio S. Dimalanta, president, renewed his appeal for Christmas package donations which will be sent to indigents in the Philippines. A director suggested that this campaign to be held side by side with the drive for membership. The body approved the suggestion.

Dimalanta, reporting on the activities of the Community which was organized here two months ago, solicited the "active cooperation and support of all the members" and said no single individual can claim credit for the success of any project undertaken by the organization. He underscored the necessity of sponsoring campaigns to raise funds "in order that we can make donations to charitable organizations on Guam, like the anti-Tuberculosis society."

Consul B A. Umayam, in an address, noted the Community is "getting bigger and gaining more recognition." So far, Umayam said, the FCG "has lived to the expectations of the organizers. We will go on promoting goodwill and fellowship between the local population and our countrymen here."

Brothers 'Grab' Groom On Father's Orders

KUALA LUMPUR, Mayala, Nov. 14 (AP) — A young Ceylonese bridegroom, 22-year-old Robert Rajanayagan, was kidnapped by his three brothers yesterday as he waited in church to marry an attractive 19-year-old Eurasian girl.

The 'groom 'grab" was organized by Robert's father, who said last night at his rubber estate 20 miles from Kuala Lumpur:

"Robert did not ask my permission to marry and I disapprove of his having forsaken the Hindu religion."

Robert's three brothers and a cousin were sent to St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church at Sentul, near Kuala Lumpus, where the groom waited for the arrival of Bridget Sampson, his bride-to-be. They lured him out of the church half an hour before the ceremony was due to begin and rushed him by car to his father's estate.

Left waiting at the church was Bridget. She sobbed: "He was abducted by people who opposed our courtship from the start."

Penn Mining Town Tests Feasibility Of Coal Mine As Atom Bomb Shelter

HASTINGS, Pa., Nov. 14 (AP) — More than 300 of this community's 2,000 resident went 500 feet underground yesterday to test the feasibility of using a coal mine as an atomic bomb shelter.

Although this is a mining area 90 miles northeast of Pittsburgh many of the participants had never had been in a mine. But no one was frightened. The youngsters seemed to enjoy to experience and adults trooped into the mine confidently.

At 1900 GMT the town's fire siren wailed. Streets were cleared in minutes. The school was dismissed, teachers leading their pupils.

Trucks and autos quickly lined up to take the evacuees on the one mile trip to the pit. Within 15 minutes after the siren had sounded about 300 persons were inside the mine.

Although many of the town's population did not go to the mine — choosing to stay indoors — observers said the test may go a long way in setting up civilian defense plans in coal mining areas.

H-Bomb Ban Appeal

TOKYO, Nov. 14 (AP) — An appeal for an international ban on use of hydrogen and atom bombs has been presented to the unrecognized Soviet mission here by six Japanese women, the newspaper Asahi reported yesterday.

TAX FACTS:

By HARRY L. MANGERICH
Commissioner of Revenue and Taxation

As previously indicated in this column, efforts of the tax office have recently been concentrated upon the collections of delinquent tax obligations.

Notices, demanding payment, have been sent, from time to time in the past, to taxpayers who have failed to pay their taxes promptly. The law provides that taxes should be paid within ten days after notice and demand. Inasmuch as these notices have been ignored by many taxpayers, it will now be necessary to resort to collection procedures authorized under the provisions of Section 6331 of the 1954 Internal Revenue Code.

This will necessitate levying upon the salaries, wages, or other sources of income, and where warranted, seizing and selling the properties and rights to properties of delinquent taxpayers, to liquidate their tax obligations. Necessary procedures have now been established and collections will be accelerated. The tax office is most reluctant to resort to these measures, but is obligated to do so to protect the revenues.

Taxpayers, indebted to the Government of Guam, for taxes, are again solicited and urged to immediately pay their taxes due, or apply at the tax office for authorization to liquidate their obligations by installment payments. By doing so promptly, they will be able to avoid the additional expense, inconvenience and embarrassment that may arise from further delay.

Real Estate Taxes: The real estate tax assessments are now being collected at the tax office daily. Property owners are encouraged to pay these taxes, as soon as possible, and avoid the confusion and waiting that will result in the last few days of timely payment.

Collections will be made at the following villages this week, between 8:00 and 8:00 o'clock in the evening: Ordot-Chalan Pago — Nov. 15, Yona — Nov. 16, Talofofo — Nov. 17, Inarajan — Nov. 19.

Tax Refunds Unclaimed: The following named taxpayers are entitled to refunds of taxes paid. They are requested to apply at the tax office to receive their checks. Jose Manibusan Castro, Andres Sanluis Asunción, Sinforoso Matanane Camacho, Jesus Vicente Fegurgur, Fidel Toves Finona, Gordon R. McCready, Jesus Cruz Tenorio, Joaquin Borja Taitingfong, Juan Pangelinan Perez, Alfredo B. Villena.

North Carolina Asks more Time For Desegregation

RALEIGH, N.C., Nov. 15 (AP)—North Carolina yesterday told the U.S. Supreme Court that if school desegration is put into effect immediately it may result in abolition of public schools and cause "racial bitterness."

The state suggested that plenty of time be given in carrying out desegregation. It urged that Federal district judges who know local conditions be given wide authority to implement the changeover in the light of those conditions

In effect, the state asked the high court not to frame one all-encompassing decree to take care of all problems raised in all localities. Rather, asked the state, let Federal district courts frame standards to fit local conditions.

The state referred to the late Justice Robert Jackson's suggestion that to send the cases back to lower courts without standards for guidance in further proceedings would mean a generation of litigation.

"If so," said the brief, "such a result is far preferable to a generation of strife outside the courts and of chaos inside the schoolroom."

North Carolina said, "It must be frankly stated at the outset that this brief is not intended to present any solution to the extremely delicate and dangerous problem which has arisen" by reason of the Supreme Court's decision.

The Supreme Court ruled last May 17 that segregation in public schools was unconstitutional. It will hear arguments beginning December 6 on what kind of a decree it should issue putting its ruling into effect.

Case Lauds Ike For Victory In Senatorial Race

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP) — Senator-elect Clifford P. Case of New Jersey credited President Eisenhower's support as "of determining importance" in his election and said Senator McCarthy's opposition was of little significance.

Case, a former Republican House member who won a close race for the Senate seat against Representative Howell (Democrat), was interviewed on a television show.

Case, who last July called McCarthy "a deeply divisive force" and said he would favor removing the Wisconsin Senator from his Senate chairmanships, declined to say whether he would vote to censure McCarthy. He said it would be improper for him to express an opinion.

But he said "my position, taken back in July . . . has not changed."

During the campaign, McCarthy singled out Case as the one Republican candidate he could not support.

Asked whether he could have won the New Jersey election without this expression by McCarthy, Case replied, "I dont think it was very important." But he said he considered Eisenhower's support significant in his own and other Republican victories.

"The President's support of candidates, and the President's arousing of interest in the campaign was of enormous importance," and was one of several factors that were of such importance."

Some New Jersey Republicans had opposed Case because they said his views were too liberal. He disclaimed that tag, describing himself as "a Republican and ..... a conservative" but not a conservative Republicam. He did not explain what he means by conservative.

Adenauer Opposes Russ Confab Prior To Rearmaments

BONN, Germany, Nov. 15 (AP) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer last night said he was against the idea of a European security conference with Russia before the Paris accords to rearm West Germany have been ratified.

This statement regarding the latest Russian proposal for an East-West conference was issued on the chancellor's behalf by the federal press office.

The statement elaborated an election speech Adenauer made in Darmstadt Saturday night. He surprised Bonn political circles by welcoming the new Soviet note. But his additional statement last night made it clear he does not want an East-West conference before all necessary parliamentary steps have been taken to end the occupation and bring 500,000 German soldiers into NATO.

Adenauer said the conference could not be considered before then. Moreover, it would need careful preparation which would take

Stratemeyer Leads Pro - McCarthyites

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP) — Supporters of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) last night announced a nation-wide drive for 10 million signatures on a petition backing McCarthy and "the fundamental principles he symbolizes."

George E. Stratemeyer, retired lieutenant-general of the U.S. Air Force, launched the drive as chairman of the newly-formed organization called "Ten Million Americans For Justice."

Stratemeyer said in a statement the organization was non-political and non-partisan and was formed "to present to the United States Senate the real feelings of tens of millions of the American people on this vital issue—the proposed censure of one of its own members for doing his sworn duty."

Guatemala Press Attache Killed In Mexico City

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 15 (AP) — The anti-Communist press attache of the Guatemala embassy was shot and killed yesterday. Police do not know whether it was a political assassination or the result of a traffic argument.

Arnoldo Orantes, the attache, was killed by one pistol shot when his car halted at a traffic light about 2:15 a.m.

Juan Miron Munoz, a leader of the anti-Communist forces in Guatemala, said he was driving Orantes home after a party in the embassy when two or more gunmen shot the young diplomat without a word of warning.

Miron, here for medical treatment for wounds he received in the successful revolt against the Guatemalan Communists, denied there was any argument. But a Mexico City taxi driver told police an argument had preceded the shooting. Manuel Sanchez Ortega said he had halted his taxi at the traffic light behind Miron's station wagon. He said one man got out of another car and approached the station wagon. He added that one man in Miron's station wagon also got out and that both men drew guns.

The taxi driver said there was a scuffle and one shot was fired.

Miron gave police what he said was the number of the gunmen's car.

Miron was still detained for questioning last night. There is no charge against him, however.

Orantes was a good friend of President Castillo Armas of Guatemala, who overthrew the Communist-dominated government there last June. Many members of the Red-tinged government fled to Mexico after the war and have been given asylum here. They include a number of men whose extradition has been asked by Guatemala on criminal charges.

Red PT Boats Torpedo Former USS 'Decker'

TAIPEH, Formosa, Nov. 15 (AP)—Four Chinese Red torpedo boats yesterday sank the Nationalist destroyer escort Taiping — formerly the USS Decker—in a gun battle 215 miles north of Formosa.

It was the first big naval triumph scored by the Communists, and the Nationalists warned that more such clashes could be expected with speedy torpedo boats they described as Russian-built. The clash took place 30 miles off the coast of Red China's Chekiang province in the darkness of 1:45 a.m. (1745 GMT Saturday).

The 1,800-ton Taiping—Chinese for "Majestic Peace"—went down with guns blazing 12 miles north of the Nationalist-held Tachen islands, nearly six hours after it was torpedoed.

All but 28 of her crew of some 180 were rescued, most of them by another destroyer escort, the Taiho. Nationalist ships and planes continued the search for survivors. One of the rescued died and many others were reported wounded in the battle.

Shen Chang-Huan, acting Nationalist foreign minister, said this first loss of a Nationalist warship served as "a warning to those who still persist in believing that the Chinese Communists want peace and have no intention of invad-

TOKYO, Nov. 12 (AP)—Peiping radio claimed today that the Chinese Reds damaged three Nationalist destroyers, a gunboat and a transport during a two-month period ended November 3. Yesterday, Communist torpedo boats sank a Nationalist destroyer escort north of the Tachen islands. Today's broadcast said that during the same two-month period Red anti-aircraft units shot down 21 Nationalist planes and damaged 67 others.

U.S., Japanese Scientists To Confer For Discussions On Atomic Radiation

TOKYO, Nov. 15 (AP)—Japanese and American scientists today opened joint discussions on atomic radiation in a five-day session expected to ease hard feelings over the American H-bomb test at Bikini last March 1.

Dr. Paul Pierson, chief of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission's biology branch, told the Japanese scientists that "with the approval and strong endorsement of the AEC we are bringing you a resume of what we have learned through nearly a decade of investigation into radio-biological phenomena."

Pierson added that "we regret that the first impetus for a meeting such as this among scholars should have come from an incident in human affairs which had unhappy consequences for some citizens of both nations."

An AEC spokesman said Pierson referred to the injury of 23 Japanese fishermen, 236 inhabitants of the Marshall Islands and 31 U.S. Army weather observers who were atom-dusted by the Bikini test. One of the Japanese fishermen died.

Dr. Kankuro Kaneshige, president of the science council of Japan, responded by calling the Bikini affair "a turning point in the sense that the grave and widespread effects of radioactive substances have awakened our scientists and the general public" to the need for studying and measuring radioactivity.

The conference touches upon Japan's most persistent worry — radioactivity which came first from the American tests and more recently from Russian tests in Siberia. The 15 Japanese and seven American scientists will discuss standards for measuring radioactivity and methods of decontamination.

Since the Bikini tests, there have been almost daily reports of radioactivity in rainwater, fish, vegetables, fruit, flowers and even silk worms.

Only last week Japanese scientists reported heavy radioactivity in the atmosphere and theorized the Russians had held another test blast in Siberia on October 29 or 30.

Andersen Airman Booked For Battery; Guamanian Charges 'Gestapo Tactics'

Paul Sandoval, 26, was booked for battery yesterday by police on the strength of a complaint by Vicente C. Guerrero of Yigo who alleged he was assaulted by Sandoval — a member of the 430th Air Police, Andersen Air Force Base — on the night of Novemer 11 in Yigo.

In his statement, Guerrero said he parked his jeep on the roadside in Yigo to pick up an "intimate friend" when he was accosted by two air policemen who were riding in a sedan. Guerrero said one of them struck him twice on the neck with a flashlight. The blows, he claimed, knocked him down and he sustained a "minor injury on the face" The injury was confirmed by a Guam Memorial Hospital medical report.

Guerrero, in his statement, denounced the policeman's action as "a violation of human rights" and said they resorted to "Gestapo tactics. I therefore accuse them of belligerency, assault and battery," he stated.

Investigator M. S. Cepeda said five statesiders rounded up by police as suspects were lined up in the Investigation Bureau at 3 pm. November 12 Guerrero, according to Cepeda, pointed out Sahdoval and another air policeman, Hugh M. Ashley. Cepeda said when he interviewed Ashley, the air policeman denied he assaulted Guerrero but admitted that while he was conversing with Guerrero, Sandoval "struck Guerrero with a flashlight on the neck.'

Cepeda said Sandoval admitted he hit Guerrero. But in a joint statement signed by Sandoval and Ashley, the two alleged that Sandoval hit Guerrero "because he reached for Ashley to strike him." Guerrero, "sometime ago, underwent surgery and five or seven of his right ribs were taken out," Cepeda said.

The air policemen gave this additional account:

That night they were on their way to Andersen Air Force Base to check in for duty. On the roadside in Yigo they noticed a man lying on the ground wearing a white shirt and trousers. They

A SOUND SUGGESTION

There is sound thinking behind North Carolina's suggestion that the Supreme Court allow more time for the implementation of desegregation, especially in communities where racial hatred of the Negroes has been an established—almost virtuous—institution.

Bigotry in any form not only is contrary to the ideals of Americanism but also is clearly the work of the devil himself. Once it becomes a part of a community's way of life, it takes more than the mechanics of law to dislodge it from the hearts and minds of those it has affected.

No formula is going to effect an overnight change in this cancerous social disease, and the suggestion by North Carolina appears timely and prudent. Moreover, the proposal indicates a willingness by that state to solve the problem, and is a sharp contrast from the outright rebel yells that have been sounded defiantly against the nation's highest tribunal from other sections of the country, in the north as well as in the south.

Everyone concerned with segregation in the past are agreed that education is a primary requisite in solving the problem. News reports soon after the Supreme Court declared the unconstitutionality of segregated, but equal, schools showed clearly that the opponents of desegregation included a large number of teen-aged students who are not totally responsible for their conduct, and it may be said that they inherited bigotry from their parents and teachers.

The time is now, it seems, to emphasize the urgency for educating the adults and the school children in their earlier years on the evils of racial and religious bigotry. The primary lesson, the fundamental tenet that must be taught is not tolerance, but an acceptance of the Divine teaching that all peoples are children of God, regardless of the color of their skin; that they are, as the U.S. Constitution declares, created equal. If such an educational program is established and pursued, America can hope to bring forth generations of citizens of whom she can be truly proud.

No Place to Hide

The Mature Parent

By Mrs. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Chip, his mother says, has developed the whining habit. He whines when playmates don't play as he wishes. He whines over TV restrictions, washing and coming to meals.

Complaining Chip takes so much soothing, special attention that his mother is exhausted by his time-wasting demands.

She asks, "Could there be something in me that has developed this whining habit in Chip?"

Yes — another whining habit.

By which I mean that Chip's mother may be as fearful of direct self-assertion as he is. If she wants this small boy washed for supper, she may not go, get him and wash him for supper.

Instead, when he refuses to leave the yard, she's probably used moral condemnation, not action, to get him washed. She may have characterized his opposition with such terms as "bad....naughty ....disobedient."

As a result, Chip is scared of direct self-assertion. His opposition, dammed up by his dread of moral judgment, seeps out in a steady trickle of whining complaint.

We often use moral condemnation to whine at children. It gives our fear of direct action toward them an air of respectability.

But Chip is not "bad" because he chooses a course of action in opposition to us. To morally condemn him for his opposition is about as thoughtless a performance as we can put on, for the problems involved in good and evil action are as far beyond his understanding as the theory of relativity is to ours.

At the age of five, Chip is not ready to resolve morality's great problem of duty to himself and duty to his society. His age immunizes him against moral attack for irresponsibility.

So when he refuses to consider others by refusing to come and get washed for supper, we get him washed by washing him, not by moral condemnation. We regard his opposition not as "bad" but as inconvenient.

The more we fear such direct action, the quicker we'll be to use moral condemnation.

Fear of direct action is, of course fear of our own judgment. We cannot take it toward little children who need it because we doubt its good consequences and suspect we can't deal with its bad ones.

Such an attitude toward action is contagious. Since we have whined with moral words for action from Chip, he now whines for action from the playmate who has taken his ball.

WASHINGTON. — Millions of TV viewers saw what went on in Republican and Democratic headquarters on election night—as far as the formal statements and outside congratulations were concerned. But not many saw the suspense, the headaches and heartaches inside both party headquarters as the up-and-down returns rolled in.

What happened there gives insight regarding the depth of party bitterness and the problems of the future. So here is a quick look-see at some of the backstage events the television cameras missed:

DEMOCRATIC HEADQUARTERS — Real Democratic inner sanctum was not Steve Mitchell's elaborate suite on election night but the small single-room hideaway of ex-Senate Secretary Les Biffle.......Here, a select inner circle of top Demos were saying what they really thought as each bit of news flowed across Biffle's desk......There was a tiny radio tuned into NBC where the news slant was definitely pro-GOP. Two telephones rang intermittently, and those in the room strained their ears to catch Les Biffle's soft unemotional voice......Around him sat John Horne, Sam Brightman, Ken Birkhead, Joseph Keenan, former Justice Department official who prosecuted the Japanese war criminals. Steve Mitchell, between handshaking and radio-TV appearances, joined the group ......The zero hour was between 3 and 4 a.m. Senator Clements called from Kentucky. "We're in the closest race since 1916," he said. (That was the year Charles Evans Hughes went to bed thinking he was President, only to wake up next morning to find Woodrow Wilson elected.)......Someone put a slip of paper in Biffle's hand. Carroll had conceded in Colorado. The Democrats had counted him a sure winner. Gillette was licked in Iowa....A CBS television commentator had erroneously reported Senator Murray 2,000 behind with almost all the votes counted in Montana.... Biffle picked up the phone. Charlie Murray, son of the Senator, on the line from Butte, reported all's well in Montana. The TV report had been wrong—Murray ahead by 2,000 votes. Cracks Steve Mitchell: "We win by a landslide in Montana."

NEW JERSEY SLIPS — Someone from Wyoming called: "O'Mahoney ahead by more than a thousand—we're in."...... "Another landslide for us," commented the caustic Biffle. He put the receiver down......Reported the NBC commentator: "Saltonstall takes the lead from Furcolo in Massachusetts." It's nearly 4 o'clock......"Get Mrs. Furcolo at the state house," says Biffle to his secretary, Betty Darling. Mrs. Furcolo says there is still a chance if they don't steal it......Mrs. Stanley Woodward, wife of the former ambassador, sticks her head in the door. "Steve, what's going on—I can't figure it out."......"Under-statement of the evening," someone quips......Reports from New Jersey are coming in at a terrifying pace. Howell, with a 97,000 lead with nearly 90 per cent of the voting districts in, was counted a sure winner. "I called Governor Meyner," says Steve Mitchell, "and told him to get the state police to lock up the boxes. They're pulling a fast one on us in Jersey. With strange, unnatural regularity, every box is being reported 400 votes against us."

OREGON UP — Biffle is restless. Mitchell is cheerful, reasonably optimistic......NBC reports that Chairman Hall concedes victory for the Democrats in the house....A slip of paper is handed Biffle. He passes it around. Batista wins his election in Cuba by 87 per cent of the vote. "Let's charter a plane and go to Havana," says the nervous Mitchell.

Charles Murray, son of the Senator, calls back. He had just talked to O'Mahoney, and Joe thinks he's in Wyoming...... Neuberger in Oregon was whittling down Cordon's lead of 4,000 ......Joe Keenan says Cuyahoga country and Wayne country should determine the Ohio and Michigan elections. If the Democrats win either one they will organize the Senate......Ken Harding of the Democratic House election campaign committee comes in. "We're 85 votes ahead in the third district in Oregon. Edith Green will be the first Democratic congresswoman ever elected from Oregon." ......And McCarthy's double in the house, Congressman Kersten, has been sunk by Henry Reuss in Milwaukee......The Democrats began to feel better.

GOP HEADQUARTERS — It was about 4:15 a.m. Bald, roly-poly Chairman Len Hall was sitting in front of his TV set. Some of the evening's earlier gloom had evaporated. He was feeling much better, figured there was a good chance for the Republicans to carry the Senate, even retrieve some of those governorships that seemed to be slipping........Suddenly Steve Mitchell, Hall's Democratic counterpart, appeared on the TV screen. Hall listened ......Boiling over with resentment at "McNixon" tactics, Mitchell read a statement reminding the electorate that the Democrats had waged a clean campaign, had not indulged in below-the-belt tactics.

Lions To Sponsor Oratorical Tilt

The Guam Lions Club will sponsor an oratorical contest among high school students next year, Al Ching, Lions Club president, announced during the club's weekly luncheon meeting yesterday in Tamuning.

Lion Larry Siguenza reported that the participating schools have agreed on a set of rules that will govern the contest which will be held on February 22. A significant development was made by Lions Governor George O'Keefe that the American Global Insurance Company would consider a grant of four-year scholarship to the winner during the oratorical contest. O'Keefe said, however, the proposal still would be subject to the approval of the company's board of directors.

The club heard committee reports on the various club projects. Guests during the luncheon were Vicente Afflejo of Yigo and Clyde Anderson of Town House.

Aerial Fights Off Formosa Unreported?

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP) — An American Naval officer who served much time with a task force patrolling the Formosa strait says in the current issue of Look magazine that the United States patrol planes have been shot down by Reds in that "explosive" area.

Lt. Brooks Honeycutt charged that many of these incidents have not been reported by American authorities. In an article entitled "On Guard Off Formosa," Honeycutt says the Formosa area, "by accident or design, is where the Russian and Chinese Reds can start the next full-scale war."

And if they do, he said, the U.S. 7th Fleet has fast carriers ready to steam into action.

He asserts that American planes at first held their fire when attacked, but then "started shooting back in self defense." Honeycutt states that "for reasons best known in the Pentagon," some aerial battles have not been reported.

Canadian Housewives Told Tuna Fish Safe

OTTAWA, Canada, Nov. 15 (AP) — To housewives wondering whether tinned tuna fish is safe, after recent atomic blasts in the Pacific, the Canadian department of fisheries says "there is no danger." Tuna arriving from the Orient has been tested and found free of contamination the department said.

Soviet Faces ILO Forced Labor Ban

ROME, Nov. 15 (AP) — A resolution calling for an international ban on forced labor will face Soviet Russia this week when, for the first time, it participates in an International Labor Organization meeting.

Delegates expect that it will prove a major test of Soviet good-will toward the organization, which it recently joined. Russia holds one of the 20 government seats on the governing body, which is a sort of executive council.

The background of the resolution is a United Nations report accusing Russia and her satellites of using forced labor in a major scale.

However, many other nations are involved. A spokesman cited Saudi Arabia, where slavery still exist and prison labor in many nations including the United States.

Back in 1930, when the ILO was functioning as part of the UN League of Nations, a resolution was passed against forced labor in colonial areas and underdeveloped territories. However, it did not apply to sovereign nations. A floor fight is expected over the new resolution.

More Funds To Offset Red Propaganda Asked

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP) — C. D. Jackson, U.S. representative to the United Nations trusteeship committee, said today he believes the United States should spend a "lot more money" to counteract Soviet propaganda.

Compared to what Russia spends on propaganda, Jackson said on a television program that U.S. funds for the same purpose are " a drop in the bucket."

Jackson said he thinks the U.N. charter needs revision, saying: "The U.N. was conceived and created before the A-bomb, and on the assumption that this was going to be a peaceful world."

In the light of subsequent events, he added, "the language of the charter has thus been affected."

Underground Bases Shelter MIGs Off Japan

B-29 Shooting Part Of Red Drive To Pry Tokyo From U.S. Bloc

By FRED SPARKS
NEA Staff Correspondent

SAPPORO, Hokkaido, Japan — (NEA) — Russian MIG fighters which shot down our RB-29 over this island are believed to have taken off from new underground bases on nearby Sakhaline or one of the Kurile islands which tip-toe across the ocean to Siberia.

What the GIs call the Herring Curtain blankets the suffering Japanese citizens of these islands. But recently refugees have filtered through the Soviet patrol boats in sampans to bring reports of Soviet military buildup.

The report:

Conscript labor gangs have been building concrete airstrips which run into caves carved into the mountains like giant mail slots;

Six combat divisions plus supporting units of paratroopers are in constant training, including amphibious exercises;

Aniwa Bay, at the southernmost tip of Sakhaline, opposite Hokkaido, swarms with Russian submarines equipped with Schnorkle breathers copied from Hitler's surrendered U-boats.

(These appear constantly as pips on our radar screens in numbers sufficient to needle the insurance rates of any allied Asiatic convoy.)

* * * * *

Japanese officials, sitting cross-legged in their stockings on desk chairs here, believe the shooting down of the reconnaissance bomber was a deliberately-provoked incident.

They said the Kremlin ordered the incident as part of its current drive to pry Japan out of the American defense bloc. Just as the Soviets most fear in Europe a re-armed Germany, they most fear in Asia a re-armed Japan.

And if the efficient Japanese company I saw "assaulting" a hillock the other day is any indication of the future, they have good reason to worry.

* * * * *

Traditionally, Red peace campaigns offer an olive branch in one hand and a grenade in the other. Thus the MIGs buzz up from their hidden hangars to shoot down a mapping plane over Japanese territory while Malenkov plays soft mood music for Moscow visitors.

The attack on the plane comes at a time when Prime Minister Yoshida is in Washington seeking more dollars to fatten his new army.

Hokkaido, a lonesome sweep of forests and brutal mountains, is the first portion of Nippon given over to Japanese military control. The Japanese foot soldiers here look as rugged as their older brothers who had to be coaxed out of Pacific caves with flame throwers.

* * * * *

Right now the Japanese are going into winter training in the vital mountain passes, air-cooled by Siberian breezes, wearing layers of sweaters and longjohns.

We've come a long way from Yalta, where as a result of playing footsie with Stalin we wound up seeing southern Sakhaline and the Kuriles flying the Red flag and poking brass-knuckles at the defenses of Japan.

The shooting down of the RB-29 was another shot in a war of nerves—and the Japanese realistically believe it will not be the last shot.

Mendes Greets Countrymen During Canada Stopover En Route To U.S.

QUEBEC CITY, Quebec, Nov. 15 (AP) — French Premier Pierre Mendes-France arrived in Canada by plane today and told welcoming French-Canadians "it is like a visit to my own family."

Mendes-France will go on to Washington Thursday for talks with President Dwight D. Eisenhower and other government officials.

Smiling broadly, his hair whipped by a stiff breeze, he spoke briefly in French after stepping from an Air Franc super-Constellation at 2:44 p.m. (1944 GMT).

"I am happy to meet the French-Canadians," he said. "It is like a visit to my own family. In the next few days I will meet the representatives of your government and your newspaper men and I will outline broadly the policies of my government."

Mendes-France will stop over in Quebec City and Montreal before going to Ottawa for talks with Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

His arrival at Ancienne Lorette airport, eight miles from Quebec City, made a colorful picture against a backdrop of the snow-covered Laurentians which surrounded the field.

It was drizzling slightly as Mendes-France mounted a stand decorated with the French tri-color the Union Jack and the Fleur-de-Lis, Quebec's flag.

N. England Raid Alert

LIVERPOOL, England, Nov. 15 (AP) — A heavily armed emergency guard was placed at 30 Army and Navy centers in northern England the weekend following rumors that the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) planned a raid.

Greek Archbishop Reported Executed

ATHENS, Nov. 15 (AP) — An unconfirmed press report here said today that Christophoros Kissis, archbishop of Greek Orthodox Albanians, has been executed in Albania after several years imprisonment.

The report appeared only in the morning newspaper Vima, without attribution. Church sources here said Kissis, 17, was educated at a theological school in Istanbul and was archbishop in Albania until he was placed under house arrest in Albania in 1951. These sources said they had no knowledge of the execution report.

Moslem Agents Arrive In Syria, Report Says

DAMASCUS, Syria, Nov. 15 (AP) — The Syrian News Agency reported last night that 13 members of the Moslem Brotherhood and four Egyptian intelligence agents arrived in Damascus during the day.

It called the 13 members of the Brotherhood's "secret terror organization." And it is said the four agents are here to report on the activities of such Brotherhood refugees in Syria.

Egypt has withdrawn its ambassador to Damascus in protest against alleged anti-Egyptian activities by Brotherhood members already in Syria. In Cairo today a spokesman, announcing that President Naguib has been relieved of his post, linked him with an alleged Moslem Brotherhood plot against the Egyptian government.

Sen. Wiley Wants Democrat Named To Top Post In State Department

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP) — Appointment of a Democrat to a top post in the U.S. State Department, "not as an agent of the Democrats in Congress but as an agent of the Democratic party within the administration", was proposed today by Chairman Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) of the Senate foreign relations committee.

Wiley said that early in its administration, last year, the Eisenhower team tried to work out some such arrangement to help avoid partisanship in foreign policy. Several different suggestions were made to the Democrats, he said, but for reasons he did not specify, he said all fell through.

What is needed, Wiley said, is a Democrat "who would collaborate and work with the Secretary of State, not obstruct the formulation of foreign policy for partisan advantage." Wiley said the right person in the job "could do some fine liaison work with Democrats in Congress, particularly in the Senate."

"My idea would be to make him an assistant Secretary of State," he added.

Democrats have expressed enthusiasm for the general proposition that one of their party be taken into the inner councils of the State Department. But they say it could work only if the Democrats had an active voice in policy making.

Yoshida Returns Home From World Tour To Face Grave Political Fight

TOKYO, Nov. 15 (AP) — Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida, threatened by a split in his party ranks while abroad on a trade-bolstering mission, will strive to block a non-confidence vote and dissolution of the Diet when he returns Wednesday.

That was the word brought home yesterday by two of his lieutenants. Yoshida, after concluding trade agreements in Washington conferences, left San Francisco by plane for home yesterday with a stopover planned in Honolulu. He is heading toward the fight of his political life.

Eisaku Sato, former secretary general of Yoshida's Liberal Party, said chances were slim that differences with dissident Liberals and with the Progressive Party could be ironed out at top-level conferences. In the past, Yoshida has held a shaky margin in the Diet only with support of the Progressives.

Now some of his Liberal Party agreed with the Progressives to join in forming new party aimed at ousting the 76-year-old leader from the post he has held since 1948.

Yoshida's critics argue he is coming home empty- handed but Kichi Miyazawa, Cabinet councilor and another returned lieutenant from his tour, disagreed. He said yesterday that Yoshida's personal contacts with U.S. leaders "removed the psychological and emotional induration that has underlaid the relations between Japan and America in past months." He said this promised great improvement for Japan's economy.

Nationalist China Destroyer Sunk By Red Gunboats

ing Taiwan (Formosa)."

Although it was the first such reported use of the torpedo boats by the Reds, Nationalist officials said they knew the Communists had them. There have been persistent reports that the Reds were massing naval craft in the Chushan islands, 100 miles north of the Tachens, outpost defenses for Formosa.

Peiping's account of the action said the Taiping was "on a nuisance raid."

The Nationalists said she was conveying a motorized junk from the Tachens to Yushan island, 90 miles northeast, when the phosphorescent wake of a torpedo was sighted. That one missed but three others headed toward the Taiping and one scored the fatal blow.

That was at 1:45 a.m. The Taiping sank at 7:10 a.m., less than 12 miles short of her goal of refuge in the Tachens.

The Taiping's commander was among the rescued.

News of the sinking came as a jolt to Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalists. This first use of torpedo boats by the Reds was regarded in Taipeh as introducing a new and dangerous element into the civil war.

The Taiping was transferred to the Nationalists by the United States in 1946. As the Decker, she was built at the Philadelphia naval yard. While serving the U.S. Navy, she had a complement of 220 officers and men.

American quarters said no ships and planes of the U.S. Seventh Fleet, which guards Formosa against any aggressive move by the Communists, were involved in rescue operations after the sinking. The Navy press contact told newsmen they probably knew more about the sinking than he did. Capt. Alfred D. Kilmartin, naval attache of the U.S. embassy, had something else on his mind. He had been all day at the bedside of his wife who gave birth Saturday to their fourth child, a girl.

Adenauer Bucks Russian Confab

longer than the November 29 deadline the Russians had set.

Adenauer remarked that the timing of the note showed the Soviet Union's main purpose was to destroy the Paris treaties." He said the fact the Russians had made another approach was "a direct success" for the Paris conference.

Adenauer has long advocated dealing with the Russians from a position of strength. He considers that this position will not be reached until the planned 12 German divisions and tactical airforce have definitely been accepted as part of the European defense line.

ViceChancellor Franz Bluecher joined Adenauer in saying the Russian aim was to block Western unification. In a formal statement he said that West Germany agreed with the other Western nations that ratification of the Paris accords must come before another conference with the Russians.

The national chairman of Bluecher's Free Democratic party, Thomas Dehler, said there seemed to be "a nucleus of sincerity" in the Russian invitation, which deserved close examination.

Future Britain's King Celebrates Birthday

Both his parents, Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh, were on hand. His four-year-old sister Anne gave him his first present. He received the rest of them at breakfast time. Then there was a tea party in the afternoon.

Typhoon 'Sally Flirts Off Samar

MANILA, Nov. 15 (AP) — A typhoon with a 400-mile front and winds up to 150 miles an hour hovered almost stationary early today off the east-central Philippine island of Samar, the Manila weather bureau reported.

The late season tropical storm, called "Sally," is expected to resume its west-northwest course sometime today at seven miles an hour, its last reported position was 180 miles east-northeast of Samar.

Unpredictable at this stage, the typhoon may slam into the central islands south of Manila or veer northward after hitting land, weathermen said.

Typhoon Ruby last week bypassed Manila but roared across central Luzon, causing eight deaths, leaving 34 missing, causing millions of dollars worth of damage in flooded crops and blowing down the flimsy homes of tens of thousands of Filipinos.

Jets Outflown By 18-Yr. Old Pilot

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., (AP) — A young student pilot flew off in a stolen plane from the Kent county airport here today slipped from the protective custody of jet fighters that intercepted him and landed it safely 300 miles away.

'I just wanted to get to Gladstone in a hurry," the youth, Darryl Spaulding, 18, explained later.

Spauldings antics had the Air Force, the Civil Aeronautics Authority, state police and civilian pilots spinning in an air and ground search for several hours.

State police who arrested the youth at his home in Gladtsone said he laughed over the way he outmaneuvered the jets from Wurtsmith Air Force Base.

The plane was a single-engined Beechcraft Bonanza owned by Lear, Incorporated, a Grand Rapids manufacturer of aircraft parts.

Miner's Seal Blazing Mine-Tomb of 15 Men

FARMINGTON, West Virginia, Nov. 15 (AP)—Grim-faced miners finished the job last night of sealing up a blazing, explosion-wrecked coal mine—the tomb of 15 men.

Three entrances to the mine were walled up with steel and concrete, Then a crane lowered steel plates over a ventilation shaft and an elevator portal. Concrete was poured on top.

Officials hoped by sealing the mine to cut off the flow of air feeding a fire burning deep underground and snuff it out. None could even guess when they would be able to reopen the diggings to send rescue crews into the blast area.

stopped their car to check if the man was injured. As they neared him, another person (Guerrero) got off from a jeep parked about 10 feet from the unidentified man and "answered to our questions in a sarcastic manner"

Guerrero told the pair he was waiting for the person to get up. That gave them the impression that Guerrero had struck the man. When they told Guerrero to take the man home "if he's you friend," Guerrero 'reached out to strike Ashley." It was then Sandoval hit Guerrero on the neck.

The two airpolicemen then stopped a passing vehicle and told the driver to notify the Guam Police. They asked Guerrero to wait for the patrol car. When they were crossing the street to get back to their car, Guerrero followed them. Sandova hit Guerero again and told him to wait for the Guam Police car.

Greenberg Urges American League Be Expanded Immediately To Ten Teams

CLEVELAND, Nov. 15 (AP) — Hank Greenberg, the Cleveland Indians' general manager, urged today that the "American League expand to 10 clubs at the earliest opportunity."

Greenberg said he had already notified league president Will Harridge that he intends to bring the matter up at the league's next meeting, Dec. 9.

He did not mention the names of any cities but said he would ask the meeting to form a committee "to investigate sites for the new franchises."

Since the league constitution now permits 10 clubs, Greenberg's action would be aimed at speeding up expansion plans.

Pointing out that a number of cities want major league teams, Greenberg said that the "only thing holding them up is that they haven't large enough parks."

27 To 1 Odds Much Even For Wes Santee

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 15 (AP) Wes Santee's fraternity brothers proved yesterday that 27 runners going a half mile apiece can beat even America's greatest miler — when he's going a long course alone.

The 27-man relay ran a 13.7 mile course from Perry to Lawrence in one hour, 13 minutes and 3 seconds. Santee was a mile behind when one of his Acacia fraternity brothers crossed the finished line. Santee's time was one hour, 19 minutes, and 3 seconds.

The fraternity victory avenged a loss to Santee two years ago when the cocky distance star, owner of the U.S. mile record of 4:00.2, easily beat a similar relay team.

The loss won't hurt Santee's standing, just his pocketbook. He has to supply a steak for each competitor.

Humez, Brand New Europen Middle King Seeks Olson

MILAN, Italy, Nov. 15 (AP) — Charles Humez, rugged new middleweight boxing champion of Europe, waited today for a call that would give him a crack at the world title.

After disposing of Italian Tiberio Mitri in three rounds to win his European crown last night, the Frenchman now wants to take on world champ Bobo Olson.

Toward that end, Humez and his manager Filippo Filip are paying close attention to the meeting of the World Boxing Championship Committee in London.

"We're now waiting for the call from the Committee," said Filippi. "Of course we hope to be named to challenge the American."

DETROIT WRECKS SAN FRANCISCO 48-7; GIANTS TOP EAGLES 27-14

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—The New York Giants took over undisputed possession of first place in the Eastern conference and the champion Detroit Lions strengthened their hold on the top spot in the Western Division in the National Football league today.

The Giants, lightly regarded at the start of the season, took care of the Philadelphia Eagles with whom they had been tied, winning 27-14 before a near capacity Polo Grounds crowd of 46,565.

The Lions avenged their only setback of the season by walloping the crippled San Francisco 49ers 48-7 to all but sew up the Western Conference title. The victory left the defending league champions with a 6-1 record and five to play.

The Giants' triumph over the Eagles gave them a record of 6-2 with four to go and dropped Philadelphia to third place as the Cleveland Browns struck for 33 points in the last half to whip the Chicago Bears 39-10 and moved into second.

Washington's Redskins, winners of only one previous game, came through with the upset of the day in downing the Pittsburgh Steelers 17-14. Green Bay defeated Baltimore 24-13 last night.

The Lose Angeles Rams moved into a tie with the 49ers for second place back of Detroit with a 28-17 victory over the Chicago Cardinals.

The story of the Giants' triumph was one of New York ripping through the famed Philadelphia "Suicide Seven" to set up touchdowns and tearing the Eagles' offensive line apart to keep quarterback Bobby Thomason in check for most of the game.

Chuck Conerly tossed three touchdown passes to as many receivers — Frank Gifford, Bobby Topp and Ken McAfee — and Ben Agajanian made good with two of his five field goal attempts.

The Giants picked off five of Thomason's passes, three of them by Tom Landry. Landry's interceptions set up a touchdown and field goal. Thomason hit Bobby Walston for the first Philadelphia touchdown in the second period and didn't score again until trailing 27-7.

Detroit scored the first four times it had the ball in crushing the 49ers before 58,431 spectators —the largest crowd ever to see a football game in Detroit's Briggs Stadium.

As the Lions handed the 49ers their worst defeat in their 9-year history, Bobby Layne pitched touchdown passes of 23 and 25 yards and set up a third with a 53-yard aerial as the Lions rolled into a 41-0 lead in the first three quarters.

Doak Walker kicked two field goals, added six extra points and took a 66-yard touchdown pass from Bob Hoernschemeyer for 18 points. Bill Bowman, rookie back from William & Mary, also scored to complete the rout.

The Browns broke a penalty-infested game wide open by scoring two third period touchdowns within 37 seconds and then added two more on Otto Graham's passing and Chet Hanulak's running to rout the Bears.

The defending Eastern conference champions tallied in every possible way, including safety. Lou Groza booted three field goals and four extra points before a standing room crowd of 48,773 at Chicago's Wrigley Field. The victory snapped the Bears' three-game winning streak.

The Redskins all but knocked the Steelers out of the Eastern conference race. Rookie Vir Janovicz kicked the field goal that provided the margin of victory but it was the running of Dale Atkeson who set up the touchdowns for rookie Billy Wells and veteran Hugh Taylor.

Woodley Lewis raced 88 yards for Los Angeles on the opening kickoff for the first of four long range scoring plays as the Rams defeated the Cardinals. In other long scoring plays, the Rams went 76, 75 and 42 yards. The Cards didn't have as many long scoring plays but Charley Trippi did get off one of 57 yards.

Censure Debates Revive Peress Case

Sen. Case Raises 'New Evidence,' Backs McCarthy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP) — The hotly-debated Irving Peress case caused two upheavals in the McCarthy censure row yesterday, followed by a Democratic statement that Sen. Joseph McCarthy ought to be thrown out of the Senate.

The expulsion suggestion was made by Sen. Sam Ervin (D-N.C.), who accused McCarthy of making "foul and fantastic charges" against the committee that recommended he be censured. But Ervin said he would not formally move that McCarthy be ousted.

Ervin spoke on the Senate floor after Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.), a fellow member of the six-man committee that recommended censure of McCarthy, announced he will switch sides and vote against rebuking McCarthy on one of two pending charges.

Case said the new evidence supplied by Secretary of the Army Robert Stevens convinces him McCarthy should not be censured for alleged abusive treatment of Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker when Zwicker testified on the Army's handling of the Peress case.

Peress is an Army dentist who was given a promotion and an honorable discharge after refusing to say under oath whether he was a Communist. He took refuge in the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution, under which a man can not be forced to give incriminating evidence against himself.

Case said it is now evident that high Army officials "let Peress slip out of their grasp," and gave him an honorable discharge in-

Cop Confesses He Shot Attache After Quarrel

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 16 (AP) — Police said last night that a police detective had confessed that he shot and killed Arnaldo Orantes Martinez, press attache of the Guatemalan embassy, after a traffic dispute.

Police gave the detective's name as Antonio Llanas Salas. He was arrested Sunday night together with another police agent and a woman, who were with him at the time of the shooting.

Orantes was shot early Sunday morning while he and a friend were driving home from a party at the Guatemalan embassy.

Elimination of a political motive for the crime was a relief to Mexican authorities. They have been greatly concerned that the presence here of a large number of Guatemalan refugees might lead to complications.

Lionel Barrymore Dies In Hollywood Of Heart Attack

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 17 (AP) — Lionel Barrymore, veteran stage, screen and radio actor, died last night after a long illness. Death apparently was due to a heart attack.

He was taken to Valley Hospital in the San Francisco Valley Sunday night and shortly afterward lapsed into a coma.

Barrymore, 76, was the "Dr. Gillespie" of the radio series by that name. His was an almost limitless talent. He was exceptionally talented painter and musician, and possessed of a rich deep-pitched voice.

Dr. John Paul Ewing, his physician, said Barrymore died of a complication of ailments, including arthritis. The immediate cause, said the doctor, was heart congestion.

Son of the celebrated theatrical team of Maurice and Georgia Drew Barrymore, Lionel was born in Philadelphia. Brother of the great John and of the famous Ethel, Lionel made his stage debut at the age of five.

Telesco Denies Making Press Statements

In a letter to Philippine Consul B. A. Umayam released by the consulate yesterday, Col. Lee A. Telesco denied making any statement on the labor condition in Guam. Telesco said he "was in no way responsible for the statements attributed to me and that I am deeply sorry about the incident."

Telesco was quoted in an Associated Press release as saying "Filipinos may be barred from further employment in Guam" if the Philippine government "persists in the adoption of U.S. minimum wage standards for the island."

A telegram which Telesco said was transmitted to Gayle Shelton of Pacific Wholesalers and which was enclosed in the letter to the consul also was released by the consulate. It reads in full:

Nationalists Vow 'Severest Blows' Against Red China

TAIPEH, Formosa, Nov. 16 (AP) — An intensified vest pocket war today seemed likely as the Nationalists pledged the "severest blows possible" for the sinking of a destroyer escort by Red torpedo boats.

The pledge was made in the defense ministry's communique. It confirmed that 28 of the 180 officers and men of the 1,800-ton Taiping perished Sunday in the engagement off the Tachen islands, 215 miles north of Formosa.

Nationalist warplanes flew over while rescue ships picked up survivors, but no Chinese Communist planes tried to interfere. Of those rescued, 28 were wounded, nine seriously.

High-level Nationalist officials conferred for hours yesterday and there were press reports that "momentous decisions" had been made. There was speculation that the Nationalists would launch a massive retaliation attack.

Both the press and unofficial quarters were clamoring for counterblows at the Communists. The official Chung Hua Daily News said Russia had given Red China more than 40 torpedo boats and it was assumed some of these had been transferred to the Chu Shan islands, 100 miles north of the Tachen islands.

The Nationalists insist the Communists are building up forces in the Chu Shans for an attack on the Tachens.

The defense ministry's communique gave an official account of the sea battle. This was the Red's first naval triumph in the coastal war. They thus stripped from the thin Nationalist navy one of the warships turned over to Chiang Kai-

FORMER MARINE RECALLS 'OREGON' EPISODE

By JAMES H. UNDERWOOD

(EDITOR'S NOTE: — The following article was prompted by recollections of the USS OREGON following a news dispatch last week about its contemplated disposition by the Oregon commission. The commission proposed giving the old battleship, now floating in Apra Harbor here, proper burial in the Pacific instead of being sold as scrap. Mr. Underwood was a Marine sergeant and among the first occupation troops to arrive in Guam following the Spanish-American War. He has resided here for more than half a century and is now living in Sinajana with Mrs. Underwood, the former Ana Martinez.)

In the latter part of 1899, I was stationed at the Marine Barracks in the Charleston Navy Yard. At that time, the Oregon, after her famous dash around the Horn and participation in the battle of Santiago Bay, came to Boston and anchored in the harbor there. Naturally, a great number of visitors went to see the great "Bulldog of the Navy."

One day, a bunch of Marine buddies came to me and asked me to take them out to see the Oregon. That request had me stumped, and I asked them how they expected me to get them out to the ship.

"Oh," they replied, "that's easy; we'll just go down to the waterfront and borrow one of the boats that are tied up there."

I then asked if they knew how to row a boat, and they all assured me that they were proficient at that sort of thing. So we all proceeded to the waterfront where there were a lot of boats tied up. I approached a man stationed there whom I took to be a watchman, and told him we wanted to borrow a boat to go out to the Oregon. He looked at us rather doubtfully and inquired if we knew how to handle a boat. After we had assured him of our ability, he supplied us with oars and cast the boat loose.

Of course, I was chosen to be coxswain, although my only experience in seamanship had been confined to paddling a flat-bottomed canoe across the Catawba river back in North Carolina.

After getting the men in their places and facing in the right direction and the oars in the rowlocks, we got out into the chan-

Phil-American Trade Negotiations Begin 3rd. Month, Outcome Uncertain

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP) — Philippine-American negotiations to revise trade relations between the two countries entered their third month yesterday with prospects of an immediate agreement not overly bright.

The Philippine delegation headed by Sen. Jose P. Laurel was hopeful that the parity issue involving rights of Americans to exploit Philippine natural resources will come to a head within 10 days.

At a subcommittee meeting, the American side will be asked to present proposals again and these will require additional study and discussion by the entire Philippine group.

A trade subcommittee headed by Sen. Gil Puyat has made more progress. Puyat said the talks have boiled down to one major question involving tariff and quotas which are the core of the negotiations. He said this must be cleared up before a general meeting of the two sides could take place.

Puyat expected the plenary session would take place at the latest by next week.

James M. Langley, head of the American delegation, said the plenary meeting hangs on the outcome of the political meeting involving the parity issue.

"We have definitely made progress on trade questions," Langley said. "I personally feel it is encouraging, but the talks are moving slowly."

Langley said there was a chance that the negotiations might reach the stage of a general meeting this week but he was not predicting that it would take place.

A plenary meeting was scheduled for last Wednesday, but then it was indefinitely postponed, at the request of the Philippines. The postponement came after presentation of an American paper outlining areas of agreement reached thus far. The Philippines sought to broaden the agreement before making a public announcement on the progress of the negotiations.

6,000 Japanese Immigrants Become Citizens, 4,000 Await Naturalization

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP) — Some 6,000 Japanese immigrants in the United States have been naturalized and an estimated 4,000 more will gain American citizenship in the near future.

This was revealed to this correspondent by Mike M. Masaoka, Washington representative of the Japanese-American Citizens league. In an interview, the vivacious Nisei leader said that about 10,000 Issei have applied for naturalization and approximately 6,000 have gained American citizenship.

The bespectacled Nisei lobbyist in Washington added that the exact number is not available since reports from the Immigration and Naturalization Service of the Justice Department is usually about six months behind schedule.

According to Masaoka, several thousand Issei are expected to apply for naturalization as they complete various preliminary courses.

Asked whether the Japanese applicants are allowed to pledge allegiance to the American flag in the Japanese language, Masaoka answered with a definite "No." He said that under the law, the aliens who were older than 50 and who resided in the United States for 20 years or longer on Dec. 20, 1952, may waive the English requirements in taking the naturalization examinations but in no instance may they take the oath in foreign languages.

In certain cases, however, the oath of allegiance has been translated into Japanese inorder that the older Japanese may understand completely the pledge they are making, Masaoka continued.

This correspondent then asked him whether the Issei are required to renounce their allegiance to the Japanese emperor. (Under the new constitution of Japan, the emperor is not the sovereign but the symbol of the unity of the nation and the people.) To this question, Masaoka answered in the affirmative, saying, "this is a requirement of law which relates not only to the Japanese but also to all other alien applicants for naturalization."

WHO'S UNDER THE WOODPILE?

Mr. Telesco's denial of any responsibility for press statements attributed to him on the Filipino labor situation here—and reported sometime ago by the Associated Press—throws added mystery on the incident. And the question now remaining is: Who made the statements? Also, what did the person, or persons, who did make the statements have to gain by it?

It is most unlikely that the Associated Press wove the story right out of thin air. In between the lines of the statements quoted, and which Mr. Telesco now has denied making, are some clear indications that whoever was responsible—either directly or indirectly—knew quite a bit about the recent developments in connection with the Filipino labor situation, except for the fact that he misrepresented the truth, at least in part.

The mystery appears to boil down to this: Whoever made, or was responsible for the purported Telesco statements had something to gain. In connection with the Filipino labor matter, the gain seems to be to discourage not only Filipino laborers here but probably also the Philippine government from pursuing the current "agitation," as it has been called, for a higher standard of living for Filipino workers.

How the misrepresentation of the situation here got to the Philippines is now a matter open for speculation. One possibility, of course, is that Mr. Telesco might have been merely a scapegoat, a whipping boy for someone with whom he came in close contact here for the most part of his sojourn, and who has the influential backing in the Philippines to complete the mysterious triangle.

Certainly, the Associated Press had nothing to gain by it, and we hope the wire service will attempt to pin down the actual source of the statements in the near future.

I DON'T see at all why we should depart from the idea of peaceful coexistence. We have to live with all sorts of people in this wicked world.

The Mature Parent

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Some weeks ago, I heard psychoanalyst Erich Fromm express this thought which I jotted down to report to parents of adolescent children:

"The child's struggle to get away from mother is the conflict with his wish to return to her'"

I hope readers of this column will also jot this sentence down. It can set them straight in times of strain and foreboding. For it takes that vague phrase — "the adolescent's struggle for independence" — and defines it for us.

It tells us what he struggles against. It tells us that his adversary in this struggle is not his parents, but his own fear of independence. It tells us that when he is most violently demanding his independence, he is most deeply wishing to remain dependent.

Heretofore, most of us have assumed that we were the adversary in the adolescent's struggle for indepedence."

Overanxious, guiltridden creatures that we are, we've thought that our 16-year-old Jane was fighting us when she insists on coming home when she pleases from a party.

We've believed that Bill was attacking us when we refused to enthuse over his new girl.

The truth is that Jane has been really fighting her wish to do as mother says; and all the time Bill's resentful attack upon our opinions has been his desire to accept our opinions.

If Bill and Jane felt no need to cling to us, the struggle to get away from us would be as effortless and unresentful as the fall of fruit from its tree.

Can we see then that the more violent their pulls away from us, the deeper the need to remain with us?

If we can see it, then we are armed against the helpless discouragement that overwhelms us under attack by Jane and Bill.

No longer their adversary, we can remember that Jane and Bill are defying, not us, but their own wishes to recoil from the responsibility of making up their own minds about the party and the girl. We can say, "But you know what is right for you to do just as well as I do."

We cannot say this sincerely to a child when we are moved by anxiety about him. But if we are moved by compassion for our young creature's uncertainty between the pull to remain our baby and the pull to trust himself, we can say it sincerely.

It is compassion that Dr. Fromm's words should arouse in us. And enable us to express it so that it quiets our child's self-distrust. Then he, too, can believe that he knows what is right for him to do.

• SO THEY SAY

I HAPPEN to be one who believes that, even if outvoted in the United Nations, it is important that the views of a free America be always spoken in the forums of the United Nations. I happen to be one who believes that eventually the right position of the United States will prevail in the councils of the world.
—Sen. Wayne Morse (Ind., Ore.).

WASHINGTON. — The Democrats may have a harder time keeping their hairbreadth majority in the Senate than anyone realizes.

When the Senate reconvened for the special McCarthy censure session, Charles E. Daniel, interim Democratic Senator from South Carolina, a close friend of Ike's friend, Jimmie Byrnes, was having his picture taken with vice-president Nixon.

"I want you to know," he beamed, "that you can count on me. I want to work with you in every way possible.

"And the man who's coming up to succeed me is the same way," he added, referring to Senator-elect Storm Thurmond. "You can work with him, too."

"That's fine," enthused Nixon. "When he comes, you send him around to me. We'll give him a royal welcome."

NEW CITIZENS — Two hundred and fifty new American citizens gathered in the inter-department auditorium in Washington last week to take what for them is a momentous oath. To millions of others it passed by unnoticed. But to these 250, plus other groups around the U.S.A., it was one of their most important steps since birth.

For they renounced their allegiance to one country and took an oath of allegiance to a new.

This ceremony takes place about once a month without most native Americans paying much attention to it. In New York last week, 8,000 new citizens took the oath; other groups in other cities.

And while it will attract no headlines, the Women's Bar Association, the Advertising Council, the Sertoma Clubs, and other public-spirited organizations cooperated to solemnify the occasion and welcome these new Americans.

For instance, the Advertising Council in Washington presented each new citizen with Arthur Goodfriend's stirring book, "What Is America?" while the Sertoma Club (Service To Mankind) presented copies of the Declaration of Independence. Unfortunately, funds were not available to make a similar presentation to the 8,000 who took the oath of citizenship in New York.

On previous occasions, the DAR, B'NAI B'Rith and other groups have entertained the new citizens at small receptions immediately after the naturalization ceremony in a quiet, unpublicized, constructive type of citizenship which will prevent Communism for more than the witch-hunting scaremongering of Joe McCarthy.

STEVENSON'S GRANDFATHER — Adlai Stevenson seldom refers to his grandfather, who was vice-president of the United States in the administration of Grover Cleveland. But the other day, Adlai and advisers were in ex-Sen. William Benton's suite at the Savoy Plaza Hotel in New York when they received a telegram from Vice-President Nixon demanding that Adlai retract his statement that Nixon was following the Communisty party line.

Advisers offered Stevenson all sorts of suggestions for a reply to the man the Democrats now call "McNixon." Finally, Stevenson said:

"Well, I suppose I could reply as follows: 'Dear Mr. Nixon: I have now received two telegrams from the vice-president of the United States. The first was from my grandfather. Sincerely yours, Adlai Stevenson.'"

He did not however send the telegram.

POLITICS WITH RR MONEY—One of the first investigations when the Democrats take over Congress will dig into politicking inside the Railroad Retirement Board by two Eisenhower appointees.

The RR board was set up to administrate the pensions of railroad workers and is operated by the money withdrawn each week from railroad workmen's salaries. It is not a political organization. However, after Eisenhower appointed as new chairman, Raymond J. Kelly of Chicago, former Michigan commander of the American Legion, things began to change. He was followed by Frank C. Squire, another Chicagoan, and together they have proposed removing 10 administrative posts from civil service to make room for worthy Republicans.

As an excuse for this political gravy, the rumor has been spread that there is a "cell of 10 known Communists in the Railroad Retirement Board office."

Chief spreader of the rumor is Harold Rainville, listed as "special assistant" to Senator Dirksen of Illinois, though he actually works for the Republican committee for the re-election of senators, also does public relations work from the favored position. It was Rainville who was permitted by Senator McCarthy to help cross-examine Brig. Gen. Ralph Zwicker in secret session when he, Rainville, represented no senator and had no more right to cross-examination than a newsman.

New Explosions Unseal Miners' Tomb

FARMINGTON, West Virginia, Nov. 16 (AP)—Three new explosions today broke open the Jamison Coal Company mine which had been sealed as the grave of 15 miners who died inside.

A 16th man was killed on the surface when the No. 9 mine was rocked by a violent explosion Sunday.

Beaten back by deadly gas in their attempts to rescue 15 miners—or recover their bodies—mining men walled up entrances to the mine Sunday night.

Then two blasts today shifted to one side a huge steel plate placed over the ventilating shaft of the mine. A third explosion lifted a plate off the main portal—100 feet away—but it was replaced without difficulty. No one was hurt today.

A Political Bear By The Tail In McCarthy Censure

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP) — Senate Republican leaders have about concluded they have a political bear by the tail in the McCarthy censure case with very little chance of letting go without a mauling from one quarter or another.

On one hand, GOP leaders have in Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) a vigorous exponent of saying what he thinks about anybody who crosses up what he conceives to be his mission of ferreting Communists out of government.

On the other hand, there is an evident, quiet determination on the part of some Republican senators to chastise McCarthy for what they say are actions which tend to bring discredit on the Senate.

In the middle, are Republican senators who say privately they think McCarthy may have gone to extremes at times in blasting those who do not agree with him, but who appear to believe that only rough-and-ready methods are effective in dealing with the Communists-in-government issue.

The result points to a split vote among the Republicans, emphasizing a measure of disunity that might well carry over into the 1956 Presidential campaign.

It is from the middle ground group that Republican leaders hope to draw strength for what, after a week of mostly futile conferences, can only be regarded as a waning effort to reach a compromise acceptable to a majority of the Senate.

McCarthy gives no evidence of wanting to compromise. He has said the Senate session would be a "lynching bee" and he would be censured for his conduct.

The effort of Republican leaders — and this apparently takes in Vice-President Richard Nixon, Sen. Wiliam Knowland of California, the floor leader, Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan, the chairman of the Republican policy committee, and Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, the president protem — is to find a compromise that McCarthy can be persuaded to accept.

There is a growing feeling among senators that McCarthy believes censure would give him additional political strength.

Barring a successful recall movement, McCarthy will not face the voters of Wisconsin again until 1958. There are no reliable signs that his support has diminished materially in the state.

Beyond Wisconsin, the weight of the issue of that some of his colleagues have labeled as "McCarthyism" is a subject of debate among politicians. Significantly, perhaps, Nixon said in a post-election interview that a boycott of the election by McCarthy's supporters among Republicans may have resulted in some Republican Senate and House losses.

Turkish Congressmen Also Resort To Fists

ANKARA, Turkey, Nov. 16 (AP) — A fist fight broke out in the Turkish Parliament today in a heated political exchange after Prime Minister Adnan Menderes declared former President Ismet Inonu was talking like a "cold blooded professional gangster."

A fight on the parliament floor involved defense minister Ethem Menderes (not related to the prime minister) and deputy Ahmed Kocabiyik, a member of the prime minister's ruling Democrat Party against Sirri Atalay, one of the 28 Republican party deputies in the 541-member chamber.

Israel Minister Says U.S. Arming Arabs

JERUSALEM, Nov. 16 (AP) — Prime Minister Moshe Sharett charged today the United States is arming Arab states and said this policy is fraught with danger to the security of Israel and the stability of the Middle East.

He told the Israeli Knesset (parliament) that American policy apparently continues to be the speeding up of an arms grant to Egypt, and added:

"It is difficult to imagine a more blatant contradiction in terms than to grant arms to the ruling junta in Egypt in order to strengthen regional stability and the defense of democracy."

Reds Will Have To Pay High Price For Quemoy

Commie Invasion Plans For Pocketed Isle Bared

By EDWARD R. KENEDDY
NEA Special Correspondent

TAIPEI — (NEA) — Nationalist islands off Amoy are hardly more defensible than Dien Bien Phu, but unlike French generals, Chiang's staff is not likely to waste valuable troops in a hopeless situation.

The Reds will have to pay a tremendous price for Quemoy, Little Quemoy and Tatau.

The islands sit in a pocket surrounded on three sides by Red mainland positions. Mainland guns can rake almost the entire area with medium artillery and everything is within big gun range.

The answering Nationalist guns must be fed with shells brought in by air and sea. The Reds run trucks from military highways they are continually improving right up to the gun positions.

* * * * *

Nationalist officers feel they could prevent a buildup to attack the islands by air strikes in the staging areas. Restrained from this by American policy they are resigned to the fact that an assault can be launched with the enemy choosing his time.

This is the plan as gathered from well informed sources here. Fishing boats, sampans and bamboo floats are being collected in houses and buildings in the Amoy bay area.

The present so called "sporadic artillery firing" is in fact registration. Each point on the island objectives of the Communists is being zeroed in.

This is right out of the pages of Soviet military textbooks.

On D-plus-about-five the big guns, which have fired for registration and then were silent while others zeroed in, will all burst forth in tremendous barrage which will sweep the objectives. So the fatalistic Nationalists believe.

* * * * *

Red air activity will start over Formosa, keeping Chiang's fighters tied down to home defense.

After days of this intense artillery fire, Red infantry will push off from shore in what is described by Gen. Chou Chih-jou, secretary-general of the National Defense Council, as a "human seawave."

Nationalist defenders will be battered by the massive artillery concentrations, but they are not likely to be knocked out. The defenders are dug in deep. They will take a tremendous toll of Red infantry.

Nationalist counter battery fire will be hampered by single positions fixed by space limitations. The Communist artillery can move from main to secondary to alternate positions.

Perhaps as many as three waves may be driven off—but a determined attack should carry the day. Where possible the Nationalist forces will withdraw, counter punching to get the best face, prestige news play possible. Landing ships will be waiting to dash in and an organized withdrawal plan could save all but the rear guard sacrifice troops.

If needed, the U.S. Navy could go in under the Red guns to pull people out, but not to fight.

The Nationalist Chinese are genuinely reluctant to give up these islands, because their master plan calls for a return to the mainland and these are stepping stones on the path home.

But in accepting the supplies, training and support of their big Uncle they must also accept the ground rules imposed by him. His master plan has no provision for a return to the mainland which would start World War III now.

Chiang's patient people have played the waiting game before and they're going along with the U.S.

Japan Mum On P.I.'s New Bid For Debt Talks

TOKYO, Nov. 16 (AP) — The Japanese foreign office said yesterday the latest reparation note from the Philippines is "being studied, period."

It declined to comment on contents of the note.

Foreign office sources said the Japanese government is reluctant to comment on the reparations question with the Philippines for fear of stirring up the delicate relations between the two countries on this subject.

The note, sent here last Friday from Manila, reportedly calls for reopening preliminary negotiations, delayed since the Philippines scrapped the so-called Ohno-Garcia agreement under which Japan would pay 400 million dollars for war damage.

The Philippines have since increased their demands, and sources close to the foreign office here say Japan sees little hope of an early agreement.

Censure Debate Brings Out New Peress Evidence

stead of a court-martial, even after a court-martial demand from McCarthy was delivered to the "responsible army staff."

Ervin told the Senate he once opposed to expelling McCarthy, or stripping him of his committee chairmanships, but he declared:

"I'm willing to admit I have changed my mind in both particulars."

The chairman of the censure committee, Sen. Arthur Watkins (R. Utah), sought meanwhile to pull the rug from under McCarthy's "who promoted Peress?" campaign. Watkins said McCarthy himself can readily dig out the answer on the basis of information already supplied by the Army.

Denying this, McCarthy declared the Army is still shielding 'the secret master' who promoted Peress and then rushed through the discharge which made a court-martial impossible.

McCarthy and Watkins clashed heatedly at a hearing called by McCarthy, who still heads the Senate investigations subcommittee.

Watkins, appearing as the sole witness, told McCarthy it may well be nobody is "criminally" guilty in the Army's handling of Peress. Sternly, McCarthy replied any senator who holds that view is "derelict in his duty."

"I don't believe you can ever be satisfied," Watkins shot back, "unless you can find some one who could be shot or hung."

In the floor debate, Ervin repeated a charge he made previously on a television program — that McCarthy showed either mental incapacity" or "moral incapacity" when he charged the Watkins committee members acted as "unwitting, handmaidens of the Communist party."

Ervin declared McCarthy holds 'libel and slander" like a sword over the heads of all senators who disagree with him. And, taking sharp issue with Case's new stand, Ervin said McCarthy's cross-examination of Zwicker was nothing but "badgering and browbeating."

Prior to resumption of the floor debate, Case sent Watkins a letter saying the new evidence from Army Secretary Stevens "throws into new focus" the background of McCarthy's clash with Zwicker at a New York hearing last February.

McCarthy contends Zwicker was arrogant and evasive when he was questioned about the honorable discharge granted Peress about two weeks before that. And so, McCarthy contends, he was fully justified in conducting a "vigorous" cross-examination of Zwicker.

Ex-Marine Recalls Battleship Visit

nel and started for the Oregon. At that time, the harbor was full of boats, launches, tugs and other vessels, and after dodging through these—or, more accurately, perhaps, after they dodged us—we managed to get alongside the gangway where a lot of other boats and launches were going and leaving.

Finally, some kind-hearted sailor cast us a line which we made fast. All of us clambered up the gangway, which we called the "stairs." When I got the crowd together, I went up to the officer of the deck, saluted him and told him that I had a party of Marines who wanted to see the ship. He returned my salute, and said: "Okay; go ahead!"

Our sightseeing completed, I got the party together, and the same generous sailor dragged our boat up to the gangway where we all scrambled aboard and were then cast loose. When we were free of the press around the gangway and got out into the channel where the tide was now running out, I found that our boat—while heading in the right direction—was slowly making its way toward the entrance to the harbor.

I yelled to the boys to put some strength in the rowing or we would soon find ourselves in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean. That frightened them enough and they buckled down to their oars with a good will, if not all together. After again dodging through the boats, launches and tugs, we finally made our way to the place where we had taken the boat. We promptly disembarked and I then formally returned the boat to the watchmen without any noticeable damage to it.

I raised my right hand to the sky, and with a big sigh of relief said: "Never again!"

Formosa To Avenge Sinking Of Destroyer

Shek by the United States.

The Taiping, formerly the U.S.S. Decker, was on defense patrol north of the Tachens early Sunday, the comunique said; when four Red torpedo boats raced up at high speed. All four fired torpedoes which missed as the Taiping took evasive action. Five minutes later the boat returned to the attack. The Taiping was missed by three torpedoes but the fourth hit home.

The Taiping continued to blaze away at the attackers while attempts were made to repair the great wound in the ship's side. The Taiping pulled toward the Tachens as the water poured in.

Rescue ships racing out of the Tachens found the ship's prow and part of the foredeck under water. The Taiping was put under tow, but 11 miles off the Tachens a compartment collapsed and water gushed into the stern. Most of the dead were believed trapped by inrushing waters as the ship began sinking rapidly.

War Crimes Code Talks

Gallant Fox Dies; Won 1930 Derby Under Earl Sande

PARIS, Ky., Nov. 16 (AP)—The death of Gallant Fox, winner of the 1930 Kentucky Derby, Preakness, Belmont triple crown, was reported today.

The famed "Fox of Belair" owned by the late William Woodward, died at the A.B. Hancock Farm Sunday shortly before the $87,650 Gallant Fox handicap named in his honor was run at Jamaica, New York. The bay son of Sir Gallahad III—Marguerite was 27 years old, and was buried alongside the graves of his sire and dam.

Alfred Vanderbilt's Social Outcast earned $60,550 by winning the Gallant Fox handicap Saturday, compared with the $50,725 purse taken by the Belair stud champion when he carried jockey Earl Sande to victory in the 56th Kentucky Derby May 17, 1930.

Fullmer Gets Nod Over Mueller; Scortichini Wins

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Nov. 16 (AP) — Undefeated Gene Fulmer of West Jordan, Utah, won his 26th boxing bout last night and spoiled Peter Mueller's American debut by decisively outpointing the former German middleweight champion in an action packed 10-rounder at Eastern Parkway arena. Fullmer weighed 155¼ pounds, Mueller 155½.

Over at St. Nicholas Arena that night, Italo Scortichini, making his first start after a five month layoff, brushed aside Luther Rawling's stinging left jabs and used his superior strength to win a split decision in a 10-round bout.

Check Tide Tables Before Teeing Off

WAKE ISLAND—(NEA)—A golf course which sets a record for sand traps and water hazards has been opened on this mid-Pacific atoll.

It's the nine-hole Wake Island Low Tide Country Club. President Hugh Gordon, commander of Pan American's Clippers, recommends that players check tide tables in view of the fact that at high tide the course is under three feet of water.

Selvy Finds Little Difference Between College, Pro Ball; Hits 25 Pt. Average

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Professional basketball people take a let's-see-him-do-it-up-here attitude whenever a recruit breaks in with a large bundle of press clippings.

They have seen too many in the Tony Lavelli category bring fantastic scoring reps onto the floor—and then he handled like rank novices by the likes of Dick McGuire of the New York Knickerbockers or Slater Martin of the Lakers.

Frank Selvy, however, is a different story. The six-foot-three kid from Corbin, Ky., who set every record in the books in his three years at Furman, started the season for Baltimore rattling shots through the nets as if he still were back in a college practice session.

Clair Bee has seen them come and go in wholesale lots, but Selvy stops the Bullets' boss.

"In five games," Bee said, as the young season moved along, "he has shown me more scoring touch than any guy I've ever seen."

* * *

Selvy had poured 125 points through the nets.

More important, he made himself an A-1 attraction for finance-needy Baltimore.

Proof of this came in the scheduling of a Minneapolis game at Greenville, S. C., where Furman and Selvy rode high.

In that area, you see, they think nobody else ever played basketball except Selvy—and figured to break the doors down to see him play again.

In three years in a Furman suit, Selvy racked up 2538 points, a record which figures to stand for years. This total enabled the slim youngster to walk into the National Basketball Association with a 32.5 average for every college game he played.

"We give the ball to Frank," says teammate Al McGuire, "and we go two points. It'll be that way all season. He has too many moves for anybody to stop him."

Selvy has the shot, but unlike so many others who had just that and nothing else, he has the game to go with it. He has a remarkable sense for positioning himself to get the shot off.

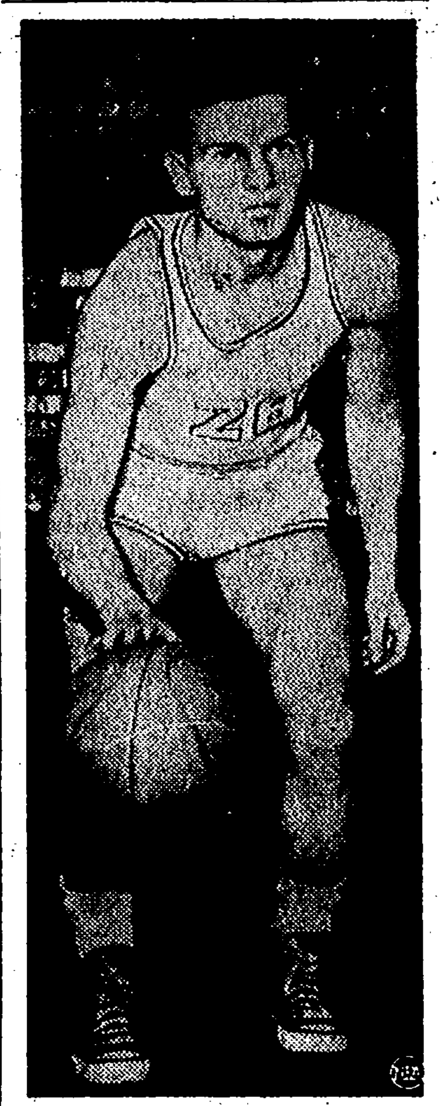
Selvy has as good a head fake as can be found. An excellent dribbler, he also feeds off well. The start-and-stop move which left collegiate opponents bewildered seems to be making the grade in the pro ranks, too.

Selvy has two types of one-handed jump shots. Hurried, he goes into the air, bends his body backward. The shot gets off — heads for the ceiling. This trajectory removes any possibility of a defender blocking it. As it soars upward, it begins to float softly at the basket. It has no spin at all, and when the ball comes down it searches for every break the rim can give it.

When Selvy has time, he advances at the basket slowly, then goes up for the same type of shot with either hand—except his body is laid out for the basket. The minute he gets the ball off, he starts a wild scramble for the basket and a possible rebound.

Baltimore is considered a dead basketball town for several reasons, but if anything can stir up interest in the game there, it will be Frank Selvy.



NO DIFFERENCE — Frank Selvy picked up where he left off. (NEA)

Tokyo Giants Find Aussie Crowds Less Than Competition So Far

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Tokyo Giants baseball team has drawn only small gates in the two games played so far in Australia.

In the first match at Brisbane Saturday night only 500 people were at the Exhibition Ground when the Giants beat Queensland 10-1.

Attendance was a scant 437 at Sydney Sports Ground Monday night to see the Giants defeat combined Sydney 14-4.

The games have received only brief mention in Sydney newspapers.

Democrats Take Back Seat As GOP Solons Put Heat On Absent McCarthy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Sen. Wallace Bennett (R-Utah) announced last night he would file a new censure count against Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) based on McCarthy's "Communist handmaiden" attack on the Watkins committee and its chairman.

Bennett made the announcement on the Senate floor after his fellow Utah Republican, Sen. Arthur Watkins, called for the bringing of such an additional indictment on the ground McCarthy has been guilty of indecent contempt "right under our noses."

McCarthy scoffed at the move to file a third censure charge against him. He said it added an Alice-in-Wonderland note to a procedure that is getting "curiouser and curiouser."

Watkins, in a flareup of blazing indignation, declared he himself would file a new contempt charge against McCarthy if nobody else did.

Before the day's debate ended, Bennett announced he would seek to amend the present censure resolution by adding a count that McCarthy has "shown contempt for the Senate by his personal attack on the chairman of the (Watkins) committee and the committee itself."

"An angry Watkins called on the Senate yesterday to censure McCarthy on a brand new count—contemptuous, insulting and indecent behavior on the very floor of the Senate.

Watkins, whose conduct has been called "cowardly" by McCarthy declared that if nobody else comes forward with an added censure charge then "the man who has been called a coward from Utah will do it."

The 67-year-old Utah senator, chairman of the committee which recommended censure of McCarthy on two other grounds, based his call for a new censure count partly on McCarthy's charge that the Watkins committee served as the "unwitting handmaiden of the Communist party." A spare, trembling figure of indignation, Watkins shouted:

"I may be a coward but I'm not going to compromise with that kind of an attack or with the indecency involved."

The Senate listened in dead si-

AEC Members To Survey Field Of Ike's Atom Plan

HONOLULU, Nov. 17 (AP) — Five members of the joint congressional Atomic Energy Commission arrived unannounced today on the first leg of a round the world flight to begin putting into operation President Eisenhower's atoms-for peace-program.

Sen. John W. Bricker, acting chairman and spokesman for the group, told a reporter one of the main purposes of the trip was to study "possible utilization" of 220 pounds of fissionable material allocated for the program by the United States.

U.S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. in a dramatic announcement told the U.N. political committee the material would serve as fuel for atomic power reactors throughout the world.

The group is scheduled to leave at 9:30 p.m. (0730 GMT Wednesday) for their next stops, Auckland, New Zealand, and Sydney, Australia.

PRO-JOE SUPPORTERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP) — A leader in a move to get 10 million signatures on a petition against censure of Sen. Joseph D. McCarthy said yesterday the "thing is catching on like wildfire." The telephone switchboard at the Hotel Roosevelt "has been blocked off, jammed by callers trying to reach us," said Radm. John G. Cromelin (Ret).

Collins Gets Credit For Easing 'Family' Quarrel In Vietnam

By JOHN RODERICK

SAIGON, Vietnam, Nov. 17 (AP) — The influence of the United States on events in troubled South Vietnam is evident less than 10 days after the arrival here of Gen. J. Lawton Collins as President Eisenhower's special envoy.

Observers in a position to know said yesterday the first consequence of Collins' presence in Saigon will be the departure of Gen. Nguyen Van Hinh for France.

The rebellious chief of staff of Vietnam's army ostensibly is going for consultations with Chief of State Bao Dai on the French Riviera. Informed sources say the ex-emperor will give him an important new job. This will leave the army in the hands of someone more likely to take orders from Premier Ngo Dihn Diem.

In this way, the two-month-old quarrel between Diem and Hinh would be ended and the premier freed to take the bold steps required to bring stability to the free south.

Noel Field, Wife Released After Five Years In Hungary Prison For 'Spy' Rap

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP) — The Budapest radio said last night Communist Hungary has freed Noel Field and his wife, Herta, who have been in prison there on spy charges since 1949. Field is a former American State Department man.

The broadcast, heard here, said the case against them recently was reviewed and the conclusion was reached that the charges could not be substantiated.

Field's brother, Hermann, a Cleveland, Ohio, architect, was freed from a prison in Communist Poland last month. Hermann is in Warsaw hospital to regain his strength after his prison ordeal before returning home. His wife, Kate, is in London. Hermann was arrested in Warsaw early in 1949 while searching for Noel, who vanished in May of that year. Noel's wife, Herta, also disappeared in Prague while she was looking for her husband.

First actual knowledge in the West of what had become of the Fields—a mystery to rival an international thriller—was given to the U.S. government by Joseph Swiatlo, a Polish security police chief who fled to the West. He said he had arrested Hermann in 1949. He told Washington authorities he thought Noel and Herta were in prison in Hungary.

Swiatlo said the Fields were grabbed by the Communists in eastern Europe in 1949 because they were needed in the prosecution of Laszlo Rrajk, Hungarian foreign minister accused of deviating from the Communist line and plotting with Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito in the camp of the "American imperialists."

Noel Field's name also came up in the blood-purge in Czechoslovakia in November, 1952, in which 11 Communists were sentenced to death. These included the former Red Boss Rudolf Slansky and former Foreign Minister Vladimir Clementis. They, too, were accused of being Titoists and were said to have had contact with Noel Field—then being touted as the No. 1 American spy in Europe.

The Prague radio last month indicated a change of heart similar to that taking place throughout the Soviet orbit since the death of Stalin.

Reciprocal Free Trade With Guam Proposed By P. I.

MANILA, Nov. 17 (AP)—Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez yesterday proposed free trade between the Philippines and Guam. The secretary, in a letter to the tariff commission here, said the move was necessary to balance trade between the two countries.

"Total exports of the Philippines to Guam from 1951 to 1953 amounted to more than 13 million pesos (6½ million dollars) while imports from Guam for the same period reached only 27,000 pesos ($13,500)," Hernandez said.

Philippine goods enter Guam duty free but goods from the U.S. territory are subject to tariffs. Guam authorities were reported ready to impose duty on all Philippine goods unless reciprocal free trade is enacted.

"SALLY" OVER LUZON

MANILA, Nov. 17 (AP) — Typhoon Sally raged off the northern Philippines today with 120-mile winds and was expected to slam into Luzon island about noon. The late-season Pacific storm, following the path of typhoon Ruby last week lashed the eastern seaboard of Luzon island early yesterday. It was reported 30 miles east of Casiguran in Quezon province, about 130 miles northeast of Manila.

Dulles Nixes Reappraisal Of Policy Towards Reds, Warns Peiping Again

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said yesterday he saw no need for a full-dress reappraisal of American policy toward Russia, as proposed by Senate Republican leader William Knowland of California.

"I do not myself see any immediate emergency which requires either that review or discussion should be on any different basis from what it normally is," he told his news conference. The State Department authorized direct quotation of the secretary on this point.

Dulles also stated, in what was a fresh warning to the Chinese Communists, that any attack on the Chinese Nationalist stronghold of Formosa would mean hostilities with the United States.

He said the American 7th Fleet, which is assigned to guarding the island of Formosa off the Chinese mainland, conceivably could go into action to defend the Tachen islands, some 200 miles north of Formosa.

But the secretary declined to say definitely that the Tachen chain would be defended, although he noted that it is the site of radar devices which warn Formosa of any air attack from Red bases around Shanghai.

Apparently with firm White House support, Dulles made it clear that he disagrees with Knowland's view that present American policy is leading toward an "atomic stalemate" which opens the way for "nibbling aggression" by Russia. Knowland expressed his views in a Senate speech Monday.

Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson also entered the debate yesterday with a statement that the U.S. "has to hope" for co-existence with Russia or go to war. He said he personally favored co-existence.

At a news conference of his own, Wilson said that while striving for an understanding, the United States should keep its defenses strong enough to discourage any attack upon it.

Won-Pat Back From Capital

Speaker A.B. Won-Pat of the Guam Legislature arrived late last night from Washington, D.C., where he recently completed his mission in connection with the $15-million housing aid for Guam. The fund has been approved by President Eisenhower.

Won-Pat was recommended by Governor Elvidge early last month to put up what Won-Pat called a "last ditch" effort to prevent one construction firm here from "gobbling up the lion's share" of the fund when it was reported that about $6-million already had been committed for the Nimitz housing project here.

The governor left yesterday for Honolulu to confer with Federal Housing Administration officials there on the various problems confronting the territory's housing needs.

Won-Pat, who was away during the political campaigns here, was reelected November 2, ranking fourth among the 21 congressmen-elect for the Third Guam Legislature.

Scandinavian Planes Establish Polar Air Route Between California, Europe

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17 (AP) — A direct air liner between Southern California and Europe over the Polar regions was established yesterday when two commercial airplanes — flying in opposite directions—completed trips across the rooftop of the world.

The Royal Viking, a super-Constellation of the Scandinavian Airlines System, landed in Copenhagen, Denmark, less than 24 hours after leaving Los Angeles. A companion SAS plane, the Hedge Viking, arrived in Los Angeles in 27 hours and 10 minutes. Each plane made stopovers in Greenland and Winnipeg, Canada.

The planes, carrying parties of public officials and newspapermen, inaugurated regular trans-Arctic service of the Scandinavian Airlines System.

The Royal Viking flew the new route across northern Canada and took three hours and seven minutes on this flight.

Prime Minister Hans Hedtoft and Prince Axel of Denmark were among those aboard the plane that arrived in Los Angeles. Prince Axel presented a commemorative Greenland marble to the city of Los Angeles and said: "It is nice to leave our cold Scandinavian climate and come over the icy Polar region and then arrive here in such fine sunshine."

"Within six months or a year nobody will think anything about this route," added the prince. But it will become a much-needed routine service."

Other passengers aboard the Hedge Viking were Prime Minister Tage Erlander of Sweden, Prime Minister Oscar Torp of Norway, President Per A. Norlin of SAS, seven other officials and 22 newsmen from 12 European countries.

The flight here took about three hours longer than the inaugural Los Angeles to Copenhagen hop because the plane bucked prevailing westerly winds most of the 5,800 mile route.

American Couple Freed After Five Years In Red Pen

As to Hermann Field, the Warsaw radio has said he was released after Polish officials reviewed his case and found the charges against him had been "framed up by an American agent in the Polish security service." This obviously referred to Swiatlo.

Hermann's British wife and two children, Hugh, 11, and Alan, 9, live in England.

Noel Field and his German-born wife, who disappeared in Prague when she went there hoping to meet Hermann in the search for Noel, have an adopted daughter who also vanished. The daughter, Mrs. Robert (Erica) Wallach, disappeared on arriving in Berlin in August, 1950. There has been no recent hint of her whereabouts.

Following the information given by Swiatlo, the United States quickly sent off notes to Poland and Hungary demanding the release of the Fields.

The Fields' father was American and their mother was British. Noel was born in London 50 years ago. He and his wife came to the United States in 1920 and he attended Harvard University.

Noel went to work for the U.S. State Department in 1926 and was assigned to the division of Western European Affairs.

During World War II, he was in Switzerland. He helped the American office of special services contact Communist undergrounds in Nazi-occupied countries. After the war he directed relief work for the Unitarian service committee in Poland and Czechoslovakia. He quit that work in 1947.

He went to Prague May 5, 1949, after telling friends he wanted to study at Charles University there. He disappeared a week later.

Soon afterwards, the web of intrigue began to spin around the Fields from both sides. The Communists said he was an American spy. In 1949, Whittaker Chambers and Mrs. Hede Massing, confessed ex-Soviet spy organizers in Washington, told U.S. authorities Field was a member of "another (Soviet) apparatus."

Britisher Notes Big Progress In Malaya Red Fight

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya, Nov. 17 (AP) — Sir Ronald MacGillivray, British high commissioner for Malaya, said today marked progress is being made in the "long slow struggle" to destroy Communist terrorists but that increased public help and "continual pressure" are needed by British forces.

Sir Donald, in his 1955 budget speech to the federal legislative council, said that Malaya and the British government are spending more than the equivalent of 630 thousand U.S dollars daily in the war to wipe out the Communist menace.

Referring to the "considerable number of Communist terrorists" — they are estimated at 5,000 operating from Malayan jungles — the high commissioner said each year of the six-year-long state of emergency showed a steady elimination of the Reds.

"Whereas in 1950 terrorists were inflicting more losses than they themselves suffered, this year nearly five terrorists have been eliminated for the murder of each civilian or member of the security forces.'

Sir Donald told the council these losses were causing the Communists "serious concern."

They are now adopting all kinds of devices to "bolster up their waning influence," he said.

Witness Implicates Naguib In Nasser Plot

CAIRO, Nov. 17 (AP)—Another leading Moslem Brotherhood witness told an Egyptian military tribunal last night that ousted former President Mohamed Naguib had been in direct contact with the organization during its plotting against the regime of Colonel Abdel Gamal Nasser.

The prosecution witness, Mohamed Farghaly, head of the Ismailia district secret order and member of the brotherhood supreme council admitted he had been in regular contact with Naguib through an Egyptian judge named Abdul Aziz.

Farghaly also revealed that pamphlets criticizing an Anglo-Egyptian treaty was written for the brotherhood by a Naguib ally, Soliman Hafez, deputy prime minister during Naguib's period of power before last February.

J. Kohl's Body Taken To Family

The body of Jack Kohl, formerly merchandising manager of the Town House, Agana, has been transported to his family at Pass Christian, Miss., an associate revealed yesterday.

Kohl, who was 45, died last Thursday at the Guam Memorial Hospital which he entered briefly after returning from the mainland where he sought medical treatment for a prolonged ailment. He left last December and returned here the following July.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. H.S. Kohl, and a sister, Mrs. Dorothy Tipping, both of Pass Christian.

Kohl arrived here in 1951 to assume the position of merchandising manager for the Town House after a long career in that field in the mainland. Except for his trip to the mainland last December, he had been a resident of the territory and was widely known in business circles here.

Stock Market Climbs To New Record High

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP) —The stock market climbed to another new high since 1929 today as some shares gained as much as four dollars.

Steels, televisions and electrical equipments spearheaded the advance, but wide gains also were noted among individual issues responding to favorable action and other corporate developments.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks once again moved to its highest point since Oct. 15, 1929, advancing 90 cents to $143.00. Advancing issues totaled 596 and there were 384 declines. Issues traded came to 1,258, four less than yesterday. New highs totaled 142.

The wide-moving International Business Machines was a highlight, jumping 26 points to 375. Eastman Kodak added 4½ at 66⅝ after favorable dividend action.

Dulles Stymied On Right Label To Ike Policies

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, a man who is usually quick with his vocabulary, reached for a word today—and the word was not there.

He offered at his news conference no term or phrase to sum up the conditions on which the United States expects to live in the same world with Russia in the years ahead.

This is a present weakness in United States foreign policy. Officials have failed to provide a label to define what the Eisenhower administration is trying to accomplish. It may be that the situation is still too complex to express in a phrase.

What happened at the news conference was this:

Reporters kept talking about "coexistence" or "peaceful coexistence," terms which are generally accepted to have been born in Communist propaganda. Dulles said coexistence has different meanings to different people. He said that when people use words offered them by the Communists they get into trouble—even with such familiar words as "peace" and "democracy."

Around the State Department coexistence as used by Moscow is taken to mean a period of time during which Communist and non-Communist nations may live alongside each other, without destroying each other, pending the day when the Communists take over.

The difficulty is that non-Communists have long since picked up the word co-existence and given it another meaning with a great many shadings.

To some Britons, for example, it seems to mean a period of increasing understanding between Russia and the outside world. Such an interval could prove to be the beginning of a new era of friendly relations, in this British view.

U.S. Influence Felt In Vietnam's Political Fight

How much Collins himself did to dissolve the deadlock was not learned. Some say that, as a former U. S. Army chief of staff, he suggested to Hinh it is a soldier's duty to obey his superiors. Whatever the case, there seems no room for doubt the U.S. government has taken an increasingly direct interest in Vietnamese affairs.

The reasons apparently are:

1. A desire to do everything possible to halt the spread of Communism in southeast Asia.

2. An unwillingness to see several billion dollars in U.S. civilian and military aid equipment and projects fall into the hands of the Communist-dominated Vietminh, who already have the north under terms of the Geneva agreement.

3. The wish to demonstrate to the rest of Asia that friends of democracy will not be abandoned, even after a military defeat.

Eisenhower's choice of Collins is generally regarded here as a happy one. Collins' reputation as a soldier and as an administrator have preceded him. Whether it was calculated or not, the fact he is a Catholic cannot fail to influence the ardently Catholic premier.

The Vietminh, sensing the danger, have mounted a bitter campaign against both Collins and Diem.

The United States has the tacit approval of the French government of Premier Pierre Mendes-France in taking a leadership which the French colonial rulers had exercised here for nearly a century. The explanation is simple. First of all Diem, because of his connections in the United States and his deep opposition to French colonialism, is more inclined to accept the advice of Americans. The French recognize this and hope American intercession will serve the common goal of saving the south from falling into the Vietminh orbit in the general election of 1956.

Consumer Buying Picking Up A Bit

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP) — Buying on time is picking up a little. And the merchants and finance companies are counting on the post-election enthusiasm in stock market and industrial centers to seep through to the consumers. This could end the trend this year toward paying up old debts rather than hurrying to take on new ones.

Installment buying may pick up speed first in the auto and home appliance fields, where it's an old American custom. Merchants, too, are expecting installment buying of clothing and furniture to increase. Retail installment buying —as distinguished from charge accounts—has had its biggest growth since the war.

The way people feel about their own income and job prospects has more to do with the cycles in installment credit than anything else, finance company officials say.

About this time last year, people were worried and the rate of such buying of cars began to drop. The low point was reached in January of this year, and repayments exceeded new credit extensions through April.

But, as one economist explains it, by spring people had decided that the recession would not become a depression, and they began buying cars on time in greater volume. With the new models coming out, the finance companies are looking for a big increase in business.

Members of the American Finance Conference, a trade association of 360 independent automobile installment credit companies, are meeting here to compare the prospects in various sections of the nation. Like the car makers, they're hoping the outlook for wages and employment is bright enough to induce consumers to take on new auto monthly payments.

GOP Solon Plans New McCarthy Rap

lence to the frail Watkins, impassioned windup of a generally mild and at times halting speech. Then, some Democrats and Republicans broke into applause.

McCarthy wasn't there. He served notice in advance he would not listen to Watkins because the select committee chairman had refused to answer any more oral questions from McCarthy and his supporters. McCarthy called this refusal "cowardly" in a weekend speech.

Watkins appeared literally to quiver with indignation as he quoted this taunt. Then he hurled it back at McCarthy—charging the Wisconsin senator with using "the safety of his office" to attack fellow senators, and daring McCarthy to make public his financial affairs.

Watkins said the Senate committee which investigated McCarthy in 1951 and 1952 raised grave questions which McCarthy failed to answer—including a question whether he diverted to his own use considerable sums given him to fight Communism.

"Only one man can clear all that up," Watkins declared, "and that is the junior senator from Wisconsin."

Diplomats Optimistic On Ike's Atom Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 17 (AP)—Diplomats from both sides of the Iron Curtain predicted today President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan would win the same unanimous approval the U.N. Assembly accorded the East-West disarmament proposal.

Russia's Andrei Vishinsky goes before the Assembly's main political committee (about 1630 GMT) following two days of closed-door talks with U.S. and other Western diplomats on the seven-power resolution to promote the Eisenhower program.

ELVIDGE ON OFFICIAL TRIP TO HONOLULU

Governor Ford Q. Elvidge departed yesterday morning by PAA for a brief business trip in Honolulu. The governor's mission is in connection with the $15,000,000 appropriation recently signed by President Eisenhower for critical housing needs on the island. He will confer with FHA officials in Hawaii through an invitation from Robert Carson, FHA director in the Pacific area. The governor is accompanied by Mrs. Elvidge. On hand at the airport to see them off were Secretary and Mrs. Pat Herman, Atty. Gen. Howard Porter, Manuel Guerrero, Mr. Hansen, Charles Earl, and Jack Evans.

OFFICIALS MOVE UP

The departure of Governor Elvidge for Honolulu automatically caused two officials to move up temporarily in ranks. These were noted in a Government of Guam memorandum No. 28-54, issued yesterday morning.

A BASIS FOR SELECTION

We have had numerous queries on the committee compositions for the Third Guam Legislature, and as of this date we know of no assignment, either official or unofficial. Fact of the matter is that the solons-elect for the incoming body have not taken their oath of office and it is unlikely that any official designation for the various standing committees would be made until after the Third convenes in January. Moreover, before committeemen are named, the law-making body has to elect its own officers.

One of the reasons consistently given for the prevailing curiosity about the prospective committee members is the desire to see the right person in the right job, his appointment based on his qualifications and experiences rather than on his membership or non-membership in a party, or his score at the polls.

The committee composition in the past two Legislatures has been such as to allow little cause for criticism and, with the exception of one or two committees, able men were at the helm to steer things in the right direction.

We subscribe to the suggestion of several citizens that the officials of the incoming Third Guam Legislature—specifically the leaders of the Popular Party — continue to select committee members according to the merits of the individual. Everyone realizes that a certain amount of power lies in the committee and that power should be exercised with wisdom and foresight.

We aren't sure what prompted the many queries about the non-existent committees at this time, but it appears that there is a growing consciousness among the electorate of the necessity to maintain a closer scrutiny of the actions of those who have been chosen to represent the people.

It still is several weeks before the Third Legislature convenes, and we hope all of the 21 members elected would utilize the time remaining to informal conferences touching on how the Legislature as a whole can best serve the common welfare of the territory. The experiences gained over the past four years are fraught with lessons that should be studied and be used as guide for the future.

The Mature Parent

One sunny morning this summer, I sat on the edge of a swimming pool. Near me was a family; parents, pretty little girl, baby boy. He was a baby of purpose. He wanted to go swimming. The delicious, unyielding, masculine concentration of his wish delighted his mother. Laughing, she was rolling him over in the grass when her daughter spoke to her.

Without turning her head, she said, "Don't talk to me. Get over your sulks first."

Instantly, jealousy turned the pretty little girl into an ugly one. Jealousy in children is a witch.

With one wave of her hand, she can make beauty repellent. Out of mouths that want to speak pearls, she can make frogs leap.

What's worse, she can make us believe what we see. Like the witch of "The Sleeping Beauty," she can enchant everyone around the child into stupor and unawareness.

I think that we must all have noted jealousy's power to transform children's appearance. So I am warning us that the stubborn jaw and hating eyes are illusions. If we believe they are real, we are accepting an identity imposed on the child by witchcraft. We have become enchanted, too.

Fairy tales are not to be taken lightly. Nearly always, they have much to tell us about our most secret fears. Over the ages, mankind has used them, like myths, to express what he dares not know about himself. Thus, the hook-nosed witch who figures in so many of them can become a most interesting old lady.

What is one of our secret fears? Isn't it terror of some ugliness within ourselves that can make us appear to be what we are not?

Isn't this the power of the witch? Isn't she always turning handsome princes into beasts?

Doesn't this power tell us why we have made her the symbol of Dread. Oh, yes, she's far more to us than an old lady with a hooked nose. She's mankind's old, old fear that ugliness within can make us seem what we are not.

The child of this column was a lovely child. What she needed was rescue from the transformation by the witch within.

Always, the fairy tales tell us how to rescue.

My favorite is "Beauty and the Beast." Its rescuer did not listen to those who said, "Watch out; you're making a mistake."

Beauty knew the real identity behind the fearsome shape. So she flew to her Beast. And beside the forest pool where he was dying for her comfort, kissed him into himself.

"—And This Is the Capitol"

Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — POLITICO-GO-ROUND — GOP Chairman Len Hall tried to console his assistants over losing the House. "All the committee chairmen are conservative southerners," Hall told his associates. "Name one northern chairman of an important committee." . . . He forgot that Vice-President Nixon warned the nation that Congress would be in the hands of left-wingers . . . Ike lost both his home districts Nov. 2. Morningside Heights, New York, home of Columbia U, elected a Democratic Congressman, Herbert Zalenko, for the first time in years, while Gettysburg, Pa., where Ike held the Pennsylvania political rally, also elected a Democrat, James M. Quigley . . . Congressman Zalenko was once star wrestler for Columbia . . . One thing that hurt Sen. Guy Gillette in Iowa was failure to take a stand on McCarthy. He lost in a big farm state while Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota was rolling up a terrific majority in another farm state . . . Wisconsin farmers turned Democratic with such a vengeance that GOP leaders just aren't talking about it. They almost defeated Republican Governor Kohler. (His family make the famous bathroom bowls.) . . . Says Dave Lloyd, ex-aide of Harry Truman: "The only food poisoning Nixon has to worry about is letting one of his speeches fall into his soup." . . . Mamie Eisenhower almost wept at the defeat of her close friend, Mrs. Ellen Harris, who ran for Congress from Denver. Mamie had even made a speech for Mrs. Harris and speechmaking is something Mamie almost never does.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Here is the latest tabulation of news beats scored by Drew Pearson:

1. ON NOVEMBER 6, Commissioner Thomas Murray of the Atomic Energy Commission made banner headlines when he tangled with Chairman Lewis Strauss of the AEC and told a Congressional committee that Strauss had pushed the Dixon-Yates contract without Murray's knowledge. Pearson had dealt with this story on several occasions, but his first expose that there was friction inside the Atomic Energy Commission was published May 16, at which time he told in detail how Strauss was rowing with fellow commissioners. Admiral Strauss issued a denial.

2. ON SEPTEMBER 26, Pearson reported that the Eisenhower administration had a political rabbit it planned to pull out of the hat during the period before the elections—namely, increased spending. "This was carefully planned in advance," Pearson reported, "and it's hoped that the full force of the spending will be felt within the next few weeks."

This was front-page news in the New York Times a month later when on October 28 the Defense Department announced that the armed services were placing about $1,000,000,000 worth of contracts this month.

Significantly, the New York Times stated: "Usually there is a lag of six weeks or more from the end of the month to the announcement of how much money each service has obligated. Some officials attributed the current announcements to improved reporting procedures. But a larger number inclined to the somewhat cynical view that the new policy was designed to impress the voters in next Tuesday's elections."

3. MASSACHUSETTS ELECTION — One interesting development in the recent elections was the defeat of ex-Cong. Foster Furcolo of Massachusetts by Senator Saltonstall, Republican. As early as September 28, Pearson revealed the chief factor which led to Furcolo's defeat, namely the run-out of Sen. Jack Kennedy, fellow Democrat. He reported: "Senator Kennedy will probably go to the hospital during the debate to censure McCarthy . . . He has been worried sick about the prospect of voting on McCarthy . . . has a second political purpose—skipping any campaigning for Foster Furcolo . . . John is said to figure a second Democratic senator would diminish his own political stature and perhaps pit 'Salty' against him in 1958."

ON OCTOBER 11 Senator Kennedy did exactly what Pearson predicted. He went to the hospital after publicly refusing to endorse Furcolo. Most political observers attributed Furcolo's defeat to Kennedy's refusal.

4. ON OCTOBER 26 Tony Accardo, one of the gangsters ruling Chicago in the wake of Al Capone, was given three years for tax evasion. This was a belated sequence to a series of tax exposes published by the Washington Merry-Go-Round three years before. It was on February 2, 1951, that Pearson first exposed in great detail the tax frauds of Accardo and his sidekick, "Greasy Thumb" Jack Guzik. He showed how Accardo and Guzik maneuvered to split up $278,667.89 from the Erie and Buffalo policy wheel so they would have to pay relatively small income taxes.

Chiang's Formosa - A Paradise With Pillboxes

Natives Support Sino Government If Only To Get Them Off Island

By EDWARD R. KENNEDY
NEA Special Correspondent

TAIPEH — (NEA) — Formosa seems more like a peaceful Pacific Paradise than a spot where war is only minutes away by jet fighter and the whim of an unpredictable enemy.

They've got mangoes and bananas you can pick right off the tree. The people lead a vigilant but easy life with a couple of hours off in the afternoon, and only a complete clod lifts a supper fork before 9 p.m.

But from the peaceful surroundings of swaying palm trees, pill boxes peek out and alert muzzles of ack-ack guns protrude from palace outer gardens. Powder puff clouds hover overhead like burst of flak.

A flight of modern jet fighters will sweep down a runway off on patrol and skim a farmer plowing a field with a water buffalo.

Although nearly 60 per cent of the island is rugged mountains, crop production is so good the normal poulation of 4,000,000 — plus another 1,500,000 refugees from the mainland — are well fed with enough left over for export.

In the northern part two crops a year are harvested, in the south three. New irrigation methods will soon permit all the island to yield three annual crops.

Smooth running Japanese-type railways, fine military highways and daily intra-island air service provide quick means of movement about.

Crops include rice, the staple; pineapple, bananas, beet sugar and papayas. Pork is the main meat supply. Beef is in short supply, but enough to satisfy the demand of the 5000-odd Westerners living here. They comprise the Military Aid Advisory Group, Foreign Operations Agency, United Nations technicians and traders.

STREET SCENE IN FORMOSA — In a parking lot in Taipei, pillboxes blossom under the trees. Alert muzzles of ack-ack guns protrude from palace gardens.—(NEA photo)

Under UN technical supervision, oil has been exploited here in the past year and within three years the experts hope Formosa will be self-sufficent in crude oil.

The American FOA program is engaged in dozens of fields, all improving the economic well being of the island.

Chiang is giving Formosa good government. Less complex and freer from pay-offs than the Japanese administration, it is far better than anything the mainland saw under the Nationalists. He has made it a model of what his people can offer the mainland.

The Chinese run the island, but they have taken in great number of native people and placed them in key roles.

The natives would frankly rather be back under Japan, but they are backing Chiang to the hilt in his efforts to keep the Communists out and retake the mainland. They want the Nationalists to be successful, if for no other reason than to get them off Formosa.

The mainlanders see eye-to-eye with them on this, as there's not a refugee here from boy to papasan for whom the mainland is not the real goal.

There is no press censorship here for foreign correspondents. Local press dispatches, however, carry the Government party line and foreign newspapers must pass a three-month reading test by interior ministry readers before they can be imported.

Japanese language papers sent through the mail arrive about six months late, if at all. Outgoing mail, unless registered, never seems to be sent out.

Italy, Yugoslavia Start Economic Talks

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 17 (AP) — Italy and Yugoslavia opened economic talks here today as an aftermath to their compromise agreement in their nine-year-old quarrel over Trieste, strategic Adriatic seaport.

The talks between the two countries' representatives are expected to cover a wide field since industrialized Italy with an abundance of manpower and Yugoslavia, rich in raw materials such as non-ferrous metals, timber, livestock and some crops, have complementary economies.

U.N. Official Reports On Arab Refugee Situation

UNITED NATIONS, New York Nov. 17 (AP) — The U.N. official handling relief for the 900,000 or so Arab refugees of the 1948 Palestine war said today that some of their homesickness was "stirred up for political ends — and not always in the best interests of the refugees themselves."

Henry R. Labouisse, director of the U.N. Relief and Works Agency for Palestine refugees in the near East (UNRWA), also told the general assembly's special political committee that the action to return the refugees home and pay them for confiscated property "seems a long way off."

He appealed to all governments involved "to do something, through concessions or otherwise, to help bring an end to the great human suffering now the lot of these refugees."

Labouisse's reports ask the assembly to budget $25,100,000 for relief and $36,200,00 for rehabilitation of the refugees in the fiscal year to end next June 30.

Package-Membership Out

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 17 (AP) — U.N. general assembly's special political committee voted 25-24 yesterday not to consider resolutions proposing specific countries for membership in the U.N.

The committee, in this manner, prevented a vote on resolutions covering the Indochinese states of Laos and Cambodia, a 14-power package of Communist and non-Communist countries and a proposal on 12 western-supported nations.

Season's Advice: Make Your Hair A Yuletide Crown

All of a woman's yearnings for beauty — gay, regal and romantic — seem to burst into flower when the first Christmas wrappings appear on store counters.

The housewife, dragging a baby, looks longingly at a red velvet dress that she knows is just plain foolishness. The career gal tries to plot ways of having a chafing dish dinner on a wiener budget. A grandmother wonders if it would be silly for her to invest in a long sweeping robe.

And this is as it should be. The holidays — from the first scent of wood in the fireplace — should be warm and splendid. Colors should be rich, the homes should be inviting, women should be glittery. For the budget-bound and the tied-down, there are ways of dressing for the party season without departing from the daily realities.

Not the least of the ways an imaginative woman or teen-ager can make herself splendid is in dealing with her hair and ears. However dreary last year's coat may be, if the head above it is pretty and glitters with light, the effect is as seasonal as holly.

Attention to earrings, with an investment in a colorful or sparkling pair to be worn only in the core of winter, can be a help. A new hat — or a frothy piece of nothing with a veil — can spark a tired wardrobe. A scarf light as snowfall in a distracting color can point up the weary suit.

For the gayest occasion, when startling splendor is as necessary to a woman as her lipstick, the hair can be turned into a real crown. Last year, this might have meant a dunk in a holly-red dye, but this year the news is an arresting steak or chignon of non-tarnishing metallic fiber, lurex.

This is not the hair streak to be passed off as your own tinted pink or purple. This is a frankly fake addition that has its own sparkle to point up the gleam of freshly-washed and set hair.

New Resort Fashion Centers On Cotton

RESORT FASHIONS FROM CALIFORNIA — Curves are slightly tamed in these new resort fashions from California. White felt fish are appliqued on black linen Bermuda shorts (left) worn with long torso top, brilliant orange cummerbund and matching jacket. Simple sheath (center) has straight full-length coat lined in fine pima cotton. Dress has low, wide rounded neck and short sleeves. Rib knit costume (right) has jacket with the loose middly look worn with sheathed skirt. Waistline is easy but definite. Colors are navy blue and white. (NEA photos)

Resort Look: Gentle Curves, Tropical Color

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Woman's Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — The look of California resort and cruise wear this year is one of gentle curves and tropical color.

The bosom line is higher and uplifted and there's a lengthening of the torso. And wherever skirt widens, it spreads from the hip yoke rather than from the natural waistline.

Splashes of color, from cool to hot, are typical of the California landscape, starting with the blue-green and mauve tints of the sea and running through the famed California oranges: persimmon, tangerine and capucine or "hot orange."

The fabric story from California centers around cotton, either homespun and rough-hewn in character or with a silken sheen. Designers have used denim, pique, broadcloth, and percale extensively. But they've made use of pure or plain and in either printed or plain and in some instances, combined. Silk looks raw or tweedy and is in first place for late day dresses.

Committee Bucks Tariff-Cutting Pact With Japan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP) — The nation-wide committee of industry, agriculture and labor, an old foe of low tariffs, today opposed a tariff-cutting agreement with Japan and other non-Communist countries and declared it would cause "immeasurable harm."

Taking note of the list of items sent to the tariff comission for consideration in the trade agreement, the commitee predicted many U.S. industries "already finding Japanese competition extremely harmful, will be gutted."

"The idea of the agreement is to help Japan, and the President's heart is in the right place," the committee said in a statement. "But in the end the proposed agreement will stir up great bitterness and in this sense will have just the opposite effect intended by the President."

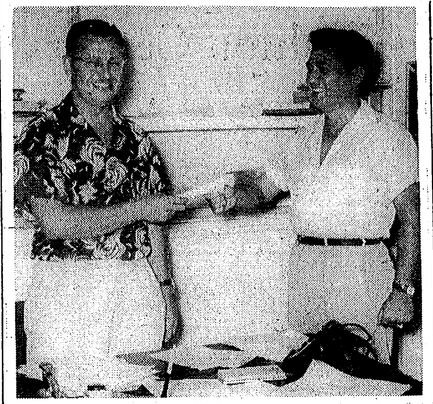
The committee favored a bilateral trade agreement with Japan rather than one approached through the 34-nation General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs (GATT).

Israeli Wants Accord With World Powers

JERUSALEM, Israeli Section, Nov. 17 (AP) — Premier Moshe Sharett said today Israel is "vitally interested in reaching an understanding with the decisive world powers ..... who have special interest in the Middle East."

Sharett, also foreign minister, concluded a two-day debate on foreign affairs in the Knesset (Parliament). He did not name the countries with whom he wants understanding, saying merely that Israel has a "deep community of ideas" with them "in spite of all differences and controversies."

The Knesset approved by a vote of 6 to 17 Sharett's foreign policy.



ACCEPTS POLICY — Ed Baggerly, manager of Micro-Metals, accepts a $75,000 insurance policy from G.M. O'Keefe, president of the American Global Insurance Company. This policy covers property located in Vancouver, Canada and was placed by American Global from a query from Los Angeles.

10-Year Low Tariff On P.I. Goods Entering U.S. Urged By Trade Panel

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP) — Philippine trade negotiators are urging the United States to accept low tariffs on Philippine imports into the U.S. for a 10-year period coupled with a sharp reduction in preferences for American imports into the Philippines.

The formula is under negotiation between a Philippine subcommittee headed by Sen. Gil Puyat and an American group headed by James M. Langley, head of the American delegation.

The trade talks to revise the special economic relations between the two countries under the Bell Trade Act of 1946 have been underway since Sept. 1. The United States selected a Philippine proposal for free trade on selected items.

Authoritative sources said the Philippine proposal would involve possibly a five per cent tariff on Philippine imports from 1956 to 1961; another five per cent hike, or a total of 10 per cent from 1961 to 1966.

Then in the eight years before the agreement expires on June 30, 1974 there would be an abrupt 90 per cent increase in duties on Philippine products spread evenly over the period.

The source said the Philippines has made clear that by 1974 it will be ready to continue trade relations on a non-preferential basis with the United States.

The present Bell Trade agreement calls for a steady but more gradual rise in tariffs until 1974 when 100 per cent duties will be charged.

For American goods entering the Philippines, the Puyat subcommittee is reported to have urged a sharp decline in preferences when the present duty free period ends on Jan. 1, 1956.

If the preferences were reduced approximately 85 per cent by 1966, Philippine negotiators contend it would yield about 130 million dollars a year in badly needed revenue to the Philippine government.

The Philippine team currently is talking over with the American side how wide a gap there should be between the declining U.S. and Philippine preferences.

It was understood that Puyat will embody these proposals in a speech prepared for the Federal Bar Association in New York tomorrow.

The Philippine negotiators were said to predicate their stand on President Eisenhower's assurance that aid to the Philippine economy is in the U.S. national interest.

Also it was pointed out that the United States does not enjoy free entry into any other foreign market. The sharp reduction in U.S. preferences would not be applied to essential imports needed for capital development nor to necessary food imports. But luxury goods would be subjected to high tariffs.

The Philippine 1909 tariff schedule now is undergoing extensive revision in preparation for the final trade revision agreement.

Increase In Russia's U.N. Share Asked

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 17 (AP) — The United States called on Russia today to prove the truth of recent statements about increase in assessments to pay for the U.N.'s expenses.

James P. Nash, U.S. delegate to the general assembly's finance committee rejected Russia's claim that she lacked American currency because of "discriminatory trade practices" and pointed to the U.S.S.R.'s large gold supply which he said could easily be converted into dollars.

The Russians, who now pay 14.5 per cent of the U.N.'s budget, are protesting a proposed increase of nearly one per cent. The United States now pays one-third of the total assessments.

Expanded F.O.A. Aid To Indonesia Under Discussion

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Hugh S. Cumming, Jr., U.S. Ambassador to Indonesia, yesterday reported to President Dwight D. Eisenhower prior to returning to his post in Jakarta next week.

Cumming termed his White House call "normal and routine."

An expanded technical assistance program is under discussion with the Indonesian government and it is expected to result in a tripling of American specialists sent to the country in the 1955 Foreign Operations Administration program.

FOA said more than 100 specialists were expected to be sent to the country compared with 35 or less in the past two years.

Indonesia has not asked for economic or development aid from the United States. Its technical assistance last year amounted to four million dollars. Cumming said he would leave New York by plane Nov. 25 with his family for Jakarta.

Marine Sergeant To Leave For Mainland

Sgt. John A. Davies, USMC, of the Armed Forces Examining and Induction Station, will leave soon for the mainland for rotation. The last batch of inductees he processed departed for Hawaii aboard the USNS Ainsworth last Saturday for their basic training.

Davies joined the Armed Forces Induction Station in August, 1953. He has processed over 225 Guamanian and Filipino registrants for Army duty. On his return to the mainland, he expects to resume his work with the Selective Service.

Summing up his duty with the Induction Station here, Sgt. Davies said:

"During my tour of duty I have enjoyed the opportunity to associate with the fine people of Guam. I want to extend to all those with whom I have worked in the Induction Station, the Selective Service Board and other organizations, my congratulations for making the Induction System what it is today. I sincerely hope that my successor will have the splendid cooperation that has been shown to me."

14 Graduate From AF Management Course In Base

First Filipino foreign national to graduate from the introduction to management course at Andersen recently was Alfredo G. Aguilar, assistant to the chief ammunition inspector of the 6413th Supply Squadron (Ammo)).

Rodney J. Meadows, 6319th Air Base Wing management instructor, graduated a class of 14 officers, one non-commissioned officer and several civilian employees along with Aguilar.

Another first was registered with the completion of the course. A new Air Force publication—AF Pamphlet 25-3-2, "Management: Work Simplification" — was used for the first time at Andersen during the course.

Objectives of the management training program, according to Meadows, are to promote effective management within the command, to improve supervision at all levels and to further the base's management improvement program by training supervisory personnel in the principles of applied management.

Graduates were Maj. Joseph M. Gwiazdon, "B" Flight commander of the 54th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron; Capt. Elmer D. Johnson, OIC of the armament and electronics shop of the 6319th Maintenance Squadron; Capt. Thomas K. Lowe Jr., assistant maintenance supervisor of the 6319th Maintenance Squadron; Capt. Theodore G. Olson, aircraft commander of the 54th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron; 1st Lt. John Rademacher, assistant personnel services officer; 2nd Lt. Harry B. Heilig Jr., assistant telephone officer of the 6319th Communications Squadron.

The lone non-commissioned officer was M/Sgt. Burvie H. Sheets, Headquarters Squadron Section of the 6319th.

Among civilian graduates were Miss Mary C. Ferris, director of education services; Miss Evelyn O. Stevens, chief of the the utilization branch of civilian personnel; Mr. Aguilar, the course's first Filipino graduate; Elroy C. Berg, AIO machine shop (Marbo); Robert B. Nonham, 6819th Supply Squadron; George E. Gaddy, AIO supervisor of roads and grounds; and Charles K. Palav, AIO electrician (Marbo).

Red Bloc Faces Grave Economic Ills Despite New Gains, U.N. Report Says

GENEVA, Nov. 17 (AP) — The Soviet bloc countries achieved a significant increase in living standards during the first half of this year but face serious troubles in their new economic policies, the U.N. economic commission for Europe reported today.

All the Communist countries last year introduced radical changes calling for increased output of consumer goods, more agriculture development and a relative slowing down of industrial expansion.

As a first result of these new policies, there was evidence of "a significant increase in average living standards in Eastern Europe and the U.S.S.R. during the first half of 1954 compared with the first half of 1954 compared with the first half of 1953," the commission reported.

Food supplies in the towns and sales or consumer goods "increased substantially."

The quality of the goods produced also improved but "is still regarded as unsatisfactory." Total consumption levels in the first year of the new economic policies were "below those hoped for when the policies were drawn up."

The economies of many Communist countries are still so dependent on their harvests that "the immediate outlook for the consumer must be regarded as somewhat discouraging."

Prominent Bidder

SANTIAGO, Nov. 17 (AP)—Chile has asked bids on 23 merchant ships and one of the most prominent bidders is the Japanese firm Kalichi Bussan Kaisha, Ltd., of Tokyo. This firm is building ships of the same type for Argentina, Brazil and Mexico.

If She Had Her Way, Whither France Be?

MONTREAL, Nov. 17 (AP) — If attractive, dark-haired Lily Mendes-France had her way, her energetic husband probably would not be premier of France.

The Egyptian-born wife of the dynamic statesman confessed to newspapermen that she does not find politics very amusing, because of the interference with private life. But she has put aside her dislikes, she said, to help her husband in every way she can.

She has seen little of her husband since he became head of the French government. "I have had to read the newspapers to keep track of him on his travels," she said with a smile.

So important is cleanliness to miniature ball bearings that no human hand can touch one during the process of manufacture.

African Crowd Shouts Down British Governor

KAMPALA, Uganda, Nov. 17 (AP) — Excited crowds of Africans stoned European and Asian cars near the exiled Kabaka's palace in Kampala last night and tried to overturn police vehicles.

The violence followed an uproar in the Lukiko (Buganda province native council), where Sir Andrew Cohen, the governor of Uganda, was shouted down while making a speech about the new constitutional reforms.

The interruptions came from the crowd outside the Lukiko Hall. Sir Andrew could not make himself heard, and after trying to continue eventually sat down. A few minutes later he picked up his cocked hat and walked out. As he left the crowd shouted "That's right, go away." Later, however, the disturbance died down. By ten o'clock the streets were deserted and no lights showed in the African locations.

Russia May Hold Security Confab With East Europe

MOSCOW, Nov. 17 (AP)—Izvestia hinted today that if the West won't come to Moscow's short notice conference on all-European security, Moscow likely will have a security conference of its own with East European countries and any neutrals who want to attend.

The Soviet government newspaper warned that if the Western allies go ahead with their agreements to rearm West Germany and ignore the Soviet bid for talks Nov. 29 "the peace-loving (Communist) states will be forced to take steps of their own with the aim of discussing measures which will guarantee their own security."

This was coupled with articles in Pravda, the Communist party organ, and other Soviet newspapers saying the U.S. press was trying to knock down the Soviet invitation, issued Nov. 13. Pravda said the American press was "spreading clearly inspired information indicating that the state department is going to exert pressure on America's partners in London and Paris agreements (for West German rearmament) and demand that they refuse to take part in the Soviet-proposed European conference."

No Moscow newspaper yet mentioned the fact British foreign Secretary Sir Anthony Eden Monday rejected the Russian bid as "openly and explicitly aimed at preventing ratification of the Paris agreements."

None mentioned the similar objections of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and other Western statesmen. All concentrated on trying to place the blame on Washington.

For Newsmen In Iraq, New Government Cards

BAGHDAD, Iraq, Nov. 17 (AP) —A new press law was issued by ordinance tonight obliging all newspapers, periodicals and publications to apply for new permits from the interior ministry before continuing publication.

It places the responsibility for offensive articles on the editor-in-chief and writer of the article and obliges newspapers to have both owners and chief editors. The owners must be Iraqis by birth or naturalized for more than 10 years and not owing allegiance to a foreign power. The chief editors must in addition be over 25.

Members of parliament are barred from journalism if the publication is of a political nature, while no one may be editor of more than one publication at the same time. Similar provisions have been made for foreign publications appearing in Iraq. The interior minister is empowered to suspend any publication if necessary.

All journalists, including foreign correspondents whether Iraqis or foreigners, must obtain identity cards from the interior ministry before continuing writing.

Formosa Query On Ship Seizure

LONDON, Nov 17 (AP)—Britain has instructed its Consul in Formosa to ask the Chiang Kai-Shek government about reports that a Chinese Nationalist warship intercepted and boarded the 7,777-ton British merchant ship Inchwells off the China coast.

The foreign office here also said its consul was told to ask about a report that a Nationalist gunboat detained the British ship Incharran (3,539 tons) between Shanghai and Foochow.

The foreign office did not give dates of the incidents.

The Incharran has figured in several other incidents in the same area. In 1950 she was held by Chinese Nationalists near Hong Kong but released after intervention by the British frigate Mounts Bay.

Disabled Freighter

HALIFAX, Canada, Nov. 17 (AP) —The disabled Panamanian freighter Stork radioed today that the crew of approximately 40 was abandoning the 7,111-ton vessel off the West Newfoundland coast. The Stork, her decks split by a gale Monday, was last reported 66 miles west of Corner Brook, Newfoundland.

ACCORDING TO POLICE

BASHED IN — Miss Asuncion D. Santos, Piti, complained to police that a car bearing Guam license No. 9830 rammed into her car while parked in front of Siciliano's, Tamuning, Tuesday night. The woman said one of her car doors was smashed.

BEING MISCHIEVOUS? — A charge of "malicious mischief" was filed Monday night by Miss Roxana W. Bryant, of Barrigada, against Mrs. Ruth Thomas, also of Barrigada. In her complaint, Miss Bryant said Mrs. Thomas broke into her home, tore up her I.D. card, driver's license and then scattered all her clothes on the floor. Mrs. Bryant said she was away at the time of the entry.

STOLEN JEEP—A Willys jeep bearing Guam license No. 1317 was reported stolen by Gaylerd McConkey Monday while the vehicle was parked at the Tamuning General Shop. Police are investigating.

STOLEN PISTOL — Miss Maria P. Torres, Agat, reported that someone broke into her home between 8 and 8:30 Tuesday night and removed a .32 cal. revolver from one of her drawers. Police are investigating.

WALLET LOST — A leather wallet containing $20 in cash, I.D. card and personal papers was reported lost by Edd Lee Pack, USN, of Ship Repair Facility, Thursday night. The Navy man said he lost the billfold at a store in Agat.

Israel, France Sign Atom Research Pact

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, Nov. 17 (AP)—Israel and France have concluded an agreement for "cooperation in atomic research for peaceful purposes", Premier Moshe Sharett told the Knesset (parliament) yesterday.

Expressing pleasure at "cordial relations with France and collaboration in important spheres", the premier declared "that special value is attached to the agreement between us for cooperation in atomic research for peaceful purposes which we hope will be of benefit to both countries."

The premier gave no details of the agreement but it was noted here that the French delegate to the United Nations, Jules Moch, in addressing the United Nations assembly in New York last week mentioned that an Israeli invention had assisted French technologists in the manufacture of heavy water cheaply.

Alliance Against Vice Freighter In Distress

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP)—Plans were disclosed today for an alliance between U.S. Protestant churches and the Japan Christian Council for the purpose of fighting vice and providing a wholesome environment for U.S. troops in Japan.

The National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. announced its decision to join with the Japanese churches in the new project.

The council said the project is aimed at "combatting a vice-ridden situation that is impairing good relations between Japanese and Americans."

The announcement said funds will be raised to establish off-base recreational centers in Japan, Okinawa, and Korea for GI's whose recreation now is "limited almost completely to cabarets, burlesque houses, taverns, beer halls and houses of prostitution."

TOWN OF MIDGETS

ARICA, Chile, Nov. 17 (AP) — Ruins of an old town, apparently inhabited by midgets, have been found near Guaycute, a few miles inland from this port city, it was disclosed today.

The discoverer, Gov. Alfredo Raiteri of the Arica province, claims the inhabitants of that town, town, thought to be 500 years old, were descendants of some Asiatic seafarers who arrived in this coast in the fifteenth century. Raiteri said today he found extremely small human remnants.

Italy Asks Early U.N. Action On Somaliland Issue

UNITED NATINS, N. Y., Nov. 17 (AP)—Italy's observer to the U.N. general assembly's trusteeship committee said last night settlement of the frontier dispute between Somaliland and Ethiopia would give "great stability to that sensitive area."

Guerino Roberti told the 60-nation committee during the opening debate on the report of the trusteeship council the people of Somaliland were anxious for an early definition of their frontier.

He said the Italian government acted in this matter in its capacity as administrating authority for Somaliland in conformance with U.N. policies and the frontier action "does not affect in any way" Italy's relations with Ethiopia.

Ato Ketema Yifru of Ethiopia said the frontier between his country and Somaliland had not yet been agreed to by the administering authority and therefore could not be defined now. He said negotiations presently are at a standstill but if Italy agreed the two countries could go on with the details.

Jaime Canal Rivas of Colombia, a member of the trusteeship council, said that although the Somaliland issue "might not seem important" today it could get worse and require action by the security council later. He suggested the committee set a "minimum reasonable time' for the parties concerned to reach agreement and if they were unsuccessful the general assembly might designate a mediator.

German Reds Name Leader

BERLIN, Nov. 17 (AP) — East Germans ruling Communist party named Otto Grotewohl today for a second four-year term as prime minister of the Soviet zone government.

No injuries were reported. — (NEWS photo)

Mendes To U.S. For Policy Talks

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Premier Pierre Mendes-France flies to Washington tomorrow to seek understanding for France's international plans.

Mendes-France will have opportunities, in a speech before the National Press Club Friday, and in conferences with President Eisenhower, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and other officials, to give his views on the chances of living in peace in a world divided by the Iron Curtain.

Mendes-France has spoken, since he arrived in Canada en route to Washington, as though he intends to conduct a full exposition of French foreign policy in his talks here. He said he wants to show it is simple and "inspired by several high principles."

Reds Nod To I.L.O. Forced Labor Move

ROME, Nov. 17 (AP) — The governing body of the International Labor Organization (ILO) last night decided unanimously, with surprising Russian consent, to place the slave labor issue before its 1956 general conference.

Some top officials had feared a stormy debate between the East and West, and management and labor, before reaching agreement to discuss the touchy subject.

The Russians only recently joined ILO, which is associated with the United Nations. Seventy nations are members of ILO.

In the background of the forced labor issue is a U.N. report which charges the Soviet Union as a means of political coercion or punishment.

Laborites Fail In Censure Move

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP) — The Churchill administration held its Conservative party ranks solid tonight on the touchiest domestic issue in British politics and easily survived Labor opposition move to bring down the government.

The Labor Party motion to censure the government's policy on old age pensions was defeated 305 to 284, a government majority of 21 and just about the margin between the two parties in the House of Commons.

The vote came after a sharp and at times bitter debate on the labor motion that the government failed "to relieve the plight of old age pensioners."

Both parties had their political eyes on voting tomorrow to fill a vacant seat at West Derby, a Liverpool suburb.

Japanese Mayor Reported Mauled By AF Sentries

TOKYO, Nov. 17 (AP)—The influential newspaper Asahi said yesterday U.S. Air Force sentries posted at the crash of an RB29 shot down by Russian fighters Nov. 7 have fired warning shots at Japanese in the area and beaten up a village mayor trying to photograph damage to a farm house hit in the crash.

Air Force headquarters here said it was checking the report and would have a full statement soon.

The newspaper said sentries had fired "at least 50" warning rounds at Japanese in five days following the crash in a remote area of the northern island of Hokkaido.

It said the airmen beat up the mayor and took away his films when he photographed a farmhouse which burned down after the plane crashed into it. Asahi said the mayor took the photos to establish damage claims to be submitted to the Japanese government. Total damage is estimated at $5,700, Asahi said.

U.S. Adopts 'Jet-Propelled David' To Strengthen Far East Defenses

By FRED SPARKS
NEA Staff Correspondent

TOKYO — (NEA) — When David stopped Goliath with a sling shot he proved you can lick a big guy without getting close enough for the giant to grab you.

That's what we'll do if we ever have to struggle with the Chinese giant again. We'll use a jet-propelled sling shot.

Chatting in Pearl Harbor and Tokyo with U.S. generals and admirals, I found "David and Goliath" the theme of our present "New Look" in the Orient.

We're moving GIs out of Korea as fast as the ROKs can take over. It's doubtful—no matter what—if they'll ever return to the Asian mainland, except for shore leave in Hong Kong's Eternal Joy Ballroom.

* * *

We're telling friends like Korea and Siam and what's left of Indochina we'll gladly furnish weapons and know-how (plus air and sea muscle) to plug any Red Chinese putsch. But they'll have to man the foxholes with their own sons.

From Hawaii through the Pacific island bases and Japan to Seoul there are visible signs of the pull-back.

After dark, Honolulu's hysterical streets recall World War II. GIs of the 25th Division (returned from Korea) outnumber possible dates ten to one and get their kicks having "Mother" tattooed on biceps.

The Pentagon figures that this body power sunbathing on Waikiki worries Peiping more than if it were shivering in a Korean tent. Reason: In Korea a GI is pinned down, out of any major show. But with our sea control he could shift quickly to any threatened island — like the Philippines, Formosa or Japan. Furthermore, he could raid China's endless coastline, making Red seaside sentries apply for mountain duty.

Major air units have been evacuated from Korea and Japan so the MIGs can't catch them asleep on the strip. Guam, in the Marianas, has again become the Home of the A-Bomb.

The planes that mushroomed Hiroshima and Nagasaki took off from the Marianas. Recently fat-bellied B-36s were snuggled under the palm trees.

They give us more flying block-busting power than we had in the Pacific when we made Hirohito quit without landing a single Marine. And Peiping is just a few cigarette puffs further for the intercontinental jets.

Newly trained Japanese soldiers are slowly taking over GI responsibilities here in Japan. The new army is democratic compared to Imperial days when a lieutenant would slap every face in his company if drill was shabby.

Giants Sign Mays For 25 G's; Gomez To Receive Fifteen

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP) — Willie Mays has signed a new contract with the New York Giants for a reported $25,000 and Ruben Gomez will get about $15,000 next year.

Horace Stoneham, owner of the world champions, said today he signed the pair during his recent inspection tour of the Giants' hired hands in Puerto Rico where both Mays and Gomez are playing winter ball with the Santurce club.

The Giants, like all other ball clubs, do not divulge any exact salaries but it was indicated that a "good guess" would be $25,000 for the colorful center fielder who won the National League batting championship on the final day of the season. Mays received several raises last summer but this would mean a healthy increase.

With Captain Alvin Dark already in the fold, signed for two years at $36,500 per year, the champs have a head start on the contract problem that always haunts a World Series winner the following spring.

Mays, of course, was the big man in the Giants' lineup all season, returning from the Army to hit .345, smash 41 home runs and drive in 110 runs with his 195 hits. His sensational catch in the opening game of the Series got the Giants off winging for their four-game sweep over Cleveland.

Gomez was a vital factor, too, with his 17-9 won and lost record and his 2.84 earned run average. The Puerto Rican right-hander won the third game of the Series from Cleveland, 6-2.

Chicago Lets Slugger Go To Indians For 'Substantial' Amount And Player

CLEVELAND, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs today traded home run hitter Ralph Kiner, whose salary was a reported $65,000, to the Cleveland Indians for an unnamed player and cash which Indians General Manager Hank Greenberg said was "substantial."

The Indians have been trying to get Kiner for more than a year but were blocked by refusal of other clubs to waive him out of the National League where he led or tied for the lead in homer hitting for seven seasons.

Kiner received the news happily at his home in Palm Springs, California.

"I'm looking forward to being with Cleveland, where some of my best friends play," the 32-year-old outfielder said. In addition to being a close friend of Greenberg, Kiner is well acquainted with Manager Al Lopez, a former Pittsburgh Pirate catcher; outfielder Wall Westlake, another former Pirate, and pitcher Bob Lemon, a Californian.

Greenberg said he thought being with a club in pennant contention would help Kiner to a good 1955 season with the Indians and that he would be used in the outfield and as "emergency first baseman." Kiner tried the first base position with the Pirates in 1951.

"He's just turned 32 and I don't consider 32 the point where a fellow has lost his athletic ability," said Greenberg.

For the Cubs, who obtained him from the Pirates in June, 1953, Kiner batted .285 in 147 games last season and hit 22 home runs.

"That was the worst year he's had since he's been in the majors," Greenberg said. "But that is the way you get these players—you don't get them after their best year."

In nine seasons with the National League Kiner hit 351 homers, an average of 39 a season—getting 50 on two occasions. In six seasons he has had at least 100 runs batted in. He has led the National League in homers, or tied for the lead, seven times. His lifetime batting average is .281.

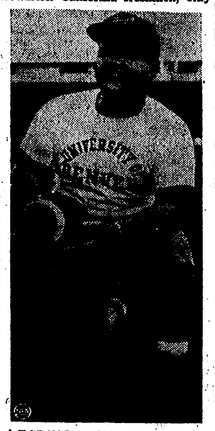
Worker Blackman Defeated Polio To Pick Denver Off Football Floor

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Robert L. Blackman is a newer name in the line of superior football coaches.

And there is an unusual story behind the success that led pudgy, 36-year-old Bob Blackman to the University of Denver, where his good fortune has multiplied.

In 1937, the personable Blackman was elected captain of the Southern California freshmen, only to be struck down by polio.



LEADING MAN—Bob Blackman does it with good horses and a V formation. (NEA)

Young Blackman turned to coaching and champion service, high school and junior college teams led him to the University of Denver, which he picked up off the football floor in two years.

Blackman had quite a selling job to do since Denver lost seven straight Skyline Conference games in 1952 and posted a one-five and one tie mark last season to deadlock for the cellar.

The meteoric rise of the Pioneers has Rocky Mountain region fans talking DU football as never before.

Denver, picked to finish no higher than fifth in the eight-team Skyline league, looms as a favorite to cop its first undisputed championship. The end comes against Colorado A. and M. on Thanksgiving Day.

Denver has averaged 31 points a game and no foe has held the Pioneers to less than three touchdowns.

This despite the fact that while the backs are veterans, the line is green, having only one regular of 1953, and he moved from center to guard.

Denver's trigger man has been Harold Fairly, a 150-pound tightly wound package of skin and bones who is probably the most colorful and unpredictable performer ever to wear Red and Gold.

Rusty Fairly ran the quarterback keep from Blackman's V formation, a split T with the fullback up to either side of the quarterback as a blocking back, so well that he was dubbed the Mad Magician. The little fellow was number four in the nation in total offense when he suffered a knee injury in Denver's seventh game.

While wishing the rattling Fairly nothing but the best of luck while he was lifting someone else, the remaining opponents were greatly relieved when he was sidelined. Blackman never puts all his carrots in one bag, however, and bounced back with Jimmy Bowen, a junior who completed 11 of 19 passes against a Brigham Young varsity that ranked 10th in the nation in pass defense.

Russia Accepts Membership On U.N. Atom Group

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 18 (AP) — Russia accepted yesterday a place on an advisory committee to arrange in international scientific conference on atomic energy. The Soviet Union also apparently edged closer to full participation in President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace program.

In a speech closing general debate in the U.N. assembly's political committee, Soviet Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky pointed out what he called some flaws in a seven-power Western plan to create an international atomic agency along the lines of a U.N. specialized agency. He said, however, negotiations are continuing and added:

"The question of further work, organization and so on has not been touched upon by us at all. As I say, we adhere to the framework of the draft resolution (the seven-power proposal) which, in addition to the shortcomings I have mentioned, also contains a number of entirely acceptable provisions.

"For instance, we have no misgivings with regard to the proposal to set up an advisory committee contained in Paragraph 5 of Part P, with the participation of the countries which have been listed here informally. We are continuing these consultations. They require time and they call for patience because we, like the sponsors of the sevenpower draft resolution, have to examine thoroughly such points as are still controversial. I have a feeling that both parties are making every effort to eliminate or compose the differences which exist, and haste here would not be appropriate."

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., chief American delegate, joined Vishinsky's plea for a slight delay so the seven powers could study all suggestions and especially the amendments proposed by the Soviet Union and try to agree on a so-

LOCAL CONDITIONS TO BE STUDIED TO EXPEDITE HOUSING--WON-PAT

The Guam Legislature will conduct extensive studies of local conditions with the view to providing a favorable atmosphere for speedy home construction in the territory, Speaker A. B. Won-Pat said yesterday at a luncheon welcome for him sponsored by his fellow lawmakers.

Won-Pat returned Wednesday night from Washington, D. C., following completion of his mission in connection with the $15-million Federal housing aid recently approved by President Eisenhower for rehabilitation here.

Won-Pat said the lawmaking body will look into the high cost of insurance rates prevailing in Guam, noting that insurance rates here "are too high compared with Hawaii and the mainland."

Another problem that hinders the rehabilitation of island homes is the high cost of construction materials, Won-Pat said. He noted that building contractors have not yet ventured into low-cost housing programs.

Won-Pat revealed that one of the primary purposes of his trip to Washington to seek Federal assistance was to provide for wide-scale low-housing projects that would benefit the average family.

"We will not be justifying our request for Federal aid if no program for low-cost housing will be effected," Won-Pat asserted.

Speaking of his mission, the Sinajana solon said that housing authorities in Washington, D.C. "have realized that Guam has not been rehabilitated or benefited with Federal aid along the housing problem." Because of the awareness of the Island's housing needs, Guam was designated an emergency area, he said. An emergency area is entitled to assistance from the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fanny-May) under the

Democrats Agree If Consulted On Major Decisions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP) — President Eisenhower appealed to congressional leaders of both parties yesterday for continued bi-partisanship on foreign and defense policies, in "the best interests of our nation."

Top Democrats, who will be leaders in the new Congress, indicated agreement with the President's view that such an approach is "essential" —provided they are consulted ahead of time on major, critical decisions.

Sen. Walter George (D-Ga.), slated to become chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Eisenhower promised such advance consultation "so far as that was practical."

For two and a quarter hours, the President, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson and 22 Democratic and Republican congressional chieftains explored America's present and future course in the fields of foreign affairs and national security. They conferred in the White House cabinet room at Eisenhower's invitation.

Afterward, Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty issued a formal statement saying that:

"The President opened the meeting by saying it was essential to have a continuing bi-partisan approach to foreign affairs and national security matters that would represent the best interests of our nation regardless of which political party controlled the Congress."

Eisenhower also said yesterday in New York he will "press forward" at the next session of Congress for enactment of the foreign trade program he recommended earlier this year.

The President's program, embracing proposals intended to liberalize U.S. trade and tariff policies, was said from 1951-53, the Philippines' exports to Guam amounted to $6.5 million while the island's exports to the Philippines totalled only $13,500.

Mendes-France Arrives In U.S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP) — Premier Pierre Mendes-France of France flew into Washington last night to discuss with top U.S. officials the whole range of world problems in which the two countries are interested.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon greeted the premier as he stepped from the big Air France super-Constellation plane which brought him from Canada. Next to greet him was Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, with whom Mendes-France has arranged to discuss some 20 problems encompassing situations in Europe, North Africa and Southeast Asia.

Madame Mendes-France, carrying a bouquet of red roses, followed her husband from the plane, which touched down at the mist-covered Washington airport at 5:35 p.m., EST.

Panama Demands Release Of Ships Nabbed By Peru

PANAMA, Nov. 18 (AP) — Panama demanded yesterday that Peru release five whaling ships flying the Panamanian flag which have been seized by the Peruvian navy off South America's northwest coast.

The seized whalers, part of a fleet of 14 operated by Greek-born shipping magnate Aristotle Socrates Onassis, include a 13,000-ton whaling factory ship which charged by radio that Peruvian planes had bombed and machinegunned her before she surrendered.

A Peruvian government spokesman in Lima said yesterday small bombs had been dropped near the factory ship — the Olympic Challenger — as a warning to change the vessel's course toward the Peruvian mainland.

The Panamanian protest demanding the ships' release and suspension of all action against them was delivered to Peruvian Ambassador German Aramburu here by Foreign Minister Jose Ramon Guizado. They conferred for a half hour at the foreign ministry. Officials said details could not be revealed.

They said, however, there is a possibility the case, arising from Peru's claim to sovereignty over the sea to a line 200 miles from her shore, may be carried to the United Nations.

A similar 200-mile limit is claimed by Chile and Ecuador. Those nations have joined Peru in a pact to defend what they call their marine resources within the 200-mile belt.

The Lima newspaper El Comercio reported that the Olympic Challenger was found operating 80 miles west of the port of Mancora. Three of the seized ships were either at or proceeding to the north Peru port of Paita under guard of Peruvian destroyers. The other two whalers were reported heading for a Peruvian port, but no word has been received of their anchoring.

The West German embassy in Lima said the Bonn federal republic planned no protest, although a

Herman Denies Tariff Report

Secretary R. S. Herman, acting governor, yesterday emphatically denied a Manila report that authorities here contemplate imposing duty on Philippine goods if the Philippine government does not enact a "reciprocal free trade" agreement.

An Associated Press dispatch from Manila Wednesday stated that Philippine Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez proposed tariff-free trade between the Philippine Republic and Guam "to balance trade between the two countries."

The dispatch quoted Hernandez as citing the import-export inequities now existing because Philippine goods enter Guam duty free while imports from U.S. territories are subject to tariff. Hernandez said from 1951-53, the Philippines' exports to Guam amounted to $6.5 million while the island's exports to the Philippines totalled only $13,500.

Adenauer Outlines Atomic Energy Plan Restricted To Peacetime Production

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP) — West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has outlined to the Allied powers the Bonn government's plan for an atomic energy program restricted to civilian purposes.

Foreign Secretary Sir Anthony Eden yesterday told the house of commons of a letter from Adenauer disclosing that German scientists intend to build their first nuclear reactor within two years.

The chancellor promised that the annual production and import of nuclear fuels will be held down to 3,500 grams (about 7¾ pounds) —what Bonn regards as necessary for a civilian program. Under the Paris accords, West Germany would be barred from making atomic weapons.

Copies of Adenauer's letter, published by the British government in a white paper, was distributed to the U.S. and France through the Allied high commission in Bonn.

The letter replied to questions from Eden about West Germany's plans for an atomic program following ratification of the Paris agreements which will restore sovereignty to the German federal republic.

Although the Paris accords specifies West Germany must forego the production of atomic weapons, the restrictions were not spelled out on any program for peace-time uses of atomic energy.

Adenauer's letter accepting civilian restrictions came in response to a request from Eden for controls similar to those incorporated in the now defunct European Defense Community agreement.

The EDC treaty said "any quantity of nuclear fuel produced in any one year in excess of 500 grams will be considered material especially designed for and primarily useful in atomic weapons."

The British foreign office said the increase in the German quota of nuclear fuels from the EDC figure of 500 grams to 3,500 "was due to the increased need for nuclear fuels as a result of technological developments."

'Vigorous Admirer' Bruises McCarthy; Senate Censure Debates May Recess

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP) — An elbow bruise reported inflicted by a vigorous admirer sent Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) to the hospital yesterday and there was talk of calling "time out" in the U.S. Senate's censure fight.

Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.), a member of the Watkins committee which recommended censure of McCarthy, said "some consideration" undoubtedly will be given today to recessing the debate unless McCarthy is able to attend by that time.

Case told a reporter McCarthy's absence "raises rather serious questions both of the Senate's courtesy and its attitude toward a fellow senator."

He noted McCarthy was represented on the floor yesterday, however, by the presence of his lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams, and by Sen. Herman Welker (R-Idaho), whose often interrupted pro-McCarthy speech filled most of the day.

Welker, floor manager for the McCarthy side, challenged the key findings of the Watkins committee as "absurd" and as "contrary to our whole theory of government."

McCarthy failed to appear at the session and it was not learned until late afternoon that he had been admitted to the nearby Bethesda (Maryland) Naval Hospital, where a hospital spokesman said he may remain for several days.

McCarthy's secretary said he hurt his elbow in Milwaukee last Saturday when an enthusiastic supporter shook hands so hard it rammed the elbow against a glass table top. The hospital officer said a contusion resulted and the elbow has now grown swollen and painful.

Senate Republican leader William Knowland of California indicated he doesn't think McCarthy's hospitalization need delay action. Knowland was reported to believe preliminary voting might begin tomorrow.

lution.

The committee cancelled the afternoon session to permit closed-door consultation and will meet again this morning, with a vote possibly late today or tomorrow.

After conferring for 90 minutes with the six other delegations, Lodge told reporters last night the group had strengthened a revised resolution. He said it took into account changes suggested by Russia, India and others in the debate.

Lodge said the new draft would be shown to Vishinsky and then presented to the committee tomorrow. He declined to disclose the nature of the changes, but expressed confidence the new proposal would win unanimous support.

Some delegates familiar with Russian policy predicted the Russians would agree with the West on an acceptable resolution and might even go along as a co-sponsor with the United States, Britain, France, Canada, Australia, Belgium and South Africa.

The resolution notes that negotiations are in progress for establishing the international atomic energy agency and suggests that it negotiate an appropriate form of relationship with the U.N., similar to that of the specialized agencies.

Section 5 of Part B to which Vishinsky referred extends an invitation to the Soviet Union, India, Brazil, United States, Britain, France and Canada to assist Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold in arranging the scientific conference to meet some time next summer. Brazil has accepted and India is expected to do so.

Red Air Force Starts Activities Off Coast

TAIPEH, Formosa, Nov. 18 (AP)—Chinese Comunist planes twice yesterday tried unsuccessfully to intercept Nationalist patrol planes along the mainland coast, the Nationalist defense ministry announced. The ministry said four MIG-15 jets were sighted southwest of the Tachen islands, about 200 miles north of here, yesterday morning.

Bohlen Called To Washington

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW, Nov 18 (AP) — Western diplomats in Moscow said yesterday they consider the summons of U.S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen to Washington for talks as a possible opening of a new phase of Soviet-American relations.

Bohlen, who speaks fluent Russian, and has long been one of the West's most respected authorities on the Soviet Union, is also highly regarded by some prominent Soviet officials.

Bohlen had an animated and earnest talk with Soviet Premier Malenkov at a Kremlin dinner November 7. According to authoritative reports, Malenkov told the American ambassador that diplomats on both sides should deal efficiently with problems as they came up to prevent relatively minor issues from becoming big ones. Malenkov also reportedly advocated the maximum use of diplomatic channels for smoothing East-West relations.

Diplomats here do not imagine that the whole of the Bohlen-Malenkov conversation has yet been made public. They feel there was probably more said which Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles want to discuss personally with Bohlen.

In particular, these sources believe Washington wants Bohlen's views on the sincerity of the cordial remarks made not only by Malenkov but by Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov at the Kremlin festivities in connection with the 37th anniversary of the October revolution.

Mendes-France Now In U.S. For Parley

After greetings from members of the diplomatic corps, headed by French Ambassador Henri Bonnet, Mendes-France walked side-by-side with Nixon to the Military Air Transport Service lounge to record an arrival message.

Mendes-France, speaking into a battery of microphones, said he is coming to America "in a spirit of optimism," feeling that "France and the whole free world are making steady progress on the road to peace."

amended housing act.

The $15 million designated for Guam will be utilized for the rehabilitation of private homes and will spur the construction of low-cost housing projects, Won Pat stated.

Present at the luncheon were department heads, members of the judiciary, civic leaders, businessmen and congressmen.

At a press conference yesterday, Won Pat revealed that when he arrived in Washington, "not one cent" has been considered to the housing project here. He said the Nimitz project had been approved apart from the $15,000,000 ultimately allocated and at that time the Interior Department had decided to lump Guam and Alaska in the 15-million-dollar request.

Alaska's needs, he said, would easily have absorbed that allotment, and Guam would virtually have nothing for its own necessities.

Won Pat stated the apparent reason for the deletion of a specific sum for Guam in the original Fanny May bill was to expedite the passage of the measure.

He acknowledged yesterday the invaluable assistance of Sen. Homer Capehart (R-Ind.), chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee and Interior Secretary Douglas McKay for their support in assuring the approval of the housing aid fund. Other Washington officials who strongly supported the appropriation for Guam, he said, were: William McKenna, counsel for the Capehart committee; Maxwell Rabb, cabinet operations officer and associate counsel to President Eisenhower; Stewart French, counsel, Senate Insular and Interior Affairs committee, Albert Cole, Housing and Home Finance Agency administrator; Homer H. Gruenther, assistant to the deputy assistant to the President; Sam R. Broadbent, chief, Commerce and Finance Division, Bureau of the Budget; Roy E. James, staff director, Senate Labor and Welfare committee; J. Stanley Baughman, president, FNMA, and Colonel Ried, vice president and counsel, FNMA

Undisputed Boss Of Egypt-Nasser

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 18 (AP) — The revolution council headed by Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser last night gave over to the Egyptian cabinet the functions of the presidency of the republic.

The presidency was established June 18, 1953, when the council formally abolished the Egyptian monarchy and proclaimed the Republic. The office had been vacant since last Sunday when Maj. Gen. Mohamed Naguib, Egypt's first and only president, was removed from office.

The revolution council controls the cabinet, and its membership is largely interlocking. As premier of the republica, military governor of Egypt and chairman of the council, the 36-year-old Lt. Col. Nasser is the undisputed boss of Egypt now. He removed Naguib as premier last March and retired him to the job of figure-head president with a special cabinet minister to watch over his acts.

large number of seamen aboard the whalers are German nationals. Peru will be asked, however, to grant them freedom.

Reports from Paita, a provincial capital on an inlet of the Pacific called Paita Bay, said the masters of two of the whaling ships had been arrested and supplanted by Peruvian officers when they refused to surrender their ship's papers.

The two were said to have entered the port as prisoners aboard the destroyers Aguirre and Rodriguez, which herded the whalers Olympic Conqueror and Olympic Fighter into the bay.

METHODS OF REPAIRING VILLAGE STREETS OBSOLETE

The ancient method of repairing village streets has been costing island taxpayers tremendous amount of money each year. And whenever a heavy downpour comes, the loose dirt or cacajo is washed away and the maintenance gangs have to refill holes again and again. Since the first time that we applied old method to date, the total sum of money, we may say wasted, could have been sufficient to pave the different villages three times over with asphalt that would not only last a long period of time, but also beautify the village thoroughfares. As to why previous public works engineers never did this, no one can answer today. The days of the cascajo streets and roads are gone. Traffic on the highways and village streets today are too constant and heavy, and only modern pavement can manage to hold up and last the strain.

MESSAGE FROM MANILA

Associated Press in Manila has responded to the latest developments on the Telesco episode concerning the Filipino labor situation here, at the request of this newspaper. A message from the Manila bureau stated that the "reporter who interviewed him insists Telesco was quoted correctly and cites pictures in local papers showing Telesco returning to emphasize he did not have the wrong man. Telesco refuses make any further comment but admits talking to reporter at airport. Telesco commented Colonel Soriano 'has me by the tail.' Sources in his office confirm his boss has Telesco on gridle presumably for talking out of turn. Believe denial letters were written in effort to smooth situation over since Soriano interests have important business connections in Guam."

There is no doubt now about the source of the controversial statements. But it still is puzzling that Mr. Telesco should make them since it does not seem apparent that he or his boss would have much, if any, to gain by it. As far as we know, neither of them are involved in the mass recruitment of Filipino laborers for Guam to make it profitable for them to misrepresent the facts.

For the moment, the issue is closed. Ironically, however, another report about the alleged intention of Guam authorities to "impose duty on all Philippine goods unless reciprocal free trade is enacted," has also originated from Manila and subsequently has been denied by the territorial government.

Whether both erroneous reports came from the same unknown source is hard to say. But it appears that Manila has become more than ever a gossip-and-rumor factory with materials for its products apparently smuggled out of Guam. The result, of course, is cheap goods not worth the smuggler's troubles and in one instance, at least, it would not be surprising if someone's once high and lofty head is axed away.

We hope the consequences of these misrepresentations won't affect the good relationship that has existed between our government and the Philippine administration. We trust the incidents will serve as a warning to both governments not to act hastily on unconfirmed reports. On the other hand, to ignore them completely might result in unhappy consequences from which might arise serious misunderstandings out of which neither can hope to realize any benefit.

The Mature Parent

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Like you and I, Mrs. Dobbs' mother had a fault or two. One was her insistence on "love" among her children — a demand as premature as the demand for ripe fruit from an apple seed. Thus, to sustain her ideal of them as angerless people, her children learned to believe that they felt no anger.

As a result, Mrs. Dobbs find it hard to deny her daughter her own way. But now that Linda has reached school age, denials have become necessary. Scenes always follow. A request that Linda change her school clothes is met by defiance and angry tears. Though Mrs. Dobbs recognizes her situation as intolerable, she doesn't know how to change it.

Let her not despair. Intolerable situations are the ones that produce change. Instead of despairing, let's look at her inherited ideal of herself — the angerless person. Let's test it.

Has this ideal of herself produced for Mrs. Dobbs' freedom, peace and love? If it hasn't, what makes it good? Why does Mrs. Dobbs keep it?

She keeps the ideal because she doesn't yet dare to question the wisdom that imposed it on her. Trust of her mother blinds her to the fact that fear of expressing anger at Linda's attacks is fear of disappointing her mother. She is not ready to see that the "loving" ideal was in fact training in dishonesty.

The fact that it has produced neither freedom, peace nor love demonstrates its falseness.

When Mrs. Dobbs can recognize the uselessness of this ideal of her self, she will find the strength to throw it out —and say to her angry child, "Hate me if you like. Cry your head off — but get those school clothes changed." In this column may have a problem like Mrs. Dobbs. They may not know what I'm talking about.

Mothers who have read this far If so, lets not worry. Let's just focus on this statement: "Any ideal of ourselves that has not produced freedom, peace and love is one to question and question and question."

We do not untangle ourselves from the selves imposed by our parents in one day.

It's a big leap when we speak plainly to Linda for the first time. Before we are willing to take that leap, the situation must become "intolerable." Old trust must crumble under our feet. Then, because there's nothing to do, we take our leap — and discover ourselves.

Just Simmering

WASHINGTON. — The newspapers carried big headlines last week that John P. Davies, eight times investigated by a State Department security board in the past and eight times cleared, had been called in by Secretary of State Dulles and fired.

The headlines carried the essential facts in the case, the fact that no doubt was cast upon Davies' loyalty and that no taint of Communism was involved. But because of space and the press of other news, they did not carry the human, backstage story of John Paton Davies, fired after 23 years, largely because of the personal revenge of one man.

That man is Patrick J. Hurley, the likable, voluble ex-secretary of war in Hoover's cabinet, who was sent by Roosevelt as wartime ambassador to Nationalist China.

It was there that Hurley, not Gen. George C. Marshall, made the decision to favor a coalition between the Chinese Communists and Chiang Kai-Shek. Hurley has been blaming John Davies for that decision ever since.

It was Hurley who first brought disloyalty charges against Davies. It was Hurley who kept nagging, badgering the State Department until Davies was scrutinized a total of nine times. And it was Hurley who was the main witness against Davies during the latest hearing.

All this took a long time, for Davies had some faithful supporters, among them Gen. Bedell Smith, former undersecretary of State and wartime chief of staff to General Eisenhower. Smith not only paid public tribute to Davies in his book but also stanchly supported him in loyalty hearings.

But, finally, Hurley got his man. John Davies, after 23 years in the career service, was called in by Dulles and fired. He got no severance pay as he would if working with most private firms. He got no pension. He did not even get two weeks notice. He has four small children, aged three to eleven, and he's now looking for a job.

CHINA WRANGLE — To get the full picture, you have to go back to the war days of 1944-45 when American personnel in China was at sixes and sevens, and when Gen. Joe Stilwell was in such a bitter feud with Gen. Claire Chennault that eventually he was replaced by Gen. Al Wedemeyer; and when Wedemeyer, in turn, was in such a feud with Ambassador Hurley that for weeks they would hardly speak though they shared the same bathroom.

Hurley, a tempestuous gentleman, who once picked a near fist fight with Gen. Robert McClure at a Chungking cocktail party with Chinese present, was quite emphatic in those days that the United States should work with both the Communists and Chiang Kai-Shek. In fact, it was Hurley who went to Yenan personally to persuade Communist chief Mao Tse-Tung to come to Chungking to patch up differences with Chiang Kai-Shek.

Hurley, of course, would like to forget all this. And some of his most vigorous reports favoring cooperation with the Communists were censored out of the State Department's publication of diplomatic correspondence on China. But enough stayed in to give Hurley away.

Furthermore, a photo still exists at the Chinese embassy in Washington of Patrick J. Hurley as big as life with his arm around Communist dictator Mao Tse-Tung; while Washington newsmen well remember Pat's Press Club speech on Nov. 29, 1945, in which he proclaimed:

"The only difference between Chinese Communists and Oklahoma Republicans is that the Oklahoma Republicans are not armed."

PAL OF STALIN'S — Hurley argued that the Chinese Communists would never team up with Moscow. He wrangled several trips to Moscow and loved telling about these trips. He would regale President Roosevelt and members of Congress after each trip.

One of his favorite stories was how he taught Stalin to speak one pithy sentence of English and how Stalin went up to a group of English and American guests and used that sentence. The sentence was: "What the hell's going on here?"

But the handsome Hurley's activities in Moscow were not always exactly helpful. In the spring of 1945, for instance, Hurley went to Moscow to try to make sure Stalin would not support the Chinese Communists. Averell Harriman, then ambassador to Russia, accompanied him and gave significant report on how Hurley handled the interview.

First, Pat told Stalin that he hoped Stalin believed China must not be split up; to which Stalin, of course, agreed. Then he asked, in effect: "You are for a united China, aren't you, marshal?" Again Stalin, of course, agreed.

ZIONIST LEADER ACCUSES HISTORIAN TOYNBEE OF 'SLURRING' JEWS IN BOOK

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Nov. 18 (AP) — A. U.S. religious-Zionist leader last night accused British historian Arnold J. Toynbee of "slurring" Jews by writing that they 'expelled" Arabs from Israel in the same way "Nazis banished Jews from Germany."

Rabbi Mordecai Kirshblum said Toynbee made the comparison on the recent eight volume of his "Study of History."

"This distortion," Rabbi Kirshblum said, is part of a "calculated effort by anti-Jewish and anti-Israel elements to blacken the good name of American Jewry and that of Israel."

Rabbi Kirshblum made his attack on Toynbee in a report to the annual convention of the Mizrachi organization of America. The rabbi, a New Yorker, is president of the Religious-Zionist group.

"It is ..... a matter of the most distressing consequence," he said, "that we find a historian of the rank of Dr. Arnold J. Toynbee declaring in a major historical work that the Jews of Israel expelled the Arab refugees and thus have repeated the crimes of the Germans against the Jews.

"This shocking comparison is equally false and vicious."

Rabbi Kirshblum said Toynbee does soften "this defamation by admitting that the systematic and incredible murder of millions of Jews by the Nazis has no parallel whatever in the Israel war of independence.

"But he buries this concession in a footnote while his text proclaims repeatedly the twin myths of Zionist aggression against, and expulsion of, the Palestinian Arabs."

"We must leave it to the judgment of Dr. Toynbee's peers in historical scholarship to determine whether Dr. Toynbee has affected his status as a leading historian by these extraordinary examples of anti-scholastic bias," Rabbi Kirshblum said. "But we must add that Dr Toynbee clearly has given intellectual stature to a new low in anti-Semitism"

Rabbi Kirshblum said he was also alarmed over increasing U.S. "favoritism' toward the Arab powers.

Red Bulgaria Opens Danube To Austria

VIENNA, Austria, Nov. 18 (AP) — Communist Bulgaria has agreed to let Austrian ships sail down the Danube river almost to the Black Sea, it was announced in Vienna last night.

The Austrian government said that, for the first time since the war, Austrian ships would be able to sail as far as Ruse (Rustchuk) on the Romanian-Bulgarian border immediately south of the Romanian capital of Bucharest.

Must Have Been Who Bit Who, Isn't It?

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil, Nov. 18 (AP)—According to police Eumaro Lopes, 37, was staggering home after taking a bit too much liquor. As he neared home a neighbor's dog ran out and bit him on the leg. The dog immediately fell over dead. Lopes is recovering.

U.S. Chops Off Sugar Import Quotas

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP) — The U.S. Agriculture Department today withdrew a 50,000-ton increase in 1954 sugar import quotas announced Monday because it caused prices to drop sharply.

The increase would have raised import and domestic marketing quotas for the year to 8,250,000 tons.

Officials said prices of raw sugar at New York dropped from 6.25 to 6 cents a pound after announcement of the increase.

Officials said the increase would be made later in the year if it could be accomplished without dropping prices below objectives of the control law.

California Previews a Casual Spring

Colorful, Easy Air Dominates '55 Spring And Resort Fashions

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Colorful, casual, with the free-and-easy air of the West are the 1955 spring and resort fashions being previewed by California designers.

Through the new silhouette is evident in many of the more sophisticated collections, stressing the long torso look, the things that California does best are the kind of clothes that fit the western life.

Sports clothes and bathing suits are the most important things in any Californian's wardrobe — and these are the fashions that make the news in the western fashion showings.

In step with the new modest look. bathing suits will be more covered up next season. Inner construction in many gives a new longer look to the torso, a higher look to the bust. Swim suits are shown with gay coordinated accessories such as terry jackets, capes, outsize beach towels, sandals and mats. The wool knit maillot promises to be an important addition to the season's beach lineup.

Color is gay and sometimes daring in the California collections. A vivid red linen blouse is teamed with pink velveteen shorts. Tangerine, orange, lemon and lime are important notes in the color symphony, and deeper jewel tones of sapphire and amethyst also are in high demand.

Suit jackets will be longer next spring, in California as elsewhere, and the dress-and-coat costume will be as popular as ever, in all versions.

Fabric range from tweeds and handsome raw silks to the cottons which California designers always have known how to glorify.

TYROLEAN NOTE — The gay outfit (left) of peasent blouse appliqued felt skirt and black velveteen basque is designed by Marjorie Montgomery of Los Angeles for summer resorts. At right, is a 'swing to color' bright red linen blouse and pink velveteen shorts designed by Zolot. (AP photo)

Use "dry" soapsuds when washing plastic shoes and handbags. Whip up a lot of soap with very little water until the suds stand up stiff. Then, with a clean cloth, wipe soiled surfaces quickly. Rinse with a damp-dry cloth, then with a dry cloth.

Breakfast Helps In Alertness Of School Children

Going without breakfast as a shockingly large number of American school children do, is detrimental to both their attitudes and scholastic attainments.

That is the conclusion of a recent controlled test on 25 students, ages 12 to 14, conducted by Dr. W. W. Tuttle, professor of physiology, and Dr. Kate Daum, professor of nutrition, at the University of Iowa College of Medicine. Data were collected from the 25 schoolboys over a period of 26 weeks.

As reported in the July issue of the Journal of the American Dietetic Association, the teachers' report "showed that the majority of boys had a defiintely better attitude and better scholastic record during the period when breakfast (a basic cereal and milk breakfast — fruit cereal with milk, bread, butter or margarine and milk to drink) was included in the daily dietary regimen than when it was omitted. For example, some of the boys were careless and inattentive during the late morning hours when breakfast was omitted. During the period when they ate breakfast, these same boys showed recognizable improvement, especially in scholastic attainment.

"One subject was reported to be careless, languid and listless during the late morning hours when he did not eat breakfast, but did good scholastic work and had sufficient energy for outside activity during the period when breakfast was included in his daily eating plan.

HANDSHAKE IS YOUR GESTURE

Every woman likes to be an individual, but there are times when it's imperative that one be as inconspicuous as possible. One of these occasions is a large party or reception.

The question of acceptable practice on gloves for handshaking has become more confused since the President's wife has elected to shake hands with gloves on. It would probably be easiest and most relaxing if you take both your gloves off when you enter the receiving line and carry them with your bag, in your left hand.

A lovely woman, correctly dressed, can spoil her entire appearance with an unfortunate handshake. When your turn comes, give your hand with a clear gesture. Give a firm clasp and then let go.

STEEL INDUSTRY LEADS IN STOCK MARKET ADVANCE

By RADER WINGET

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP) — The stock market continued advancing today with the steels and railroads leading the rise in heavy trading.

The market now has established seven new 25-year peaks out of the last eight sessions. There were few signs of faltering in the bull-market boom started by the elections two weeks ago.

There were some sharp losses, usually caused by corporate developments, but there was no acute weakness in the list.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks gained 70 cents at $144.50. The average was up 90 cents yesterday.

Now the average stands at the highest level since Oct. 15, 1929, and some $13 below the all-time high established on Sept. 3 of that year.

Volume hit a new high for the year at 3,830,000 shares. There hasn't been that much business done since Jan. 17, 1951, when 3,860,000 shares changed hands. Business was so fast that twice during the first hour the ticker was swamped and lagged as much as four minutes.

New York Central topped the most active list up 1/8 at 24 on 105,900 shares.

It was followed by Pennsylvania Railroad up ¾ at 19. Howe Sound up 1¼ at 16⅜, Colorado Fuel and Iron up 1¼ at 22¾, and Jones and Laughlin up ⅞ at 31 1/8.

Only one stock among the '15 most active declined — Chrysler off 1⅜ at 62⅝ as the sixth most active issue. Motors as a group were lower with General Motors off ¼ and Studebaker-Packard down 1/8.

Among good gainers with net advance were Atlantic Coast line up 3¾ at 134, Rock Island 2¼, Southern Railway 1⅝, Southern Pacific 1¼, Illinois Central 1¼, National Steel 1¼, U.S. Steel 1¼, Republic Steel ⅝, Distillers Corp. ¼, Philco 1, Pacific Western Oil 1, Royal Dutch Petroleum 1⅝, US. Gypsum 2½, and Eastman Kodak 2 at 68⅝ on a good earnings report.

Goodrich was down 4¼ at 117 after hitting a low of 114 following the proposal by directors to split the common two-for-one and to raise the dividend.

International Salt lost 1½ at 75 after declaration of a $2 dividend as compared with $1 a year ago. Olin-Mathieson backed down a point at 57¼ on news that it had sold 126 million dollars in 100-year notes.

Experts Propose Radical Changes For Future Cars

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Nov. 18 (AP) — Seven changes in future automobiles — from safety belts to a collapsible bullet nose — have been urged by several surgeons.

One estimated these "extras" would cost about $30, but reduce auto deaths and injuries by 70 per cent.

"The motorist must strap on his vehicle and wear it like a suit of armor," agreed Drs. Horace E. Campbell, Denver, and R. Arnold Griswold, Louisville, Ky., at an America college of surgeons symposium on prevention of auto injuries.

"In most automobiles, we are as vulnerable to injury as a teacup shipped in a barrel," added Col. Don U. Wenger of the office of the surgeon general, U.S. Air Force, Washington.

The seven changes, designed to prevent people from being flung out of cars or against the insides, are: seats fixed so firmly to the car frame that they can withstand sudden stops equal to 40 times the pull of gravity. Retractable seat belts fixed to that kind of seat. Until then, seat belts fixed to the car frame itself.

Steering columns which telescope downward under impact, to avoid their becoming "a spear aimed at the heart." Doors, like airplane doors, that won't fly open. A front nose 2½ feet thick of something like aluminum foam which would crumple slowly, absorbing the shock of a crash.

Dr. Campbell says the chromium "gingerbread" of grille work now on cars does a bit of this shock-absorbing. He envisions a collapsible nose which could be replaced after an accident as easily as a tire now is changed. He said the changes may not cost much if done in mass production, probably not as much as "changing the style contours" each year.

Dr Griswold, who uses safety belts in his car, said "the auto should be used like a turtle uses his shell — for protection."

Dr. Campbell estimated the annual toll of some 30,000 deaths and one and a quarter million injuries in auto crashes — not including pedestrians — could be cut by 80 per cent. Other experts estimated the saving from 20 to 50 per cent.

Col. Wenger said the human body can withstand fantastic forces, if properly supported and protected. He said "cars will become safe when the occupants are properly packaged to survive."

Dr. Campbell charged auto makers were not sufficiently interested in safety measures. He said "they just don't want to admit that the thing they have made is not the safest thing in the world."

Far Eastern Studies Proposed In U.B.C.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 18 (AP) — Dr. Norman A.M. MacKenzie, president of the University of British Columbia, said he expects a school of Far Eastern studies to be established here "within the next year or two."

He cited the appointment of UBC chancellor, Brigadier Sherwood Lett, as head of the Canadian-Indochina truce commission as an example of how important the Pacific and Asia have become to the university.

NATO Meets Dec. 17

PARIS, Nov. 18 (AP) — Ministers of defense, finance and foreign affairs of the 14 NATO nations were called today to meet in Paris Dec. 17.

This may coincide with the climax of the debate scheduled in the French national assembly on rearming West Germany and admitting her to membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Battered Ship In Port

CORNER BROOK, New Foundland, Nov. 18 (AP) — The storm-battered freighter Stork was towed into this port late yesterday after nearly foundering during a gale in the gulf of St. Lawrence. Gale winds in the gulf two days ago cracked her deck plates.

The NATO ministers will set the goals for the pact's military strength in 1956.

Chile President Nips Cabinet Crisis

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov 18 (AP) — President Carlos Ibanez quickly resolved a flash cabinet crisis today only a few hours after it blew up over charges that congress had not given the government sufficient Red-fighting powers.

The president named anti-Communist Arturo Olavarria as minister of interior to head a new cabinet. But he rejected the resignation of Justice Minister Osvaldo Koch, which touched off the crisis.

Olavarria was named to succeed Gen. Abdon Parra. Ibanez also named Farmer Federico Saeltzer as minister of agriculture, replacing Dr. Eugenio Suarez. All other ministers in the old cabinet were reconfirmed in their posts.

Free Ice Cream At U.S. Booth In Bangkok Fair

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP) — The United States will launch a new program for official participation in foreign trade at Bangkok early in December with free gifts of American ice cream to Thai children and burst of American fireworks from a 40-foot red, white and blue pylon.

Samuel W. Anderson, special assistant to Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks described the program at a news conference today.

About 100 U.S. firms will take their own exhibits to Bangkok, Anderson said. Another feature of the official U.S. exhibit will be a showing of "This Is Cinerama," a three-dimensional film which attracted great attention when shown earlier this year at small trade fair in Damascus, Syria.

Anderson said his department has scheduled official U.S. participation in nine fairs between December and next June, and probably another nine or more next fall.

The object, he said, of the five million dollar program approved by Congress this year was to "give the world a graphic picture of this nation's production for peace and human well-being ..... Our industry representatives exhibiting at these fairs, will be ambassadors of good will to our friends abroad."

Anderson said exhibits would include an atomic energy exhibit, previously seen in Berlin, which explains peaceful uses of atomic energy. This exhibit is planned for showing at Tokyo, New Delhi, and Utretcht, Holland.

Cuba Accedes To Pact On Report Correction

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 18 (AP) — An agreement for correction of false news reports on an international basis received today the first of the six ratifications necessary to put it into effect.

Cuba's acting permament representative here, Carlos Blanco, handed over her instrument of accession to the "convention on the international right of correction."

France suggested the convention at the 1948 Geneva Conference on freedom of informaton, the general assembly approved it Dec. 16, 1952, and it was opened for signing March 31, 1953.

Seven countries — Argentina, Ethiopia, Ecuador, Guatemala, Chile, Paraguay and France — have signed it. Non-signers are permitted, like Cuba, to adhere to it simply by accession or ratification.

The agreement says that if any government involved feels it has suffered from a false or distorted news report published within the territory of any other government involved, the former may require the latter to publicize the former's version of the facts and, in case it is not satisfied, may ask the U.N. to do so.

Greece-Romania Ties

ATHENS, Nov. 18 (AP) — Foreign Minister Stepphan Stephanopoulos, said today Greece is receptive to Romania's proposal for a resumption of full diplomatic relations, provided Greek subjects still in Romania and those who have fled are indemnified for the financial losses caused by the government action.

Romania would be the second satellite country to resume relations with Greece. Greece and Bulgaria have already exchanged charge d'affaires in a step toward full relations.

GREETINGS FROM TITO

First Atomic Plane Seen Only 3-5 Years Off

Reactor, Aircraft Under Construction, Filtered Info Reveals

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — There has been a breakthrough on the problems of building an atomic-powered aircraft.

Although the Air Force has a heavy blanket of security on the project the following information has come out:

The first A-plane could fly within five years, even within three.

One aircraft reactor and the plane it will power are already under construction. So are the straight jet engines which are designed to convert the heat from the reactor into thrust. Two, possibly more, engines will be on the plane.

Construction of an elaborate new laboratory to speed the development of a second, far lighter reactor and shielding arrangement has just been ordered by the Air Force. Plans for the air frame are already in an advance state of design. This power system also will be straight jet.

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson put the brakes on nuclear aircraft work early in 1953 on the grounds that it didn't hold promise of being a practical weapon any time soon.

It was then thought the shielding weight would make such a plane clumsy in the air, if it flew at all. And it looked as if it would make inefficient use of the nuclear fuel because no engines were known then which could take the intense temperature output of the reactor.

With the apparent licking of these two problems, however, Wilson has given full go-ahead, with Lockheed, Convair, Boeing, General Electric and Pratt & Whitney among the firms working all-out on A-plane development.

Information learned from work on the atomic submarines, the success in putting atomic weapons into small packages and developments in the field of commercial electric power reactors, all contributed vital bits of knowledge toward reducing the shield weight for an A-plane.

It is said that an ingenious way has been devised to use the shielding structure as part of the main bracing of the aircraft frame. It is also reported that moving the crew section far back in the plane, away from the reactor, also solves part of the shielding problem.

Improved metallurgy and better engine design generally showed the way to more efficient use of the reactor's heat energy. The engines will be similar to the conventional jet engine, but simpler.

For instance, the electrical system needed for igniting the fuel on the standard jet engine would not be necessary. Instead of feeding kerosene into the combustion chamber, the heat from the reactor will be piped into the system.

However, a starter will be required to get the compressors turning to force air into the engine. It's the heat from the reactor acting on this incoming air which converts the atomic energy into usable thrust.

It's assumed that the two engines will be mounted very close and practically affixed to the reactor itself. This is to keep them together at the center of the wing heat transfer system down to minimum size and complexity.

It's said that the plane will be fairly conventional. It will have lines of the Boeing B-47 of B-52. Total weight of the craft is also not expected to be as much as the 350,000 pounds of the giant B-36 bomber.

This weight for an A-plane — lighter than first anticipated coupled with improved engines, gives it supersonic capabilities. It's said that each engine could be rated in the category of 40,000 pounds of thrust. That's about twice as much power as on the new F-100 supersonic fighter.

U.S. Korean Mutual Defense Treaty Signed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP) — A mutual defense treaty linking the United States and South Korea entered into force today when Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Korean Ambassador You Chang Yang exchanged documents.

The treaty is a defense pact dedicated to peace, the State Department said, intended to "detour aggression and thus help to maintain peace and security in the Pacific area."

In a brief ceremony at the State Department, Dulles and Ambassador Yang exchanged instruments of ratification to put the treaty into effect, more than one year after it was signed Oct. 1, 1953.

The U.S. Senate approved the pact Jan. 26 this year and President Eisenhower signed it Feb. 5. President Syngman Rhee ratified for Korea last Jan. 29 after his national assembly approved it two weeks earlier.

Along with the ratification documents, Dulles and Yang signed the text of a resolution affixed by the American Senate. This said neither nation is obligated to come to the aid of the other "except in case of external armed attack."

The resolution also said the United States would give aid to Korea to repeal armed attacks only against "territory which has been recognized by the United States as lawfully brought under the administrative control of the Korea pact." This congressional resolution was drawn up to make it clear the United States was not bound to help South Korea in the event President Rhee carried out his long standing threat to drive out the Communists of North Korea by military force.

A department statement said the Korean treaty "constitutes another step in the development of a Pacific security system, complementing earlier treaties which have entered into force with Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines and Japan. It is in full conformity with the objectives and principles of the charter of the United Nations."

Asian Jaycees Seek Aid In Refugee Drive

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP) — Junior chambers of commerce in 14 Far East areas are sending aid to the homeless, the sick and the destitute refugees in war-torn Vietnam, Oscar J. Arellano, regional vice president for Asia of the international junior of commerce, said today.

Arellano, a prominent architect in Manila, is in the United States to seek additional support for the Jaycees' "Operations Brotherhood," the project which is sending aid — medical supplies, physicians, nurses, food, clothing and money—for use among the many needy persons in Saigon.

"Operations Brotherhood" was started in the Philippines after it became apparent that many thousands of persons would flee their homes as the Communists took over control in North Vietnam, and the project quickly spread to other nations.

Arellano, who started the movement, the first of its kind among Jaycee chapters in Asia, said a total of nearly a quarter million dollars in goods and money has been given or pledged for the rehabilitation and relief work. "But," he aded, "we will need a great deal more to complete the job."

Other areas participating include: the Republic of China, Hong Kong, India, Japan, Korea, Kuala Lumpur, Pakistan, Burma, Singapore, Thailand and Australia. In addition the Jaycees in several other countries outside of Asia have pledged assistance.

Carter Becomes Lightw'ght Champ For Third Time

Boudreau Named To Pilot KC

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 18 (AP) — Lou Boudreau today was signed to a two-year contract as manager of the Kansas City Athletics marking his third stint as an American League skipper.

Arnold Johnson, Chicago businessman who acquired the Philadelphia franchise last week, did not disclose Boudreau's salary, but said "Lou has always been a top salaried manager and you can be sure he's happy with this one."

Boudreau's salary at Boston last year was $45,000 with another season to go. I's undersood he'll collect approximately the same figure here.

At the same time, Johnson announced that Eddie Joost, manager of the Philadelphia A's last year, had been given his unconditional release in order to negotiate a deal for himself.

Boudreau, who broke into professional baseball with Cleveland in 1938 and managed the Indians to the world series championship ten years later, was hopeful the change of scenery would put new life in the A's.

"We are going to need some ball players, but every man that reports to spring training is going to get a chance," Boudreau said.

Yankees Trade Woodling, Byrd To Orioles For Turley, Larsen

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP) — The New York Yankees and the Baltimore Orioles have completed one of the biggest baseball deals in years with pitchers Bob Turley and Don Larsen going to the Yankees and veteran outfielder Gene Woodling and pitcher Harry Byrd to the Orioles, it was learned today from an authoritative baseball source.

The trade, which also involves a number of other players, is scheduled to be announced Friday.

In addition to Woodling and Byrd, the Yankees will send two young catchers, believed to be Gus Triandos and Hal Smith, and three or four other players to the Orioles. At least two and possibly three others will come to the Yankees along with the Baltimore's two outstanding pitchers.

Big Ten Championship, Rose Bowl Trip On Line In Michigan-Ohio State Clash

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 18 (AP) — The clash this week between Ohio State and Michigan football teams should, by all the signs, shake the steel girders in the big Buckeye horseshoe stadium.

This state capital already is jumpy with anticipation. That in itself is not unusual on the eve of any Ohio State football game.

But this week is something else again. Ohio State is ranked No. 1 in the nation, and Michigan No. 12. At stake in the game will be the Big Ten championship and a bid to the Rose Bowl, to say nothing of the old rivalry and prestige of the teams.

It's as if all the past 50 meetings between the bitter rivals is culminating in an Armageddon of the gridiron and it well may be.

Ohio State's power, passing, precision, trickery and defensive strength which have carried the Bucks to the No 1 spot, would on paper seem to give Ohio the edge. Undefeated and untied in eight tough games, Ohio is counting not only on a powerful line but an array of backfield talent and an unusual team spirit to win.

On the other hand, Michigan, with an overall record of six wins and two losses (to Army and Indiana) and a Big Ten record of 5-1, is always at its best against Ohio State. Three times in the past, 1926, 1932 and 1933, Michigan has pinned the year's old defeat on Ohio. Many times they've knocked the Bucks out of the Conference title.

Some 82,000 people will jam the stadium with an official capacity of 78,677. The stadium has been sold out for weeks. Tickets, except for those that might be held by a few scalpers, are non-existent.

The game will be getting the biggest press coverage in the history of the stadium and perhaps in Western Conference history.

Over the years — from 1897 — Michigan has won 33, lost 13 and tied four with Ohio. The Bucks have won over Michigan only twice in the last 11 years, and one of the most humiliating Ohio losses was here in 1950 when Michigan won 9-3 in the "Blizzard Bowl" game wthout making a first down.

SMU-Baylor Fray Will See Top Aerial Specialists Perform

DALLAS, Nov. 18 (AP) — Back in 1923 Southern Methodist started throwing passes on the first down against Baylor. It marked the start of the pass as a regular offensive weapon in Southwest Conference football, not a desperation measure by a team that already was beaten.

This week SMU and Baylor clash here in the big game of the conference race — a game that sees Southern Methodist trying to maintain its lead at a title tie.

SMU and Baylor are the leading teams in passing — SMU with 11.9 yards per game and Baylor 110.1. Both have strong running attacks but indications are that they'll be depending more on their aerial offensives than any other game this campaign.

It will be a battle between the top passers of the league — Duane Nutt of Southern Methodist, who ranks No. 1 with 684 and wind six touchdowns, and Billy Hooper of Baylor, No. 2, with 365 yards and six touchdowns.

Carter Stops DeMarco To Reclaim 135lb Title

Demarco Loses Crown In 1st Defense Since Decisioning Carter Last March

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18 (AP) — Jimmy Carter of New York won back the world's lightweight championship last night when he stopped champion Paddy Demarco of Brooklyn after 14 seconds of the 15th and final round of a brutal contest. It was a technical knockout.

The loss by the 26-year-old Brooklyn boy was in the first defense of the title he won from Carter last March 5.

It was the second technical knockout loss by Paddy. A cut eye was the reason for the other one.

Last night he was battered into submission under the sharp punching of Carter. He was knocked down in the ninth for a four count and again at the end of the 14th.

Demarco weighed 134½ and Carter 135.

The champion was helpless from a barrage of punches to the body and face shortly after the 15th opened. He fell into the ropes and Referee Ray Flores pulled him out and turned him around. Demarco was in no condition to continue and Carter's hand was raised in victory.

CARTER OPENS UP

Carter, punching methodically to the face and body overcame an early lead piled up by Demarco. The champ was in front for the first four rounds.

Carter pounded away steadily to take the fifth and the sixth. He stung Demarco with rights to the jaw. Demarco's left eye, cut on the side in the second round, made a fine target for Carter and he banged the optic steadily. It was badly swollen by the end of the fifth.

The seventh and eighth appeared fairly even but Carter shot over a left hook to the jaw in the ninth that put Demarco down. He was up at the count of four.

Carter blasted him around for the rest of the round, soaring repeatedly with rights to the jaw. The champion weathered down the storm but finished in bad shape.

Demarco made a combeack in the 10th and 11th rounds. He inflicted a cut over Carter's eye in the 10th and was aggressor in the 11th, landing the most blows.

Carter took command again in the 12th, chasing Demarco around the ring and landing stiff lefts and rights to the jaw while a crowd of more than 6,000 roared.

Demarco was distressed from hard body jolts and lefts and rights to the jaw in the 13th. He finished the round in a groggy condition.

Carter rained punches to Demarco's body and head in the 14th and the champ went down from a right to the jaw as the round ended..

Demarco's left eye was swollen closed as he came out for the final round. Carter poured punches on him. Demarco was spun around into a corner of the ring.

CHAMP HELPLESS

Demarco was reeling and helpless. Carter sailed in with a vicious two-handed attack. Referee Flores stepped in and halted the contest.

It was the third time Carter has won the lightweight title. He became champion in 1951 by knocking out Lauro Salas of Mexico by a decision.

Carter won it back from the Mexican a few months later of the same year.

Demarco outpointed Carter in 15 rounds to win the title last March in New York.

PRELATES DENOUNCE VIETMINH VIOLATION OF GENEVA ACCORD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP) — The Catholic bishops of the United States yesterday denounced as "an international disgrace" the alleged violation by Vietminh Communists of the Geneva agreement on Vietnam.

Asserting this agreement assured the Vietnamese the right to decide freely in which zone they wish to live — Communist or non-Communist — the bishops said the Vietminh are using "trickery, pressure and the most brutal violence" to keep the people from exercising that right.

The nearly 200 cardinals, archbishops and bishops asembled here in annual meeting called on a committee headed by Samuel Cardinal Stritch, archbishop of Chicago, to issue within two weeks a "white book" detailing violations of the Geneva agreement "in regard to the hundreds of thousands of Catholics in north Vietnam."

In a press statement, they said "the Vietminh violations of the provisions can no longer be permitted to pass without the strongest protest."

The prelates said they wished to register the 'strongest protest possible' as the leaders of the Catholic Church in the United States. Thousands have lost their lives while attempting to exercise their right of choice."

"Most of them died of drowning when they tried to escape by sea," the bishops said. "Others were machine-gunned or bludgeoned in the beaches."

"These manifold violations of basic human rights involve the fate of thousands of Catholics and others and contribute an international disgrace," the bishops said. "This is a tragedy to which the international community can not remain indifferent."

At the same time, the bishops expressed gratitude to the Americans, especially the U.S. Navy, who aided Vietnamese refugees to escape.

The newspaper said retiring Prime Minister Daniel F. Malan was "very happy" at the decision.

Kennedy Requests Traffic Control .. Signs In GMH Area

Imminent necessity for posting speed limit signs on hospital roads was emphasized yesterday by Dr. John Kennedy, director of medical services.

The medical director pointed out, in a letter to Public Safety Director Albert Frock, the lack of traffic signs to warn motorists to reduce their speed approaching a hospital zone.

The letter stated "that portion of hospital road between the entrance to the Guam Memorial and the entrance to Peresville presents an increasing traffic problem. There is no posted speed limit and there is flagrant disregard of the fact that the area is a hospital zone." It continued:

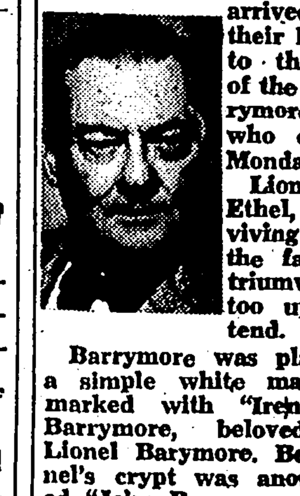
"Inasmuch as traffic is expected to increase due to development of housing in the area and the hospital operation will continue in its present location for an indefinite period, it is requested that the area be zoned."

Kennedy also suggested in his letter that stop signs and speed limit and "quiet" zone signs be posted at appropriate places.

Under Section 231115 (g) of the territorial code, "The Director of Public Safety is hereby authorized to designate as may be reasonably necessary, and on a permanent, temporary or intermittent basis, certain areas as limited speed areas and to mark such areas with appropriate warning signs.."

BARRYMORE INTERRED

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 19 (AP) — Lionel Barrymore was buried in the Catholic faith of his birth while 2,000 eager fans crowded around the chapel.



A crowd stood outside as filmland's famous arrived to pay their last respects to the patriarch of the famed Barrymore family, who died at 76, Monday.

Lionel's sister, Ethel, sole surviving member of the famed acting triumvirate, was too upset to attend.

Barrymore was placed beside a simple white marble facing marked with "Irene Fenwick Barrymore, beloved wife of Lionel Barymore. Beneath Lionel's crypt was another marked "John Barrymore — 1942 — Good Night, Sweet Prince."

McCarthy Injury Prompts Recess Of Censure Debate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP) — The U.S. Senate yesterday called off its debate on censuring Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.), until November 29 because of the hospitalization of McCarthy — and the senator's backers blocked a move to require final action in this session of Congress.

The Democrats and Sen. Wayne Morse (Ind.-Ore.), accused the McCarthy side of trying to stall a final vote until after the December 24 deadline for action at the present Republican-controlled session. Both the McCarthy camp and the Senate's Republican leadership sharply denied any such intention.

The vote in favor of the 11-day recess — which will leave less than four weeks for consideration of the censure move — was 76-2. Only Sens. Herbert Lehman (D.,Liberal-NY.) and J. W. Fulbright voted against it.

The vote, preceded by sharp debate, came after the Senate's physician reported McCarthy's elbow injury and infection will require

PERU SOLONS PRAISE ARMED SEIZURE OF PANAMANIAN VESSELS

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 19 (AP) — The Peruvian Congress gave full support yesterday to the armed forces' seizure of foreign-owned ships operating in Pacific waters claimed by Peru.

Peruvian ships and planes have rounded up five Panamanian-registered vessels in the whaling fleet of shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis within the 200-mile-wide coastal belt which this country claims. The 13,000-ton Olympic Challenger, whaling factory ship, reached the northern port of Paita yesterday escorted by a destroyer. Four of Onassis' 700-ton whalers had already been taken to the same port.

The Senate unanimously adopted a resolution praising the armed forces action against what it called "the illegal entry of Peruvian territorial waters by fishing fleets." The chamber of deputies approved a motion supporting the government's attitude toward the "preservation of the nation's honor and sovereignty."

Onassis, a Greek-born Argentine citizen whose main headquarters are at Monte Carlo, sent a Panamanian lawyer, Robert Arias Guardia, to Lima yesterday to look after his interests.

Panama has lodged a complaint with Peru over the seizures. In New York, Ernesto de la Guardia, chief Panamanian delegate to the United Nations, called on U.N. Secretary Dag Hammarskjold yesterday to report the incident. The Panamanian foreign ministry said this was an informative report rather than a formal protest Official sources in Panama said that country might take the case to the U.N. depending on information obtained in current investigations of the seizures.

Panama's reaction to the incident is sharpening. The national assembly last night called on Foreign Minister Jose Remon Guizabo to report on Peru's action by Monday.

East-West Approval Of Atom Peace Plan Predicted By U.N. Diplomats

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 19 (AP) — The Western powers and Russia reached virtual agreement yesterday on a comprómise plan endorsing and advancing President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace program.

Only one point of difference remained and diplomatic quarters predicted this would stand in the way of unanimous approval of the plan by the U.N.

It was the second time in this General Assembly session that the Russians and the United States have agreed on an important proposal. Only two weeks ago, the Assembly approved unanimously a resolution instructing the disarmament commission to make another attempt to regulate armaments and banning atomic weapons. The commission will meet today.

The political committee also will meet today and hopes to reach a vote on the revised resolution put before it yesterday by Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., United States delegate.

The only difference outstanding between the East and West now is a Western stipulation limiting invitations to a scientific conference to members of the U.N. and its specialzed agencies. Russia wants no restrictions, apparently with the intentions of including Communist China if possible.

Here are the main provisions and the changes made during the conferences:

1. It expressed hope that a proposed international atomic energy agency, already being negotiated upon by those seven countries and Portugal — not a U.N. member — should be established without delay. This was put in at the request of V. K. Krishna Menon of India, who said the agency should have the endorsement of the assembly.

2. It suggested that once the agency is established, it negotiate an appropriate form of agreement with the United Nations. The original seven-power resolution said this agreement should be similar to those of U.N. specialized agencies, but Menon and Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky objected and the reference to specialized agencies was

Police Charge 3 'Molesters'

Three youths have been charged with "crime against children," the Guam police reported. One was a 20-year-old resident of Sinajana who was arrested and booked Thursday night. The other two are a 19-year-old Palau student and a 21-year-old Toto youth.

Angel Cruz Santos, 20, of Sinajana, was booked by Investigator Jose Taitano after Santos confessed that he "molested a 12-year-old girl on Epao road last Tuesday evening." Police said Santos' confession coincided with that of the girl's complaint. However, Santos denied threatening the girl with a hammer as alleged by the complainant, police revealed. His case will be forwarded to the attorney general's office, police said.

Benjamin Temal, a Palau, was arrested and confined at the lockup after he confessed molesting a 5-year-old girl in Agana. Investigation was initiated after the girl's father complained that his daughter "has been abused," police reported. The girl was confined for

Mendes-France Confers With Dulles; Upset By Collins' Saigon Remarks

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP) — Pierre Mendes-France, premier of France, had a talk lasting one hour and 45 minutes with U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles yesterday afternoon.

The premier left the State Department building hurriedly after the conference to keep a 5 p.m. appointment at the Capitol with members of the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees.

Mendes-France's afternoon meeting with Dulles was devoted to a lengthy two-hour review of Indochina's problems. Mendes-France was apparently somewhat upset at news conference remarks by Gen. J. Lawton Collins in Saigon. Collins said the United States wants to help train southern Vietnam troops, provided they remain loyal to Premier Ngo Dinh Diem.

Informants said Mendes-France said he felt Collins remarks could be misinterpreted to suggest there has been a lack of cooperation with French authorities in this problem.

No final decision was agreed upon at the afternoon session, partly because Collins has yet to file a complete report and recommendations about what aid the United States should provide to French and Indochinese forces in southern Indochina.

American officials said they hoped to be able to provide the premier with some idea before he departs of the amount of financial help he can expect for French armies in Indochina.

At the White House meeting, Mendes-France discussed with Eisenhower the Saar problem, as well as the London and Paris conference agreement paving the way for German rearmament and membership in the North Atlantic alliance.

Two additional sessions with Dulles and top department officials have been set for today, one aimed at winding up Indochina talks and the other to discuss European and North African problems.

At the capital, Mendes-France spent about 20 minutes in a closed-door informal session with members of the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Forces committees and other Senate leaders.

FOR LOW-COST HOUSING

Congressman Won-Pat Thursday announced the Legislature will conduct extensive studies of the housing problems here to expedite rehabilitation of needy families.

We urge public support of this project, especially with respect to meeting the urgent demand for low-cost housing units.

Contractors engaged in home construction have shown a remarkable ability to produce residential houses at a rapid pace, considering the fact that most of the sources of supplies and materials are thousands of miles from here.

However, housing units presently available are not within the reach of the average and below-average Guamanian family, and it is imperative that units costing considerably less than those already erected be given higher priority in the near future. As Mr. Won-Pat pointed out we would not be justifying request for Federal assistance unless a program of low-cost housing construction is effected.

Everyone realizes that the problem is not a simple one. There are numerous "snags" connected with the land situation, for one thing. The availability of the essential public utilities is another, although in recent weeks it was indicated that unprecedented progress soon will be made in this field. We are confident, however, that if interested persons get together in a spirit of mutual assistance, having in mind the overall benefits to the community, the difficulties now in the way can be removed.

There have been some suggestions for low-cost housing construction. One of these advocates duplex housing to minimize the cost of labor and materials. Another calls for family apartment types of units on ground where multiple-story structures can be erected. While we don't claim these types of construction are entirely siutable for Guam, they might be worth studying as alternatives to something else less desirable.

The granting of Federal aid should now spur into action the various institutions concerned for speedy rehabilitation of families who have waited for ten years to move out of the squalor of village slums and live once again in quarters suitable for human beings.

The Mature Parent

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

One gray dawn five years ago an old man slipped quietly into death, facing the P.'s with the question, "Do we now ask Grandma to live with us?"

A friend put their answer into words. She said, 'Oh, you can't! You haven't room! Can you afford a bigger house with college ahead for the children? Does Molly want to give up her club work to take care of it? Grandma would need ground-floor space because of stairs. How could you entertain — the children bring home their high school friends? You know how old people are about quiet. No, you have your own lives to live'

So the P.s installed Grandma, enfeebled by shock and grief in a "small place" of her own.

The other day their college junior son, home for the weekend, asked them to finance marriage for him until he could do it himself. Accused of irresponsibility toward them, he hotly protested that he too, had his "own life" to live.

Would he have made this demand had Grandma become a member of his household? I doubt it. I suspect that the P.'s son, given his parents' example of intergeneration responsibility, would have developed some himself.

There is, may I suggest, a purpose in the fact that Grandma's dependence coincides with our child's adolescence. She intrudes her need of us at the identical time he's outgrowing it. As he approaches maturity, this coincidence gives us our chance to define its responsibilities to him.

The problem is one we didn't count on in the down payment for our efficient, two generation houses that include no space for Grandma.

As television continues to replace her in our living rooms, I don't see how young people can avoid concluding that our middle-age is the Age of Self-Indulgence.

They're bound to feel, "We don't see you inconveniencing yourself for your parents. Why should we inconvenience ourselves for you?"

An irresponsible child is a bore, so the P's might try to improve their example of give-and-take between generations.

I urge that club work be curtailed to make more time for Grandma. Her need is not a liability. It offers the P.'s their opportunity to increase ther son's respect for their usefulness at the very time that his decreasing need of it tempts him to doubt it.

It's their chance to earn new appreciation.

• SO THEY SAY

UNLESS we can make this possibility (of peaceful coexistence) a reality, there will not be either democratic or Communist nations.

Frustrating, Isn't It?

WASHINGTON. — Reecntly, John Foster Dulles called in John Paton Davies, long-time career diplomat, and fired him for bad judgment. Davies' loyalty was not questioned, only his judgment regarding the advice he gave 10 years ago that Chiang Kai-Shek should form a coalition government with the Chinese Communists.

In contrast, here are some statements made by the man who fired Davies, also dating back some years:

DULLES ON WORLD WAR II—Speaking in Detroit in 1939, Dulles said: "Only hysteria entertains the idea that Germany, Italy, or Japan contemplates war upon us." (This was after Germany had already taken Austria and Czechoslovakia and just four months before Hitler precipitated World War II.)

DULLES ON HISS: On Dec. 23, 1946, Lawrence Davidow, Detroit attorney, wrote Dulles, then chairman of the Carnegie Institute, that Alger Hiss has a provable Communist record. Dulles hired Hiss as president of the Carnegie Institute anyway.

ARMS TO GERMANY — Dulles in 1926 advocated "unrestricted trade in arms and military supplies and the right of American bankers to make loans for military purposes." (This was when the State Department was trying to curtail loans to Germany and other countries for military purposes.)

GERMAN BONDS — In 1930, Dulles stated: "Germany made great progress under the Dawes plan. Her national income and government income have grown to a point where the reparations charge constitutes a readily bearable percentage." (This was when Dulles was the attorney for American bankers floating German loans to the American public. One year later, these loans collapsed completely. American bondholders have not yet collected.)

FOREIGN AID — In January, 1953, Dulles warned France to sign EDC by April 1 or the United States would cut off aid. "The hand-out era is over," Dulles warned publicly. France has not yet ratified EDC, and aid to France is still continuing.

MASSIVE RETALIATION — On Jan. 12, 1954, Dulles announced that the United States was prepared to meet aggression with instant retaliation "by mean and places of our own choosing." We would "depend primarily upon a great capacity to retaliate instantly," he said. Since then, Communist China has taken over the main portions of Indochina and poured more arms into North Korea.

UNREST BEHIND CURTAIN — On Aug. 27, 1952, speaking at Buffalo, Dulles promised that Eisenhower would "encourage quiet revolution in Red-dominated countries." In January, 1953, he told the Senate Foreign Relations committee that the U.S.A. must use "moral pressure and the weight of propaganda" to weaken Soviet satellites. But on September 18, 1953, he told the UN General Assembly: "Our creed does not call for exporting revolution and exciting others to violence."

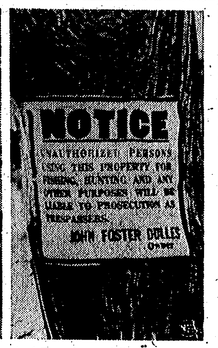
GENEVA CONFERENCE — At the conclusion of the Berlin conference last winter, Dulles announced that the problems unsolved at Berlin would be taken up at the Geneva conference which he called "the best hope of the world." The Geneva conference ended in complete failure and complete capitulation to Russia or Indochina.

AMERICAN LEGION PROMISES — Addressing the Legion in St. Louis, Sept. 2, 1953, Dulles said: "There is a risk that as in Korea, Red China might send its own army into Indochina The Chinese regime should realize that such a second aggression could not be confined to Indochina." This threat of U.S. intervention apparently meant little. At least the Red Chinese sized it up that way and went right ahead in Indochina.

TRUSTEESHIP FOR FORMOSA — In April ,1953, Dulles told newsmen that the United States would accept a U.N. trusteeship for Formosa and would accept a truce in Korea a line drawn across Korea's narrow waist, about 80 miles north of the fighting line. two days later, the White House issued a flat denial. In the end, the White House was right. The United States accepted a Korean truce line far below the narrow waist and has never accepted a UN trusteeship for Formosa.

NEUTRALS IN KOREA — During the early talks preparing for a Korean truce in the spring of 1953, Dulles promised President Syngman Rhee that India would not be permitted to sit on the neutral truce commission. In the end, Dulles had to backtrack. India became the most important neutral on the truce commission.

These are some of the mistakes of judgment made by the Secretary of State who fired a fellow diplomat for his one error of judgment in regard to a coalition government between Chiang Kai-Shek and Communist China.



LET'S GET AWAY FROM IT ALL—This is the log cabin retreat of Secretary of State and Mrs. John Foster Dulles, at Main Duck Island, Canada. At right is one of the signs erected by Dulles, a political internationalist, with a preference for personal isolation. Built in 1943, the cabin is almost identical to those built by American pioneers. The single-story cabin is 25 feet square and has 3 rooms.

DEMOCRACY MUST BE PRACTICED HERE

We have heard unofficially that 20 families of CAA employees are to be moved to the Camp Witek area soon. To our knowledge, practically all quonsets livable in that area are now occupied by Guam government employees, some CAA families and private tenants. Unlesa private tenants are to be moved out of their rented homes and give way to additional CAA families, chances of housing adequately these 20 additional families under contemplation to be moved up there, are nil. We are not at war, and we feel that it will be a very unfair practice in a democracy during peacetime to force certain families out of their abodes to house others, regardless of their stations in life, either way.

PORTER DENIES RUMOR

Atty. Gen. Howard Porter denied rumors that certain quarters are trying to choke the growth of the American Global Insurance Company, a local industry that's been making headways in recent weeks. "There is no truth in it," Porter replied to Congressman J. C. Okiyama, when confronted by the Yona law-maker at the office of land management late yesterday afternoon. "I am for the growth of Guam," Porter added, and then the two gentlemen walked out of the building side by side, perhaps discussing further on the subject.

$45 Million Suez Canal Dredging To Start In '55

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP) — A $45,000,000 improvement program for the Suez Canal was announced here today by the Suez Canal Company.

The announcement said the 100-mile waterway is to be widened and deepened throughout its entire length to accommodate the "increasingly heavy traffic and to meet the demands of vessels which will be growing considerably larger in size. In particular the deepening of the canal will expedite the passage of ships drawing '36 feet.'

Two new switches or bypasses, will be dug to provide additional areas where convoys may form and move simultaneously in opposite directions, the company said. One switch will be located at Port Said and the other at Great Bitter Lakes, 60 miles to the south.

The work should be completed in five or six years, according to the announcement. The first stage of the work will start early in 1955, the company said.

The company said the program was being undertaken "although the canal is to be handed, free, to Egypt, 14 years hence.' It said this illustrates the company's "desire to adhere steadfastly to its traditional policy, not only of keeping abreast of developments in shipping but also of anticipating such developments."

France, Tunisia Face Rebel Threat

PARIS, Nov. 19 (AP) — French and Tunisian officials last night reached a general agreement, apparently a face-saving formula, on their policy toward the "Fellaga" rebels who have been harrassing French forces in the protectorate.

Christian Fouchet, French minister for Tunisian and Moroccan affairs, met for more than two hours with Tunisian Premier Tahar Ben Ammar and three other members of the Tunisian cabinet to work out a joint position on this issue which yesterday raised a now threat to the Mendes-France coalition.

The two sides issued a joint statement which said:

"An agreement in principle was reached on the conditions under which the two governments will associate their action to solve this (Fellaga) problem."

Two-Drown As 4-Hour Rain Floods Bogota

BOGOTA, Colombia, Nov. 19 (AP) — A four-hour downpour washed away 140 houses and caused damage estimated at more than a million pesos ($400,000) here last night. Two children drowned. A motor launch and a number of rowboats navigated the principal streets of this capital, located at an altitude of 8800 feet in the Andes Mountains.

Freighter Sinks After Collision, 27 Crewmen Safe

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP) —Two freighters collided in the East River last night. One sank by the bow but not before its pilot skillfully maneuvered it to shallow water.

There were no injuries reported. The Lake Charles, with 27 crewmen aboard, settled into the mud in 20 feet of water near the Manhattan shore.

The other ship, the 7,502-ton Japanese vessel Armisan Maru was stove in above the water line.

It went on to its destination, the National Sugar Refining Co. pier in Long Island City, Queens, under its own power.

The Lake Charles, a 1,760-ton Panamanian flag vessel, had just left the same pier and was outward bound.

The crash occurred south of the Williamsburg bridge.

Pilot Ralph Olbmixon ran the Lake Charles towards the Manhattan shore. It sank by the bow and canted against a retaining wall of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Drive. Its stern shot into the air at a 30-degree angle.

Firemen put out ladders from shore and took off everyone except Olbmixon, Capt. Pedro Castro and the chief engineer.

Olbmixon refused to discuss the cause of the collision. He said he would make a full report to the proper authorities.

Earlier the Japanese vessel had erroneously been identified as the Meirinsan Maru.

treatment at the Naval Hospital and later was released, the report staed. Investigation was handled by Sgt. A. D. Respicio.

Carlos Cruz Gumatactao of Toto was charged with "crime against children," after he admitted molesting a 5-year-old girl at Sinajana last October 31. Sgt. F. C. Concepcion handled the investigation which was prompted by a report made by Guam Memorial Hospital. Gumatactao was confined and later released pending court summons.

eliminated.

Vishinsky said in debate that the agency should be responsible to the security council where Russia has a veto. Menon said the reference to specialized agencies was not necessary.

The revised wording means that status of the agency will be left to future negotiations Lodge described this as the most difficult problem.

3. A declaration that negotiations on the agency would continue. This was put in at the request of the Soviet Union which has repeatedly insisted it has not rejected the plan. Diplomats here said they believed the Russians eventually will join the pool.

ACCORDING TO POLICE

BUM CHECK—Norman Thompson complained to police Thursday that a "fictitious" check was cashed at the Tropical Freeze, July 24. The check, for $20, was reportedly passed by W. M. Dillard, now serving sentence at the Agana lockup on a previous conviction of writing checks with no deposits. No reason was given for the delay in reporting the matter to police.

THEFT — Two young boys dashed off with $10 of Mrs. O. L. Shelton's money at the Sala Thai in Agana Thursday. Mrs. Shelton said she placed her wallet momentarily on the counter of the store when the youths walked in, picked through the billfold and then whizzed off with the cash.

DISTURBANCE — Miss Sally Quiocho of Orchid No. 1, reported a disturbance in progress at the club Thursday night. The waitress told police Camp Roxas Filipinos were the parties involved. When police arrived the trouble-makers were gone.

IMMIGRATION DETAINEE-Natividad Reyes, a Filipina waitress at the Harold's Club, Tamuning, was taken into custody Thursday night by Immigration Inspector Juan L. Gumataotao. The woman was reported missing by her employer. She was confined at the Agana jail pending deportation proceedings.

Kefauver, Bridges Support Israeli

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP) — Senators Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) and Styles Bridges (R-N.H.) last night called on the adminstration to reappraise its policy toward Israel and her neighbors. The Senators were speakers at a dinner honoring Mortimer May, of Nashville, Tenn, president of the Zionist Organization of America.

Kefauver said he knows no one in the administration who will say he wants "to harm this little state." Yet, current U.S. policy "threatens the very existence of Israel," the Tennessean asserted. He said the rule should be "no military assitance to the Arab nations until there is peace between them and Israel."

Bridges, who spoke first, declared flatly:

"It is my judgment that we must reexamine our policy as it relates to Israel and her neighbors."

Kefauver agreed. Bridges, president pro-tem of the Senate, spoke of statements by President Eisenhower affirming U.S friendship for Israel.

"It is my belief," the Republican leader said, "that our actions in the Middle East must be in accord with assurances".

treatment which will make it inadvisable for the Senator to leave Bethesda Naval Hospital before November 29.

The censure resolution asks that McCarthy be censured for "obstructing" Senate processes by failure to appear before the elections subcommittee of the 82nd Congress and for "abuse" of the subcommittee and its members, and for the "abuse" of Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker in a closed hearing February 18.

Players, Officials Express Satisfaction Over Yankee-Baltimore Player Swap

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP) —Opinions on which club got the better the deal between the New York Yankees-Baltimore trade varied but the players involved naturally expressed satisfaction over the trade.

Young Bob Turley, the big pawn in the transaction, was elated.

"I hate to get traded from Baltimore where I've been treated so wonderfully," he said.

Pitcher Don Larsen, who also comes to the Yankees, couldn't be reached directly for comment at his San Dego, Calif., home. But his sister Mrs. Roy A. Thompson, reported her brother as being very surprised and happy.

The two rookie catchers who left the Yankees for Baltimore also were happy over their new home.

'Now, my chances to play are better," said Gus Triandos, who is playing in the Cuban winter league. "Yogi Berra (Yankee catched) is the best and there wasn't much of a chance with Yogi n there."

Pitcher Harry Byrd, dealt to the Orioles after a disappointing season with the Yankees, said he liked the Yankees and thinks he'll help the Orioles but hopes he'll get to pitch more often.

Gene Woodling, who played on the Yankee championship teams from 1949-1953 but had a poor season in '54. said he wouldn't "roll over and play dead just because the Yankees traded 'me. I still have several good years left. I'll hate leaving the Yankees but I have a lot of respect for Paul Richards (Oriole general manager-manager)."

Baseball officials saw both clubs benefitting.

Al Lopez, manager of the American League champion Indians, said the addition of Turley and Larsen is sure to strengthen the Yanks pitching.

General Manager Frank Lane of the Chicago White Sox lauded the deal as "wel planned on both sides, a deal that is going to pep up the American League."

Bombers Looking To Clinch Tie For Loop Title Tonite

The league leading Andersen Bombers tackle the third place Sou'Westers tonight at Naval Base field looking to clinch a tie for the Coral Bowl League title. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

The Bombers led by Halfback Bobby Claiborne and Fullback Leon Gafford whipped the Sou'Westers 26-13 in their first meeting on Gilkeson Field, the home of the Bombers. The Sou'Westers figure that may be a change of scenery will prove a change in luck.

In last week's tilt against the Clark Field Wildcats, Bomber Coach Al Jones unveiled a new halfback threat in Monty Mumford. Mumford sped for three scores against the Wildcats. Mumford's presence in the lineup should take some of the pressure off Claiborne and Gafford.

A Bomber loss tonight would deadlock them with the Mid-Islanders. The two teams meet next week at Gilkeson Field in what should be a whale of a battle. The Mid-Islanders own the distinction of handing the Bombers their only defeat of the season.

But no matter what happens tonight, the Mid-Islanders will be going all out against Jonesmen next week.

What Makes Lions Great? Experts Say Answer In Balance And Depth

By JAMES E. SMALLEGAN

DETROIT, Nov. 19 (AP) — You have to go a long way in this football conscious city to find anyone who'll tell you the Detroit Lons are not a shoo-in for their third straight National Football League title.

And book makers aren't the exception — they're the rule. Trying to place a bet on the Lions for their game against the Green Bay Packers Sunday is like looking for a Chevrolet in the Ford Motor Co.'s executive parking lot — there just isn't one to be had.

The Lions, who are firmly planted in first place in the Western Division, ahead of the Los Angeles Rams, are heavy favorites over the Packers.

What makes the Lions this great?

Those who say they know will tell you the whole complicated deal adds up to this: balance and deep, deep depth.

Then you'll point to the NFL's individual statisics sheet and say, "Look, only one Lion player is leading in eight departments."

He is Bill Bowman, who tops the kickoff return 1st with a 33.8 yard average.

Of course, they say, Bobby Layne is the second leading passer with 70 completions out of 128 attempts for 1,049 yards, and Doak Walker (who has been used sparingly this year) is the second leading scorer with 78 points, and Jack Christiansen is second in punt returns with a 108 yard average.

This, they'll tell you, is the type of balance that makes Detroit so explosive.

Previous Records Go By Boards In Yale-Harvard Tilt

CAMBRIDGE, Mass, Nov. 19 (AP) —For many this is The Game, this 71st football meeting between Harvard and Yale tomorrow in Harvard Stadium — the nation's oldest and one of the largest.

A Yale victory would give the Blue the Ivy crown. By beating its most cherished rival, Harvard can win the Big Three championship. A Harvard victory also would cause the Ivy crown to be shared by Yale and Cornell.

Past records, performances against common opponents, size and depth of squads, physical condition of players, frequently mean little when these Ivy-draped institutions go at each other in football.

Harvard reports almost all the squad will be ready to play "at least some of the game." Down at New Haven, Yale reports it will have difficulty mustering four sound men to start in the backfield.

Final College Football Weekend Sees Bowl Bids, Titles Awaiting Winners

By JOHN CHANDLER

The final big college football weekend comes up with an atmosphere of Rose, Orange, and Cotton Bowls hanging over various stadia from coast to coast and some terrific ball games on tap.

Undefeated Ohio State, the nation's No. 1 team by an eyelash over UCLA, meets Michigan at Columbus before a crowd of 82,000. The stakes are the Big 10 championship and a trip to the Pasadena, Calif., Rose Bowl.

UCLA, which can't repeat in the Rose Bowl, provides another major grid spectacle with Southern California before a selfout 102,000 at the Los Angeles Coliseum. Win, lose or draw, Southern Calfornia meets the Big 10 representative in the Jan. 1 Rose Bowl, but the Trojans would rather get there as the champs of the Pacific Coast by beating the powerful UCLAns.

Other major contests which will directly affect other New Year's Day games are Baylor and Southern Methodist at Dallas, Nebraska and Okahoma at Norman, Okla., Kansas State and Colorado at Boulder, Colo., South Carolina and Duke at Durham, N.C., and George Washington and Maryland at College Park, Md. The GW-Maryland game is not a conference clash but a loss probably would knock the Terrapins out of Orange Bowl consideration.

Of more than incidental interest will be the tussle at Iowa City, Iowa, between Notre Dame and Iowa, although neither is heading for any Jan. 1 frolics. The teams tied 14-14 last year and a couple of Irish fainting incidents produced a first class rhubarbs that is still simmering

Yoshida Deserted By Party Backers; Told To 'Step Down To Save The State'

TOKYO, Nov. 23 (AP) — Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida's storm-tossed political ship was deserted yesterday by 35 Diet members and Minister of State Masazumi Ando, who called on Yoshida to resign.

In his resignation, Ando declared that "the only way to save the state" was for Yoshida to step down from his six-year tenure as prime minister.

The 35 members of Yoshida's Liberal (conservative) party were joining a new conservative coalition to be known as the Japan Democratic party. Japanese press reports said as many as nine other Liberal party members also are expected to bolt to the new party.

The Progressive (conservative) party led by Mamoru Shigemitsu, who signed the World War II surrender for Japan, will take its 70 Diet members into the Democratic party. Also joining are eight splinter Liberals who broke previously with Yoshida.

Yoshida has been able to stay in power only with the help of these dissident conservatives who now plan to join with the Socialists in a vote of no-confidence in the lower house when the Diet meets November 30.

As it stands now, Yoshida is left with but 189 votes in the 460 vote lower house. The new Democratic party is assured of 110 votes which with the 133 votes commanded by the right and left Socialists is enough to jam through the resolution.

Yoshida, who has indicated he might forestall a non-confidence vote by dissolving the Diet and forcing new elections, sent a letter to party leaders. He asked that they discuss at a meeting today whether he resign or fight. Most Japanese political observers believe he will fight.

NATO Chiefs Postpone Talks On W. Germany

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP) — The military chiefs of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization met here yesterday but postponed consideration of West German rearmament until their next meeting in Paris in mid-December.

The 10th conference of NATO's military committee, a group composed of the chiefs of staff of the 14 NATO countries or their representatives, convened yesterday morning in what was to have been a two-day session.

But at mid-afternoon, a spokesman announced that the chiefs had completed all business which they decided to consider at this time and had adjourned. They had been in session less than five hours.

Consideration of the military portion of the plan to rearm Germany in accordance with the board political understanding reached at Paris was on the agenda but was not taken up.

Presumably, one reason for postponing committee studies of that subject was to allow more time during which at least some of the NATO governments might ratify the agreement for bringing Western Germany into the European Defense Organization.

A formal communique was issued after the adjournment. It said only that the committee had heard the report of its chairman, French Gen. Augustin Guillaume, on the status of defense forces and had considered "the most effective pattern of NATO military strength, taking into account modern developments in technique and weapons."

The Territorial Planning Commission will hold its regular meeting this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the office of the Department of Land Management in Agana.

The commission will discuss housing and land problems in the light of the accelerated home construction expected to start soon as a result of the approval of the $15 million Federal aid for the rehabilitation of homes here.

Gov. Ford Q. Elvidge who has been conferring with FHA officials in Honolulu on the overall housing picture here is expected tonight aboard the Pan American Airways flight from the mainland, an announcement from the Governor's office said yesterday.

Chief Soviet U.N. Delegate Succumbs While Preparing 'Atom Peace' Address

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (AP) —Andrei Y. Vishinsky died of a heart attack yesterday while preparing for one of the most important debates in his career as the Soviet Union's leading orator. His blistering voice and brilliant mind had lifted him from the role of obscure bureaucrat to world fame in the East-West cold war.

Vishinsky died at 9:30 a.m. (1430 GMT), the Soviet delegation announced at its headquarters on Park Avenue here. He had collapsed earlier, after attending a dinner given Sunday night by the French delegation.

He was the Soviet Union's first deputy foreign minister, with permanent assignment as chief delegate to the U.N. He had spent some of his last working hours getting ready for a renewal of the debate on the atoms-for-peace plan with which President Eisenhower challenged the Soviet Union to prove its peaceful intentions to the world. The debate was postponed, as were all other U.N. sessions except a meeting of tribute to the colleague known as the "No" man of the United Nations.

The Soviet delegation said Vishinsky was attended by a Russian physician — in common with the Soviet custom of shunning Western contacts except when necessary. A funeral announcement is expected later.

New York police were called, and Lt. John McCarthy was admitted to a room where Vishinsky lay fully clothed on a bed. The Soviet delegation announced he died of an acute stenocardiac attack. This is angina pectoris, a suffocation of the heart. The delegation said its building will be opened to allow the public to pay its respects.

Speculation began immediately on Vishinsky's successor. One possibility mentioned was Andrei Gromyko, deputy U.S.S.R. foreign minister who formerly headed Mos-

Radio Moscow Airs Terse Obit About Vishinsky

LONDON, Nov. 23 (AP) — Five hours after the announcement of Andrei Y. Vishinsky's death in New York, Moscow radio broadcast the news. The announcement:

"The central committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and the council of ministers with profound grief announce that the outstanding statesman member of the central committee, first deputy minister of foreign affairs of the U.S.S.R., deputy to the supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R., academician Comrade Vishinsky, Andrei Yanvaryevich, died suddenly in New York on Nov 22, 1954. (Signed Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, Council of Ministers of U.S.S.R.)"

It made no mention of his role as public prosecutor during the purge trials of the 1930's.

A subsequent Moscow radio broadcast said that the government and the Communist party had appointed a government commission for the Vishinsky funeral. Vishinsky's body will be brought to Moscow.

The members were listed as: M. O. Pervukhin, a deputy premier as chairman; Andrei Gromyko, deputy foreign minister; K. O. Gorshenin, minister of justice; A. F. Gorkin, a secretary of the praesidium of the Supreme Soviet; M. A. Yasnov, chairman of the Moscow City Soviet.

The Soviet ministry of foreign affairs announced the profound grief of its collegium and staff over Vishinsky's death and the expression of condolence to his family.

Chiang Navy Claims 2 Red Ships Sunk In Area Where Japan Boats Went Down

TAIPEH, Formosa, Nov. 23 (AP) — The Nationalists yesterday claimed their navy sank two Red warships off the Tachens, but Japan reported two of its fishing boats were sunk by gunfire in that area.

Official Nationalist quarters professed to know nothing about the Japanese fishing boats. However, the military information service, which issues the defense ministry's communiques, disclosed none would be put out on the sea battle.

The service previously had telephoned the communique to correspondents. This account said Nationalist naval vessels sank two Chinese Red warships and sent 11 others fleeing toward the Red mainland in a sea battle 12 miles southeast of the Tachens. The Tachens are 200 miles north of Formosa.

In Tokyo, the foreign office said two "unidentified" gunboats machinegunned two fishing ships, killing two and wounding three. Both ships went down. The foreign office gave the location as 20 miles southeast of the Tachens. An investigation was ordered by Tokyo.

It was not clear whether the Nationalists had shot up Japanese fishing boats thinking they were Red junks.

Official quarters speculated that the reported Red fleet — supposedly made up of armed junks —was maneuvering for a sneak blow at the Tachen islands, which the Nationalists fear the Reds will invade.

Earlier yesterday, Nationalist planes for the second straight day attacked Communist island positions near the Tachen group. Pilots claimed direct hits on Red gun positions of Toumen island, 12 miles northwest of the Tachens. The number of planes involved was not given, but official report said all returned safely.

Red gun positions on Toumen menace the Nationalists' outpost island of Yikiangshan, five miles to the south.

Across Formosa strait, there were occasional artillery exchanges between Communist Amoy and the nearby Nationalist island of Quemoy.

Westerners Press For U.N. Approval Of Ike's Atom-For-Peace Proposal

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 23 (AP)—Jolted by Andrei Vishinsky's death, the Western allies pressed today for unanimous U.N. support of President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan despite new Soviet attempts to clamp Security Council veto power on the program.

The U.N.'s Political Committee which cut off debate yesterday when word came of Vishinsky's death, prepared to resume discussion (1530 GMT) of the resolution backed by the United States and six atomic partners to set up an international atomic agency.

Diplomats were confident the Russians would accept the broad outlines of the proposal once they have gotten their objections on record. India, also critical of the plan, disclosed she would not insist on putting her amendments to the vote as long as they are recorded.

Arkady Sobolev, No. 2 man on the Soviet permanent delegation, said the Russians wanted:

1. The proposed agency to be responsible to the General Assembly and the Security Council in cases provided for by the U.N. Charter.

2. The scientific conference to help set up the agency should be open to any country desiring to take part.

Vishinsky's death aroused immediate speculation as to who would take over his post. The fact that Sobolev has taken over his duties — for the time being at least — strengthened a long-standing belief that he would succeed Vishinsky.

Former assistant secretary general of the U.N., Sobolev is on more cordial terms with Western diplomats here than any other high-ranking Russian.

Vishinsky's body will lie in public view in a bronze coffin today between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. EST in the delegation headquarters. It will be placed aboard a Pan-American airliner at 6 p.m. for Paris, the first leg of its journey back to Moscow for the funeral. Mrs. Vishinsky and their daughter, Zena, will accompany the body.

cow's U.N. delegation.

Vishinsky had been a spectacular performer on the world stage since he prosecuted Stalin's blood purge two decades ago. He was a master of withering scorn and searing satire. His rapier-like wit won the admiration, however grudging, of his colleagues.

Vishinsky's death, while it removes a colorful figure from the cold war can have little effect upon the course of Moscow's relations with the Western world. Vishinsky, however brilliant his performance, consistently carried out orders from the Kremlin to the letter. No Western observers credited him with any decisive voice in Soviet policy.

He was the mouthpiece abroad of the regime of Premier Georgi M. Malenkov, just as he was the mouthpiece of the Stalin regime, relaying Soviet policy in speeches laced with fiery invective.

To many in the West, Vishinsky became a symbol of Soviet stubbornness, the man who time after time used a Security Council veto to block any decisive action opposed by Moscow. There were times when he appeared to have overstepped his authority, but he always escaped serious consequences — just as he was one of the few earlier followers of Leon Trotzky to escape Stalin's wrath.

Vishinsky Easiest Red To Deal With, Correspondent Says

By EDDY GILMORE
(AP Correspondent in Moscow for 13 years)

LONDON, Nov. 23 (AP) — Of all the sinister figures of high Communism Andrei Vishinsky was probably the easiest with which to talk, joke and drink.

He was a cynic and he often made you feel that he did not believe some features of Communist policy he was expounding with characteristic vigor.

The classic example of his cynicism was the occasion when he and the American and British ambassadors in Moscow traveled together to Bucharest, theoretically to supervise the first free elections there after the Germans had been driven from the country.

At a party one night on the Soviet train between Moscow and Bucharest, Averell Harriman, governor-elect of New York and the late Lord Inverchapel, were his guests.

While they were drinking champagne one of them asked Vishinsky, "Mr. Vishinsky, if there were really free election in Romania tomorrow what percentage would the Communist get?"

"Well," said the Soviet official, "if the elections were really free, I think the Communists would get about 20 per cent, but — with just a little pressure, I believe we'd get 99 per cent."

I was complaining to him one night at a party in Moscow about the ridiculously high Soviet customs whereby I'd been charged 40 dollars duty for a five dollar doll that someone had sent my daughter.

"Pardon me," I told him, "but you don't have customs, you have confiscation."

Vishinsky asked me to repeat the remark and I did so reluctantly, reasoning I might be in for trouble, but when he understood he roared.

"That's the best definition I ever heard of customs," he said. "I don't like them either."

"But what are you going to do about the doll?"

Nothing," he said, laughing even louder.

Of all the tough tasks that Vishinsky had to handle in the Soviet Union I know of none so difficult as the night he tried to persuade his boss, Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, to leave a party back in 1944.

Molotov must have downed 30 or 40 toasts and about 2 o'clock in the morning, began to wobble. The party was at Speridonivka Palace and Vishinsky finally talked Molotov into leaving.

He got him to the door and then Molotov, like many another man, decided he was going to rejoin the party. He brushed Vishinsky aside and marching back up the steps flung his arms around a commander in the United States Navy.

"My friend," shouted Molotov, "representative of the great American people."

"God of mine," muttered Vishinsky, but loud enough for several people to hear, "What do I do now?"

ROK Ultimatum Out On Alleged Truce Team Spies

SEOUL, Nov. 23 (AP) — South Korea yesterday accused the Polish and Czech members of the Truce Commission of spying and again demanded they leave the country.

Lt. Gen. Won Yong Duk, ROK provost marshal, demanded in a letter to Maj. Gen. L. Kruszenic, chief Polish truce inspector, and Brig. Gen J. Hecko, chief of the Czech team, that they "leave Korea peacefully" or "face the most positive measure" by the ROK government.

Released by the government information office, the letter repeated ROK charges that Communist members of the four-power Truce Supervisory Commission have spied on Korean military secrets, aided Red underground workers in South Korea and obstructed in the Truce Supervisory Commission's work in North Korea.

Won said he had refrained from taking action "in a sincere effort to pay due respect to the United Nations." He previously had asked the U.N. command to expel the Communist commissioners. He asked that the Pole and Czech respond "with both words and deeds within one week."

Polish and Czech commission members are stationed at five ports in South Korea to observe military traffic. At Pusan and Kunsan bomb-throwing and pistol-shooting marked ROK demonstration a few months ago.

Not Monroe Aftermath

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23 (AP) —Joe DiMaggio's physician said today the duodenal ulcer which has put the former New York Yankee baseball star in the hospital here didn't result from Joe's romantic difficulties.

"Joe had the ulcer before he even met Marilyn," added Dr. Clifton J. Bennett. "He has had it for several years."

In Hollywood, Marilyn Monroe —who divorced DiMaggio recently — replied "no comment" when asked if she planned to visit Joe. Studio officials said she was expected to stay there this week for film work.

Commercial Uranium Found In P.I.

MANILA, Nov. 23 (AP) — Uranium of commercial value has been discovered in Southeastern Luzon island, the board of directors of the Philippine Iron Mines Inc., announced yesterday.

The report sent Philippine Iron Mines stock on the Manila exchange soaring to $1.90 a share, a new high. Its total sales yesterday were 47,305 shares. The workings are 110 miles southeast of Manila.

Samples were sent to the U.S. Bureau of Mines office in Tucson, Arizona. The result of this analysis "confirmed that the samples contained uranium of commercial value," the board said.

NOT IN THE BOOKS

Andrei Vishinsky is dead, and he has gone on to his just reward. He didn't die true to form — shrieking, shouting—as he was prone to do as Soviet Russia's professional tongue-lasher in the United Nations. Perhaps it was just as well that death came gently and quietly to the notorious purge lawyer; and if he had a moment of grace to recognize the awesome inevitability of death, we hope he took advantage of it to settle his account with his Maker, if he believed in one.

Vishinsky died in surroundings totally incompatible with his vitriolic attacks on capitalism. He lived and expired in New York's most fashionable quarters—Park Avenue—the paradise of the city's wealthy, not in a mud-and-straw shelter among the common laborers of Russia. In this respect, he followed a Party line that is not in the books; for the Kremlin residences of Communism's top officials are believed to be even more replete with the ornaments of the much-despised capitalistic way of life.

It seems a strange thing that for all their propaganda against the Western world's "corrupt" capitalistic society, Communist leaders like Vishinsky are ever disposed to manifesting an opposite attitude in their manner of living, right under the nose of Americans whom they persistently have singled out for criticism. But it points out again some of the weaknesses of the Communist ideology: its hypocrisy, its inconsistency, its lack of reasonable appeal. And, ironically, these are more glaringly displayed by those who appear to be the most ardent disciples of Communist teachings.

We wonder how men as learned as Vishinsky was reputed to be can live with themselves and with one another. What they call "living" probably calls for a new concept of life which no doubt would be as devoid of reason and sincerity as the mind of the dyed-in-the-wool Marxist.

Vishinsky's death will not mean a new life for an aging world, for he was merely one of the cogs in a machinery of evil and a small one at that. There undoubtedly are more men like him and all of them some day will die. For the Russians will not invent a secret weapon against death; even they realize that the secrets of life and death are known only to the God they refuse to acknowledge.

The Mature Parent

By Mrs. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Ted's grandmother says that the way her daughter is "spoiling" him is causing friction in the family.

The other day, for example, he ran off with a cousin's water pistol. His mother spent 20 minutes in futile pleading with him to return it. Then his aunt took action. She hit Ted, snatched the toy—and then attacked her sister-in-law as "weak and spineless."

Ted's grandmother writes, "My daughter is afraid of this boy. I don't understand it as I never had disobedience from my children. They did what they were told. They were good children."

Perhaps this daughter who was such a good, obedient child dares not oppose her son lest she appear "bad" in his eyes.

Does this idea seem absurd? It isn't. Many of us fear to oppose children lest we lose "goodness" in their eyes. Though we are not conscious of it, we are still working out the effects of childhood training that established us as "good" when we surrendered our wishes and condemned us as "bad" when we defended them.

So it might be profitable for Ted's mother to try to remember what actually went on in her mind as a little girl under punishment for "badness."

I suspect that it was a very painful experience that induced great fear of future isolation and abandonment. I have the idea that this fear is her fear of opposing Ted, and that she dares not take any firm action toward him lest it produce the old painful condemnation of her as a "bad" girl.

This is not an unusual problem for a parent who has been subjected to severe the unfeeling controls as a child. We all want our child to regard us as "good."

If we have been trained to believe that compliance to others' wishes is "good" and any opposition to them is "bad," the compliance is all we can give our child until we are ready to examine ourselves—and stop using him as the butt of our fears.

Ted is a good friend to his mother—perhaps her first real one. He does not like her compliance. By his "spoiled" behavior, he is refusing to encourage it.

In his own way, he is saying to her, "Mother, you are no longer a little girl to live on your parents' definitions of 'goodness' and 'badness.' For both our sakes, start making your own. Take this water pistol episode, for example. Was it 'goodness' in you to subject me to hate today because you dared not take a toy from me?"

Ted, the good child, is going to force his mother to get rid of her ghosts.

At Least Its Nuisance Value Will Be Great

Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON. — Here are the hard-core Republican senators who Joe McCarthy expects will vote for him: Bricker, Ohio; Bridges, N.H.; Butler, Md.; Dirksen, Ill.; Goldwater, Ariz.; Jenner, Ind.; Malone, Nev.; Mundt, S.D. and Welker, Idaho.

Here are other Republicans who may either go along with Joe or favor a compromise: Capehart, Ind.; Hickenlooper, Iowa; Knowland, Calif.; Langer, N.D.; Martin, Pa.; Schoeppel, Kans., and Wiley, Wisc. Others who are wavering include Barrett, Wyo.; Beall, Md., and Dworshak, Idaho.

If McCarthy gets two Democrats, as he claims privately, they'll probably be Eastland of Mississippi and Daniel of Texas. Another Democrat, Lennon of North Carolina, made some pro-McCarthy cracks when he arrived in Washington, but got burned by them; while Holland of Florida is another who might possibly stray from the Democratic fold.

ARMY FAVORS EBASCO — Cong. Chet Holifield of California has run across some interesting connections between the Army, the public utility lobby and the Atomic Energy Commission. His discoveries make it appear that the Army engineers are hand in glove with Electric Bond and Share, the big holding company which is behind the Dixon-Yates contract.

Holifield also pointed up the fact that the Atomic Energy Commission is now dominated by military men, though Congress carefully passed a law providing for civilian control of the atom. What Holifield discovered was a letter from Maj. Gen. B. L. Robinson of the Army engineeers to another general, Kenneth Nichols, manager of the Atomic Energy Commission. It read: "Dear Ken — For your information, herewith is copy of a letter from Johnny Hardin verifying his position with relation to the location of the Dixon-Yates steam plant." The letter was signed "Robby."

General Robinson enclosed another letter from Gen. John Hardin, also of the Army engineers, who had written "Robby" (Robinson) about meeting with "representatives of EBASCO" (Electric Bond and Share) on a proposed site for the plant near West Memphis, Tenn.

Then, General Hardin added some interesting intelligence in a post-scipt: "They (EBASCO representatives)," he said, "seemed pleased with the conference. We aimed to be helpful, rather than obstructive."

While Republican committee members fidgeted, Congressman Holifield pressed General Nichols for an explanation of that unusual language. He maintained that the Army engineers should have been neutral, rather than either "helpful" or "obstructive."

"OBSTRUCTIVE" GENERAL — Nichols, however, Hedged: "I do not know the meaning of that." Holifield was not satisfied.

"When I read this letter," he said, "I wondered about the post-script, because it so happens that I was chairman of the military housing subcommittee in Alaska when General Hardin was in the Pentagon, and the particulars I received from General Hardin and the difficulty I had then indicated to me that he must have looked upon my inquiry with a little bit different opinion than he did yours.

"I attach special significance to this," continued Holifield, "and think that in the future, if I have to deal with Johnny, I will come to Ken and ask Ken to give me a letter."

The humor was lost completely on Gen. "Ken" Nichols.

"I would be pleased to do that, sir," he replied stiffly.

"As I look at this (the Dixon-Yates contract)," continued Holifield, "I could almost believe that it is a military operation. We have General Johnny and General Robby and Colonel Mitcham and General Kenneth. And we have the commander-in-chief, General Eisenhower, and Admiral Strauss (chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission).

"So it looks like a military operation, and I wonder if the cooperation had anything to do with the conception of the line of command."

By this time, even Republican committee colleagues were laughing, but General Nichols just didn't think there was anything funny about it at all.

NOTE — The giant Electric Bond and Share corporation, which the Army engineers seemed to favor, was investigated by Hugo Black before he left the Senate for the Supreme Court and was one reason for passage of the holding corporation act to disband the big holding companies and their grip on local utilities. The Dixon-Yates investigation has shown that Electric Bond and Share still dominates local utilities in the south, despite the holding corporation act.

Christmas Cards Can Be Eloquent Personal Messages

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

Starred on every Christmas card list are names of friends to whom we'd like to send a little something more than the standard greeting. I check off the old school pals, for example, who live so far away we don't see each other from one year to the next. We all have friends who are particularly delighted by the novel or unusual surprise. Or perhaps we just watch our greetings to stand out from the bundle of cards as popular family will receive.

Pictures of your family certainly will tell an eloquent story of growth and change to long-distance friends. And you don't need special shots taken in seasonal surroundings. Why not cull all the snapshots taken in the last few months to find the best likeness of each family member?

You can mount these effectively in simple folders and use bright colored gift-wrap tape to frame them and add the Christmas motif. For folders, use heavy white paper or construction paper. A star or tree-shape cutout on the face of a folder makes a frame for pictures mounted inside. Outline the cutout with tape. Or fold construction paper, travel-folder style, and plant a tape-framed closeup on each page.

Easy to assemble and fun to display is a family snapshot mobile. For this, you trace around a coin, cutting out the pictures in circles. Fold heavy white paper in half. Poke a couple of holes in the crease and thread a piece of fine wire through them. Bend the wire at the top of the card to allow about two and a half inches to protrude from the fold. Tape the pictures to a thin black thread. Tie thread to wire. Tape imprinted with "Merry Christmas" can be stuck on as-is, or the individual letters can be cut out and applied in a pattern.

A new, ready-made novelty is a shiny, red-glass Christmas ornament with an unglazed white space for penning your greeting. Gaily decorated in white, these balls are ready to hang on the tree. Conveniently packaged in two cardboard containers for safe and easy mailing, these individualized greetings offer a bright answer to the quest for "something different."

Companion to these tree ornaments is a new, inexpensive kit which contains eight multicolored glass balls, small bottles of paint and a brush to enable you to decorate to suit yourself. Decorated and personalized with names, these could be used to carry greetings, brighten a Christmas-wrapped package, or be fastened to tree or wreath. And what an easy and festive placeboard favor a hand-painted ornament would be for a holiday dinner party!

A cigar box painted or paper covered and tricked up with shiny tape, stickers and your Christmas card on the cover makes a pretty and most practical way to send your greetings.

A girl baby who is as bald as an egg may upset her mother, for people on the street say—"isn't he cute?" If it makes you unhappy, get a ruffly bonnet for trips outdoors. It will cover her baldness and yet not be as awkward as those dresses that get snarled up in her kicking legs. Her hair will grow in soon and then there'll be no mistaking her femininity.

Navy Drafting Order To Spell Out Precise Relationship With Marines

WASHINGTON, (AP) — The Navy said today it is drafting a new order to spell out its precise relationship with the Marine Corps.

Acting Secretary of the Navy Thomas S. Gates, Jr., made the disclosure after published reports that Navy admirals are attempting to gain more control of the Marines and after receiving letters from congressmen seeking an assurance that the reports were not true.

In identical letters to Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.) and Sen.-Elect Bender (R-Ohio), Gates said that a final draft of the new general order defining the relationship between the Navy and the Marine Corps has not been completed. Gates said discussion concerning its form and language are still proceeding.

Gates supplied a copy of an administrative instruction issued by former Secretary of the Navy Robert Anderson last April which attempted to define the command functions and relationship of the chief of naval operations and the commandant of the Marine Corps. Mansfield had asked for a copy of the document. But the acting Navy secretary nowhere in his letter referred to Mansfield's specific request for "reassurance" that "the rumor (that the Navy was trying to subordinate the Marine Corps) is unfounded."

Gates replied to the letters from the two lawmakers in the absence of Secretary Charles S. Thomas who is on his way back from a trip to Europe.

The policy instruction issued by the Navy secretary in April defined the Marine Corps as a "unique but not separate service' that forms an integral part of the Department of the Navy.

The policy memorandum stated that the chief of naval operations is the senior military officer in the Naval establishment and the Naval executive to the Navy secretary. The document gave the Navy secretary authority to assign responsibility to the chief of naval operations for Marine Corps matters in areas specified by the secretary.

The memorandum specified the Marine commandant was the officer directly responsible to the Navy secretary for the administration, discipline, organization, training requirements, efficiency and readiness of the Marine Corps.

In those areas, the policy statement said, the Marine commandant is not a part of the permanent command structure of the chief of naval operations. Only those Marine elemens assigned to the operating forces of the Navy, such as those on board shps and attached to Navy shore stations, were placed under the command of the senior Navy admiral by the memorandum.

Recent published reports said that a backstage battle was under way in the Navy Department as a result of an alleged Navy effort to get the rules changed so that the chief of naval operations, now Adm. Robert B. Carney, would have more direct supervision of Marine operations and administration.

Canadian Vessel Circles Around North America

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, Nov. 23 (AP) — The Arctic patrol ship "Labrador" of the Canadian Navy nestled into her home berth yesterday the first naval vessel to circle North America.

She left Esquimault, British Columbia, last month after becoming the first vessel of any navy to conquer the northwest passage.

She left here July 23 on a mapping and sounding mission in the far north. She completed the circuit from Esquimault through the Panama Canal.

Her skipper, Capt. O. C. S. Robertson, said when he was about half way through the passage the rest of the way looked clear. He asked Ottawa by radio for permission to keep going, and got it.

The 6,500-ton Labrador has a 29-foot draft — almost as much as the liner Queen Mary — and like the ice she bucks, most of her is under water.

The only other ship to circumnavigate the continent is the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Arctic patrol vessel St. Roch.

Japan Names New Chief For P.I. War Debt Parley

TOKYO, Nov. 23 (AP) — The newspaper Asahi said yesterday the Japanese government has decided to replace Katsumi Ohno in Manila as part of a new move to get long, deadlocked war reparations talks started again.

The paper did not indicate who would succeed Ohno but Japan already has decided to appoint Mamoru Nagano, influential Japanese industrialist, as chief of the reparations delegation.

The new Japanese move, Asahi said, stems from talks Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida had with Sen. Jose P. Laurel of the Philippines in Washington two weeks ago.

Asahi said Nagano, accepting the offer, plans to hold informal reparations talks with Philippine officials as a prelude to official talks.

Ohno signed the previous agreement for a 400 million dollar reparations payment, which the Philippines described as inadequate.

U. S. Overseas Gain

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP) — U.S. foreign investments midway through 1954 amounted to 17 billion dollars, a gain of 10 billion since the end of World War II, the commerce department reported today.

This private flow of overseas investment dollars totaled about 1½ billion dollars in 1953, and, according to the report, continued at the same rate in the first half of this year.

Over one third of the total earnings of U.S. petroleum companies comes from foreign operations, and foreign petroleum investments help supply the U.S. with a large part of the oil it uses yearly.

One quarter of all United States imports come from companies created by American private investments overseas.

Raab Pushes Bid For End To Big 4 Austrian Control

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP)—Austrian Chancellor Julius Raab appeared today to be making progress in his search for reaffirmed western support for a treaty to restore full independence to his country.

On the first full day of his state visit to the United States, Raab conferred on this subject with President Eisenhower, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, and assistant secretary Livingston P. Merchant.

The only immediate official comment was from the White House, which said in a statement the meeting of the two heads of government was "very friendly and cordial" and that there had been particular attention to the prospect of a state treaty for Austria.

Evidently, Raab's conference in New York yesterday with French Premier Pierre Mendes-France also had produced results. Mendes-France today in his United Nations speech suggesting a Big Four conference next May, if the agreements on rearming Germany have been ratified by then, specially called for completion of a treaty ending the occupation status in Austria. He said completion of such a treaty ahead of a general European settlement would be a good way of showing good intentions.

Diplomatic informants expressed the opinion there may be little the United States can do immediately for Raab except to reaffirm the moral support it already consistently has been giving his government in its quest for the end of the four-power occupation. Previous attempts to work out a treaty have been blocked by the Soviet's insistence on being guaranteed the right to keep troops in Austria.

Diplomatic sources here said the desire of western allies to see complete Austrian independence restored was expressed publicly again at the United Nations. They said a joint report of the United States, United Kingdom, and French governments on the progress of negotiations so far attempted was made to the U.N. late last week. It was expected to be brought up publicly soon.

It was understood another development being discussed with Raab is a report Russia may be considering establishing a security system with its European satellites more or less comparative to the west's North Atlantic Treaty organization.

If Russia should decide to make a conciliatory gesture by removing its troops from Austria, the establishment of such a security system could help. As long as Red army units are in Austria, the Soviet Union has the right, under its peace treaties with the Balkan countries that fought on Germany's side during World War II, to keep troops in those countries as guards for its line of communication.

If Russia were to withdraw its troops from Austria, it might be embarrassed to explain continued presence of Red forces in Hungary and Bulgaria. But if they established a NATO-like system in the Balkans, it could withdraw from Austria without raising this question.

WE will be open Thanksgiving Day.

It's Official! USC To Meet Buckeyes

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23 (AP)—The University of Southern California was chosen yesterday to represent the Pacific Coast Conference against Ohio State University in the 1955 Rose Bowl football game at Pasadena next New Year's Day.

The expected formal announcement was made by Victor O. Schmidt, Pacific Coast Conference commissioner.

The USC Trojans lost to their cross-town rivals, the UCLA Bruins, 34-0, in Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum last Saturday. But UCLA is not eligible to play in the Rose Bowl this New Year, having performed there last Jan. 1. The Bruins have an unblemished conference won-and-lost record of 6-0.

Ohio State won the Big Ten Conference title.

Cross-Country Run Stressed In Prep For '56 Olympics -

By JIMMY BRESLIN

NEW YORK (NEA) — (AP) — While people around the country are tearing apart steaks at Olympic fund-raising dinners, cross-country runners — most of whom look as if they could use a meal themselves — are working perking up.

"The situation is a lot better," Dan Ferris, the National Amateur Athletic Union secretary-treasurer, remarked after he had watched George Terry, a spindly plugger from Boston University, capture the ICA4 crown over New York's five-mile Van Cortland Park course.

Ferris and the rest of this nation's track and field experts are paying more than passing inferest to cross-country.

That's because the long races this sport holds are hopefully looked for to produce some authentic distance stars who can hold their own with the long-haul boys being stockpiled in Red-dominated countries.

"We've been warned about Russia's strength for the 1956 Olympics," said Ferris. "We know they are powerful in the longer races. That's why we feel that this country must hold more and longer cross-country races."

The AAU has decided to put together as ambitious a program as possible throughout the next two years. It hopes to groom American runners for the 5000 and 10,000-kilometer runs.

Cross country previously has been regarded as not much more than stiff pre-season training.

With the National Collegiate Athletic Association at East Lansing, Mich., following the IC4A, the roughest test of the year comes at Philadelphia's Fairmont Park, Nov. 28, when the AAU stages its six-and-a-quarter mile run — the equivalent of a 10,000 meter test — with the best of the college and club runners entered.

"This one should give us a good start," Ferris says. "And to hold it, we need to run more distance races, not just in the metropolitan centers, but in smaller places, where we can develop runners — and maybe come up with somebody like Ralph Hill, who came out of Klamath Falls, Ore., to stand the 1932 Olympic Games on end."

It's an important thing, cross-country, but a first look at the sport leaves an onlooker bewildered. The winner looks like a guy who has just lost a featherweight match. Most cross-country runners are on the thin side and when they finish one of those five-mile events, they fold like a chair once past the finish line.

Terry was mentioned in the same breath with Emil Zatopek after his IC4A victory, but looked like a dish-rag when he crossed the line, too exhausted to talk. He finished at a good gait, then stumbled into the arms of his coach.

Blaik's Recipe For Cadets' Success: Take Leftovers And Shake Well!!

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

WEST POINT, N.Y., Nov. 23 (AP)—If Army's football team caps a remarkable season by beating Navy in the big one this Saturday, Coach Earl (Red) Blaik probably should be credited with a great re-conversion job.

It's a "made" Army team that has won seven straight games since losing its first to South Carolina. It's a conglomeration of sophomores, re-traded B squad players and veterans who have been made to fit in where they were most needed.

Only five of the 11 starters are playing their "normal" positions. One of the others is a senior who hadn't seen enough varsity action in two years to earn a letter and another was a regular last season only because the coaches decided his defensive ability offset "fumblitis."

The significance of Blaik's many moves is revealed by the fact that most of the players still in their accustomed positions are on the second unit and about half of this group were primarily B squad players last season.

The conversions began last Spring, when it was learned the captain, Bob Farris, a great offensive tackle and line backer, wouldn't be available for duty this season. They were accelerated after the South Carolina loss.

That showed up the team's weaknesses and forced Blaik to make changes he might not have risked otherwise. "I hated to find out in that way," he told intimates, "but losing to South Carolina helped make us a good football team."

End Coach Paul Amen, speaking for the hospitalized coach, gave Blaik full credit for the successful moves.

"Col. Blaik had amazing perception when it comes to making changes. He can sense a player's potentialities and how best to make use of them."

Longden regained consciousness before he reached the track's emergency hospital. There a preliminary check did not show any injuries.

Dutch To 'Hit Hard' In New Guinea

War Minister Says Netherlands Ready For Any Big Attack

THE HAGUE, Nov. 26 (AP) — The Netherlands will hit hard in case of aggression against Dutch-held New Guinea, Dutch war minister Cornelis Staf told members of the Dutch lower house last night.

Staf replied to members of parliament of four political parties who had asked him for "an important increase of armed forces on Dutch New Guinea."

They urged him to reconsider the possibility of establishing native (Papua) brigades or native battalions to meet "Indonesian infiltration." Staf earlier had rejected establishing native military units.

Staf said the Netherlands forces in New Guinea so far are not stationed there for aggressive purposes.

"But they will deal hard and direct blows to those who venture to attack the integrity of this territory,' he said.

"Past infiltrations have only strengthened our vigilance.

"We are prepared to meet any attack on a larger scale.

"For the time being, only naval forces stationed in New Guinea are for the purpose of efficiency but if necessary we are prepared to use more and other means."

Typhoon 'Tilda'

Typhoon "Tilda" lashed at Guam last night with winds up to 55 miles per hour and gusts to 65 miles per hour, the Navy fleet weather central announced. At midnight last night, "Tilda" passed 35 miles southwest of Agana.

A Navy weather reconnaissance plane fixed the typhoon by radar at 8.05 o'clock last night at 50 miles south southeast of Guam.

Winds are expected to become easterly and decrease slowly this morning. Seas were rough and tides abnormally high last night and will still be this morning.

U.S. Solons, Interior Department Officials To Study Problems Here

The first of a group of United States lawmakers and Department of Interior officials was scheduled to arrive here yesterday on a Transocean Airlines plane from the Trust Territory, the governor's office announced yesterday. The announcement added the group will be here for "a week or longer" to "study and discuss conditions and problems of Guam as they relate to the Federal government."

Expected yesterday were Congressman Wayne Aspinall (D-Col.), of the House Sub-Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs; Anthony Lausi, assistant director of the Office of Territories, Department of Interior, and Dr. J.L. Taylor, territories consultant.

Arriving today via MATS are Congressman A.L. Miller (R-Neb.), chairman of the committee, Congresswoman Gracie Pfost (D-Idaho), and Congressman E.Y. Berry (R-S.D.). Another member of the group—George Abbott, committee counsel—is expected here aboard a MATS plane next Tuesday.

The announcement said the Committee's activities have been scheduled by the governor. They include discussions with territorial government officials and members of the Guam Legislature. Discussion of "several important matters with active local businessmen" also is anticipated.

Solemn Prayers, Parades Feasting Mark U.S. 'Peacetime' Thanksgiving

By The Associated Press

Americans celebrated their second peacetime thanksgiving in a succession yesterday with solemn prayers of gratitude, gay parades and feasting.

It was the seventh time in the last 13 years that America has been free from war, but thousands of families sat down to their turkey dinners with a son still overseas.

President Eisenhower broke into his Thanksgiving vacation at Augusta, Ga., to send to the families of 13 Americans imprisoned by the Chinese Communists a telegraphed pledge that the United States will use "every feasible means" to bring each of the 13 to freedom.

"It is tragic," he said in the message, "that the feeling of thankfulness you must have in hearing at last that he is alive must now be joined with the heartache of concern for his well-being."

Eisenhower also got in some office work and some golf under brilliant skies at Augusta, before carving a huge turkey for Mrs. Eisenhower and their guests, including British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery.

Vice-President Richard Nixon was also in sunny climes, acting as host for 35 at a Thanksgiving dinner at Nassau in the Bahama islands. Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell spoke at Thanksgiving Day services of the American society in Brazil, at Rio de Janeiro.

A typical observance of the holiday by American troops standing guard overseas occurred at Augsburg, Germany, where the 11th Infantry Regiment was host to children from five orphanages.

In New York, an estimated two million persons watched the 28th annual Thanksgiving Day parade through mid-Manhattan. They

Senator Proposes 'Co-Op Approach' For Asia Aid Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) yesterday proposed a new "cooperative approach" by the United States, France and British commonwealth nations to the question of helping friendly, underdeveloped Asian nations build solid economic footings.

Mansfield said he would oppose any "one-way aid program" by the United States alone as a substitute for present U.S. aid programs due to expire for the most part next June 30.

"We would do far better," he said in an interview, "to go into this thing on a cooperative basis to help the non-Communist nations of southeast and central Asia help themselves." He questioned whether the United States should even be the "principal contributor."

Mansfield suggested the 16-nation Colombo plan as a "natural" base from which to launch a fresh attack on the problem of building economic strength as a bulwark against Communist encroachment.

The Colombo plan is a loose association of central and southeast Asian nations with common of economic problems. The United States, Great Britain and Canada are also associated with the plan.

Mansfield said he did not think Congress would accept any such ambitious plan for Asia as the old European Marshall Plan, despite what he called a "basic recognition" that non-Communist nations of Asia must be economically fortified.

He said he would favor an economic aid program costing the United States from 100 to 500 million dollars for the next two years, "with the emphasis on the smaller figure." Great Britain, France and commonwealth nations should make the "principal" contribution, he said.

Lodge Denounces Unspeakable Gang For Jailing Yanks

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 26 (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. yesterday denounced as a "new act of barbarism" the Chinese Communist sentencing of 13 Americans for alleged espionage. He said it is another reason why that "unspeakable gang" in Peiping should not sit in the United Nations.

The chief American delegate to the U.N. Assembly issued a statement as he continued conferences with the State Department on the American course in the latest conflict with Red China. Some senators have demanded that the United States take to the U.N. the cases of sentences levied by the Communist Chinese against the Americans but so far there has been no hint of such action.

"The Chinese Communist sentencing of 13 Americans on false charge is a new act of barbarism which has rightly aroused indignation not only among the American people but all over the free world," Lodge said in his statement. "It compounds the original crime of detaining these Americans in flagrant violation of the Korean armistice agreement. It adds still another item to the long list of reasons why the unspeakable gang in Peiping is unfit to sit in the United Nations."

Lodge has announced he will veto any attempt by supporters of the Communist Chinese to seat them in the Security Council, if they cannot be barred without the veto.

The U.N. General Assembly's political committee, meanwhile, debated whether to meet on Saturday in an effort to complete its business before the proposed December 10 adjournment date.

Selim Sarper of Turkey told the committee his delegates were tired and needed the weekend to study documents and rest.

Obviously referring to the deaths of Soviet Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky and Mahmoud Azmi, of Egypt, Sarper said "delegates are

U.S., Allies Snub Diplomatic Corps' 'Last Respects' Honor To Vishinsky

MOSCOW, Nov. 26 (AP) — A portion of the diplomatic corps filed through the flower-banked Hall of Columns late yesterday to pay their last respects at the bier of Andrei Vishinsky, former deputy foreign minister and chief of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations.

They walked behind attendants carrying a wreath of artificial roses, chrysanthemums and daises bearing a ribbon with the inscription "From the Diplomatic Corps." The acting dean of diplomats here, Burmese Ambassador Maung Ohn, led the procession arm in arm with the Chinese Communist ambassador.

Absent from this procession were representatives of the United States, Britain, France, Norway, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium, Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey and Italy. In it were diplomats representing Argentina, Mexico, Austria, Sweden, Ethiopia and all the Asian missions.

The diplomats absent largely were those who boycotted a Burmese dinner a month ago when they found out they were expected to sit down with representatives of countries they did not recognize.

Earlier in the day, tens of thousands of ordinary Russians entered the hall to view the body of Vishinsky. Dressed in a dark blue suit, the body lay in a coffin draped with silk of scarlet and black, the Soviet mourning colors.

At each end of the coffin stood an honor guard, made up of workers from institutions with which Vishinsky had been connected such as the foreign ministry, Moscow University and the prosecutor's office from which he directed the trials of the 1930s.

(At one time yesterday Premier Georgi Malenkov and other Soviet leaders formed the honor guard, Moscow radio reported).

BULLETIN

TAIPEH, Formosa, Nov. 26 (AP)—Unconfirmed reports said the Chinese Reds invaded a Nationalist-held island 80 miles west of Formosa today and fierce fighting was in progress.

The island was identified as Wuchiu, south of Nanjihi island.

The reports, which completely lacked official verification, said the landing followed a bombardment by 10 Communist gunboats.

Nationalist warplanes and warships were reported rushed to support of the defenders and it was claimed that part of the attacking force was wiped out.

Wuchiu is about 75 miles northeast of the big Nationalist garrison

Party Leaders Move To Keep Yoshida As Premier To Dissolve Present Diet

TOKYO, Nov. 26 (AP)—Leaders of Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida's Liberal party today were reported bent on having Yoshida resign as party president, but not as premier. The plan would be to force a general election by dissolving the Diet before it can take up a non-confidence motion.

These were the latest developments in a gathering political storm threatening the six-year tenure of 76-year-old Yoshida, a pro-American who frowns on diplomatic relations with the Communist world.

The opposition is headed by Ichiro Hatoyama, 71, who broke away from the Liberal party and helped form the anti-Yoshida Democratic party. Hatoyama, while favoring continued alliance with the United States, advocates diplomatic relations with Russia and Red China in the interests of bolstering Japan's trade.

The Democratic party along with the two Socialist parties, all enemies of Yoshida, have enough votes to push a non-confidence motion through the lower house. Kyodo news service said leaders of Yoshida's Liberal party yesterday mapped these plans: have Yoshida resign as party president; get Diet action on Japan's budget before a non-confidence vote is introduced; dissolve the Diet, forcing a general election; head up the election campaign with Deputy Prime Minister Toketora Ogata as party president.

Yoshida, who came back to a political crisis from recent conferences in Washington, has not approved the plan. A Liberal leader said it would be presented him today. The meeting yesterday of party leaders was Yoshida's idea but he did not attend it.

There seemed no doubt today that if Yoshida still is prime minister when the special Diet session convenes, the non-confidence motion would be introduced.

AN IMPORTANT MISSION

Very rarely does a U.S. Congressional committee or sub-committee come to Guam for the expressed purpose of studying and discussing "conditions and problems of Guam as they relate to the Federal government."

We heartily welcome, therefore, the members of the House Sub-Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs and the Department of Interior officials who are to look into the welfare of the territory. Not since 1949, when the House Public Lands Committee headed by the late Congressman William Lemke of North Dakota, has such a group of Washington officials indicated any interest in this far-flung territory to the extent that it would take the trouble to make an on-the-spot study. Usually, what Washington knows about Guam is limited to annual gubernatorial reports that, of course, evoke only superficial interest in Island affairs and invariably paint a rosy picture of local conditions.

We are glad the committee is a bipartisan group. One of the first things it will learn about us is that we have no attachment to national politics—Guam being only an unincorporated territory—and that our primary interest is to be guided along the lines of good government by competent individuals who are good Americans, regardless of their political label, and who are qualified to show us the best examples of good Americanism.

Understandably, the committee cannot spend a great length of time here and we hope the members do not leave the territory feeling they are experts on Guam. We know of no one who has any legitimate claim to that distinction. It would be necessary, then, to tap every source of information possible in order to get an undistorted picture of the real economic, social and political conditions in the Island and, if possible, together with substantiated and documented facts, filtered from biased personal opinions.

Our problems are too complex, too important to be taken lightly, and the committee will be very fortunate —during its brief stay here—to get a clear perspective which might serve as a basis for further action. We hope it leaves Guam with a feeling that Americans here are worth assisting, at least as much as those who have earned America's sympathy by taking up arms against the United States.

Within the past month, Aleck E. has lied twice.

Neither lie has been the acceptable kind that claims to have slain lions, talked with Pinocchio's Blue Fairy or the little man who lives in the stomach.

Aleck's lies have both denied real actions he performed in the real world. The first denied the eating of a cookie whose chocolate still smudged his mouth. The second denied the spilling of milk at a recent Sunday dinner with his grandparents.

Then, over the puddle dripping to the floor, Aleck cried to his mother across the table, "See what you did, Mommy? Look what you did!"

As his grandma took a very dim view of this falsification, Mrs. E. wants to know how evil it was and what to do with another like it.

Well, had Mrs. E. always beamed upon Aleck when he spilled milk, we could confidently expect him to claim responsibility for all subsequent spills with eagerness and abandon. Naturally, she did not beamed. And by her startled recoil from Aleck's first spill upon the tablecloth, she gave him to understand that it was unbecoming action.

No matter how patient she was, he would have understood this. And he would decide to give the unbecoming action away to someone whose beauty could glorify it. He would say, "You spilled my milk, Mommy."

I see no evil in this five-year-old solution to unbecoming action.

However, the time is coming when we shall want Aleck to be able to say, "I'm sorry I spilled my milk, Mother."

How do we prepare him to do it? How do we teach him to take responsibility for action he knows we disapprove?

We give him what he was seeking what he made his mother responsible for his spill. We give him the assurance that though his spill is disapproved, he himself is an approved and desirable person. When he spills next time, we say, "Don't be afraid when you spill, Aleck. I love you whether you spill or whether you don't."

As this is made clear, he will lose his need to disconnect himself from undesirable action. He will be able to claim it for his, knowing that it cannot affect his desirability.

Have I made it clear that Aleck paid his mother a huge compliment by telling her that she'd spilled his milk? He did. He thinks her so perfectly wonderful that she can beautify even the spilling of milk.

Sounds of History Repeating Itself

Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON. — President Eisenhower and Speaker Joe Martin were in fine fettle when they breakfasted at the White House the other morning. Over grapefruit, eggs, coffee, toast (one piece for Ike, who still watches his waistline), the two men optimistically agreed:

1. That the GOP could have done a lot worse at the polls; and,

2. That relations between Ike and the Democratic-controlled Congress wouldn't be as strained as some experts think.

"Naturally, I wanted very much to win so that our party would remain in control of Congress," Eisenhower told Joe Martin. "But I'm not discouraged. The Republican party is still in good shape and I think I'll be able to get along with the new Congress."

Martin, who tells friends that his party lost a 'Scotch decision"—a close one—also voiced optimism about the chances of the Eisenhower legislative program under a Democratic Congress.

"Just remember we have another election coming up in 1956, when all members of Congress must submit their voting records to the people," the speaker reminded the President. "There will naturally be some opposition to your program in the various committees, chiefly the appropriations committee, but I expect think it will be substantial.

"Many of the Democrats compaigned on your program and boasted about how they have been supporting you. They can't very well turn around now and vote against you without hearing from the voters in 1956."

Ike was happy to learn that Joe "never felt better" and was in good physical trim for whatever legislative battles may develop. The popular, 70-year-old speaker, who will step down to become house minority leader in the next Congress, recently had a thorough medical checkup at a Sayre, Penna., clinic and was found in excellent health, despite a grueling campaign itinerary of 56 speeches in 28 states.

YOUNGDAHL AND JUSTICE — A backstage incident has just leaked out which throws shocking light on the Justice Department's charges of "prejudice" against Judge Luther Youngdahl. Justice has never been able to explain why Youngdahl is prejudiced, except that he disagreed with the department on the Owen Lattimore case.

But it now develops that Atty. Gen. Herb Brownell slipped around to see Judge Youngdahl six months ago and begged the judge to run against Democratic Sen. Hubert Humphrey in Minnesota where Youngdahl, a stanch Republican, has an enthusiastic following. Tht judge turned down the invitation, explaining that he was through with politics and was satisfied to spend the rest of his life on the bench. It was after Youngdahl's refusal that Brownell cooked up the unsupported charge of "prejudice" against the judge.

NOTE — On the same evidence, any judge who rules against the Justice Department could be accused of "prejudice."

VICE-PRESIDENT "MCNIXON" — Vice-President Dick Nixon may have outsmarted himself when he slashed at the Democrats with the McCarthy meat ax during the bitter election campaign.

Nixon realized the Democrats might be sore at being called "soft" on Communism. But he figured his campaign tactics would endear him to the Old Guard and strengthen his position inside the Republican party. Instead, it has done just the opposite. It has united the Old Guard, who fear Nixon is coming up too fast and who don't want him as a candidate for 1956.

As a result, a stop-Nixon move is gaining ground inside the GOP, and the vice-president's tail is caught in a Republican-Democratic pincer. Republicans refer to him sarcastically as "tricky Dick," and Democrats call him "McNixon."

The stop-Nixon drive is led by such right-wing stalwarts as Sens. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, Everett Dirksen of Illinois, John Bricker of Ohio, and Homer Capehart of Indiana. Senate majority leader Bill Knowland of California, who has no love for Nixon, naturally is cooperating. Their strategy is to block Nixon in the 1956 GOP convention, where they figure the ambitious young vice-president will shoot for the top spot.

Nixon's opponents have looked up the historical records which show that no vice-president has stepped into the White House, except through the President's death, since Martin Van Buren succeeded Andrew Jackson 118 years ago. And the Republican right-wing doesn't intend to let Nixon break that long precedent.

GESTURE OF APPRECIATION

The toy box which fell off a truck on Marine Drive the other day was found by a sailor from Camp Bright. The sailor thinking that it could be Navy property, turned it over to Camp Bright officials. When the owner, P.D. Hemlani, a local businessman, was at the Navy Exchange on business the following day, he was asked to identify the box mentioned in a previous edition of the DAILY NEWS under "According To Police" that Hemlani had lost a toy box on Marine Drive between the commercial port and Agana. Hemlani, in appreciation, decided to donate half of the contents to children of Camp Bright service personnel, and the remaining half to children of Guam Policemen.

Seven Kiddie Centers Help Andersen Busy Housewives In Work, Shopping

Busy mothers at Guam's Andersen Air Force Base have no difficulty in finding some place to leave the youngsters while working, shopping or "stepping out" in the evening with "the old man."

The Officers' Wives Club and the NCO Wives Guild of Andersen Air Force Base operate no fewer than seven kiddie care centers throughout the base and surrounding housing areas.

Largest operation in the local world of building blocks and sandboxes is the Andersen Child Care Center—a triple-threat facility which includes a nursery school for three and four-year-olds, a kindergarten and the care center.

Current enrollment in classes includes 19 students in the three-year-old class, 25 in the four-year-old class and 48 sophisticated five-year-olds who have started their formal school years in the kindergarten.

Operated by the Officers' Wives Club, the Child Care Center serves fruit juice, milk, cookies, etc., in mid-morning and mid-afternoon snacks, in addition to furnished complete noon lunches for its small charges.

Other large-scale operations in the nursery and kindergarten field are carried out in the Marbo-3D Air Division area where several government housing units, a branch exchange and the base's Commissary Sales Store are located. In the area are a nursery and kindergarten operated by the Officers' Wives Club and a special care center also operated by the club for commissary customers.

The NCO Wives Guild operates the nursery in Harmon Village, another of the island's Air Force housing areas. Meals and snacks are offered at the Harmon Village Nursery as they are at the other locations.

Close supervision and considerable outdoor space characterize all the facilities on Guam. Bus service is provided throughout the base and housing areas so that youngsters can be conveniently taken to the parents' favorite facility.

Churchill—Part American Indian—Descendant Of British Kings, Too

LONDON, Nov. 27 (AP) — Researches completed yesterday showed that Sir Winston Churchill — half American and part American Indian — also is a descendant of Emperor Charlemagne, Alfred the Great and William the Conqueror.

C. F. J. Hankinson, editor of Debretts Peerage, the 2,200 page book which is an authority on ancestors, reported Churchill's connection with ancient kings after long research through the centuries. The editor undertook the job as a sort of birthday present to the prime minister, who will be 80 next Tuesday.

By taking recourse to female lines, Hankinson established that Churchill descended from Henry VII in only 15 generations. From that point backward the editor's task was easy because Henry VII's links with Charlemagne, Alfred and William had been established by previous research.

The line down from Henry VII, often veering to the female side of families, is highlighted by such names as Charles, first duke of Suffolk; Henry, fourth earl of Derby and knight of the garter; George, sixth duke of Marlborough, and finally, the prime minister's father, Lord Randolph Churchill.

Hankinson's chart shows the prime minister has American, Irish, Scottish and Welsh blood in him, with the American element contributing colorful bits to the diverse strains which come together in Churchill.

His mother was Jennie Jerome, daughter of Leonard, who was one of America's liveliest sportsmen, business man and newspaper owner. In Jennie there was a touch of Iroquois Indian blood.

She married Lord Randolph Churchill and was a devoted mother to Winston.

Sugar Heir Out Of Jail

SANTA ANA, Calif., Nov. 27 (AP) —Sugar heir Adolph Spreckels II got out of jail yesterday. Spreckels, 43, was released from Orange County jail after completing 25 days of a 30 day sentence for beating his ex-wife, Actress Kay Williams. He was convicted last year of assaulting her in his Balboa home and started the sentence Nov. 1 after many fruitless appeals, including one to the U.S. Supreme Court, failed. He was released five days early because of time off for good behavior.

Chile's Bank Proposal Meets Cool Reception

QUITANDINHA, Brazil, Nov. 27 (AP) — Chile's proposal for a hemisphere bank to finance Latin America's economic development faced an uncertain future at the inter-American economic conference yesterday. The big hitch was U.S. unwillingness to put up the money. Other comparatively affluent American nations also were reported cool to the idea of pooling their foreign reserves to help their underdeveloped sisters, a plan put forward in broad outline by Chilean Finance Minister Jorge Prat.

U.S. To Auction Dollars In Korea

SEOUL, Nov. 27. (AP) — The U.S. military in Korea will start next week auctioning dollars to obtain Korean hwan currency with which to pay Korean employes and contractors, it was announced today.

The new method of obtaining hwan, agreed upon recently between American and Korean officials, eliminates the need of hwan advances from the South Korean government in the future.

Korean traders and government agencies as well as foreigners doing business in Korea will be allowed to bid for the dollars. An announcement from the office of economic coordinator C. Tyler Wood said two million dollars will be auctioned for hwan Nov. 29.

Further Atomic Tests Off Australia?

LONDON, Nov. 27 (AP) — Britain has sent an official delegation to Australia to lay the groundwork for further tests of atomic weapons, the ministry of supply said today.

Britain exploded its first atomic weapon in the desolate Monte Bello islands off the west coast of Australia on Oct. 3, 1952. It climaxed nearly five years of work by British scientists, working on their own because of the U.S. ban on giving atomic information to Britain and other western countries.

Months in advance authorities placed tight security measures on the immediate area of the islands.

Shriver Dismisses Lawyers' Tax Suit; Appeal Announced

Judge Paul D. Shriver of District Court dismissed Friday the Phelan and Crain tax suit against the territorial government.

Attorneys Finton Phelan, Jr., and E. R. Crain, contacted by telephone yesterday, said they "will appeal the case immediately."

The tax suit was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction, basically on the same principle as in the Holbrook case. In the Holbrook litigation, the court held that it "has no jurisdiction to intervene when the taxpayer-plaintiff is in open defiance of the Government of Guam as regards its authority to require him to pay income taxes on income earned in Guam."

An earlier decision on a motion for temporary injunction against government tax collection is on appeal with the U.S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco, Calif. The District Court, last November 12 denied the motion and an appeal was made to the appellate court November 18.

The points raised by Crain and Phelan in their appeal of the motion for temporary injunction are that:

1. The court abused its discretion in refusing to grant the temporary restraining order and injunction sought by the plaintiffs.

2. The court gave evidence of obvious bias and a closed mind to the constitutional questions involved in the case.

3. The court erred in that it attempted to rely upon alleged facts not before it in ruling upon the plaintiffs' motion.

4. The court erred in permitting laymen not members of the bar to practice it and to appear for the defendants.

The motion for the dismissal of

Pronounced Dead At GMH An Hour Following Arrival

A 20-year-old seaman from a Trust Territory island was fatally injured Sunday morning after he was struck down by a car on Route 1, near the Two Leaves Store in Asan, police said yesterday.

The victim, Otto Tosimisy, was pronounced dead at 1 a.m., at the Guam Memorial Hospital, less than an hour after the accident.

It was not definite yesterday whether the dead man was from Truk or Palau.

Police said Tosimisy was "jay walking" across the street to the Two Leaves Store when he was hit by a car driven by Francisco C. Aguero, 20, of Dededo. Aguero was driving toward Agana.

Eyewitnesses told police, the report said, that another car, travelling in the opposite direction, barely missed striking Tosimisy by a few seconds before he got in the path of Aguero's vehicle.

A complete autopsy report was not available yesterday. Police said they will continue investigating the incident.

Early last month, the DAILY NEWS pointed out the necessity of reducing the speed limit in the Asan village zone. Speed limit signs long have been set up in the Civil Service Community housing area in Asan.

The present maximum speed allowed in the accident-infested zone is 45 miles per hour. Under the territorial code, however, the Director of Public Safety is empowered to reduce the rate and to post speed limit signs in such areas where lower velocity is desirable.

Nationalists Claim 36 Red Vessels Sunk

TAIPEH, Nov. 29 (AP)—The Chinese Nationalists said today their guns sank 36 surface craft and damaged 50 others in breaking up a Communist attempt to invade tiny Wuchiu island last Friday.

An official Chinese Nationalist news agency said the Reds sent about 150 vessels against the island but failed to land any troops. Wuchiu island is a half square-mile dot of land 72 miles west of Formosa.

The news agency said the Red fleet was closing in from three sides when Nationalist shore guns and planes opened fire and routed the enemy. Red ships which survived the attack retreated toward the mainland, the agency said.

The ministry said Soviet submarines had been sighted near the Tachen islands.

Lodge Awaiting Washington Move On Red-Held Yanks

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 29 (AP)—The U.S. delegation to the United Nations is standing by here for new instructions from Washington on its next protest on the imprisonment of the 13 American fliers by Red China.

[illegible] disclosed yesterday that the Korea debate, when the question may break wide open this week, will be handled by Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.), who is the chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Far Eastern affairs. It is a subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Commitee.

Many delegates here looked for the question to be brought up as one of the angles of the report on the deadlock on a Korean settlement which resulted from the Geneva conferences. A U.S. information spokesman said there has been no decision, however, how the United States will broach the question. The Korea debates are expected to open Wednesday in the assembly main political committee.

Reports from Washington indicated that the State Department iself may not be able to determine its course until after a meeting of the U.S. National Security Council with President Eisenhower. The delegation is waiting fresh instructions, meanwhile.

On Thursday, U.S. chief delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., issued a statement to reporters here rapping the Chinese Communist act as barbarism and said it added "another item to the long list of reasons why the unspeakable gang in Peiping is unfit to sit in the United Nations."

On Friday, he gave Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold a copy of the U.S. protest note sent to Peiping by way of Britain, and asked that it be distributed to all members of the U.N.

The U.N. said it would be put in the hands of members this morning as a "third person" or informative note.

The Chinese Communist rejection of the U.S. note yesterday left the delegation without a definite program.

Right-Wingers Nix Yoshida Peace Plan

TOKYO, Nov. 29 (AP) — Rival right-wing politicians yesterday curtly rejected a peace plan under which Prime Minister Yoshida's Liberal party supporters had hoped to avoid a bruising fight to topple the government of Japan.

The Democratic (right-wing) party's executive board said the proposal by the Liberals (also right-wing) — hinting that Yoshida will resign as prime minister soon — "cannot be regarded as a serious one at this time." Yoshida stepped down yesterday as party president.

The rejection, to be formalized at an afternoon Democratic convention, drove Yoshida colser toward an uncomfortable choice: He must face a probable non-confidence motion in the Diet or dissolve the Diet and call new elections — something his dwindling Liberal party is working feverishly to avoid.

Good People In Russia Will Restore Freedom, Peace To World -- Truman

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—Former President Harry Truman predicted last night that some day the Russians "will have a free government with which we can carry on relations and business just as we do with England and France."

But, Truman said, "we can't very well live with Russia in peace with its present totalitarian government."

If it comes to war, he said "I don't think Russia can ever be conquered any more than the United States can be conquered."

In a filmed television interview with Columnist Drew Pearson which Pearson released in advance here, Truman said the Russians "think too much of their country" for it to be conquered. He said the Russians "are good people" and eventually would work out their difficulties just as the good people of the United States, Britain and France had done in the past "because the good people usually come out on the top."

On the question of politics, Truman said the Republicans lost control of Congress in this year's elections because of "the promises they made in their campaign of 1952 and didn't keep, and the very fact that they represent special interests and have shown conclusively that they have always represented special interests."

In answer to a question, Truman said "it's a temptation" to try to win back his old Senate seat but his state, Missouri, has "two wonderful senators" and he hopes they will stay there as long as they want to.

He said that when he was in the Senate he had suggested that ex-Presidents and ex-vice-presidents have freedom to discuss legislation on the House and Senate floors, but without voting power, and receive the pay of senators. He said he didn't get very far with the idea and now "I am in a position where I can't publicly advocate it."

Truman was asked whether, in view of Republican claims that the Korean truce was a great Republican victory, he could have signed a truce before the 1952 election. He replied that he could have signed a truce "any time before that, several weeks before that, if I had been willing to agree to the Russian terms, which I was not."

McCarthy Ready For Censure Debate; Sees No Filibuster To Delay Senate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) left Bethesda Naval Hospital yesterday declaring "there is no possibility of a filibuster" to delay Senate action on censure charges against him.

McCarthy, who entered the hospital November 17 for treatment of an injured right elbow, said he would be in the Senate today for the resumption of debate on the censure resolution.

"The sooner it's over the better I'll like it," he said, repeating previous statements. "I have a lot of work to do."

Three hours after McCarthy's wife, Jean, drove him away from the towering medical center in nearby Maryland, Sen. Wallace Bennett (R-Utah) made public the text of a new censure count he said he would offer today against the Wisconsin senator.

Bennett's resolution is based on recent statements by McCarthy attacking chairman Arthur Watkins (R-Utah) and other members of the special bi-partisan Senate committee which unanimously recommended that McCarthy be censured on two counts, and on McCarthy's statements criticizing the Senate itself.

Specifically referred to among other things are McCarthy's statement that the special committee had served as the "unwitting handmaiden" of the Communist party, and his reference to the Senate censure session as a "lynch bee."

Bennett said he will introduce his resolution when the Senate meets today to resume the session interrupted when McCathry entered the hospital.

FIST-FIGHT FOR ROKS

SEOUL, Nov. 29 (AP)—A fist-swinging session of South Korea's national assembly—under pressure from President Syngman Rhee's government and abandoned by all but one opposition member—voted today that a constitutional amendment letting Rhee run for re-election for life had legally passed. The vote on the controversial amendment followed a sotrmy fist-fight on the floor shortly after which most opposition assemblymen walked out. The fist-fight started today when Rhee's supporters started the move to erase an announcement last Saturday that the amendment had failed to pass by one vote.

MORE PRODUCTIVE METHOD

The first of a series of conferences with the visiting Congressional Sub-Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs begins today under the auspices of the Guam Chamber of Commerce. Tomorrow, the Committee is to meet with the people's representatives in the Guam Legislature.

At both conferences, numerous problems—some older than civil government here—will be presented for detailed discussions. Many of these have been touched on before, and appeals for their solution have been proposed by long-range methods.

An opportunity fully to explore these problems is available to the committee and we hope it would take advantage of every means at its command to be adequately acquainted with the needs and aspirations of Americans here.

The importance of these conferences was reflected several months ago in Speaker Won-Pat's report to the Guam Legislature shortly after he and Congressman Okiyama returned from a Legislative mission in the mainland.

At that time, Mr. Won-Pat reported that his committee "found that no records or file of some of these (Guam Congress) resolutions or memorials are kept by the Office of Territories, Department of Interior . . . (and) It therefore is clear that Congress and administrative officials are not cognizant or kept fully informed as to the needs, desires and problems of the territory."

For this reason, the people of Guam should be highly appreciative of the initiative taken by the Sub-Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs for an on-the-spot investigation of our many problems.

We do not expect all our problems to be solved in record-breaking time, after one conference or a series of conferences. But this "see-for-yourself" method surely will be more productive than any lengthy written report, however adequate.

The ground work, so to speak, would have been laid at the conclusion of the conferences here and we look forward optimistically for positive, concrete action in the near future, based on truths and realities rather than on speculations and conjectures.

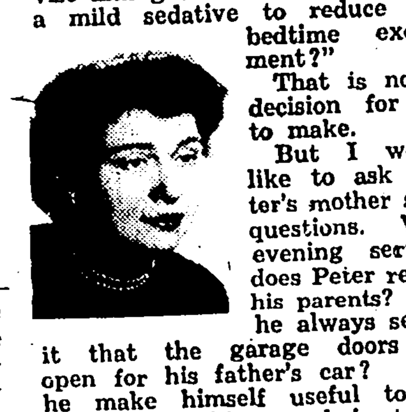
The Mature Parent

By Mrs. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Peter, an only child nearly five, is a bedtime problem. Every night as soon as his mother has told him his bedtime story, he begins to demand other services from her that will postpone their separation. Any denial of them provokes a tantrum.

His mother writes, "Do you advise asking our doctor to prescribe a mild sedative to reduce this bedtime excitement?"



That is not a decision for me to make.

But I would like to ask Peter's mother some questions. What evening services does Peter render his parents? Does he always see to it that the garage doors are open for his father's car? Does he make himself useful to his mother by pulling up chairs to the dinner table? Does he share the evening meal with his parents. If so, is he expected to contribute to their conversations? As to the bedtime story is he ever asked to give one to his mother instead of taking one from her?

Fear of abandonment is back of bedtime tantrums.

To reduce this fear, we therefore give our frightened child cause to believe himself too valuable to abandon. We take great care not to monopolize all usefulness by giving him chances to demonstrate his.

But if we deny him such changes, doing everything for Peter, while he gives us nothing in return, bedtime is bound to threaten him most cruelly. As we disappear and darkness crashes down upon him, he has no reserves of certainty that he is useful and necessary to us. And he begins to scream for our return and reassurance.

Neglect of Peter's need to demonstrate his usefulness to us may be an old resentment at his babyhood's demands on us.

This is not rare resentment. A new mother is not always thrilled to be forced to give baby Peter all the time and strength she's used to expending on herself. If she's silly enough to ignore what she feels, instead of understanding it as natural, she gets to thinking of herself as a doomed slave to her baby's helplessness.

Her secret resentment gradually turns her into an emotional robot that just goes on making rigid, mechanical gestures of service to Peter as though Time had frozen them both into their inflexible roles of Giver-Taker. So immobilized in her past resentment, she has to go on treating her child as a perpetually helpless infant.

Before Peter's mother decides to drug him into sleep. I wish she'd try walking him up to the capacities he's been developing.

WASHINGTON.—Here is the inside reason why Milton Eisenhower, brother of the President, refused to go to South America as a member of the American delegation to the big Pan-American economic conference which opened in Rio De Janeiro last week.

Milton, it can be revealed, vigorously objects to Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey's tight-fisted policy toward loans to Latin-American governments. And rather than alibi for a shortsighted policy which he believes imperils the good-neighbor policy, Milton just announced he would stay home.

He had previously disagreed with Humphrey when the secretary of the treasury wanted to combine the Export-Import Bank with the World Bank. Milton, just returned from a trip through Latin America, argued to the contrary and won. However, Secretary Humphrey is the chief delegate at the Rio economic conference and the President's brother just didn't want to be in the position of bucking him.

This makes the third important change in the American delegation to the Pan-American economic conference. First, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles dropped out, though he had previously stated at the Caracas conference that he would be present and that he considered this conference one of the most important of the year.

Second, Merwin Bohan, special U.S. ambassador in charge of preparing for the Rio conference, resigned. He, too, opposed the no-government-loan policy of Secretary Humphrey, argued that the best way to stop Co[illegible] in Latin America was to help in the economic development of that area.

On top of this, Milton Eisenhower dropped out. No wonder Latin American delegates are skeptical, and that Chile has proposed a special "Inter-Latin American Bank" which would raise all its money in Latin America with not a single dollar from the U.S.A. Nothing could please the Kremlin more.

CO-EXISTENCE — Here is one of many reasons why Eisenhower sticks to a "co-existence" policy with Russia, despite pressure from Senator Knowland and some from the Pentagon.

The American embassy has reported that a major split appears to be developing between Premier Malenkov and Foreign Minister Molotov. Malenkov apparently wants to follow a softer line in dealing with the United States. But Molotov, the fiery old bolshevik, violently disagrees, even wants to step up the pace of the cold war.

At the October revolution reception, for instance, where Malenkov talked so reasonably with U.S. Ambassador Bohlen, Molotov stood by glowering and shaking his, obviously burned up about the whole business. Despite this, Malenkov went right ahead talking with Bohlen, gave his personal promise that the door to the Kremlin would always be open to settle any incident threatening Russian-American relations. The conversation occurred just before Eisenhower took his "turn-the-other-cheek" attitude at the press conference following the U.S. bomber incident in Hokkaido.

EGYPTIAN PLOT — The so-called assassination plot against Premier Nasser actually is a big phony. The whole thing was engineered by Nasser's followers as a means of getting rid of President Naguib. American agents have now learned that the so-called assassin was hired secretly and given instructions that make sure he missed when he fired his revolver at Nasser. He was promised he could go free afterward. This explains why the assassin fired eight shots at Nasser from a distance of only 20 feet and missed each time. Irony is that the assassin now probably will be shot himself because it would look too phony to permit him to go free.

YOUNGEST BUREAUCRAT — Asst. Sec. of Labor Rocco Siciliano, aged 32, is not only one of the youngest members of the President's "little cabinet," but an untiring impresario of government service for other up-and-coming young men of ability and vision.

"No young man should turn down an opportunity to serve his government in a civil capacity at some time in his career, any more than he should dodge military service," says Siciliano, a former infantry lieutenant who won the Bronze Star for valor in World War II.

Siciliano is only one generation away from the "melting pot." His parents were Italian immigrants, who finally settled in Salt Lake City, Utah, and established a thriving restaurant business. Young Siciliano, a graduate of the University of Utah and Georgetown Law School, had a meteoric career as a labor-relations expert before joining the Labor Department.

American Male Now Part-Time Wife, Part-Time Husband, Writer Asserts

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (AP) —The American married male has lost, through a complex set of circumstances, the authority and dignity he once held as head of the family and has become a "part-time wife' and a "servant father," an article in the current issue of Look magazine asserts.

Written by Russel Lynes, an author in his own right, the article says the present American husband is "part-time man, part-time mother, 'and part-time maid.' Lynes claims that when a woman in the United States marries today she takes it for granted she will get "as though it were a package deal, a part-time wife.'

Lynes cites research polls that show 62 per cent of American husbands wash dishes and 40 per cent help with the cooking.

The author suggests four reasons why men have lost the dominant position they once held in American family life:

1. When men began allowing women into the business world, breaking down the clear distinctions between the roles of the sexes, it was only natural that the functions of each became interchangeable to a degree.

2. The servant class in the United States was greatly reduced by the greater wages offered in factory work.

3. The great flood of mechanical and electrical appliances for household use prove irresistible to men.

4. The tremendous rearrangement of family patterns caused by return of World War II veterans to school, where the male studied and kept house while his wife worked.

Lynes suggests that the old ideal of the American family — with the father aloof and catered to—has gone forever. And the author apparently thinks the resulting sharing of tasks and pleasures, the greater informality, and the fewer restrictions on the woman makes it a change for the better.

Ybanez' Surgery Due Soon, Doctor Writes

A progress report on Felipe Ybanez, 22, of Toto, who is in Honolulu for treatment of TB of the bone, recently was received from Dr. Richard S. Dodge, director of rehabilitation service.

Dr. Dodge stated in a letter to GASBAG president Simeon Provencher:

"Reconstruction surgery to the left hip and knee is contemplated within the next week. There are no apparent contraindications at this time. It is felt that this correction would improve this boy's functional abilities as well as his appearance."

Ybanez's treatment is being financed by the GASBAGS. He left the Island last month on a MATS emergency evacuation plane arranged with the cooperation of the Navy.

Dr. Dodge added that "Felipe has adjusted well to the Center, is quite happy, and at the present time is occupied with such activities as woodwork, ceramics and Hawaiian art crafts."

Least Excitement

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—Except for U.S. Senate recounts in Ohio and New Jersey and a couple of investigations of alleged fraud, the 1954 United States Congressional election has produced less post-mortem excitement than for many a year.

So far, not a single petition formally contesting an election has been filed with Congress.

Possibly the Ohio and New Jersey Senate check-ups and an investigation in one North Carolina Congressional district could lead to contests that Senate and House committees will have to consider. But so far none is definitely in sight.

Some recounting also has been done in one New Hampshire House race and another in West Virginia. But contests apparently aren't in the cards.

Winnie Is 'Dated'—Bevan

OXFORD, England, Nov. 29 (AP) —Leftwing Laborite Aneurin Bevan said tonight Prime Minister Churchill "is 18th Century. He is a man of very great virtues, but he is dated."

Bevan, who has clashed many times with Churchill in the House of Commons, was addressing the Oxford University labor club. He added, however, that he did not want to detract from tributes being paid to Churchill who will celebrate his 80th birthday tomorrow.

New Version Of B-57 Twin-Jet Bomber Ordered

BALTIMORE, Nov. 29 (AP) — Sometime next month, a new version of the B-57 twin-jet light bomber will take to the air from the Martin Aircraft plant here. The firm said the Air Force had ordered a B-57C, equipped with dual controls for use as a trainer in: night instrument flying, jet flying for piston-engine pilots, and multi-jet experience for fighter pilots.

New Crack Fired At Earth's Age Secret

CHICAGO, Nov. 29 (AP)—New evidence that the earth and the meteorites that bombard it were formed less than 5 billion years ago has been offered by two atomic scientists.

They used a new approach to the problem of determining the age of decaying radioactive substances and their results were roughly the same obtained by earlier methods.

Gerald J. Wasserburg, research associate at the University of Chicago's institute of nuclear studies, and Richard J. Hayden, physicist at the Argonne National Laboratory, dated two meteorite samples. They told a meeting of the American Physical Society that one was 4,860,000,000 and the other 4,700,000,000 years old.

A year ago, Mark Ingram, and a group of associates determined, on the basis of the rate of decay of radioactive uranium into lead that the earth was formed 4½ billion years ago.

Hunted Chases Hunter; Heroism Via Zany Way Are Week's Top Oddities

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (AP) —Sad stories were common as pigeons on a courthouse in last week's news. Hunters had more than their share of troubles.

Near Mt. Pleasant, Mich., Fred Cashen, 19, hit a buck with his first shot of the hunting season. The wounded animal fell, bounced up and charged. A second shot hit the buck in the side. Cashen fled behind a tree as the deer kept charging. As the animal passed, the youth swung his rifle. It broke. For half an hour the chase went on, the angered buck running Cashen from tree to tree. It finally fell from loss of blood. Cashen finished the fight with a tree limb.

At Fort Worth, Tex., C. F. Colwell became a hero — but he had a rough time doing it.

The 39-year-old painter was talking with his brother outside the brother's apartment house when the building caught fire. Colwell volunteered to rescue his brother's clothing.

Rushing inside, he grabbed the clothes and then learned the fire department hadn't been called. He dropped his bundle and grabbed a phone.

Then he found one woman still was inside the building and rushed upstairs. A tenant rushing down with a mattress hit him head-on and sent him sprawling. It was too late to get upstairs, so he ran outside and yelled for the woman to jump.

Wanted: More Yanks To Absorb UK Hospitality

LONDON, Nov. 29 (AP) — There just aren't enough American soldiers, airmen and sailors here to absorb all the Christmas hospitality the British are offering.

About 71,000 airmen compose the largest group of American servicemen who are in Britain on temporary assignments — which in some cases may be as long as three years. And every man —Jack of them, so far as air force headquarters at south Ruislip knows, has a date for Christmas.

The appointment may be with a turkey, a girl friend, a British family, a session of ale, a church or even (for some) a duty assignment.

"We are grateful for the Christmas invitation flowing in, but we just can't cope with any more," says an officer at the U.S. air headquarters. "There aren't enough of us."

The announcement was regarded necessary because it was feared an impression might get about that Americans didnt want to share Christmas with the British.

"More than 80 per cent of our non-commissioned officers have their families here, set up in their own homes," the officer explained.

Catholic Priest Talks Religion With Commie Boss

MOSCOW, Nov. 29 (AP) — An American Catholic priest tonight shook hands with Nikita Krushchev, first secretary of the Soviet Communist party and discussed the status of religion in the Soviet Union with him. He was the first American priest ever to do so.

They parted on such good terms that Krushchev turned to Soviet Premier Malenkov and said, "Permit me to introduce a good, sympathetic man."

(Sympathetic, in the Russian sense, does not have the same meaning as in English. In the sense that Krushchev used it, it means only that one is a nice or pleasant person.)

The priest was the Rev. George Bissonnette, of Central Falls, Rhode Island, assigned to Moscow by the Assumptionist Fathers to minister to foreigners of the Catholic faith here. The meeting took place at the Yugoslav embassy which was celebrating its nation's national day.

Fr. Bissonnette, popular in Moscow's western colony, not only as a spiritual adviser and instructor for children's catechism, also is one of the city's sharpest handball and bridge players.

He went up to Khruschev at the party tonight and said "I want to congratulate you on that degree of the Communist party's central committee which appeared recently in Pravda, saying that anti-religious agitators should stop insulting and interfering with churchgoers in the Soviet Union."

Fr. Bissonnette said he told Khruschev he thought this was a step in the right direction. The father said that Khruschev told him, "It has always been my ideal to establish freedom of conscience and religion. Anyone did not see that was on the wrong rack and our decree was aimed at putting these agitators on the right track."

4 Arabs Die In Jerusalem Clash

JERUSALEM, Israel Section, Nov. 29 (AP) — An Israeli army spokesman said four Arabs wearing the uniform of Jordan's "Arab Legion" were killed and two other Arab wounded in a border clash southwest of Jerusalem yesterday.

He said the clash, in which an Israeli frontier guard patrol was involved, took place "well inside Israeli territory."

Israeli immediately asked for an emergency meeting of the Israel-Jordan armistice commission to discuss the incident. The meeting is expected to take place tomorrow.

Automatic and rifle fire was still going on in the lonely rock-covered valley when newsmen visited the scene two hours after the incident with Israeli armistice commission delegates and U.N. truce supervision officers. It was impossible to tell where the shots came.

The party, flying the U.N. flag, took cover behind boulders. After a time the firing stopped.

On emerging, the observers found the bodies of four Arabs, and, behind a boulder, two wounded men.

One of the wounded men said he was a civilian to guide a Jordan army patrol.

Court Dismisses Tax Suit Against Isle Government

the case, heard by the court Friday, was presented by Attorney General Howard Porter, Lolu A. Otto, deputy attorney general, Island Attorney Leon D. Flores and Richard Rosenberry, deputy island attorney.

The government lawyers, in their memorandum submitted in support of the dismissal motion held that:

1. The basic issue — whether there is a separate territorial income tax — has been determined in favor of the defendants.

2. The special facts alleged by the plaintiffs do not entitle them to equitable relief.

As indicated in the affidavit of the commissioner of revenue and taxation, they said, the plaintiffs "failed and refused to file income tax returns and failed to honor summons" of the office.

3. The court has no jurisdiction to entertain the plaintiffs' suit for refund of taxes collected.

4. The territorial income tax is not in violation of constitution rights or the bill of rights embodied in the Organic Act of Guam.

The alleged violations, the government lawyers said, have been answered in a court decision holding that Sec. 30 of the Organic Act provides for a separate territorial income tax collection.

Answering the claims of ambiguity, vagueness and lack of standards of the tax statutes for Guam, the government lawyers said "no allegations are made specifically citing items of nature complained of and which affect the validity of assessments made upon the plaintiff."

5. The claim of Attorney Phelan that his disability compensation payments as veteran of World War II are exempt from distraint also is without merit. The government's answer added that there is "still considerable doubt, as a matter of substantive law," whether Phelan is entitled to such exemption.

Soviet - Sponsored Security Meet On

MOSCOW, Nov. 29 (AP) — The Soviet-sponsored European Security conference opens here today with the West abstaining and only Communist-ruled nations represented.

Western sources said they were told unofficially the conference will open at 11 a.m. in the Trades Union Hall of Columns in downtown Moscow.

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov was non-commital when asked about the site by western reporters who met him at a Yugoslav embassy reception yesterday.

Leonid F. Ilyichev, the Soviet foreign ministry press chief, told reporters at the Yugoslav party that newsmen will not be admitted to sessions of the conference, but that they will be given briefings.

Molotov warned the Western powers November 20, in offering to postpone the conference if they would delay action on ratification of the Paris accords for rearming West Germany, that rejection of his proposition would cause the Soviet Union and its partners to take up counter-measures for their own security.

He originally proposed that the November 20 conference be held in Paris or Moscow and take in 24 nations including the United States, with Red China to be represented by observers. But the Western powers decided against attending such a parley at this time.

East German and Polish delegations got in Saturday. The Moscow radio announced the arrival yesterday of delegations from Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Romania.

Nehru Says Reds Disrupting Unity Of Indian People

NEW DELHI, Nov. 29 (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru accused India's Communists yesterday of preaching violence and sowing discord. He said his government would take stern measures against any who tried to disrupt Indian unity.

He administered the slap during an 80-minute address to a mass meeting at which he told the people of New Delhi his impressions of his recent visit to Communist China.

He said India has made achievements "unparalled in history" during her seven years of freedom, but that in all that time India's Communists have failed to see the progress in their own homeland, looking instead to Russia and China.

"It is foolish to imagine that progress can be made only through violent revolution and that construction can follow only after destruction," he added.

"The Indian Communists know that they will become weak as India progresses. Therefore, they are interested in retarding Indias pace of development, fishing for trouble, turmoil, discontent and disturbances."

Now, he added, "they seem to have shifted the emphasis to enter parliament. I welcome them to peaceful parliamentary life. But they still believe in keeping the cauldron simmering."

"In their emotion, they have lost all sense. Sense in their case has been replaced by slogans," Nehru said.

He said Red China, although Communist, is trying to solve its problems in its own way, a way "not 100 per cent Russian type."

On Pakistan, he pledged: "I will do my utmost to promote friendship and cooperation with Pakistan."

Adenauer Retains Parliment Control

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 29 (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer retained firm control of the federal parliament early today with an election triumph in Bavaria. But his policy of German rearmament was scorned in Socialist Hesse.

The voting, under grey, rainy skies, was for state parliamentary seats which have a voice in choosing members of the federal Bundesrat (upper house).

Adenauer's Christian Democrats ran far ahead in incomplete returns from Catholic, agricultural Bavaria. But in industrial Hesse, the anti-rearmament Socialist snowed under Adenauer's party.

The Socialists, however, failed to keep their absolute majority in the Hessian parliament and the Christian Democrats and Free Democrats said they will try to take over the state government by forming a coalition with the Refugee party.

Making Friends is Our Business

Recently we announced that Anheuser-Busch had set a new world record in 1953 . . . with sales of Budweiser and Michelob substantially greater than the sales ever made in any year . . . by any other brewer . . . anywhere in the world.

We've thought a lot about that record. We're proud of it, of course. But, even more than the sales leadership itself, we value what it means. It means we can have even stronger faith in producing Budweiser and Michelob by the costliest brewing process on Earth. It means that America's good taste continues to demand the very highest quality. It means this record belongs to you as much as it does to us.

And it belongs to the retailers who serve you. Throughout our more-than-100-year history, we have valued the friendship of these businessmen who are partners on the Budweiser team. Now, more than ever, we appreciate their confidence.

Although sales leadership is nothing new to Anheuser-Busch, we promise to continue to merit your good will on the basis of the unmatched quality of Budweiser and Michelob, and by always remembering that "MAKING FRIENDS IS OUR BUSINESS"

Cleveland Halts Giants 16-7; Eagles, Bears, Steelers Win

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (AP) — The powerful Cleveland Browns moved a step closer to their fifth straight Eastern Conference crown by fighting off the challenging New York Giants 16-7 in the top National Football League game yesterday.

The defeat knocked the Giants into a second place tie with the Philadelphia Eagles. Cleveland leads both clubs by a game and a half and can clinch the title by winning two of the three games it has left to play.

In other games, Philadelphia nipped Washington 41-33, the Chicago Bears downed Los Angeles 24-13, Baltimore surprised San Francisco 17-13 and Pittsburgh edged the Chicago Cardinals 20-17.

The Detroit Lions, Western Division pace-setter, rested on their laurels. Their Thanksgiving Day victory over Green Bay 28-24 coupled with yesterday's results left only the Chicago Bears with a chance to deadlock Detroit for the crown. One more triumph for the Lions and its all over.

Cleveland's staunch defense, which last week held Philadelphia on the one yard line in the waning minutes, also discouraged any designs the Giants may have had for an upset. New York gained only four yards rushing and 68, overall.

Again, it was their G-men — Otto Graham, Lou Groza and Horace Gillom — who helped Cleveland to its important triumph, the sixth straight for the Browns. Graham's 16 passes neted 210 yards and the former Northwestern All-American scored his team's only touchdown on a quarterback sneak in the first quarter.

Groza booted three field goals and Gillom got off several booming punts, one an 80-yarder to lick the Browns out of danger, in the third quarter.

Adrian Burk, who sees red when playing against the Redskins, threw five touchdowns aerials for Philadelphia. Last Oct. 17, Burk hurled seven TD passes against Washington for a league record.

Washington made a great effort to turn back the favored Eagles, but, Burk, who came into the game in the second quarter with his team trailing 17-6, got the Eagles rolling. He fired three scoring passes to Hahorld Giancanelli, one to Jerry Williams and another to Pete Pihos.

Zeke Bratkowski, another passing ace, held the spotlight in the Bear's victory over Los Angeles. The rookie from Georgia passed for two touchdowns and completed 14 of 28 aerials.

The Bears, ending the Rams' three game winning streak, held the NFL's top yard-gaining team scoreless in the last half.

A spine-tingling 78-yard pass play, Gary Kerkorian to Royce Womble, enabled Baltimore to pick up its second triumph of the season at the expense of San Francisco. It was the first time in their profesional gridiron history that the Colts were enable to knock off the 49ers.

Kerkorian and Womble pulled their dazzler less than two minutes after the 49ers had taken a 13-10 lead on Gordon Soltau's second field goal of the final period.

Pittsburgh, which revenge for a 17-14 licking it absorbed at the hands of the Cards Oct. 31, had tackle Nick Bolkovac to thank for its come-from-behind victory.

Bolkovac released by the Steelers early in the year and later recalled, kicked a 26-yard goal midway in the last period for the winning margin. He also booted another three-pointer and added two extra points. The Cards led at halftime, 14-10.

Gafford, Claiborne Lead Andersenmen To Coral Bowl Leage Championship

The fired-up Andersen Bombers, sparked by the running of Leon Gafford and Bobby Claiborne and bolstered by a stonewall defense, battered the Mid-Islanders, 32-0, Sunday night on Gilkeson Field to win the 1954 Coral Bowl League championship.

The Bombers scored once in each of the first three periods and twice in the final quarter while the defensive platoon was holding the Mid-Islanders to a total offense of 73 yards. Only twice did the Middies penetrate beyond the 50-yard line. In the first period they drove to the Bomber 14-yard line but lost the ball on downs. They reached the Andersen 30 in the third quarter but once again were forced by the defense to relinquish control of the ball.

The Andersen squad rolled to a total offense of 456½ yards, 438½ on the ground. Halkback Bobby Claiborne, who was presented with a trophy at halftime for being named the outstanding Bomber back of the season, was the leading ground gainer. The swivel-hipped speedster gained 184 yards in 17 carries for a 10.8 yard average. He also scored two touchdowns, on runs of 33 and 37 yards.

Gafford, who alternated between fullback and halfback during the tilt, started the Bombers toward their seventh league title in eight years when he galloped 81 yards off right tackle late in the first period for the first Andersen tally. Gafford gained 180 yards in 21 carries for an 8.5 average.

The other two Bomber scores were made by quarteback Ron Pasek, both on quaterback sneaks from a yard out. In the second period Mid-Islander tailback Vic Woosley dropped back to punt but fumbled the ball and the Bombers took over on the Middle 34. Pasek scored eight plays later. Pasek scored again in the fourth quarter to cap a drive that started when defensive halfback Bob Smith intercepted a pass from Dave Rivers on the Bomber 43.

The win was the ninth of the season for the Bombers, who end Coral Bowl League play with a 6-2 mark. Andersen's first loss came in the first round at the hands of the Middies when the toe of Mid-Islander George Taylor fashioned a 20-19 upset victory. The Bombers other defeat was last week when they dropped an 8-7 decision to the Sou'Westers.

The loss dropped the Middies and Sou'Westers into a tie for second place in the league and the two teams will meet to decide the Navy championship.

Two games remain on the Bombers slate. They are scheduled to travel to Okinawa next weekend to meet the Kadena AFB Sabres and on Dec. 19 will play a team of Navy All-Stars on Gilkeson Field in the GASBAGS benefit game.
