BACKGROUND:

On February 15 we signed an agreement with the Northern Marianas making them a commonwealth of the U. S. This is the first U. S. territorial addition since 1917. It is also the first time in history that a trusteeship territory has asked to merge with the administering metropolitan state.

The Marianas broke away from the other five districts of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands (TTPI) in early 1972, in order to negotiate a closer political union with the U. S. than that desired by the other five districts.

The commonwealth agreement must now be submitted to a plebiscite, which we hope will be held before next July. The agreement must also be submitted to our Congress. There is some opposition in the Northern Marianas to the agreement, and leaders in the other five districts have not yet given up their effort to bring the Northern Marianas back into their fold.

A meeting between you and these two leaders would have a beneficial impact on preparations for the plebiscite.

Pangelinan has been one of the leading advocates of commonwealth within the U. S. political union, and Mr. Tenorio has just been elected as a Senator to succeed Pangelinan in the Congress of Micronesia. They are good friends of ours. Both will be here to testify at the Jackson Committee hearings on our administration of the TTPI.
