Incumbent Sablan Reelected Mayor of Saipan

Monday, June 6, was election day for the office of mayor cf Saipan. Incumbent Vicente D. Sablan and Olympio Borja were the candiates. Both candidates campaigned aggressively with this election more or less a prelude to the commissioner-municipal ballot of June 13.

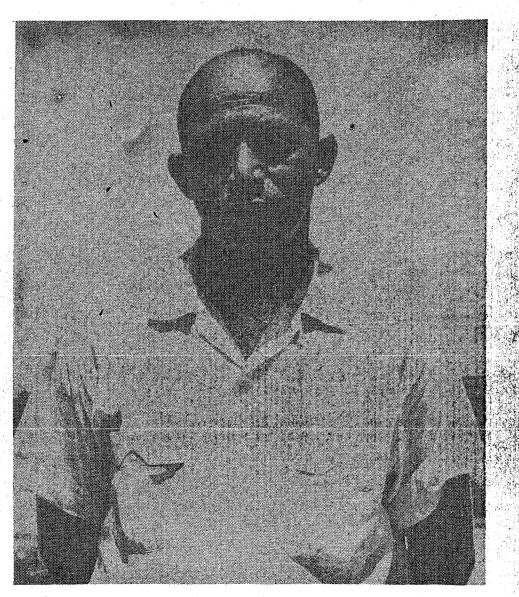

At press time, a call to Saipan found incumbent Mayor Vicente D. Sablan the winner in the close, hardfought election. Sablan is pictured at the right.

The election for mayor generally is considered to be somewhat of an indicator for the commissioner-municipal representative race. Normally, this election is fairly accurate in determining the respective strength of the Popular and Territorial parties in any given election year.

Congratulations are in order for the winner and the interested electorate who turned out to vote. Only through active participation by qualified voters can the will of the people be felt. Politics usually generates a fever-pitched enthusiasm, often leaving behind feelings of animosity. Regardless of the party in power, its success always depends on the ability of the electoriate to close ranks once the votes are cast and work for the common good of the community. Much remains to be 'accomplished requiring continued interest by the entire populace.

Rota Channel Needs Major Alterations

Major shipping to Rota is eliminated due to the present condition of the Channel. Limited to small vessels at high tide, skippers in this area maintain that even at high tide it is dangerous to enter the port. So far, no positive action has been taken on the annual petitions of the past ten years by the people of Rota urging that the TT administration do somthing to improve the channel.

Reportedly, the District Administration recently submitted a request in the amount of $50,000 for repairs, but for the year 1967. Some individuals privately expressed doubt that Hi Com and Interior Dept. would approve this request on the grounds that there higher priority projects in other districts.

Cong. Benjamin T. Manglona, Rota, member of the Congress of Micronesia, asked Public Works Officer Blankenfield how much, in his opinion, would be required to repair the channel. Blankenfield felt that about $100,000 would be needed for safe navigation.

We cannot help reflecting on the state of public services in the Trust Territory. Education is just beginning to get moving, thanks to a crash program and millions of dollars of money earmarked especially for education.

But what is the state of the Territory's public health program?

How rapidly is the administration moving to plan and improve those Micronesian communities which were booming in another day, but which are now no more than deserts of corrugated tin shacks?

How quickly can we expect a sound economic development program to boost the Territory toward a better standard of living?

We don't know the answers to these questions. We are not sure that anyone does. But we do believe that we know why things were so bad before they began to get better.

Without gainsaying the enormous problems of administering such a scattered area as Micronesia on the extremely inadequate budget which the Territory long had (and still does have), we believe that there has been too much foot-dragging along the way.

We cannot help noting that only three years ago did Administration officials decide that all Micronesians should learn English, so as to have a common language. Since the United Nations quite evidently thought of Micronesia as a political entity at the time of the Trusteeship agreement, it is difficult to understand why the Trust Territory administration did not think that a political unit should have a common language for so many years.

Simply said, the lack of language instruction is only evidence of a larger problem which has plagued the development of Micronesia since the trusteeship agreement was signed — lack of planning.

That same lack of planning occasioned many of the problems with the AESCAP program. When the larger budgets did become available, and when the administration did decide to boost education, almost everything had to be done from scratch. The Trust Territory administration was not prepared nor equipped to administer a major construction program.

Hence the schools which were built without restrooms for the students. Hence the schools which were built without electricity to service the modern facilities which they contained.

The administration had never conceded that things might change in the Trust Territory. No one had ever acted on the assumption that at some future date it might be possible to improve conditions. It evidently was assumed that Micronesia would stagnate indefinately.

Several administration officials have said that public health will be the next area of concentrated improvement, after the education program is taken care of. We cannot help wondering how well the administration is prepared to undertake a major health program. Will it fall into the same beaureacratic tangles as plagued the AESCAP program? Robert Robbins Appointed as Legislative Counsel

High Commissioner W. M. Goding recently ended speculation among Micronesian politicians about who would serve as the Congress of Micronesia's legislative counsel. The High Commissioner appointed Professor Robert B. Robbins of Tufts University to the position.

Territory politicians had been hoping to get their own favorites into the position. Mariana District politicos sought to get the job for attorney Bill Nabors, formerly a member of the Territory legal staff. Nabors now has a private practice in Chalan Kanoa.

Solons from other districts were aware of the Saipan group's plans, but they didn't agree. Marshallese Assemblyman Dwight Heine thought that the Marshallese would call for a man more familiar to the people of the southerly isles.

But the High Commissioner ended, all that.

Dr. Robbins is Chairman of the Department of Government at Tufts, one of the United States' prominent colleges. He is a specialist in developing dependent territories toward greater self-government.

Legislative counsels are customarily responsible for drafting legislation, advising legislators on proper procedure and suggesting needed legislation.

Robbins will take part in the legis, lative workshop scheduled for Micronesian Congressmen before the July 12 opening of the Congress. He will stay in the Trust Territory for six months after the session, serving as a consultant to the Congress and as an advisor on political development:

Commissioner Goding said that Robbins is well known to the members of the United Nations Trusteeship Council. Robbins served as alternate American representative to the Council in 1954. He was also a member of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations General Assembly in 1949 and again from 1953 to 1955.

The 56-year old counsel did his initial academic work at Ohio State University, completing a doctoral program there in 1941. He also holds Master of Arts degrees from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy and from Columbia University.

Robbins has served as Deputy Director of the Office of Dependent Affairs. He holds the academic rank of full professor at Tufts. He is expected to arrive in Saipan June 14. COPY LBJ LIBRAR

Narrative Report Complains of Authority Abuses

National attention was directed on the administration of the Trust Territory in February, 1964, when the Saturday Evening Post editorialized on the "deplorable conditions causing shame and embarrassment to the United States." Further complicating attempts to explain our handling of the Trust Territory is, according to this editorial, "Since World War II we have spent more than $104 billion in foreign aid . . . the Pacific Trust Territories are the one area in the world with a valid legal right to our aid."

One year later, additional attention was directed in the form of a voluminous report (31 type-written pages) by Thomas C. Hardy, formerly construction supervisor for the Trust Territory. Senator Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii directed this report to the Dept. of Interior for proper action, the extent of which presently is not known.

A digest of this report shows that Hardy claims that only the education department has shown any real progress in its program, most of the time "continually harassed by the other departments of the Territory government." Wholesale waste of government funds and abuse of authority in practically every area of administration is claimed. Allegedly, practically all building projects have suffered from non-professional planning and supervision, most of them "worthless and unduly costly to repair and maintain". Hospitals, and medical attention, is almost non-existent according to the report. Reportedly, at least 100 medical doctors are required for adequate supervision, noting that under Japanese occupation 87 doctors were assigned to this area. (The medical program has received considerable recent publicity.)

Who is to blame for this condition? According to Hardy, 13 individuals from the High Commissioner to the Assistant Director of Public Works. These officials, have "assumed dictatorial powers over all others," Hardly states. He further claims that the High Commissioner has been quoted as saying, "I am the Law." "Administration of the Trust Territory, while difficult indeed, is not as difficult as some would have us believe," Hardy maintains. Careful investigation probably would result in several suspensions and in some cases criminal prosecution might be warranted, the report maintains.

Noting the seriousness of these charges, Jose Cruz of the Micronesia Times interviewed Mr. John Spivey, Assistant Commissioner of Administration. "Thomas C. Hardy was fired from the employment of the Trust Territory about two months ago because he did not do certain specific work as Construction Supervisor for the TT, and we can't continue paying a man government money for not doing his work," said Spivey. (The work not performed was not specified.)

Spivey continued, "We don't feel that his statements can be justified as fact; he takes isolated instances and tries to say that these are happening all over the TT. He picks up gossip and he tries to make a story or report out of it. In his recent report he mentioned the Mrashall Islands, but he spent only one night in the Marshalls and he can't possibly have enough time for the report he claims. He was using broad generali-

As previously noted, Senator Inouye sent this narrative Report to the Interior Department for comments and in turn, the Interior sent it to Saipan for an answer from the TT administration. Spivey said that their answer to the Interior was the same as the above statements.

Schneider Resigns Quarrel Continues

Dr. Schneider, Acting Director of Medical Services for the Trust Territory recently lodged a vigorous complaint against the Trust Territory Administration and the United States Department of Interior when he resigned his position.

"I am resigning my post because it is apparent that the higher bracket authorities in government are not intending to correct the present situation in the Department (of Medical Services). I am disgusted and exhausted because Washington failed to respond favorably in the situation".

Schneider was referring to the disagreement between the staff of the Department of Medical Services and the High Commissioner over the firing of Dr. Sampson, former Director of Medical Services. Sampson was removed from the directorship of the department and made a consultant some weeks ago for the remainder of his contract. Medical personnel have asked the Department of Interior to send a qualified, impartial observer to investigate the problem.

It is understood that High Commissioner Goding and Dr. Sampson disagreed over policy in administering the Department of Medical Services. Sampson insisted that the Trust Territory Code placed all authority for administration of the Department in the Director's hands. But Goding maintained that Sampson did not have the authority to carry his plans beyond the policy level that is, that the High Commissioner retained authority to make Sampson's administration of the Department fit into planning for the whole Territory.

Dr. Schneider commented after submitting his resignation that the solution to all of Medical Services' problems in the Territory was to re-instate Sampson.

Speaking of the request to have an observer sent to the Territory, Schneider said, "For reasons of political expediency, Washington refuses to help us in the situation....so Washington goes along with the High Commissioner."

The quarrel over administration of the Department of Medical Services also prompted a letter of greivance last month. The letter, signed by members of the Trust Territory medical staff, was sent to the Congress of Micronesia and to the Secretary General of the United Nations. The letter was referred to the Trusteeship Council.

The winner of the Guam contest will be named at a Miss Guam Beauty Pageant June 10 and 11.

The Trusteeship Council replied on May 12 that the letter was being circulated among the members of the council.

It was not known whether the letter was mentioned in discussions about the Trust Territory with High Commissioner Goding last week. Goding was in New York to make his annual report to the United Nations' Trusteeship Council. The Council convened on May 28. The greivance which was sent to the Congress of Micronesia and the U.N. said that the Territory "...has not adequately supported its obligation to 'protect the health of the inhabitants' (part of the trusteeship agreement)."

The greivance also said that parts of last year's report to the U.N. on medical services in the Territory were "literally untrue or misleading, as well as implications that are at variance with the truth as we have experienced it."

The greivance said that equipment was not as good as it had been described and that some medical services listed were not available. It also complained of the firing of Dr. Sampson.

Territory IS

The current battle between the Territory administration and the members of the medical staff, is not one in which we care to choose sides. The quarrel has been going on too long, has involved too many personalities and has become so hot that it is difficult to tell whether either side is completely in the right.

But one thing is clear. The doctors are concerned about the health of the people of Micronesia. So are we.

For we do not believe that there. can be any compromise when it comes to public health. Micronesians must have the best medical services that can be obtained, and they must have them as soon as possible. The United States is supposed to give Micronesia enough money to provide them. The administration is supposed to see to it that money allotted actually pays for medical services. Micronesia can scarcely hope for much additional help from the United Nations, with the world's richest nation administering the Trust Territory.

But Micronesia can let the United States know that better health services are desperately needed in Micronesia. And all the noise the medical staff, the administration and the Congress of Micronesia can make to get the point across is so much the better.

There has been polio in the Trust Territory. There has been gastroenteritis. There has been measles. All three diseases have been epidemics. People throughout the islands suffer from parisites. And there are many other diseases which need curbing.

It is time for Micronesians to let their needs be known. And it is time for them to begin helping themselves. must act for better Legislatures health and sanitation regulations. PeoDear Mr. Cruz:

Ag Group Visits East-West Center

The Trust Territory representatives to the East-West Center's course in plant pathology in Western Samoa took good advantage of their arrival a week before the course began.

The three representatives—Jim Zaiger, plant pathologist, Tashiro Ludwig, Zaiger's laboratory assistant and Edward dela Cruz, agriculturist spent the week touring Western Samoa's agriculture industries and collecting plant specimens and ideas. Zaiger and Ludwig are from Ponape, while Cruz is from the Mariana district.

The group visited the Vaivase sugar mill and the new processing center at Nafanua. They took copious notes on and photographs of the work being done there. And they were very interested in the new sugar cane varities. Zaiger will be bringing back samples of Samoan taro to see if it will be more resistant to the leaf-spot and root-rot diseases than the taro species now in the Territory. The Samoan taro will be only one

The Samoan taro will be only one in a series of new crops the Trust Territory will be trying out in the near future. Others are coffee, pepper, rice and sugar. The Territory has also imported its first 60 head of Santa Gertruda cattle.

WSZA CONDUCTS BROADCAST TRIAL

Yap Radio, operating on 1000 watts power at 1480 kcs, will get its first trials next week, according to Rudy Aliven, TT electronic technician who is here directing the installation of new equipment in the broadcasting station. Tony Yug is busy helping Rudy and Jim Reed put the neat strands of wire, shiny plates and hundreds of dials together but he is also planning a gala program for the initial performance of WSZA. Tony said he hoped to have the program in form so it can be announced in next week's RAI REVIEW.

Mr. Aliven said the Yap station should be heard regularly as far as Guam. Reception should be fairly good in all parts of Yap District with the possible exception of the remote islands of Elato, Satawal and Lamotrek.

When WSZA goes on the air it will give the Territory a broadcasting station in each district center. Readers who have radios and the opportunity might tune them to 1480 next week from time to time during working hours and listen to WSZA's first squeals and beeps. Rudy will be happy to hear how he is being received during the testing period.

Dear Mr. Cruz:

We, on Tinian, heard the Saipan Radio KJQR announce that the Government of the Trust Territory is again sending out more students for schooling to school outside of the Trust Territory, and many of Tinian school children parents are wondering what about their children.

The Tinian students attending schools on Saipan are no longer being assisted financially by the government and we are wondering whether students from Tinian are second rate citizens.

I wish our government to check into the problem anl well-being of the people of Tinian more closely. Sincerely.

Here N' There Apartment Bids In the Territory Opened June 15

Presently there are about 100 pa-tients admitted to Dr. Torres Memorial Hospital on Saipan. Many of these patients are tuberculosis cases that probably will be there for a long time.

Patients in this hospital are required to eat the food served by the hospital, but the food is served without cups, spoons, forks or knifes.

In an interview early last week, Joe Takai, head of the hospital's mess said: "We used to have plenty of silverware but somehow these were stolen piece by piece and now we are out of it. We cannot buy new silverware because we don't have the money, so the patients have to eat their meals three times a day without spoons."

YAP APARTMENTS

Bids are to be opened June 15, 1965, for the construction of an eight unit apartment building for Yap, according to information received from Head-quarters recently. The same type of structure is planned for Truk, Ponape and the Marshalls. The Navy is in charge of negotiating a contract for the buildings. The Trust Territory' is required to clear the sites and provide power and water for the projects.

Yap's apartment two story housing house, the first for the island, will be located near the site of the District Broadcasting Station. Two additional houses for employees are being planned for the same area.

Foreign Labor No Substitute

High Commissioner has announced a policy with respect to foreign nationals which requires, "in every instance, they must return to their point of hire." Mr. Goding stated that during the past few months there have been several instances where Trust Territory companies, individuals and even Government department heads have requested that foreign nationals remain in the Trust Territory upon completion of their contracts with any of the several construction companies doing contract work within the Trust Territory. "We must, in all fairness to everyone, deny all requests for remaining within the Territory upon completion of contracts," the High Commissioner said. Mr. Goding went on to make the following statement: "On individual basis, we will consider the entry of foreign nationals into the Trust Terri-tory for the purpose of instruction or training. Foreign labor will not be allowed entry as a substitute for Micronesian employment."
