Status Talks To Be Later This Month

WASHINGTON (GNS)—Stanley S. Carpenter, director of the Office of Territories, said the first formal meeting of the governor's committee to study the future relationship between Guam and the U.S. government would get under way in late April.

Chairman Julia Hansen of the appropriations subcommittee on the interior asked Carpenter what was taking so long. He replied that "Guam is a very political place" and that Gov. Camacho has been "busy with his re-election campaign."
