Dear Adrian:

I checked in with your office today to see if you arrived back safely and if we could arrange to get together informally sometime in the next few weeks. Since both of us appear to be out of town for the next several days, I will plan to call you next week.

Enclosed for your reading pleasure is a copy of the Joint Communique which was the result of our negotiations in Saipan. The sessions continued much as you saw during your visit to Saipan but ended on a generally amicable basis. Both parties seemed pleased with the outcome of the negotiations and I guess that is itself a sign of considerable forward movement.

Best personal regards,

Sincerely,

Howard P. Willens
